TO MY BEST FRIEND

THEODORE WATTS-DUNTON

VOL. II.

A

*Spring speaks again, and all our woods are stirred,
And all our wide glad wastes aflower around,
That twice have heard keen April's clarion sound Since here we first together saw and heard Spring's light reverberate and reiterate word Shine forth and speak in season. Life stands crowned Here with the best one thing it ever found,
As of my soul's best birthdays dawns the third.*

*There is a friend that as the wise man saith Cleaves closer than a brother : nor to me
Hath time not shown, through days like waves at strife,
This truth more sure than all things else but death,
This pearl most perfect found in all the sea
That washes toward your feet these waifs of life.*

THE PINES : April 1882

PRELUDE

TRISTRAM AND ISEULT

LOVE, that is first and last of all things made,
The light that has the living world for shade,
The spirit that for temporal veil has on The souls of all men woven in unison,
One fiery raiment with all lives inwrought
And lights of sunny and starry deed and thought,
And alway through new act and passion new Shines the divine same body and beauty through,
The body spiritual of fire and light
That is to worldly noon as noon to night ;
Love, that is flesh upon the spirit of man
And spirit within the flesh whence breath began ;
Love, that keeps all the choir of lives in chime ;
Love, that is blood within the veins of time ;
That wrought the whole world without stroke of hand,
Shaping the breadth of sea, the length of land,
And with the pulse and motion of his breath Through the great heart of the earth strikes life and
death,
The sweet twain chords that make the sweet tune live
Through day and night of things alternative, Through silence and through sound of stress and strife,
And ebb and flow of dying death and life ;

Love, that sounds loud or light in all men's ears,
Whence all men's eyes take fire from sparks of tears,
That binds on all men's feet or chains or wings ;
Love, that is root and fruit of terrene things ;
Love, that the whole world's waters shall not drown,
The whole world's fiery forces not burn down ;
Love, that what time his own hands guard his head
The whole world's wrath and strength shall not strike
dead ;

Love, that if once his own hands make his grave
The whole world's pity and sorrow shall not save ;
Love, that for very life shall not be sold,
Nor bought nor bound with iron nor with gold ;
So strong that heaven, could love bid heaven farewell,
Would turn to fruitless and unflowering hell ;
So sweet that hell, to hell could love be given,
Would turn to splendid and sonorous heaven ;
Love that is fire within thee and light above,
And lives by grace of nothing but of love ;
Through many and lovely thoughts and much desire Led these twain to the life of tears and fire ;
Through many and lovely days and much delight
Led these twain to the lifeless life of night.

Yea, but what then ? albeit all this were thus,
And soul smote soul and left it ruinous,
And love led love as eyeless men lead men, Through chance by chance to deathward—Ah, what then ?

Hath love not likewise led them further yet,
Out through the years where memories rise and set,
Some large as suns, some moon-like warm and pale,
Some starry-sighted, some through clouds that sail
Seen as red flame through spectral float of fume,
Each with the blush of its own special bloom

On the fair face of its own coloured light, Distinguishable in all the host of night,
Divisible from all the radiant rest
And separable in splendour? Hath the best Light of love's all, of all that burn and move,
A better heaven than heaven is? Hath not love
Made for all these their sweet particular air
To shine in, their own beams and names to bear, Their ways to wander and their wards to keep,
Till story and song and glory and all things sleep?
Hath he not plucked from death of lovers dead
Their musical soft memories, and kept red
The rose of their remembrance in men's eyes,
The sunsets of their stories in his skies,
The blush of their dead blood in lips that speak
Of their dead lives, and in the listener's cheek
That trembles with the kindling pity lit
In gracious hearts for some sweet fever-fit,
A fiery pity enkindled of pure thought
By tales that make their honey out of nought,
The faithless faith that lives without belief
Its light life through, the griefless ghost of grief?
Yea, as warm night refashions the sere blood
In storm-struck petal or in sun-struck bud,
With tender hours and tempering dew to cure
The hunger and thirst of day's distemperature
And ravin of the dry discolouring hours,
Hath he not bid relume their flameless flowers
With summer fire and heat of lamping song,
And bid the short-lived things, long dead, live long,
And thought remake their wan funereal fames,
And the sweet shining signs of women's names
That mark the months out and the weeks anew
He moves in changeless change of seasons through

To fill the days up of his dateless year Flame from Queen Helen to Queen Guenevere?
For first of all the sphery signs whereby Love severs light from darkness, and most high,
In the white front of January there glows
The rose-red sign of Helen like a rose :
And gold-eyed as the shore-flower shelterless Whereon the sharp-breathed sea blows bitterness,
A storm-star that the seafarers of love Strain their wind-wearied eyes for glimpses of, Shoots keen through February's grey frost and damp
The lamplike star of Hero for a lamp ;
The star that Marlowe sang into our skies
With mouth of gold, and morning in his eyes ; .
And in clear March across the rough blue sea
The signal sapphire of Alcyone
Makes bright the blown brows of the wind-foot year ;
And shining like a sunbeam-smitten tear
Full ere it fall, the fair next sign in sight
Burns opal-wise with April-coloured light
When air is quick with song and rain and flame,
My birth-month star that in love's heaven hath name
Iseult, a light of blossom and beam and shower,
My singing sign that makes the song-tree flower ;
Next like a pale and burning pearl beyond
The rose-white sphere of flower-named Rosamond Signs the sweet head of Maytime ; and for June Flares like an angered and storm-reddening moon
Her signal sphere, whose Carthaginian pyre Shadowed her traitor's flying sail with fire ;
Next, glittering as the wine-bright jacinth-stone,
A star south-risen that first to music shone,
The keen girl-star of golden Juliet bears
Light northward to the month whose forehead wears

Her name for flower upon it, and his trees
Mix their deep English song with Veronese ;
And like an awful sovereign chrysolite
Burning, the supreme fire that blinds the night,
The hot gold head of Venus kissed by Mars,
A sun-flower among small sphered flowers of stars,
The light of Cleopatra fills and burns
The hollow of heaven whence ardent August years ;
And fixed and shining as the sister-shed
Sweet tears for Phaethon disorbed and dead,
The pale bright autumn's amber-coloured sphere,
That through September sees the saddening year
As love sees change through sorrow, hath to name Francésca's ; and the star that watches flame
The embers of the harvest overgone
Is Thisbe's, slain of love in Babylon,
Set in the golden girdle of sweet signs
A blood-bright ruby ; last save one light shines
An eastern wonder of sphery chrysopras,
The star that made men mad, Angelica's ;
And latest named and lordliest, with a sound
Of swords and harps in heaven that ring it round,
Last love-light and last love-song of the year's,
Gleams like a glorious emerald Guenevere's.
These are the signs wherethrough the year sees move,
Full of the sun, the sun-god which is love,
A fiery body blood-red from the heart
Outward, with fire-white wings made wide apart,
That close not and unclosed not, but upright Steered without wind by their own light and might Sweep through the flameless fire of air that rings From heaven to heaven with thunder of wheels and wings

And antiphones of motion-moulded rhyme
Through spaces out of space and timeless time.

So shine above dead chance and conquered change
The spherèd signs, and leave without their range
Doubt and desire, and hope with fear for wife,
Pale pains, and pleasures long worn out of life.
Yea, even the shadows of them spiritless,
Through the dim door of sleep that seem to press,
Forms without form, a piteous people and blind,
Men and no men, whose lamentable kind
The shadow of death and shadow of life compel Through semblances of heaven and false-faced hell,
Through dreams of light and dreams of darkness tost
On waves innavigable, are these so lost ?
Shapes that wax pale and shift in swift strange wise,
Void faces with unspeculative eyes,
Dim things that gaze and glare, dead mouths that move,

Featureless heads discrowned of hate and love,
Mockeries and masks of motion and mute breath,
Leavings of life, the superflux of death—
If these things and no more than these things be Left when man ends or changes, who can see ?
Or who can say with what more subtle sense
Their subtler natures taste in air less dense
A life less thick and palpable than ours, Warmed with faint fires and sweetened with dead flowers

And measured by low music ? how time fares
In that wan time-forgotten world of theirs,
Their pale poor world too deep for sun or star
To live in, where the eyes of Helen are,
And hers who made as God's own eyes to shine
The eyes that met them of the Florentine,

Wherein the godhead thence transfigured lit
All time for all men with the shadow of it?
Ah, and these too felt on them as God's grace
The pity and glory of this man's breathing face;
For these too, these my lovers, these my twain,
Saw Dante, saw God visible by pain,
With lips that thundered and with feet that trod
Before men's eyes incognisable God;
Saw love and wrath and light and night and fire
Live with one life and at one mouth respire,
And in one golden sound their whole soul heard Sounding, one sweet immitigable word.

They have the night, who had like us the day;
We, whom day binds, shall have the night as they.
We, from the fetters of the light unbound,
Healed of our wound of living, shall sleep sound.
All gifts but one the jealous God may keep
From our soul's longing, one he cannot—sleep.
This, though he grudge all other grace to prayer,
This grace his closed hand cannot choose but spare.
This, though his ear be sealed to all that live,
Be it lightly given or lothly, God must give.
We, as the men whose name on earth is none,
We too shall surely pass out of the sun;
Out of the sound and eyeless light of things,
Wide as the stretch of life's time-wandering wings,
Wide as the naked world and shadowless,
And long-lived as the world's own weariness.
Us too, when all the fires of time are cold,
The heights shall hide us and the depths shall hold.
Us too, when all the tears of time are dry,
The night shall lighten from her tearless eye.
Blind is the day and eyeless all its light,
But the large unbewildered eye of night

Hath sense and speculation ; and the sheer Limitless length of lifeless life and clear,
The timeless space wherein the brief worlds move Clothed with light life and fruitful with light love,
With hopes that threaten, and with fears that cease,
Past fear and hope, hath in it only peace.

Yet of these lives inlaid with hopes and fears,
Spun fine as fire and jewelled thick with tears, These lives made out of loves that long since were,
Lives wrought as ours of earth and burning air,
Fugitive flame, and water of secret springs,
And clothed with joys and sorrows as with wings,
Some yet are good, if aught be good, to save
Some while from washing wreck and wrecking-wave Was such not theirs, the twain I take, and give Out of my life to make their dead life live
Some days of mine, and blow my living breath
Between dead lips forgotten even of death ?
So many and many of old have given my twain
Love and live song and honey-hearted pain,
Whose root is sweetness and whose fruit is sweet,
So many and with such joy have tracked their feet,
What should I do to follow ? yet I too,
I have the heart to follow, many or few
Be the feet gone before me ; for the way,
Rose-red with remnant roses of the day
Westward, and eastward white with stars that break, Between the green and foam is fair to take
For any sail the sea-wind steers for me
From morning into morning, sea to sea.

THE SAILING OF THE SWALLOW

ABOUT the middle music of the spring
Came from the castled shore of Ireland's king
A fair ship stoutly sailing, eastward bound
And south by Wales and all its wonders round
To the loud rocks and ringing reaches home
That take the wild wrath of the Cornish foam, Past Lyonesse unswallowed of the tides
And high Carlion that now the steep sea hides
To the wind-hollowed heights and gusty bays
Of sheer Tintagel, fair with famous days.
Above the stem a gilded swallow shone, Wrought with straight wings and eyes of glittering stone
As flying sunward oversea, to bear
Green summer with it through the singing air.
And on the deck between the rowers at dawn,
As the bright sail with brightening wind was drawn,
Sat with full face against the strengthening light
Iseult, more fair than foam or dawn was white.
Her gaze was glad past love's own singing of,
And her face lovely past desire of love.
Past thought and speech her maiden motions were,
And a more golden sunrise was her hair.

The very veil of her bright flesh was made
As of light woven and moonbeam-coloured shade
More fine than moonbeams ; white her eyelids shone
As snow sun-stricken that endures the sun,
And through their curled and coloured clouds of deep Luminous lashes thick as dreams in sleep
Shone as the sea's depth swallowing up the sky's
The springs of unimaginable eyes.
As the wave's subtler emerald is pierced through With the utmost heaven's inextricable blue,
And both are woven and molten in one sleight
Of amorous colour and implicated light
Under the golden guard and gaze of noon,
So glowed their awless amorous plenilune,
Azure and gold and ardent grey, made strange
With fiery difference and deep interchange Inexplicable of glories multiform ;
Now as the sullen sapphire swells toward storm
Foamless, their bitter beauty grew acold,
And now afire with ardour of fine gold.
Her flower-soft lips were meek and passionate,
For love upon them like a shadow sate
Patient, a foreseen vision of sweet things,
A dream with eyes fast shut and plumeless wings
That knew not what man's love or life should be,
Nor had it sight nor heart to hope or see What thing should come, but childlike satisfied Watched out its virgin vigil in soft pride
And unkissed expectation ; and the glad Clear cheeks and throat and tender temples had Such maiden heat as if a rose's blood
Beat in the live heart of a lily-bud.
Between the small round breasts a white way led Heavenward, and from slight foot to slender head

The whole fair body flower-like swayed and shone Moving, and what her light hand leant upon Grew blossom-scented : her warm arms began
 To round and ripen for delight of man
 That they should clasp and circle : her fresh hands,
 Like regent lilies of reflowering lands
 Whose vassal firstlings, crown and star and plume, Bow down to the empire of that sovereign bloom, Shone sceptreless, and from her face there went
 A silent light as of a God content ;
 Save when, more swift and keen than love or shame,
 Some flash of blood, light as the laugh of flame,
 Broke it with sudden beam and shining speech,
 As dream by dream shot through her eyes, and each Outshone the last that lightened, and not one Showed her such things as should be borne and done.

Though hard against her shone the sunlike face
 That in all change and wreck of time and place Should be the star of her sweet living soul.
 Nor had love made it as his written scroll
 For evil will and good to read in yet ;
 But smooth and mighty, without scar or fret,
 Fresh and high-lifted was the helmless brow
 As the oak-tree flower that tops the topmost bough, Ere it drop off before the perfect leaf ;
 And nothing save his name he had of grief,
 The name his mother, dying as he was born,
 Made out of sorrow in very sorrow's scorn,
 And set it on him smiling in her sight, Tristram ; who now, clothed with sweet youth and might,
 As a glad witness wore that bitter name,
 The second symbol of the world for fame.

Famous and full of fortune was his youth
Ere the beard's bloom had left his cheek unsmooth,
And in his face a lordship of strong joy
And height of heart no chance could curb or cloy Lightened, and all that warmed them at his eyes Loved them as larks that kindle as they rise Toward light they turn to music love the blue strong skies.

So like the morning through the morning moved Tristram, a light to look on and be loved.
Song sprang between his lips and hands, and shone Singing, and strengthened and sank down thereon
As a bird settles to the second flight,
Then from beneath his harping hands with might Leapt, and made way and had its fill and died,
And all whose hearts were fed upon it sighed
Silent, and in them all the fire of tears
Burned as wine drunken not with lips but ears.
And gazing on his fervent hands that made
The might of music all their souls obeyed
With trembling strong subservience of delight
Full many a maid that had him once in sight
Thought in the secret rapture of her heart
In how dark onset had these hands borne part
How oft, and were so young and sweet of skill ;
And those red lips whereon the song burned still,
What words and cries of battle had they flung Athwart the swing and shriek of swords, so young ;
And eyes as glad as summer, what strange youth
Fed them so full of happy heart and truth,
That had seen sway from side to sundering side
The steel flow of that terrible springtide
That the moon rules not, but the fire and light
Of men's hearts mixed in the mid mirth of fight.

Therefore the joy and love of him they had Made thought more amorous in them and more glad
 For his fame's sake remembered, and his youth
 Gave his fame flowerlike fragrance and soft growth
 As of a rose requickening, when he stood Fair in their eye, a flower of faultless blood.
 And that sad queen to whom his life was death,
 A rose plucked forth of summer in mid breath,
 A star fall'n out of season in mid throe
 Of that life's joy that makes the star's life glow,
 Made their love sadder toward him and more strong.
 And in mid change of time and fight and song Chance cast him westward on the low sweet strand
 Where songs are sung of the old green Irish land,
 And the sky loves it, and the sea loves best,
 And as a bird is taken to man's breast
 The sweet-souled land where sorrow sweetest sings
 Is wrapt round with them as with hands and wings
 And taken to the sea's heart as a flower.
 There in the luck and light of his good hour
 Came to the king's court like a noteless man Tristram, and while some half a season ran Abode before him harping in his hall,
 And taught sweet craft of new things musical
 To the dear maiden mouth and innocent hands
 That for his sake are famous in all lands.
 Yet was not love between them, for their fate
 Lay wrapt in its appointed hour at wait,
 And had no flower to show yet, and no sting.
 But once being vexed with some past wound the king
 Bade give him comfort of sweet baths, and then Should Iseult watch him as his handmaiden,

For his more honour in men's sight, and ease
 The hurts he had with holy remedies
 Made by her mother's magic in strange hours
 Out of live roots and life-compelling flowers.
 And finding by the wound's shape in his side
 This was the knight by whom their strength had died
 And all their might in one man overthrown
 Had left their shame in sight of all men shown,
 She would have slain him swordless with his sword :
 Yet seemed he to her so great and fair a lord
 She heaved up hand and smote not ; then said he, Laughing—' What comfort shall this dead man be,
 Damsel ? what hurt is for my blood to heal ?
 But set your hand not near the toothèd steel .
 Lest the fang strike it.'—' Yea, the fang,' she said,
 ' Should it not sting the very serpent dead
 That stung mine uncle ? for his slayer art thou,
 And half my mother's heart is bloodless now Through thee, that mad'st the veins of all her kin Bleed in his wounds whose veins through thee rar thin.'

Yet thought she how their hot chief's violent heart
 Had flung the fierce word forth upon their part Which bade to battle the best knight that stood On Arthur's, and so dying of his wild mood
 Had set upon his conqueror's flesh the seal
 Of his mishallowed and anointed steel, Whereof the venom and enchanted might
 Made the sign burn here branded in her sight.
 These things she stood recasting, and her soul
 Subsiding till its wound of wrath were whole Grew smooth again, as thought still softening stole Through all its tempered passion ; nor might hate Keep high the fire against him lit of late ;

But softly from his smiling sight she passed.
 And peace thereafter made between them fast
 Made peace between two kingdoms, when he went Home with hands reconciled and heart content,
 To bring fair truce 'twixt Cornwall's wild bright strand

And the long wrangling wars of that loud land.
 And when full peace was struck betwixt them twain Forth must he fare by those green straits again,
 And bring back Iseult for a plighted bride
 And set to reign at Mark his uncle's side.
 So now with feast made and all triumphs done
 They sailed between the moonfall and the sun
 Under the spent stars eastward ; but the queen
 Out of wise heart and subtle love had seen Such things as might be, dark as in a glass,
 And lest some doom of these should come to pass
 Bethought her with her secret soul alone
 To work some charm for marriage unison
 And strike the heart of Iseult to her lord
 With power compulsive more than stroke of sword.
 Therefore with marvellous herbs and spells she wrought

To win the very wonder of her thought,
 And brewed it with her secret hands and blest
 And drew and gave out of her secret breast
 To one her chosen and Iseult's handmaiden, Brangwain, and bade her hide from sight of men
 This marvel covered in a golden cup,
 So covering in her heart the counsel up
 As in the gold the wondrous wine lay close ;
 And when the last shout with the last cup rose
 About the bride and bridegroom bound to bed,
 Then should this one word of her will be said

To her new-married maiden child, that she Should drink with Mark this draught in unity,
 And no lip touch it for her sake but theirs :
 For with long love and consecrating prayers
 The wine was hallowed for their mouths to pledge ;
 And if a drop fell from the beaker's edge
 That drop should Iseult hold as dear as blood Shed from her mother's heart to do her good.
 And having drunk they twain should be one heart
 Who were one flesh till fleshly death should part—Death, who parts all. So Brangwain swore, and kept

The hid thing by her while she waked or slept.
 And now they sat to see the sun again
 Whose light of eye had looked on no such twain
 Since Galahault in the rose-time of the year Brought Launcelot first to sight of Guenevere.

And Tristram caught her changing eyes and said
 " As this day raises daylight from the dead Might not this face the life of a dead man ? "

And Iseult, gazing where the sea was wan
 Out of the sun's way, said : " I pray you not Praise me, but tell me there in Camelot,
 Saving the queen, who hath most name of fair ?
 I would I were a man and dwelling there,
 That I might win me better praise than yours,
 Even such as you have ; for your praise endures, That with great deeds ye wring from mouths of men,

But ours—for shame, where is it ? Tell me then,
 Since woman may not wear a better here,
 Who of this praise hath most save Guenevere ? "

And Tristram, lightening with a laugh held in—
 " Surely a little praise is this to win,

A poor praise and a little ! but of these Hapless, whom love serves only with bowed knees,

Of such poor women fairer face hath none
 That lifts her eyes alive against the sun
 Than Arthur's sister, whom the north seas call Mistress of isles ; so yet majestic
 Above the crowns on younger heads she moves, Outlightening with her eyes our late-born loves."

" Ah," said Iseult, " is she more tall than I ?
 Look, I am tall ; " and struck the mast hard by,
 With utmost upward reach of her bright hand ;
 " And look, fair lord, now, when I rise and stand,
 How high with feet unlifted I can touch Standing straight up ; could this queen do thus much ?

Nay, over tall she must be then, like me ;
 Less fair than lesser women. May this be,
 That still she stands the second stateliest there,
 So more than many so much younger fair,
 She, born when yet the king your lord was not,
 And has the third knight after Launcelot
 And after you to serve her ? nay, sir, then God made her for a godlike sign to men."

" Ay," Tristram answered, " for a sign, a sign—
 Would God it were not ! for no planets shine
 With half such fearful forecast of men's fate
 As a fair face so more unfortunate."

Then with a smile that lit not on her brows
 But moved upon her red mouth tremulous Light as a sea-bird's motion oversea,
 " Yea," quoth Iseult, " the happier hap for me.
 With no such face to bring men no such fate.
 Yet her might all we women born too late

Praise for good hap, who so enskied above
Not more in age excels us than man's love."

There came a glooming light on Tristram's face Answering : " God keep you better in his grace
Than to sit down beside her in men's sight.
For if men be not blind whom God gives light
And lie not in whose lips he bids truth live, Great grief shall she be given, and greater give.
For Merlin witnessed of her years ago
That she should work woe and should suffer woe
Beyond the race of women : and in truth
Her face, a spell that knows nor age nor youth,
Like youth being soft, and subtler-eyed than age,
With lips that mock the doom her eyes presage,
Hath on it such a light of cloud and fire,
With charm and change of keen or dim desire,
And over all a fearless look of fear
Hung like a veil across its changing cheer,
Made up of fierce foreknowledge and sharp scorn,
That it were better she had not been born.
For not love's self can help a face which hath Such insubmissive anguish of wan wrath,
Blind prescience and self-contemptuous hate
Of her own soul and heavy-footed fate,
Writ broad upon its beauty : none the less
Its fire of bright and burning bitterness Takes with as quick a flame the sense of men
As any sunbeam, nor is quenched again
With any drop of dewfall ; yea, I think
No herb of force or blood-compelling drink
Would heal a heart that ever it made hot.
Ay, and men too that greatly love her not,
Seeing the great love of her and Lamoracke,
Make no great marvel, nor look strangely back

When with his gaze about her she goes by Pale as a breathless and star-quicken sky
 Between moonrise and sunset, and moves out Clothed with the passion of his eyes about
 As night with all her stars, yet night is black ;
 And she, clothed warm with love of Lamoracke, Girt with his worship as with girdling gold,
 Seems all at heart anhungered and acold,
 Seems sad at heart and loveless of the light,
 As night, star-clothed or naked, is but night."

And with her sweet eyes sunken, and the mirth Dead in their look as earth lies dead in earth
 That reigned on earth and triumphed, Iseult said :
 " Is it her shame of something done and dead
 Or fear of something to be born and done
 That so in her soul's eye puts out the sun ? "

And Tristram answered : " Surely, as I think,
 This gives her soul such bitterness to drink,
 The sin born blind, the sightless sin unknown,
 Wrought when the summer in her blood was blown But scarce aflower, and spring first flushed her will
 With bloom of dreams no fruitage should fulfil,
 When out of vision and desire was wrought
 The sudden sin that from the living thought Leaps a live deed and dies not : then there came On that blind sin swift eyesight like a flame Touching the dark to death, and made her mad
 With helpless knowledge that too late forbade
 What was before the bidding : and she knew How sore a life dead love should lead her through To what sure end how fearful ; and though yet
 Nor with her blood nor tears her way be wet
 And she look bravely with set face on fate,
 Yet she knows well the serpent hour at wait

24 THE SAILING OF THE SWALLOW

Somewhere to sting and spare not ; ay, and he, Arthur " —

" The king," quoth Iseult suddenly,
" Doth the king too live so in sight of fear ?
They say sin touches not a man so near As shame a woman ; yet he too should be Part of the penance, being more deep than she Set in the sin."

" Nay," Tristram said, " for thus
It fell by wicked hap and hazardous,
That wittingly he sinned no more than youth
May sin and be assoiled of God and truth, Repenting ; since in his first year of reign
As he stood splendid with his foemen slain
And light of new-blown battles, flushed and hot
With hope and life, came greeting from King Lot
Out of his wind-worn islands oversea,
And homage to my king and fealty
Of those north seas wherein the strange shapes swim,
As from his man ; and Arthur greeted him
As his good lord and courteously, and bade
To his high feast ; who coming with him had
This Queen Morgause of Orkney, his fair wife,
In the green middle Maytime of her life,
And scarce in April was our king's as then,
And goodliest was he of all flowering men,
And of what graft as yet himself knew not ;
But cold as rains in autumn was King Lot
And grey-grown out of season : so there sprang Swift love between them, and all spring through sang Light in their joyous hearing ; for none knew
The bitter bond of blood between them two,
Twain fathers but one mother, till too late
The sacred mouth of Merlin set forth fate

And brake the secret seal on Arthur's birth,
 And showed his ruin and his rule on earth Inextricable, and light on lives to be.
 For surely, though time slay us, yet shall we Have such high name and lordship of good days
 As shall sustain us living, and men's praise
 Shall burn a beacon lit above us dead.
 And of the king how shall not this be said
 When any of us from any mouth has praise,
 That such were men in only this king's days,
 In Arthur's? yea, come shine or shade, no less
 His name shall be one name with knightliness,
 His fame one light with sunlight. Yet in sooth
 His age shall bear the burdens of his youth
 And bleed from his own bloodshed; for indeed Blind to him blind his sister brought forth seed,
 And of the child between them shall be born Destruction: so shall God not suffer scorn, Nor in men's souls and lives his law lie dead."

And as one moved and marvelling Iseult said
 "Great pity it is and strange it seems to me God could not do them so much right as we,
 Who slay not men for witless evil done;
 And these the noblest under God's glad sun
 For sin they knew not he that knew shall slay,
 And smite blind men for stumbling in fair day.
 What good is it to God that such should die?
 Shall the sun's light grow sunnier in the sky
 Because their light of spirit is clean put out?"

And sighing, she looked from wave to cloud about,
 And even with that the full-grown feet of day
 Sprang upright on the quivering water-way,
 And his face burned against her meeting face
 Most like a lover's thrilled with great love's grace

Whose glance takes fire and gives ; the quick sea shone

And shivered like spread wings of angels blown
By the sun's breath before him ; and a low Sweet gale shook all the foam-flowers of thin snow
As into rainfall of sea-roses shed
Leaf by wild leaf on that green garden-bed
Which tempests till and sea-winds turn and plough :
For rosy and fiery round the running prow Fluttered the flakes and feathers of the spray,
And bloomed like blossoms cast by God away
To waste on the ardent water ; swift the moon
Withered to westward as a face in swoon
Death-stricken by glad tidings : and the height
Throbbled and the centre quivered with delight
And the depth quailed with passion as of love,
Till like the heart of some new-mated dove
Air, light, and wave seemed full of burning rest,
With motion as of one God's beating breast.

And her heart sprang in Iseult, and she drew
With all her spirit and life the sunrise through,
And through her lips the keen triumphant air Sea-scented, sweeter than land-roses were,
And through her eyes the whole rejoicing east
Sun-satisfied, and all the heaven at feast Spread for the morning ; and the imperious mirth
Of wind and light that moved upon the earth, Making the spring, and all the fruitful might
And strong regeneration of delight
That swells the seedling leaf and sapling man,
Since the first life in the first world began
To burn and burgeon through void limbs and veins,
And the first love with sharp sweet procreant pains

To pierce and bring forth roses ; yea, she felt Through her own soul the sovereign morning melt,
 And all the sacred passion of the sun ;
 And as the young clouds flamed and were undone
 About him coming, touched and burnt away
 In rosy ruin and yellow spoil of day,
 The sweet veil of her body and corporal sense
 Felt the dawn also cleave it, and incense
 With light from inward and with effluent heat
 The kindling soul through fleshly hands and feet.
 And as the august great blossom of the dawn
 Burst, and the full sun scarce from sea withdrawn Seemed on the fiery water a flower afloat,
 So as a fire the mighty morning smote
 Throughout her, and incensed with the influent hour
 Her whole soul's one great mystical red flower Burst, and the bud of her sweet spirit broke Rose-fashion, and the strong spring at a stroke Thrilled, and was cloven, and from the full sheath came

The whole rose of the woman red as flame :
 And all her Mayday blood as from a swoon Flushed, and May rose up in her and was June.
 So for a space her heart as heavenward burned :
 Then with half summer in her eyes she turned,
 And on her lips was April yet, and smiled,
 As though the spirit and sense unreconciled
 Shrank laughing back, and would not ere its hour
 Let life put forth the irrevocable flower.

And the soft speech between them grew again
 With questionings and records of what men
 Rose mightiest, and what names for love or fight Shone starriest overhead of queen or knight.

There Tristram spake of many a noble thing,
High feast and storm of tourney round the king, Strange quest by perilous lands of marsh and brake
And circling woods branch-knotted like a snake
And places pale with sins that they had seen,
Where was no life of red fruit or of green
But all was as a dead face wan and dun ;
And bowers of evil builders whence the sun
Turns silent, and the moon holds hardly light
Above them through the sick and star-crossed night ;
And of their hands through whom such holds lay waste,

And all their strengths dishevelled and defaced
Fell ruinous, and were not from north to south :
And of the might of Merlin's ancient mouth,
The son of no man's loins, begot by doom
In speechless sleep out of a spotless womb ;
For sleeping among graves where none had rest
And ominous houses of dead bones unblest
Among the grey grass rough as old rent hair
And wicked herbage whitening like despair
And blown upon with blasts of dolorous breath
From gaunt rare gaps and hollow doors of death,
A maid unspotted, senseless of the spell,
Felt not about her breathe some thing of hell
Whose child and hers was Merlin ; and to him Great light from God gave sight of all things dim
And wisdom of all wondrous things, to say What root should bear what fruit of night or day,
And sovereign speech and counsel higher than man ;
Wherefore his youth like age was wise and wan,
And his age sorrowful and fain to sleep ;
Yet should sleep never, neither laugh nor weep,

Till in some depth of deep sweet land or sea
 The heavenly hands of holier Nimue,
 That was the nurse of Launcelot, and most sweet
 Of all that move with magical soft feet
 Among us, being of lovelier blood and breath,
 Should shut him in with sleep as kind as death :
 For she could pass between the quick and dead :
 And of her love toward Pelleas, for whose head
 Love-wounded and world-wearied she had won
 A place beyond all pain in Avalon ;
 And of the fire that wasted afterward
 The loveless eyes and bosom of Ettarde,
 In whose false love his faultless heart had burned ;
 And now being rapt from her, her lost heart yearned
 To seek him, and passed hungering out of life :
 And after all the thunder-hours of strife
 That roared between King Claudas and King Ban
 How Nimue's mighty nursling waxed to man,
 And how from his first field such grace he got
 That all men's hearts bowed down to Launcelot,
 And how the high prince Galahault held him dear
 And led him even to love of Guenevere
 And to that kiss which made break forth as fire
 The laugh that was the flower of his desire,
 The laugh that lightened at her lips for bliss
 To win from Love so great a lover's kiss :
 And of the toil of Balen all his days
 To reap but thorns for fruit and tears for praise,
 Whose hap was evil as his heart was good,
 And all his works and ways by wold and wood
 Led through much pain to one last labouring day
 When blood for tears washed grief with life away :

And of the kin of Arthur, and their might ;
The misborn head of Mordred, sad as night,
With cold waste cheeks and eyes as keen as pain,
And the close angry lips of Agravaine ;
And gracious Gawajn, scattering words as flowers,
The kindest head of worldly paramours ;
And the fair hand of Gareth, found in fight
Strong as a sea-beast's tusches and as white ;
And of the king's self, glorious yet and glad
For all the toil and doubt of doom he had,
Clothed with men's loves and full of kingly days.

Then Iseult said : " Let each knight have his praise
And each good man good witness of his worth ;
But when men laud the second name on earth,
Whom would they praise to have no worldly peer Save him whose love makes glorious Guenevere ? "

" Nay," Tristram said, " such man as he is none."

" What," said she, " there is none such under sun
Of all the large earth's living ? yet I deemed Men spake of one—but maybe men that dreamed,
Fools and tongue-stricken, witless, babblers' breed—
That for all high things was his peer indeed Save this one highest, to be so loved and love."

And Tristram : " Little wit had these thereof ;
For there is none such in the world as this."

" Ay, upon land," quoth Iseult, " none such is,
I doubt not, nor where fighting folk may be ;
But were there none such between sky and sea,
The world's whole worth were poorer than I wist."

And Tristram took her flower-white hand and kissed,
Laughing ; and through his fair face as in shame
The light blood lightened. " Hear they no such name ? "

She said ; and he, " If there be such a word,
I wot the queen's poor harper hath not heard."
Then, as the fuller-feathered hours grew long,
He hopt to speed their warm slow feet with song.

" Love, is it morning risen or night deceased
That makes the mirth of this triumphant east ?
Is it bliss given or bitterness put by
That makes most glad men's hearts at love's high feast ?
Grief smiles, joy weeps, that day should live and die.

" Is it with soul's thirst or with body's drouth
That summer yearns out sunward to the south,
With all the flowers that when thy birth drew nigh
Were molten in one rose to make thy mouth ?
O love, what care though day should live and die ?

" Is the sun glad of all the love on earth,
The spirit and sense and work of things and worth ?
Is the moon sad because the month must fly
And bring her death that can but bring back birth ?
For all these things as day must live and die.

" Love, is it day that makes thee thy delight
Or thou that seest day made out of thy light ?
Love, as the sun and sea are thou and I,
Sea without sun dark, sun without sea bright ;
The sun is one though day should live and die.

" O which is elder, night or light, who knows ?
And life or love, which first of these twain grows ?
For life is born of love to wail and cry,
And love is born of life to heal his woes,
And light of night, that day should live and die.

" O sun of heaven above the worldly sea,
O very love, what light is this of thee !
My sea of soul is deep as thou art high,
But all thy light is shed through all of me,
As love's through love, while day shall live and die.

32 THE SAILING OF THE SWALLOW

"Nay," said Iseult, "your song is hard to read."

"Ay?" said he: "or too light a song to heed, Too slight to follow, it may be? Who shall sing
Of love but as a churl before a king
If by love's worth men rate his worthiness?
Yet as the poor churl's worth to sing is less,
Surely the more shall be the great king's grace
To show for churlish love a kindlier face."

"No churl," she said, "but one in soothsayer's wise

Who tells but truths that help no more than lies.
I have heard men sing of love a simpler way Than these wrought riddles made of night and day,

Like jewelled reins whereon the rhyme-bells hang."

And Tristram smiled and changed his song and sang.

"The breath between my lips of lips not mine,
Like spirit in sense that makes pure sense divine,
Is as life in them from the living sky
That entering fills my heart with blood of thine
And thee with me, while day shall live and die.

"Thy soul is shed into me with thy breath,
And in my heart each heartbeat of thee saith
How in thy life the lifesprings of me lie,
Even one life to be gathered of one death
In me and thee, though day may live and die.

"Ah, who knows now if in my veins it be My blood that feels life sweet, or blood of thee,
And this thine eyesight kindled in mine eye
That shows me in thy flesh the soul of me,
For thine made mine, while day may live and die?

" Ah, who knows yet if one be twain or one,
And sunlight separable again from sun,
And I from thee with all my lifespings dry,
And thou from me with all thine heartbeats done,
Dead separate souls while day shall live and die?

" I see my soul within thine eyes, and hear
My spirit in all thy pulses thrill with fear,
And in my lips the passion of thee sigh,
And music of me made in mine own ear ;
Am I not thou while day shall live and die?

" Art thou not I as I thy love am thou ?
So let all things pass from us ; we are now,
' For all that was and will be, who knows why ?
And all that is and is not, who knows how ?
Who knows ? God knows why day should live and die."

And Iseult mused and spake no word, but sought Through all the hushed ways of her tongueless thought

What face or covered likeness of a face
In what veiled hour or dream-determined place
She seeing might take for love's face, and believe
This was the spirit to whom all spirits cleave.
For that sweet wonder of the twain made one
And each one twain, incorporate sun with sun,
Star with star molten, soul with soul imbued,
And all the soul's works, all their multitude,
Made one thought and one vision and one song,
Love—this thing, this, laid hand on her so strong
She could not choose but yearn till she should see.
So went she musing down her thoughts ; but he,
Sweet-hearted as a bird that takes the sun
With clear strong eyes and feels the glad god run

34 THE SAILING OF THE SWALLOW

Bright through his blood and wide rejoicing wings,
And opens all himself to heaven and sings,
Made her mind light and full of noble mirth
With words and songs the gladdest grown on earth, Till she was blithe and high of heart as he.
So swam the Swallow through the springing sea
And while they sat at speech as at a feast,
Came a light wind fast hardening forth of the east
And blackening till its might had marred the skies ;
And the sea thrilled as with heart-sundering sighs
One after one drawn, with each breath it drew,
And the green hardened into iron blue,
And the soft light went out of all its face.
Then Tristram girt him for an oarsman's place
And took his oar and smote, and toiled with might
In the east wind's full face and the strong sea's spite Labouring ; and all the rowers rowed hard, but he More mightily than any wearier three.
And Iseult watched him rowing with sinless eyes
That loved him but in holy girlish wise
For noble joy in his fair manliness
And trust and tender wonder ; none the less
She thought if God had given her grace to be Man, and make war on danger of earth and sea,
Even such a man she would be ; for his stroke
Was mightiest as the mightier water broke,
And in sheer measure like strong music drave Clean through the wet weight of the wallowing wave ;
And as a tune before a great king played
For triumph was the tune their strong strokes made,
And sped the ship through with smooth strife of oars
Over the mid sea's grey foam-paven floors,

For all the loud breach of the waves at will.
 So for an hour they fought the storm out still,
 And the shorn foam spun from the blades, and high
 The keel sprang from the wave-ridge, and the sky Glared at them for a breath's space through the rain ;

Then the bows with a sharp shock plunged again
 Down, and the sea clashed on them, and so rose
 The bright stem like one panting from swift blows,
 And as a swimmer's joyous beaten head
 Rears itself laughing, so in that sharp stead
 The light ship lifted her long quivering bows
 As might the man his buffeted strong brows
 Out of the wave-breach ; for with one stroke yet Went all men's oars together, strongly set
 As to loud music, and with hearts uplift They smote their strong way through the drench and drift :

Till the keen hour had chafed itself to death
 And the east wind fell fitfully, breath by breath, Tired ; and across the thin and slackening rain
 Sprang the face southward of the sun again.
 Then all they rested and were eased at heart ;
 And Iseult rose up where she sat apart,
 And with her sweet soul deepening her deep eyes
 Cast the furs from her and subtle embroideries That wrapped her from the storming rain and spray,

And shining like all April in one day, Hair, face, and throat dashed with the straying showers,

She stood the first of all the whole world's flowers,
 And laughed on Tristram with her eyes, and said,
 " I too have heart then, I was not afraid."

36 THE SAILING OF THE SWALLOW

And answering some light courteous word of grace
He saw her clear face lighten on his face Unwittingly, with unenamoured eyes.
For the last time. A live man in such wise Looks in the deadly face of his fixed hour
And laughs with lips wherein he hath no power
To keep the life yet some five minutes' space.
So Tristram looked on Iseult face to face
And knew not, and she knew not. The last time—
The last that should be told in any rhyme
Heard anywhere on mouths of singing men
That ever should sing praise of them again ;
The last hour of their hurtless hearts at rest,
The last that peace should touch them, breast to breast, .

The last that sorrow far from them should sit,
This last was with them, and they knew not it.

For Tristram being athirst with toil now spake, Saying, " Iseult, for all dear love's labour's sake
Give me to drink, and give me for a pledge
The touch of four lips on the beaker's edge."
And Iseult sought and would not wake Brangwain
Who slept as one half dead with fear and pain,
Being tender-natured ; so with hushed light feet
Went Iseult round her, with soft looks and sweet Pitying her pain ; so sweet a spirited thing
She was, and daughter of a kindly king.
And spying what strange bright secret charge was kept

Fast in that maid's white bosom while she slept,
She sought and drew the gold cup forth and smiled Marvelling, with such light wonder as a child
That hears of glad sad life in magic lands ;
And bare it back to Tristram with pure hands

Holding the love-draught that should be for flame
To burn out of them fear and faith and shame,
And lighten all their life up in men's sight,
And make them sad for ever. Then the knight Bowed toward her and craved whence had she this strange thing

That might be spoil of some dim Asian king,
By starlight stolen from some waste place of sands,
And a maid bore it here in harmless hands.
And Iseult, laughing—"Other lords that be Feast, and their men feast after them ; but we,
Our men must keep the best wine back to feast Till they be full and we of all men least Feed after them and fain to fare so well :
So with mine handmaid and your squire it fell
That hid this bright thing from us in a wile :"
And with light lips yet full of their swift smile,
And hands that wist not though they dug a grave,

Undid the hasps of gold, and drank, and gave,
And he drank after, a deep glad kingly draught :
And all their life changed in them, for they quaffed
Death ; if it be death so to drink, and fare
As men who change and are what these twain were.

And shuddering with eyes full of fear and fire
And heart-stung with a serpentine desire
He turned and saw the terror in her eyes
That yearned upon him shining in such wise
As a star midway in the midnight fixed.

Their Galahault was the cup, and she that mixed ;
Nor other hand there needed, nor sweet speech
To lure their lips together ; each on each

38 THE SAILING OF THE SWALLOW

Hung with strange eyes and hovered as a bird
Wounded, and each mouth trembled for a word ;
Their heads neared, and their hands were drawn in one,
And they saw dark, though still the unsunken sun
Far through fine rain shot fire into the south ;
And their four lips became one burning mouth.

THE QUEEN'S PLEASANCE

Out of the night arose the second day,
And saw the ship's bows break the shoreward spray.
As the sun's boat of gold and fire began
To sail the sea of heaven unsailed of man,
And the soft waves of sacred air to break
Round the prow launched into the morning's lake,
They saw the sign of their sea-travel done.

Ah, was not something seen of yester-sun,
When the sweet light that lightened all the skies
Saw nothing fairer than one maiden's eyes,
That whatsoever in all time's years may be
To-day's sun nor to-morrow's sun shall see?
Not while she lives, not when she comes to die,
Shall she look sunward with that sinless eye.

Yet fairer now than song may show them stand Tristram and Iseult, hand in amorous hand,
Soul-satisfied, their eyes made great and bright
With all the love of all the livelong night;
With all its hours yet singing in their ears
No mortal music made of thoughts and tears,
But such a song, past conscience of man's thought,
As hearing he grows god and knows it not,

Nought else they saw nor heard but what the
night

Had left for seal upon their sense and sight,
Sound of past pulses beating, fire of amorous light Enough, and overmuch, and never yet
Enough, though love still hungering feed and fret,
To fill the cup of night which dawn must overset.
For still their eyes were dimmer than with tears
And dizzier from diviner sounds their ears Than though from choral thunders of the quiring spheres.

They heard not how the landward waters rang,
Nor saw where high into the morning sprang,
Riven from the shore and bastioned with the sea, Toward summits where the north wind's nest might be,

A wave-walled palace with its eastern gate
Full of the sunrise now and wide at wait,
And on the mighty-moulded stairs that clomb
Sheer from the fierce lip of the lapping foam
The knights of Mark that stood before the wall.
So with loud joy and storm of festival
They brought the bride in up the towery way
That rose against the rising front of day,
Stair based on stair, between the rocks unhewn,
To those strange halls wherethrough the tidal tune
Rang loud or lower from soft or strengthening sea,
Tower shouldering tower, to windward and to lee,
With change of floors and stories, flight on flight,
That clomb and curled up to the crowning height Whence men might see wide east and west in one
And on one sea waned moon and mounting sun.
And severed from the sea-rock's base, where stand
Some worn walls yet they saw the broken strand,

The beachless cliff that in the sheer sea dips,
The sleepless shore inexorable to ships,
And the straight causeway's bare gaunt spine between The sea-spanned walls and naked mainland's green.

On the mid stairs, between the light and dark,
Before the main tower's portal stood King Mark, Crowned : and his face was as the face of one Long time athirst and hungering for the sun
In barren thrall of bitter bonds, who now Thinks here to feel its blessing on his brow.
A swart lean man, but kinglike, still of guise,
With black streaked beard and cold unquiet eyes, Close-mouthed, gaunt-cheeked, wan as a morning moon,

Though hardly time on his worn hair had strewn
The thin first ashes from a sparing hand :
Yet little fire there burnt upon the brand,
And way-worn seemed he with life's wayfaring.
So between shade and sunlight stood the king,
And his face changed nor yearned not toward his bride ;

But fixed between mild hope and patient pride Abode what gift of rare or lesser worth
This day might bring to all his days on earth.
But at the glory of her when she came
His heart endured not : very fear and shame
Smote him, to take her by the hand and kiss,
Till both were molten in the burning bliss,
And with a thin flame flushing his cold face
He led her silent to the bridal place.
There were they wed and hallowed of the priest ;
And all the loud time of the marriage feast
One thought within three hearts was as a fire,
Where craft and faith took counsel with desire.

For when the feast had made a glorious end
They gave the new queen for her maids to tend At dawn of bride-night, and thereafter bring With marriage music to the bridegroom king.
Then by device of craft between them laid
To him went Brangwain delicately, and prayed
That this thing even for love's sake might not be,
But without sound or light or eye to see
She might come in to bride-bed : and he laughed,
As one that wist not well of wise love's craft,
And bade all bridal things be as she would.
Yet of his gentleness he gat not good ;
For clothed and covered with the nuptial dark Soft like a bride came Brangwain to King Mark,
And to the queen came Tristram ; and the night
Fled, and ere danger of detective light
From the king sleeping Brangwain slid away,
And where had lain her handmaid Iseult lay.
And the king waking saw beside his head
That face yet passion-coloured, amorous red
From lips not his, and all that strange hair shed
Across the tissued pillows, fold on fold, Innumerable, incomparable, all gold,
To fire men's eyes with wonder, and with love
Men's hearts ; so shone its flowering crown above
The brow's enwound with that imperial wreath,
And framed with fragrant radiance round the face beneath.

And the king marvelled, seeing with sudden start
Her very glory, and said out of his heart ;
“ What have I done of good for God to bless
That all this he should give me, tress on tress, All this great wealth and wondrous ? Was it this
That in mine arms I had all night to kiss,

And mix with me this beauty ? this that seems More fair than heaven doth in some tired saint's dreams,

Being part of that same heaven ? yea, more, for he,
Though loved of God so, yet but seems to see,
But to me sinful such great grace is given
That in mine hands I hold this part of heaven, Not to mine eyes lent merely. Doth God make Such things so godlike for man's mortal sake ?
Have I not sinned, that in this fleshly life
Have made of her a mere man's very wife ? "

So the king mused and murmured ; and she heard

The faint sound trembling of each breathless word,
And laughed into the covering of her hair.

And many a day for many a month as fair
Slid over them like music ; and as bright Burned with love's offerings many a secret night.
And many a dawn to many a fiery noon
Blew prelude, when the horn's heart-kindling tune Lit the live woods with sovereign sound of mirth
Before the mightiest huntsman hailed on earth Lord of its lordliest pleasure, where he rode Hard by her rein whose peerless presence glowed
Not as that white queen's of the virgin hunt Once, whose crown-crescent braves the night-wind's brunt,

But with the sun for frontlet of a queenlier front.
For where the flashing of her face was turned
As lightning was the fiery light that burned
From eyes and brows enkindled more with speed
And rapture of the rushing of her steed
Than once with only beauty ; and her mouth
Was as a rose athirst that pants for drouth

Even while it laughs for pleasure of desire,
And all her heart was as a leaping fire.
Yet once more joy they took of woodland ways
Than came of all those flushed and fiery days
When the loud air was mad with life and sound,
Through many a dense green mile, of horn and hound
Before the king's hunt going along the wind,
And ere the timely leaves were changed or thinned,
Even in mid maze of summer. For the knight Forth was once ridden toward some frontier fight Against the lewd folk of the Christless lands
That warred with wild and intermittent hands Against the king's north border ; and there came A knight unchristened yet of unknown name,
Swart Palamede, upon a secret quest,
To high Tintagel, and abode as guest
In likeness of a minstrel with the king.
Nor was there man could sound so sweet a string,
Save Tristram only, of all held best on earth.
And one loud eve, being full of wine and mirth,
Ere sunset left the walls and waters dark,
To that strange minstrel strongly swore King Mark,
By all that makes a knight's faith firm and strong,
That he for guerdon of his harp and song Might crave and have his liking. Straight there came Up the swart cheek a flash of swarthier flame,
And the deep eyes fulfilled of glittering night
Laughed out in lightnings of triumphant light
As the grim harper spake : " O king, I crave
No gift of man that king may give to slave,
But this thy crowned queen only, this thy wife,
Whom yet unseen I loved, and set my life
On this poor chance to compass, even as here, Being fairer famed than all save Guenevere."

Then as the noise of seaward storm that mocks
With roaring laughter from reverberate rocks
The cry from ships near shipwreck, harsh and high Rose all the wrath and wonder in one cry
Through all the long roof's hollow depth and length
That hearts of strong men kindled in their strength
May speak in laughter lion-like, and cease,
Being wearied : only two men held their peace
And each glared hard on other : but King Mark Spake first of these : " Man, though thy craft be dark
And thy mind evil that begat this thing,
Yet stands the word once plighted of a king
Fast : and albeit less evil it were for me
To give my life up than my wife, or be A landless man crowned only with a curse,
Yet this in God's and all men's sight were worse,
To live soul-shamed, a man of broken troth, Abhorred of men as I abhor mine oath Which yet I may forswear not." And he bowed His head, and wept : and all men wept aloud,
Save one, that heard him weeping : but the queen Wept not : and statelier yet than eyes had seen
That ever looked upon her queenly state
She rose, and in her eyes her heart was great
And full of wrath seen manifest and scorn
More strong than anguish to go thence forlorn
Of all men's comfort and her natural right.
And they went forth into the dawn of night.
Long by wild ways and clouded light they rode,
Silent ; and fear less keen at heart abode
With Iseult than with Palamede : for awe Constrained him, and the might of love's high law,
That can make lewd men loyal ; and his heart
Yearned on her, if perchance with amorous art

And soothfast skill of very love he might
For courtesy find favour in her sight
And comfort of her mercies : for he wist
More grace might come of that sweet mouth unkissed Than joy for violence done it, that should make His name abhorred for shame's disloyal sake.
And in the stormy starlight clouds were thinned
And thickened by short gusts of changing wind
That panted like a sick man's fitful breath :
And like a moan of lions hurt to death
Came the sea's hollow noise along the night.
But ere its gloom from aught but foam had light
They halted, being aweary : and the knight
As reverently forbore her where she lay
As one that watched his sister's sleep till day.
Nor durst he kiss or touch her hand or hair
For love and shamefast pity, seeing how fair
She slept, and fenceless from the fitful air.
And shame at heart stung nigh to death desire,
But grief at heart burned in him like a fire
For hers and his own sorrowing sake, that had Such grace for guerdon as makes glad men sad,
To have their will and want it. And the day Sprang : and afar along the wild waste way They heard the pulse and press of hurrying horse hoofs play :
And like the rushing of a ravenous flame
Whose wings make tempest of the darkness, came Upon them headlong as in thunder borne Forth of the darkness of the labouring morn
Tristram : and up forthright upon his steed
Leapt, as one blithe of battle, Palamede,
And mightily with shock of horse and man
They lashed together : and fair that fight began

As fair came up that sunrise : to and fro,
With knees nigh staggered and stout heads bent low
From each quick shock of spears on either side, Reeled the strong steeds heavily, haggard-eyed
And heartened high with passion of their pride
As sheer the stout spears shocked again, and flew Sharp-splintering : then, his sword as each knight drew,

They flashed and foined full royally, so long
That but to see so fair a strife and strong
A man might well have given out of his life
One year's void space forlorn of love or strife.
As when a bright north-easter, great of heart,
Scattering the strengths of squadrons, hurls apart
Ship from ship labouring violently, in such toil
As earns but ruin—with even so strong recoil Back were the steeds hurled from the spear-shock, fain

And foiled of triumph : then with tightened rein
And stroke of spur, inveterate, either knight Bore in again upon his foe with might,
Heart-hungry for the hot-mouthed feast of fight
And all athirst of mastery : but full soon
The jarring notes of that tempestuous tune Fell, and its mighty music made of hands
Contending, clamorous through the loud waste lands, Broke at once off ; and shattered from his steed Fell, as a mainmast ruining, Palamede,
Stunned : and those lovers left him where he lay,
And lightly through green lawns they rode away.

There was a bower beyond man's eye more fair
Than ever summer dews and sunniest air
Fed full with rest and radiance till the boughs
Had wrought a roof as for a holier house

Than aught save love might breathe in ; fairer far
Than keeps the sweet light back of moon and star
From high kings' chambers : there might love and sleep Divide for joy the darkling hours, and keep
With amorous alternation of sweet strife
The soft and secret ways of death and life
Made smooth for pleasure's feet to rest and run Even from the moondawn to the kindling sun,
Made bright for passion's feet to run and rest
Between the midnight's and the morning's breast,
Where hardly though her happy head lie down
It may forget the hour that wove its crown ;
Where hardly though her joyous limbs be laid
They may forget the mirth that midnight made.
And thither, ere sweet night had slain sweet day,
Iseult and Tristram took their wandering way,
And rested, and refreshed their hearts with cheer
In hunters' fashion of the woods ; and here
More sweet it seemed, while this might be, to dwell
And take of all world's weariness farewell
Than reign of all world's lordship queen and king.
Nor here would time for three moons' changes bring Sorrow nor thought of sorrow ; but sweet earth
Fostered them like her babes of eldest birth, Reared warm in pathless woods and cherished well.
And the sun sprang above the sea and fell,
And the stars rose and sank upon the sea ;
And outlaw-like, in forest wise and free,
The rising and the setting of their lights
Found those twain dwelling all those days and nights.
And under change of sun and star and moon
Flourished and fell the chaplets woven of June,
And fair through fervours of the deepening sky
Panted and passed the hours that lit July,

And each day blessed them out of heaven above,
And each night crowned them with the crown of love.
Nor till the might of August overhead
Weighed on the world was yet one roseleaf shed
Of all their joy's warm coronal, nor aught
Touched them in passing ever with a thought That ever this might end on any day
Or any night not love them where they lay ;
But like a babbling tale of barren breath
Seemed all report and rumour held of death,
And a false bruit the legend tear-impearled
That such a thing as change was in the world.
And each bright song upon his lips that came,
Mocking the powers of change and death by name, Blasphemed their bitter godhead, and defied Time, though clothed round with ruin as kings with pride,
To blot the glad life out of love : and she Drank lightly deep of his philosophy
In that warm wine of amorous words which is Sweet with all truths of all philosophies.
For well he wist all subtle ways of song,
And in his soul the secret eye was strong
That burns in meditation, till bright words
Break flamelike forth as notes from fledgeling birds
That feel the soul speak through them of the spring.
So fared they night and day as queen and king
Crowned of a kingdom wide as day and night.
Nor ever cloudlet swept or swam in sight
Across the darkling depths of their delight
Whose stars no skill might number, nor man's art Sound the deep stories of its heavenly heart.
Till, even for wonder that such life should live, Desires and dreams of what death's self might give

Would touch with tears and laughter and wild speech
The lips and eyes of passion, fain to reach,
Beyond all bourne of time or trembling sense,
The verge of love's last possible eminence.
Out of the heaven that storm nor shadow mars,
Deep from the starry depth beyond the stars,
A yearning ardour without scope or name
Fell on them, and the bright night's breath of flame Shot fire into their kisses ; and like fire
The lit dew's lightened on the leaves, as higher Night's heart beat on toward midnight. Far and fain Somewhiles the soft rush of rejoicing rain
Solaced the darkness, and from steep to steep
Of heaven they saw the sweet sheet lightning leap
And laugh its heart out in a thousand smiles,
When the clear sea for miles on glimmering miles Burned as though dawn were strewn abroad astray,
Or, showering out of heaven, all heaven's array
Had paven instead the waters : fain and far Somewhiles the burning love of star for star
Spake words that love might wellnigh seem to hear
In such deep hours as turn delight to fear Sweet as delight's self ever. So they lay Tranced once, nor watched along the fiery bay
The shine of summer darkness palpitate and play.
She had nor sight nor voice ; her swooning eyes
Knew not if night or light were in the skies ;
Across her beauty sheer the moondawn shed
Its light as on a thing as white and dead ;
Only with stress of soft fierce hands she prest Between the throbbing blossoms of her breast
His ardent face, and through his hair her breath
Went quivering as when life is hard on death ;
And with strong trembling fingers she strained fast
His head into her bosom ; till at last.

Satiate with sweetness of that burning bed,
His eyes afire with tears, he raised his head
And laughed into her lips ; and all his heart Filled hers ; then face from face fell, and apart
Each hung on each with panting lips, and felt Sense into sense and spirit in spirit melt.

“ Hast thou no sword ? I would not live till day ,
O love, this night and we must pass away,
It must die soon, and let not us die late.”

“ Take then my sword and slay me ; nay, but wait Till day be risen ; what, wouldst thou think to die Before the light take hold upon the sky ? ”

“ Yea, love ; for how shall we have twice, being twain,

This very night of love's most rapturous reign ?
Live thou and have thy day, and year by year
Be great, but what shall I be ? Slay me here ;
Let me die not when love lies dead, but now Strike through my heart : nay, sweet, what heart hast thou ?

Is it so much I ask thee, and spend my breath
In asking ? nay, thou knowest it is but death.
Hadst thou true heart to love me, thou wouldst give This : but for hate's sake thou wilt let me live.”

Here he caught up her lips with his, and made
The wild prayer silent in her heart that prayed,
And strained her to him till all her faint breath sank

And her bright light limbs palpitated and shrank
And rose and fluctuated as flowers in rain
That bends them and they tremble and rise again And heave and straighten and quiver all through with bliss

And turn afresh their mouths up for a kiss,

Amorous, athirst of that sweet influent love ;
So, hungering towards his hovering lips above,
Her red-rose mouth yearned silent, and her eyes Closed, and flashed after, as through June's darkest skies

The divine heartbeats of the deep live light
Make open and shut the gates of the outer night.

Long lay they still, subdued with love, nor knew
If cloud or light changed colour as it grew,
If star or moon beheld them ; if above
The heaven of night waxed fiery with their love,
Or earth beneath were moved at heart and root
To burn as they, to burn and bring forth fruit Unseasonable for love's sake ; if tall trees Bowed, and close flowers yearned open, and the breeze

Failed and fell silent as a flame that fails :
And all that hour unheard the nightingales Clamoured, and all the woodland soul was stirred,
And depth and height were one great song unheard,
As though the world caught music and took fire
From the instant heart alone of their desire.

So sped their night of nights between them : so,
For all fears past and shadows, shine and snow,
That one pure hour all-golden where they lay
Made their life perfect and their darkness day.
And warmer waved its harvest yet to reap,
Till in the lovely fight of love and sleep
At length had sleep the mastery ; and the dark
Was lit with soft live gleams they might not mark, Fleet butterflies, each like a dead flower's ghost, White, blue, and sere leaf-coloured ; but the most White as the sparkle of snow-flowers in the sun
Ere with his breath they lie at noon undone

Whose kiss devours their tender beauty, and leaves
But raindrops on the grass and sere thin leaves
That were engraven with traceries of the snow
Flowerwise ere any flower of earth's would blow ;
So swift they sprang and sank, so sweet and light
They swam the deep dim breathless air of night.
Now on her rose-white amorous breast half bare,
Now on her slumberous love-dishevelled hair,
The white wings lit and vanished, and afresh
Lit soft as snow lights on her snow-soft flesh,
On hand or throat or shoulder ; and she stirred Sleeping, and spake some tremulous bright word,
And laughed upon some dream too sweet for truth,
Yet not so sweet as very love and youth
That there had charmed her eyes to sleep at last.
Nor woke they till the perfect night was past,
And the soft sea thrilled with blind hope of light.
But ere the dusk had well the sun in sight
He turned and kissed her eyes awake and said, Seeing earth and water neither quick nor dead
And twilight hungering toward the day to be,
"As the dawn loves the sunlight I love thee."
And even as rays with cloudlets in the skies
Confused in brief love's bright contentious wise,
Sleep strove with sense rekindling in her eyes ;
And as the flush of birth scarce overcame
The pale pure pearl of unborn light with flame
Soft as may touch the rose's heart with shame
To break not all reluctant out of bud,
Stole up her sleeping cheek her waking blood ;
And with the lovely laugh of love that takes
The whole soul prisoner ere the whole sense wakes,
Her lips for love's sake bade love's will be done.
And all the sea lay subject to the sun.

III

TRISTRAM IN BRITTANY

“ ‘ As the dawn loves the sunlight I love thee ;
 As men that shall be swallowed of the sea
 Love the sea’s lovely beauty ; as the night
 That wanes before it loves the young sweet light,
 And dies of loving ; as the worn-out noon
 Loves twilight, and as twilight loves the moon
 That on its grave a silver seal shall set—
 We have loved and slain each other, and love yet.
 Slain ; for we live not surely, being in twain :
 In her I lived, and in me she is slain,
 Who loved me that I brought her to her doom,
 Who loved her that her love might be my tomb.
 As all the streams on earth and all fresh springs
 And sweetest waters, every brook that sings,
 Each fountain where the young year dips its wings
 First, and the first-fledged branches of it wave, Even with one heart’s love seek one bitter grave.
 From hills that first see bared the morning’s breast
 And heights the sun last yearns to from the west,
 All tend but toward the sea, all born most high Strive downward, passing all things joyous by,
 Seek to it and cast their lives in it and die.

So strive all lives for death which all lives win ;
So sought her soul to my soul, and therein
Was poured and perished : O my love, and mine Sought to thee and died of thee and died as thine.
As the dawn loves the sunlight that must cease
Ere dawn again may rise and pass in peace ;
Must die that she being dead may live again,
To be by his new rising nearly slain.
So rolls the great wheel of the great world round.
And no change in it and no fault is found,
And no true life of perdurable breath,
And surely no irrevocable death.
Day after day night comes that day may break,
And day comes back for night's reiterate sake.
Each into each dies, each of each is born :
Day past is night, shall night past not be morn ?
Out of this moonless and faint-hearted night
That love yet lives in, shall there not be light ?
Light strong as love, that love may live in yet ?
Alas, but how shall foolish hope forget
How all these loving things that kill and die Meet not but for a breath's space and pass by ?
Night is kissed once of dawn and dies, and day
But touches twilight and is rapt away.
So may my love and her love meet once more,
And meeting be divided as of yore.
Yea, surely as the day-star loves the sun
And when he hath risen is utterly undone,
So is my love of her and hers of me—
And its most sweetness bitter as the sea.
Would God yet dawn might see the sun and die ! ”

Three years had looked on earth and passed it by Since Tristram looked on Iseult; when he stood
So communing with dreams of evil and good,

And let all sad thoughts through his spirit sweep
As leaves through air or tears through eyes that weep
Or snowflakes through dark weather : and his soul,
That had seen all those sightless seasons roll
One after one, wave over weary wave,
Was in him as a corpse is in its grave.
Yet, for his heart was mighty, and his might Through all the world as a great sound and light,
The mood was rare upon him ; save that here
In the low sundawn of the lightening year
With all last year's toil and its triumph done
He could not choose but yearn for that set sun
Which at this season saw the firstborn kiss
That made his lady's mouth one fire with his.
Yet his great heart being greater than his grief
Kept all the summer of his strength in leaf
And all the rose of his sweet spirit in flower ;
Still his soul fed upon the sovereign hour
That had been or that should be ; and once more
He looked through drifted sea and drifting shore :
That crumbled in the wave-breach, and again
Spake sad and deep within himself : " What pain
Should make a man's soul wholly break and die, Sapped as weak sand by water ? How shall I
Be less than all less things are that endure
And strive and yield when time is ? Nay, full sure
All these and we are parts of one same end ;
And if through fire or water we twain tend
To that sure life where both must be made one,
If one we be, what matter ? Thou, O sun,
The face of God, if God thou be not—nay,
What but God should I think thee, what should say,
Seeing thee risen, but very God ?—should I,
I fool, rebuke thee sovereign in thy sky,

The clouds dead round thee and the air alive,
The winds that lighten and the waves that strive Toward this shore as to that beneath thy breath, Because in me my thoughts bear all towards death ?
O sun, that when we are dead wilt rise as bright,
Air deepening up toward heaven, and nameless light,
And heaven immeasurable, and faint clouds blown Between us and the lowest aerial zone
And each least skirt of their imperial state—
Forgive us that we held ourselves so great !
What should I do to curse you ? I indeed Am a thing meaner than this least wild weed
That my foot bruises and I know not—yet
Would not be mean enough for worms to fret Before their time and mine was.

“ Ah, and ye
Light washing weeds, blind waifs of dull blind sea,
Do ye so thirst and hunger and aspire,
Are ye so moved with such long strong desire
In the ebb and flow of your sad life, and strive Still toward some end ye shall not see alive—
But at high noon ye know it by light and heat
Some half-hour, till ye feel the fresh tide beat Up round you, and at night's most bitter noon
The ripples leave you naked to the moon ?
And this dim dusty heather that I tread,
These half-born blossoms, born at once and dead,
Sere brown as funeral cloths, and purple as pall,
What if some life and grief be in them all ?

“ Ay, what of these ? but, O strong sun ! O sea !
I bid not you, divine things ! comfort me,
I stand not up to match you in your sight—
Who hath said ye have mercy toward us, ye who have might ?

And though ye had mercy, I think I would not pray
That ye should change your counsel or your way
To make our life less bitter : if such power
Be given the stars on one deciduous hour,
And such might be in planets to destroy
Grief and rebuild, and break and build up joy,
What man would stretch forth hand on them to make Fate mutable, God foolish, for his sake ?
For if in life or death be aught of trust,
And if some unseen just God or unjust
Put soul into the body of natural things
And in time's pauseless feet and worldwide wings
Some spirit of impulse and some sense of will
That steers them through the seas of good and ill
To some incognizable and actual end,
Be it just or unjust, foe to man or friend,
How should we make the stable spirit to swerve,
How teach the strong soul of the world to serve,
The imperious will in time and sense in space
That gives man life turn back to give man place—
The conscious law lose conscience of its way,
The rule and reason fail from night and day,
The streams flow back toward whence the springs began,
That less of thirst might sear the lips of man ?
Let that which is be, and sure strengths stand sure,
And evil or good and death or life endure,
Not alterable and rootless; but indeed
A very stem born of a very seed
That brings forth fruit in season : how should this Die that was sown, and that not be which is,
And the old fruit change that came of the ancient root,
And he that planted bid it not bear fruit,

And he that watered smite his vine with drouth
Because its grapes are bitter in our mouth,
And he that kindled quench the sun with night
Because its beams are fire against our sight,
And he that tuned untune the sounding spheres
Because their song is thunder in our ears?
How should the skies change and the stars, and time

Break the large concord of the years that chime, Answering, as wave to wave beneath the moon
That draws them shoreward, mar the whole tide's tune

For the instant foam's sake on one turning wave—
For man's sake that is grass upon a grave?
How should the law that knows not soon or late,
For whom no time nor space is—how should fate,
That is not good nor evil, wise nor mad,
Nor just nor unjust, neither glad nor sad—
How should the one thing that hath being, the one That moves not as the stars move or the sun
Or any shadow or shape that lives or dies
In likeness of dead earth or living skies,
But its own darkness and its proper light Clothe it with other names than day or night,
And its own soul of strength and spirit of breath
Feed it with other powers than life or death—
How should it turn from its great way to give Man that must die a clearer space to live?
Why should the waters of the sea be cleft,
The hills be molten to his right and left,
That he from deep to deep might pass dry-shod,
Or look between the viewless heights on God?
Hath he such eyes as, when the shadows flee,
The sun looks out with to salute the sea?

Is his hand bounteous as the morning's hand ?
Or where the night stands hath he feet to stand ?
Will the storm cry not when he bids it cease ?
Is it his voice that saith to the east wind, Peace ?
Is his breath mightier than the west wind's breath ?
Doth his heart know the things of life and death ?
Can his face bring forth sunshine and give rain,
Or his weak will that dies and lives again
Make one thing certain or bind one thing fast,
That as he willed it shall be at the last ?
How should the storms of heaven and kindled lights
And all the depths of things and topless heights
And air and earth and fire and water change
Their likeness, and the natural world grow strange,
And all the limits of their life undone
Lose count of time and conscience of the sun,
And that fall under which was fixed above,
That man might have a larger hour for love ? "

So musing with close lips and lifted eyes
That smiled with self-contempt to live so wise,
With silent heart so hungry now so long,
So late grown clear, so miserably made strong,
About the wolds a banished man he went,
The brown wolds bare and sad as banishment,
By wastes of fruitless flowerage, and grey downs
That felt the sea-wind shake their wild-flower crowns

As though fierce hands would pluck from some grey head

The spoils of majesty despised and dead,
And fill with crying and comfortless strange sound
Their hollow sides and heights of herbless ground.
Yet as he went fresh courage on him came,
Till dawn rose too within him as a flame ;

The heart of the ancient hills and his were one ;
The winds took counsel with him, and the sun
Spake comfort ; in his ears the shout of birds
Was as the sound of clear sweet-spirited words,
The noise of streams as laughter from above
Of the old wild lands, and as a cry of love
Spring's trumpet-blast blown over moor and lea :
The skies were red as love is, and the sea
Was as the floor of heaven for love to tread.
So went he as with light about his head,
And in the joyous travail of the year
Grew April-hearted ; since nor grief nor fear
Can master so a young man's blood so long
That it shall move not to the mounting song
Of that sweet hour when earth replumes her wings
And with fair face and heart set heavenward sings
As an awakened angel unaware That feels his sleep fall from him, and his hair
By some new breath of wind and music stirred,
Till like the sole song of one heavenly bird
Sounds all the singing of the host of heaven,
And all the glories of the sovereign Seven
Are as one face of one incorporate light.
And as that host of singers in God's sight Might draw toward one that slumbered, and arouse
The lips requickened and rekindling brows,
So seemed the earthly host of all things born
In sight of spring and eyeshot of the morn,
All births of land or waifs of wind and sea,
To draw toward him that sorrowed, and set free
From presage and remembrance of all pains
The life that leapt and lightened in his veins.
So with no sense abashed nor sunless look,
But with exalted eyes and heart, he took

His part of sun or storm-wind, and was glad,
For all things lost, of these good things he had.

And the spring loved him surely, being from birth
One made out of the better part of earth,
A man born as at sunrise ; one that saw
Not without reverence and sweet sense of awe
But wholly without fear or fitful breath
The face of life watched by the face of death ;
And living took his fill of rest and strife,
Of love and change, and fruit and seed of life,
And when his time to live in light was done
With unbent head would pass out of the sun :
A spirit as morning, fair and clear and strong, Whose thought and work were as one harp and song

Heard through the world as in a strange king's hall
Some great guest's voice that sings of festival.
So seemed all things to love him, and his heart
In all their joy of life to take such part,
That with the live earth and the living sea
He was as one that communed mutually
With naked heart to heart of friend to friend :
And the star deepening at the sunset's end,
And the moon fallen before the gate of day
As one sore wearied with vain length of way,
And the winds wandering, and the streams and skies,

As faces of his fellows in his eyes.
Nor lacked there love where he was evermore
Of man and woman, friend of sea or shore,
Not measurable with weight of graven gold,
Free as the sun's gift of the world to hold Given each day back to man's reconquering sight
That loses but its lordship for a night.

And now that after many a season spent
In barren ways and works of banishment,
Toil of strange fights and many a fruitless field,
Ventures of quest and vigils under shield,
He came back to the strait of sundering sea
That parts green Cornwall from grey Brittany,
Where dwelt the high king's daughter of the lands,
Iseult, named alway from her fair white hands,
She looked on him and loved him ; but being young Made shamefastness a seal upon her tongue,
And on her heart, that none might hear its cry,
Set the sweet signet of humility.

Yet when he came a stranger in her sight,
A banished man and weary, no such knight
As when the Swallow dipped her bows in foam Steered singing that imperial Iseult home,
This maiden with her sinless sixteen years Full of sweet thoughts and hopes that played at fears

Cast her eyes on him but in courteous wise,
And lo, the man's face burned upon her eyes
As though she had turned them on the naked sun :
And through her limbs she felt sweet passion run
As fire that flowed down from her face, and beat Soft through stirred veins on even to her hands and feet

As all her body were one heart on flame,
Athrob with love and wonder and sweet shame.
And when he spake there sounded in her ears
As 'twere a song out of the graves of years
Heard, and again forgotten, and again
Remembered with a rapturous pulse of pain.
But as the maiden mountain snow sublime
Takes the first sense of April's trembling time

Soft on a brow that burns not though it blush
To feel the sunrise hardly half aflush,
So took her soul the sense of change, nor thought
That more than maiden love was more than nought.
Her eyes went hardly after him, her cheek
Grew scarce a goodlier flower to hear him speak,
Her bright mouth no more trembled than a rose
May for the least wind's breathless sake that blows
Too soft to sue save for a sister's kiss,
And if she sighed in sleep she knew not this.
Yet in her heart hovered the thoughts of things Past, that with lighter or with heavier wings
Beat round about her memory, till it burned With grief that brightened and with hope that yearned,
Seeing him so great and sad, nor knowing what fate
Had bowed and crowned a head so sad and great.
Nor might she guess but little, first or last,
Though all her heart so hung upon his past,
Of what so bowed him for what sorrow's sake :
For scarce of aught at any time he spake
That from his own land oversea had sent His lordly life to barren banishment.
Yet still or soft or keen remembrance clung Close round her of the least word from his tongue
That fell by chance of courtesy, to greet
With grace of tender thanks her pity, sweet
As running straems to men's way-wearied feet.
And when between strange words her name would fall,
Suddenly straightway to that lure's recall
Back would his heart bound as the falconer's bird,
And tremble and bow down before the word.

‘Iseult’—and all the cloudlike world grew flame,
And all his heart flashed lightning at her name ;
“Iseult”—and all the wan waste weary skies Shone as his queen’s own love-enkindled eyes.
And seeing the bright blood in his face leap up
As red wine mantling in a royal cup
To hear the sudden sweetness of the sound Ring, but ere well his heart had time to bound His cheek would change, and grief bow down his
head,
“Haply,” the girl’s heart, though she spake not,
said,
“This name of mine was worn of one long dead,
Some sister that he loved :” and therewithal
Would pity bring her heart more deep in thrall.
But once, when winds about the world made mirth,
And March held revel hard on April’s birth
Till air and sea were jubilant as earth,
Delight and doubt in sense and soul began,
And yearning of the maiden toward the man,
Harping on high before her : for his word
Was fire that kindled in her heart that heard,
And alway through the rhymes reverberate came
The virginal soft burden of her name.
And ere the full song failed upon her ear
Joy strove within her till it cast out fear,
And all her heart was as his harp, and rang Swift music, made of hope whose birthnote sprang Bright in the blood that kindled as he sang.

“Stars know not how we call them, nor may flowers Know by what happy name the hovering hours
Baptize their new-born heads with dew and flame :
And Love, adored of all time as of ours,
Iseult, knew nought for ages of his name.

“ With many tongues men called on him, but he Wist not which word of all might worthiest be
 To sound for ever in his ear the same,
Till heart of man might hear and soul might see,
 Iseult, the radiance ringing from thy name.

“ By many names men called him, as the night
By many a name calls many a starry light,
 Her several sovereigns of dividual fame ;
But day by one name only calls aright,
 Iseult, the sun that bids men praise his name.

“ In many a name of man his name soared high
And song shone round it soaring, till the sky Rang rapture, and the world’s fast-founded frame Trembled with sense of triumph, even as I, Iseult, with sense of worship at thy name.

“ In many a name of woman smiled his power
Incarnate, as all summer in a flower,
 Till winter bring forgetfulness or shame :
But thine, the keystone of his topless tower,
 Iseult, is one with Love’s own lordliest name.

“ Iseult my love, Iseult my queen twice crowned,
In thee my death, in thee my life lies bound :
 Names are there yet that all men’s hearts acclaim,
But Love’s own heart rings answer to the sound, Iseult, that bids it bow before thy name.”

There ceased his voice yearning upon the word, Struck with strong passion dumb : but she that
 heard

Quailed to the heart, and trembled ere her eyes
Durst let the loving light within them rise,
And yearn on his for answer : yet at last,
Albeit not all her fear was overpast,

Hope, kindling even the frost of fear apace
With sweet fleet bloom and breath of gradual grace, Flushed in the changing roses of her face.
And ere the strife took truce of white with red,
Or joy for soft shame's sake durst lift up head,
Something she would and would not fain have said,
And wist not what the fluttering word would be,
But rose and reached forth to him her hand : and he,
Heart-stricken, bowed his head and dropped his knee,
And on her fragrant hand his lips were fire ;
And their two hearts were as one trembling lyre Touched by the keen wind's kiss with brief desire
And music shuddering at its own delight.
So dawned the moonrise of their marriage night.

IV

THE MAIDEN MARRIAGE

SPRING watched her last moon burn and fade with
May

While the days deepened toward a bridal day.
And on her snowbright hand the ring was set While in the maiden's ear the song's word yet
Hovered, that hailed as love's own queen by name Iseult : and in her heart the word was flame ;
A pulse of light, a breath of tender fire,
Too dear for doubt, too driftless for desire.
Between her father's hand and brother's led
From hall to shrine, from shrine to marriage-bed,
She saw not how by hap at home-coming
Fell from her new lord's hand a royal ring,
Whereon he looked, and felt the pulse astart
Speak passion in his faith-forsaken heart.
For this was given him of the hand wherein That heart's pledge lay for ever : so the sin
That should be done if truly he should take
This maid to wife for strange love's faithless sake Struck all his mounting spirit abashed, and fear Fell cold for shame's sake on his changing cheer.
Yea, shame's own fire that burned upon his brow
To bear the brand there of a broken vow

Was frozen again for very fear thereof
That wrung his heart with keener pangs than love
And all things rose upon him, all things past
Ere last they parted, cloven in twain at last,
Iseult from Tristram, Tristram from the queen ;
And how men found them in the wild woods green Sleeping, but sundered by the sword between,
Dividing breast from amorous breast a span,
But scarce in heart the woman from the man
As far as hope from joy or sleep from truth,
And Mark that saw them held for sacred sooth
These were no fleshly lovers, by that sign
That severed them, still slumbering ; so divine
He deemed it : how at waking they beheld
The king's folk round the king, and uncompelled
Were fain to follow and fare among them home
Back to the towers washed round with rolling foam
And storied halls wherethrough sea-music rang :
And how report thereafter swelled and sprang,
A full-mouthed serpent, hissing in men's ears
Word of their loves : and one of all his peers
That most he trusted, being his kinsman born,
A man base-moulded for the stamp of scorn,
Whose heart with hate was keen and cold and dark,
Gave note by midnight whisper to King Mark
Where he might take them sleeping ; how ere day
Had seen the grim next morning all away
Fast bound they brought him down a weary way
With forty knights about him, and their chief
That traitor who for trust had given him grief,
To the old hoar chapel, like a strait stone tomb
Sheer on the sea-rocks, there to take his doom :
How, seeing he needs must die, he bade them yet Bethink them if they durst for shame forget

What deeds for Cornwall had he done, and wrought
For all their sake what rescue, when he fought Against the fierce foul Irish foe that came
To take of them for tribute in their shame
Three hundred heads of children ; whom in fight
His hand redeeming slew Moraunt the knight
That none durst lift his eyes against, not one
Had heart but he, who now had help of none,
To take the battle ; whence great shame it were To knighthood, yea, foul shame on all men there,
To see him die so shamefully : nor durst
One man look up, nor one make answer first,
Save even the very traitor, who defied
And would have slain him naked in his pride,
But he, that saw the sword plucked forth to slay,
Looked on his hands, and wrenched their bonds away, Haling those twain that he went bound between Suddenly to him, and kindling in his mien Shone lion-fashion forth with eyes alight,
And lion-wise leapt on that kinsman knight
And wrung forth of his felon hands with might
The sword that should have slain him weaponless,
And smote him sheer down : then came all the press
All raging in upon him ; but he wrought
So well for his deliverance as they fought
That ten strong knights rejoicingly he slew,
And took no wound, nor wearied : then the crew Waxed greater, and their cry on him ; but he Had won the chapel now above the sea
That chafed right under : then the heart in him Sprang, seeing the low cliff clear to leap, and swim Right out by the old blithe way the sea-mew takes Across the bounding billow-belt that breaks
For ever, but the loud bright chain it makes

To bind the bridal bosom of the land
Time shall unlink not ever, till his hand
Fall by its own last blow dead : thence again Might he win forth into the green great main Far on beyond, and there yield up his breath
At least, with God's will, by no shameful death,
Or haply save himself, and come anew
Some long day later, ere sweet life were through.
And as the sea-gull hovers high, and turns
With eyes wherein the keen heart glittering yearns Down toward the sweet green sea whereon the broad noon burns,
And suddenly, soul-stricken with delight,
Drops, and the glad wave gladdens, and the light
Sees wing and wave confuse their fluttering white,
So Tristram one brief breathing-space apart
Hung, and gazed down ; then with exulting heart Plunged : and the fleet foam round a joyous head Flashed, that shot under, and ere a shaft had sped
Rose again radiant, a rejoicing star,
And high along the water-ways afar Triumphed : and all they deemed he needs must die ;
But Gouvernayle his squire, that watched hard by,
Sought where perchance a man might win ashore,
Striving, with strong limbs labouring long and sore,
And there abode an hour : till as from fight Crowned with hard conquest won by mastering might,
Hardly, but happier for the imperious toil,
Swam the knight in forth of the close waves' coil,
Sea-satiate, bruised with buffets of the brine,
Laughing, and flushed as one afire with wine :
All this came hard upon him in a breath ;
And how he marvelled in his heart that death

Should be no bitterer than it seemed to be -
There, in the strenuous impulse of the sea Borne as to battle deathward : and at last
How all his after seasons overpast
Had brought him darkling to this dark sweet hour,
Where his foot faltered nigh the bridal bower.
And harder seemed the passage now to pass,
Though smoother-seeming than the still sea's glass,
More fit for very manhood's heart to fear,
Than all straits past of peril. Hardly here Might aught of all things hearten him save one,
Faith : and as men's eyes quail before the sun
So quailed his heart before the star whose light
Put out the torches of his bridal night,
So quailed and shrank with sense of faith's keen star
That burned as fire beheld by night afar
Deep in the darkness of his dreams ; for all
The bride-house now seemed hung with heavier pall Than clothes the house of mourning. Yet at last,
Soul-sick with trembling at the heart, he passed Into the sweet light of the maiden bower
Where lay the lonely lily-featured flower
That, lying within his hand to gather, yet Might not be gathered of it. Fierce regret
And bitter loyalty strove hard at strife
With amorous pity toward the tender wife
That wife indeed might never be, to wear
The very crown of wedlock ; never bear
Children, to watch and worship her white hair When time should change, with hand more soft than snow,
The fashion of its glory ; never know
The loveliness of laughing love that lives
On little lips of children : all that gives

Glory and grace and reverence and delight
To wedded woman by her bridal right,
All praise and pride that flowers too fair to fall,
Love that should give had stripped her of them all
And left her bare for ever. So his thought Consumed him, as a fire within that wrought Visibly, ravening till its wrath were spent :
So pale he stood, so bowed and passion-rent,
Before the blithe-faced bride-folk, ere he went Within the chamber, heavy-eyed : and there Gleamed the white hands and glowed the glimmering hair
That might but move his memory more of one more fair,
More fair than all this beauty : but in sooth
So fair she too shone in her flower of youth That scarcely might man's heart hold fast its truth,
Though strong, who gazed upon her : for her eyes
Were emerald-soft as evening-coloured skies,
And a smile in them like the light therein
Slept, or shone out in joy that knew not sin,
Clear as a child's own laughter : and her mouth,
Albeit no rose full-hearted from the south
And passion-coloured for the perfect kiss
That signs the soul for love and stamps it his,
Was soft and bright as any bud new-blown ;
And through her cheek the gentler lifebloom shone
Of mild wild roses nigh the northward sea.
So in her bride-bed lay the bride : and he Drew nigh, and all the high sad heart in him
Yearned on her, seeing the twilight meek and dim Through all the soft alcove tremblingly lit
With hovering silver, as a heart in it

Beating, that burned from one deep lamp above, Fainter than fire of torches, as the love
Within him fainter than a bridegroom's fire,
No marriage-torch red with the heart's desire,
But silver-soft, a flameless light that glowed Starlike along night's dark and starry road
Wherein his soul was traveller. And he sighed, Seeing, and with eyes set sadly toward his bride Laid him down by her, and spake not : but within His heart spake, saying how sore should be the sin
To break toward her, that of all womankind
Was faithfullest, faith plighted, or unbind
The bond first linked between them when they drank
The love-draught : and his quick blood sprang and sank,

Remembering in the pulse of all his veins
That red swift rapture, all its fiery pains
And all its fierier pleasures : and he spake
Aloud, one burning word for love's keen sake—“ Iseult ; ” and full of love and lovelier fear
A virgin voice gave answer—“ I am here.”
And a pang rent his heart at root : but still,
For spirit and flesh were vassals to his will,
Strong faith held mastery on them : and the breath Felt on his face did not his will to death,
Nor glance nor lute-like voice nor flower-soft touch
Might so prevail upon it overmuch
That constancy might less prevail than they,
For all he looked and loved her as she lay Smiling ; and soft as bird alights on bough
He kissed her maiden mouth and blameless brow,
Once, and again his heart within him sighed :
But all his young blood's yearning toward his bride,

How hard soe'er it held his life awake
For passion, and sweet nature's unforbidden sake,
And will that strove unwillingly with will it might not break,

Fell silent as a wind abashed, whose breath
Dies out of heaven, suddenly done to death,
When in between them on the dumb dusk air
Floated the bright shade of a face more fair
Than hers that hard beside him shrank and smiled
And wist of all no more than might a child.
So had she all her heart's will, all she would,
For love's sake that sufficed her, glad and good,
All night safe sleeping in her maidenhood.

ISEULT AT TINTAGEL.

BUT that same night in Cornwall oversea
Couched at Queen Iseult's hand, against her knee,
With keen kind eyes that read her whole heart's pain
Fast at wide watch lay Tristram's hound Hodain,
The goodliest and the mightiest born on earth,
That many a forest day of fiery mirth
Had plied his craft before them ; and the queen Cherished him, even for those dim years between,
More than of old in those bright months far flown
When ere a blast of Tristram's horn was blown Each morning as the woods rekindled, ere Day gat full empire of the glimmering air,
Delight of dawn would quicken him, and fire
Spring and pant in his breath with bright desire To be among the dewy ways on quest :
But now perforce at restless-hearted rest
He chafed through days more barren than the sand, Soothed hardly but soothed only with her hand, Though fain to fawn thereon and follow, still With all his heart and all his loving will Desiring one divided from his sight,
For whose lost sake dawn was as dawn of night
And noon as night's noon in his eyes was dark.
But in the halls far under sat King Mark,

Feasting, and full of cheer, with heart uplift,
As on the night that harper gat his gift :
And music revelled on the fitful air,
And songs came floated up the festal stair,
And muffled roar of wassail, where the king
Took heart from wine-cups and the quiring string Till all his cold thin veins rejoiced and ran Strong as with lifeblood of a kinglier man.
But the queen shut from sound her wearied ears,
Shut her sad eyes from sense of aught save tears,
And wrung her hair with soft fierce hands, and prayed :

“ O God, God born of woman, of a maid,
Christ, once in flesh of thine own fashion clad ;
O very love, so glad in heaven and sad
On earth for earth's sake alway ; since thou art
Pure only, I only impure of spirit and heart,
Since thou for sin's sake and the bitter doom
Didst as a veil put on a virgin's womb,
I that am none, and cannot hear or see
Or shadow or likeness or a sound of thee
Far off, albeit with man's own speech and face Thou shine yet and thou speak yet, showing forth grace—

Ah me ! grace only shed on souls that are Lit and led forth of shadow by thy star—
Alas ! to these men only grace, to these,
Lord, whom thy love draws Godward, to thy knees—
I, can I draw thee me-ward, can I seek,
Who love thee not, to love me ? seeing how weak, Lord, all this little love I bear thee is,
And how much is my strong love more than this,
My love that I love man with, that I bear
Him sinning through me sinning ? wilt thou care,

God, for this love, if love be any, alas,
In me to give thee, though long since there was,
How long, when I too, Lord, was clean, even I,
That now am unclean till the day I die—
Haply by burning, harlot-fashion, made
A horror in all hearts of wife and maid,
Hateful, not knowing if ever in these mine eyes Shone any light of thine in any wise
Or this were love at all that I bore thee ? ”

And the night spake, and thundered on the sea, Ravening aloud for ruin of lives : and all
The bastions of the main cliff's northward wall Rang response out from all their deepening length,
As the east wind girded up his godlike strength
And hurled in hard against that high-towered hold
The fleeces of the flock that knows no fold,
The rent white shreds of shattering storm : but she Heard not nor heeded wind or storming sea,
Knew not if night were mild or mad with wind.

“ Yea, though deep lips and tender hair be thinned, Though cheek wither, brow fade, and bosom wane,
Shall I change also from this heart again
To maidenhood of heart and holiness ?
Shall I more love thee, Lord, or love him less—
Ah miserable ! though spirit and heart be rent, Shall I repent, Lord God ? shall I repent ?
Nay, though thou slay me ! for herein I am blest,
That as I loved him yet I love him best—
More than mine own soul or thy love or thee,
Though thy love save and my love save not me.
Blest am I beyond women even herein,
That beyond all born women is my sin,
And perfect my transgression : that above
All offerings of all others is my love,

Who have chosen it only, and put away for this Thee, and my soul's hope, Saviour, of the kiss Wherewith thy lips make welcome all thine own
When in them life and death are overthrown ;
The sinless lips that seal the death of sin,
The kiss wherewith their dumb lips touched begin Singing in heaven.

“ Where we shall never, love,
Never stand up nor sing ! for God above
Knows us, how too much more than God to me
Thy sweet love is, my poor love is to thee !
Dear, dost thou see now, dost thou hear to-night, Sleeping, my waste wild speech, my face worn white,
—Speech once heard soft by thee, face once kissed red !—

In such a dream as when men see their dead
And know not if they know if dead these be ?
Ah love, are thy days my days, and to thee
Are all nights like as my nights ? does the sun
Grieve thee ? art thou soul-sick till day be done,
And weary till day rises ? is thine heart
Full of dead things as mine is ? Nay, thou art Man, with man's strength and praise and pride of life,

No bondwoman, no queen, no loveless wife
That would be shamed albeit she had not sinned.”

And swordlike was the sound of the iron wind,
And as a breaking battle was the sea.

“ Nay, Lord, I pray thee let him love not me,
Love me not any more, nor like me die,
And be no more than such a thing as I.
Turn his heart from me, lest my love too lose Thee as I lose thee, and his fair soul refuse

For my sake thy fair heaven, and as I fell
Fall, and be mixed with my soul and with hell.
Let me die rather, and only ; let me be Hated of him so he be loved of thee,
Lord : for I would not have him with me there
Out of thy light and love in the unlit air,
Out of thy sight in the unseen hell where I Go gladly, going alone, so thou on high Lift up his soul and love him—Ah, Lord, Lord, Shalt thou love as I love him ? she that poured
From the alabaster broken at thy feet
An ointment very precious, not so sweet
As that poured likewise forth before thee then
From the rehallowed heart of Magdalen,
From a heart broken, yearning like the dove,
An ointment very precious which is love—Couldst thou being holy and God, and sinful she,
Love her indeed as surely she loved thee ?
Nay, but if not, then as we sinners can
Let us love still in the old sad wise of man.
For with less love than my love, having had Mine, though God love him he shall not be glad
And with such love as my love, I wot well,
He shall not lie disconsolate in hell :
Sad only as souls for utter love's sake be Here, and a little sad, perchance, for me—
Me happy, me more glad than God above,
In the utmost heil whose fires consume not love !
For in the waste ways emptied of the sun
He would say—‘ Dear, thy place is void, and one Weeps among angels for thee, with his face
Veiled, saying, *O sister, how thy chosen place Stands desolate, that God made fair for thee !
Is heaven not sweeter, and we thy brethren, we*

Fairer than love on earth and life in hell ?

And I—with me were all things then not well ?
Should I not answer—‘ O love, be well content ;
Look on me, and behold if I repent.’

This were more to me than an angel’s wings.

Yea, many men pray God for many things,
But I pray that this only thing may be.”

And as a full field charging was the sea,
And as the cry of slain men was the wind.

“ Yea, since I surely loved him, and he sinned Surely, though not as my sin his be black,
God, give him to me—God, God, give him back !
For now how should we live in twain or die ?
I am he indeed, thou knowest, and he is I.
Not man and woman several as we were,
But one thing with one life and death to bear.
How should one love his own soul overmuch ?
And time is long since last I felt the touch,
The sweet touch of my lover, hand and breath,
In such delight as puts delight to death,
Burn my soul through, till spirit and soul and sense,
In the sharp grasp of the hour, with violence
Died, and again through pangs of violent birth
Lived, and laughed out with refluent might of mirth ;
Laughed each on other and shuddered into one,
As a cloud shuddering dies into the sun.
Ah, sense is that or spirit, soul or flesh,
That only love lulls or awakes afresh ?
Ah, sweet is that or bitter, evil or good,
That very love allays not as he would ?
Nay, truth is this or vanity, that gives
No love assurance when love dies or lives ?
This that my spirit is wrung withal, and yet
No surelier knows if haply thine forget,

Thou that my spirit is wrung for, nor can say
Love is not in thee dead as yesterday?
Dost thou feel, thou, this heartbeat whence my heart
Would send thee word what life is mine apart,
And know by keen response what life is thine?
Dost thou not hear one cry of all of mine?
O Tristram's heart, have I no part in thee?"

And all her soul was as the breaking sea,
And all her heart anhungered as the wind.

"Dost thou repent thee of the sin we sinned?
Dost thou repent thee of the days and nights
That kindled and that quenched for us their lights,
The months that feasted us with all their hours.
The ways that breathed of us in all their flowers,
The dells that sang of us with all their doves?
Dost thou repent thee of the wildwood loves?
Is thine heart changed, and hallowed? art thou grown God's, and not mine? Yet, though my heart make moan,

Fain would my soul give thanks for thine, if thou Be saved—yea, fain praise God, and knows not how.
How should it know thanksgiving? nay, or learn Aught of the love wherewith thine own should burn, God's, that should cast out as an evil thing
Mine? yea, what hand of prayer have I to cling,
What heart to prophesy, what spirit of sight
To strain insensual eyes toward increate light,
Who look but back on life wherein I sinned?"

And all their past came wailing in the wind,
And all their future thundered in the sea.

"But if my soul might touch the time to be,
If hand might handle now or eye behold
My life and death ordained me from of old,

Life palpable, compact of blood and breath,
Visible, present, naked, very death,
Should I desire to know before the day
These that I know not, nor is man that may?
For haply, seeing, my heart would break for fear,
And my soul timeless cast its load off here,
Its load of life too bitter, love too sweet,
And fall down shamed and naked at thy feet,
God, who wouldst take no pity of it, nor give One hour back, one of all its hours to live Clothed with my mortal body, that once more,
Once, on this reach of barren beaten shore,
This stormy strand of life, ere sail were set,
Had haply felt love's arms about it yet—Yea, ere death's bark put off to seaward, might With many a grief have bought me one delight
That then should know me never. Ah, what years
Would I endure not, filled up full with tears, Bitter like blood and dark as dread of death,
To win one amorous hour of mingling breath,
One fire-eyed hour and sunnier than the sun,
For all these nights and days like nights but one?
One hour of heaven born once, a stormless birth,
For all these windy weary hours of earth?
One, but one hour from birth of joy to death,
For all these hungering hours of feverish breath?
And I should lose this, having died and sinned."

And as man's anguish clamouring cried the wind,
And as God's anger answering rang the sea.

"And yet what life—Lord God, what life for me Has thy strong wrath made ready? Dost thou think How lips whose thirst hath only tears to drink Grow grey for grief untimely? Dost thou know, O happy God, how men wax weary of woe—

Yea, for their wrong's sake that thine hand hath done Come even to hate thy semblance in the sun ?
Turn back from dawn and noon and all thy light
To make their souls one with the soul of night ?
Christ, if thou hear yet or have eyes to see,
Thou that hadst pity, and hast no pity on me,
Know'st thou no more, as in this life's sharp span,
What pain thou hadst on earth, what pain hath man ?
Hast thou no care, that all we suffer yet ?
What help is ours of thee if thou forget ?
What profit have we though thy blood were given,
If we that sin bleed and be not forgiven ?
Not love but hate, thou bitter God and strange, Whose heart as man's heart hath grown cold with change,

Not love but hate thou showest us that have sinned.'

And like a world's cry shuddering was the wind,
And like a God's voice threatening was the sea.

" Nay, Lord, for thou wast gracious ; nay, in thee
No change can come with time or varying fate,
No tongue bid thine be less compassionate,
No sterner eye rebuke for mercy thine,
No sin put out thy pity—no, not mine.
Thou knowest us, Lord, thou knowest us, all we are,
He, and the soul that hath his soul for star :
Thou knowest as I know, Lord, how much more worth

Than all souls clad and clasped about with earth,
But most of all, God, how much more than I,
Is this man's soul that surely shall not die.
What righteousness, what judgment, Lord most high,

Were this, to bend a brow of doom as grim
As threats me, me the adulterous wife, on him ?

There lies none other nightly by his side :
He hath not sought, he shall not seek a bride.
Far as God sunders earth from heaven above,
So far was my love born beneath his love.
I loved him as the sea-wind loves the sea,
To rend and ruin it only and waste : but he,
As the sea loves a sea-bird loved he me,
To foster and uphold my tired life's wing,
And bounteously beneath me spread forth spring,
A springtide space whereon to float or fly,
A world of happy water, whence the sky
Glowed goodlier, lightening from so glad a glass, Than with its own light only. Now, alas !
Cloud hath come down and clothed it round with storm,

And gusts and fits of eddying winds deform
The feature of its glory. Yet be thou,
God, merciful : nay, show but justice now,
And let the sin in him that scarce was his Stand expiated with exile : and be this
The price for him, the atonement this, that I
With all the sin upon me live, and die
With all thy wrath on me that most have sinned."

And like man's heart relenting sighed the wind,
And as God's wrath subsiding sank the sea.

" But if such grace be possible—if it be Not sin more strange than all sins past, and worse
Evil, that cries upon thee for a curse,
To pray such prayers from such a heart, do thou Hear, and make wide thine hearing toward me now ;
Let not my soul and his for ever dwell
Sundered : though doom keep always heaven and hell Irreconcilable, infinitely apart,
Keep not in twain for ever heart and heart

That once, albeit by not thy law, were one ;
Let this be not thy will, that this be done.
Let all else, all thou wilt of evil, be,
But no doom, none, dividing him and me."

By this was heaven stirred eastward, and there came Up the rough ripple a labouring light like flame ;
And dawn, sore trembling still and grey with fear,
Looked hardly forth, a face of heavier cheer
Than one which grief or dread yet half enshrouds, Wild-eyed and wan, across the cleaving clouds.
And Iseult, worn with watch long held on pain.
Turned, and her eye lit on the hound Hodain,
And all her heart went out in tears : and he Laid his kind head along her bended knee,
Till round his neck her arms went hard, and all
The night past from her as a chain might fall :
But yet the heart within her, half undone,
Wailed, and was loth to let her see the sun.

And ere full day brought heaven and earth to flower,
Far thence, a maiden in a marriage bower,
That moment, hard by Tristram, oversea,
Woke with glad eyes Iseult of Brittany.

JOYOUS GARD

A LITTLE time, O Love, a little light,
 A little hour for ease before the night.
 Sweet Love, that art so bitter ; foolish Love,
 Whom wise men know for wiser, and thy dove
 More subtle than the serpent ; for thy sake
 These pray thee for a little beam to break,
 A little grace to help them, lest men think Thy servants have but hours like tears to drink.
 O Love, a little comfort, lest they fear
 To serve as these have served thee who stand here.

For these are thine, thy servants these, that stand Here nigh the limit of the wild north land,
 At margin of the grey great eastern sea,
 Dense-islanded with peaks and reefs, that see
 No life but of the fleet wings fair and free
 Which cleave the mist and sunlight all day long
 With sleepless flight and cries more glad than song.
 Strange ways of life have led them hither, here
 To win fleet respite from desire and fear
 With armistice from sorrow ; strange and sweet Ways trodden by forlorn and casual feet Till kindlier chance woke toward them kindly will
 In happier hearts of lovers, and their ill

Found rest, as healing surely might it not,
By gift and kingly grace of Launcelot
At gracious bidding given of Guenevere.
For in the trembling twilight of this year
Ere April sprang from hope to certitude
Two hearts of friends fast linked had fallen at feud
As they rode forth on hawking, by the sign
Which gave his new bride's brother Ganhardine
To know the truth of Tristram's dealing, how Faith kept of him against his marriage vow
Kept virginal his bride-bed night and morn ;
Whereat, as wroth his blood should suffer scorn, Came Ganhardine to Tristram, saying, " Behold, We have loved thee, and for love we have shown of old

Scorn hast thou shown us : wherefore is thy bride
Not thine indeed, a stranger at thy side, Contemned ? what evil hath she done, to be Mocked with mouth-marriage and despised of thee, Shamed, set at nought, rejected ? " But there came On Tristram's brow and eye the shadow and flame Confused of wrath and wonder, ere he spake, Saying, " Hath she bid thee for thy sister's sake Plead with me, who believed of her in heart
More nobly than to deem such piteous part Should find so fair a player ? or whence hast thou
Of us this knowledge ? " " Nay," said he, " but now, Riding beneath these whitethorns overhead,
There fell a flower into her girdlestead
Which laughing she shook out, and smiling said—
' Lo, what large leave the wind hath given this stray,
To lie more near my heart than till this day
Aught ever since my mother lulled me lay

Or even my lord came ever ; ' whence I wot
We are all thy scorn, a race regarded not Nor held as worth communion of thine own,
Except in her be found some fault alone
To blemish our alliance." Then replied Tristram, " Nor blame nor scorn may touch my bride, Albeit unknown of love she live, and be Worth a man worthier than her love thought me.
Faith only, faith withheld me, faith forbade
The blameless grace wherewith love's grace makes glad

All lives linked else in wedlock ; not that less
I loved the sweet light of her loveliness,
But that my love toward faith was more : and thou,
Albeit thine heart be keen against me now, Couldst thou behold my very lady, then
No more of thee than of all other men Should this my faith be held a faithless fault."
And ere that day their hawking came to halt,
Being sore of him entreated for a sign,
He sware to bring his brother Ganhardine
To sight of that strange Iseult : and thereon Forth soon for Cornwall are these brethren gone, Even to that royal pleasance where the hunt Rang ever of old with Tristram's horn in front
Blithe as the queen's horse bounded at his side :
And first of all her dames forth pranced in pride
That day before them, with a ringing rein
All golden-glad, the king's false bride Brangwain,
The queen's true handmaid ever : and on her Glancing, " Be called for all time truth-teller, O Tristram, of all true men's tongues alive," Quoth Ganhardine ; " for may my soul so thrive

'As yet mine eye drank never sight like this."
"Ay?" Tristram said, "and she thou look'st on is So great in grace of goodliness, that thou Hast less thought left of wrath against me now, Seeing but my lady's handmaid? Nay, behold;
See'st thou no light more golden than of gold Shine where she moves in midst of all, above
All, past all price or praise or prayer of love?
Lo, this is she." But as one mazed with wine Stood, stunned in spirit and stricken, Ganhardine,
And gazed out hard against them: and his heart
As with a sword was cloven, and rent apart
As with strong fangs of fire; and scarce he spake, Saying how his life for even a handmaid's sake
Was made a flame within him. And the knight Bade him, being known of none that stood in sight.
Bear to Brangwain his ring, that she unseen Might give in token privily to the queen
And send swift word where under moon or sun
They twain might yet be no more twain but one.
And that same night, under the stars that rolled Over their warm deep wildwood nights of old Whose hours for grains of sand shed sparks of fire,
Such way was made anew for their desire
By secret wile of sickness feigned, to keep
The king far off her vigils or her sleep,
That in the queen's pavilion midway set
By glimmering moondawn were those lovers met,
And Ganhardine of Brangwain gat him grace.
And in some passionate soft interspace
Between two swells of passion, when their lips
Breathed, and made room for such brief speech as slips
From tongues athirst with draughts of amorous wine
That leaves them thirstier than the salt sea's brine,

Was counsel taken how to fly, and where Find covert from the wild world's ravening air
That hunts with storm the feet of nights and days Through strange thwart lines of life and flowerless ways.

Then said Iseult : " Lo, now the chance is here
Foreshown me late by word of Guenevere,
To give me comfort of thy rumoured wrong,
My traitor Tristram, when report was strong
Of me forsaken and thine heart estranged :
Nor should her sweet soul toward me yet be changed
Nor all her love lie barren, if mine hand
Crave harvest of it from the flowering land.
See therefore if this counsel please thee not,
That we take horse in haste for Camelot
And seek that friendship of her plighted troth
Which love shall be full fain to lend, nor loth Shall my love be to take it." So next night
The multitudinous stars laughed round their flight, Fulfilling far with laughter made of light
The encircling deeps of heaven : and in brief space
At Camelot their long love gat them grace
Of those fair twain whose heads men's praise impearled

As love's two lordliest lovers in the world :
And thence as guests for harbourage past they forth

To win this noblest hold of all the north.
Far by wild ways and many days they rode,
Till clear across June's kingliest sunset glowed
The great round girth of goodly wall that showed Where for one clear sweet season's length should be Their place of strength to rest in, fain and free,
By the utmost margin of the loud lone sea.

And now, O Love, what comfort? God most high,
Whose life is as a flower's to live and die,
Whose light is everlasting : Lord, whose breath Speaks music through the deathless lips of death Whereto time's heart rings answer : Bard, whom time
Hears, and is vanquished with a wandering rhyme That once thy lips made fragrant : Seer, whose sooth
Joy knows not well, but sorrow knows for truth, Being priestess of thy soothsayings : Love, what grace
Shall these twain find at last before thy face?
This many a year they have served thee, and deserved,
If ever man might yet of all that served,
Since the first heartbeat bade the first man's knee Bend, and his mouth take music, praising thee,
Some comfort ; and some honey indeed of thine Thou hast mixed for these with life's most bitter wine,
Commending to their passionate lips a draught
No deadlier than thy chosen of old have quaffed
And blessed thine hand, their cupbearer's : for not
On all men comes the grace that seals their lot
As holier in thy sight, for all these feuds
That rend it, than the light-souled multitude's, Nor thwarted of thine hand nor blessed ; but these Shall see no twilight, Love, nor fade at ease,
Grey-grown and careless of desired delight,
But lie down tired and sleep before the night.
These shall not live till time or change may chill Or doubt divide or shame subdue their will,

Or fear or slow repentance work them wrong,
Or love die first : these shall not live so long.
Death shall not take them drained of dear true life
Already, sick or stagnant from the strife, Quenched : not with dry-drawn veins and lingering
breath

Shall these through crumbling hours crouch down to
death.

Swift, with one strong clean leap, ere life's pulse tire,

Most like the leap of lions or of fire,
Sheer death shall bound upon them : one pang past,
The first keen sense of him shall be their last,
Their last shall be no sense of any fear,
More than their life had sense of anguish here.

Weeks and light months had fled at swallow's speed

Since here their first hour sowed for them the seed
Of many sweet as rest or hope could be ;
Since on the blown beach of a glad new sea Wherein strange rocks like fighting men stand scarred

They saw the strength and help of Joyous Gard.
Within the full deep glorious tower that stands Between the wild sea and the broad wild lands
Love led and gave them quiet : and they drew Life like a God's life in each wind that blew,
And took their rest, and triumphed. Day by day
The mighty moorlands and the sea-walls grey,
The brown bright waters of green fells that sing
One song to rocks and flowers and birds on wing, Beheld the joy and glory that they had,
Passing, and how the whole world made them
glad,

And their great love was mixed with all things great,

As life being lovely, and yet being strong like fate.
For when the sun sprang on the sudden sea
Their eyes sprang eastward, and the day to be
Was lit in them untimely : such delight
They took yet of the clear cold breath and light
That goes before the morning, and such grace Was deathless in them through their whole life's space

As dies in many with their dawn that dies
And leaves in pulseless hearts and flameless eyes
No light to lighten and no tear to weep
For youth's high joy that time has cast on sleep.
Yea, this old grace and height of joy they had,
To lose no jot of all that made them glad
And filled their springs of spirit with such fire
That all delight fed in them all desire ;
And no whit less than in their first keen prime
The spring's breath blew through all their summer
time,

And in their skies would sunlike Love confuse Clear April colours with hot August hues,
And in their hearts one light of sun and moon
Reigned, and the morning died not of the noon :
Such might of life was in them, and so high
Their heart of love rose higher than fate could fly.
And many a large delight of hawk and hound
The great glad land that knows no bourne or bound, Save the wind's own and the outer sea-bank's, gave Their days for comfort ; many a long blithe wave Buoyed their blithe bark between the bare bald rocks,

Deep, steep, and still, save for the swift free flocks

Unshepherded, uncompassed, unconfined,
That when blown foam keeps all the loud air blind
Mix with the wind's their triumph, and partake
The joy of blasts that ravin, waves that break,
All round and all below their mustering wings,
A clanging cloud that round the cliff's edge clings
On each bleak bluff breaking the strenuous tides
That rings reverberate mirth when storm bestrides
The subject night in thunder : many a noon
They took the moorland's or the bright sea's boon
With all their hearts into their spirit of sense, Rejoicing, where the sudden del's grew dense With sharp thick flight of hillside birds, or where On some strait rock's ledge in the intense mute air Erect against the cliff's sheer sunlit white Blue as the clear north heaven, clothed warm with
light,
Stood neck to bended neck and wing to wing
With heads fast hidden under, close as cling Flowers on one flowering almond-branch in spring,
Three herons deep asleep against the sun, Each with one bright foot downward poised, and
one
Wing-hidden hard by the bright head, and all Still as fair shapes fixed on some wondrous wall Of minster-aisle or cloister-close or hall
To take even time's eye prisoner with delight.
Or, satisfied with joy of sound and sight,
They sat and communed of things past : what state
King Arthur, yet unwarred upon by fate,
Held high in hall at Camelot, like one Whose lordly life was as the mounting sun
That climbs and pauses on the point of noon,
Sovereign : how royal rang the tourney's tune

Through Tristram's three days' triumph, spear to spear,
When Iseult shone enthroned by Guenevere,
Rose against rose, the highest adored on earth,
Imperial : yet with subtle notes of mirth
Would she bemock her praises, and bemoan
Her glory by that splendour overthrown
Which lightened from her sister's eyes elate ;
Saying how by night a little light seems great,
But less than least of all things, very nought,
When dawn undoes the web that darkness wrought ;
How like a tower of ivory well designed By subtlest hand subserving subtlest mind,
Ivory with flower of rose incarnadined
And kindling with some God therein revealed,
A light for grief to look on and be healed,
Stood Guenevere : and all beholding her
Were heartstruck even as earth at midsummer
With burning wonder, hardly to be borne.
So was that amorous glorious lady born,
A fiery memory for all storied years :
Nor might men call her sisters crowned her peers,
Her sister queens, put all by her to scorn :
She had such eyes as are not made to mourn ;
But in her own a gleaming ghost of tears
Shone, and their glance was slower than Guenevere's,
And fitfuller with fancies grown of grief ;
Shamed as a Mayflower shames an autumn leaf Full well she wist it could not choose but be If in that other's eyeshot standing she .
Should lift her looks up ever : wherewithal
Like fires whose light fills heaven with festival
Flamed her eyes full on Tristram's ; and he laughed Answering, " What wile of sweet child-hearted craft

That children forge for children, to beguile
Eyes known of them not witless of the wile
But fain to seem for sport's sake self-deceived, Wilt thou find out now not to be believed ?
Or how shall I trust more than ouphe or elf Thy truth to me-ward, who beliest thyself ? ” “ Nor elf nor ouphe or aught of airier kind,” Quoth she, “ though made of moonbeams moist and blind,
Is light if weighed with man's winged weightless mind.
Though thou keep somewise troth with me, God wot,
When thou didst wed, I doubt, thou thoughtest not So charily to keep it.” “ Nay,” said he, “ Yet am not I rebukable by thee
As Launcelot, erring, held me ere he wist
No mouth save thine of mine was ever kissed Save as a sister's only, since we twain
Drank first the draught assigned our lips to drain
That Fate and Love with darkling hands commixt Poured, and no power to part them came betwixt,
But either's will, howbeit they seem at strife,
Was toward us one, as death itself and life
Are one sole doom toward all men, nor may one Behold not darkness, who beholds the sun.”
“ Ah, then,” she said, “ what word is this men hear
Of Merlin, how some doom too strange to fear
Was cast but late about him oversea,
Sweet recreant, in thy bridal Brittany ?
Is not his life sealed fast on him with sleep,
By witchcraft of his own and love's, to keep Till earth be fire and ashes ? ”

“ Surely,” said

Her lover, "not as one alive or dead
The great good wizard, well beloved and well
Predestinate of heaven that casts out hell
For guerdon gentler far than all men's fate,
Exempt alone of all predestinate,
Takes his strange rest at heart of slumberland,
More deep asleep in green Broceliande
Than shipwrecked sleepers in the soft green sea Beneath the weight of wandering waves : but he Hath for those roofing waters overhead
Above him always all the summer spread
Or all the winter wailing : or the sweet Late leaves marked red with autumn's burning
feet,
Or withered with his weeping, round the seer
Rain, and he sees not, nor may heed or hear
The witness of the winter : but in spring
He hears above him all the winds on wing
Through the blue dawn between the brightening boughs,
And on shut eyes and slumber-smitten brows Feels ambient change in the air and strengthening sun,
And knows the soul that was his soul at one
With the ardent world's, and in the spirit of earth
His spirit of life reborn to mightier birth
And mixed with things of elder life than ours ;
With cries of birds, and kindling lamps of flowers,
And sweep and song of winds, and fruitful light Of sunbeams, and the far faint breath of night,
And waves and woods at morning : and in all,
Soft as at noon the slow sea's rise and fall,
He hears in spirit a song that none but he Hears from the mystic mouth of Nimue

Shed like a consecration ; and his heart,
Hearing, is made for love's sake as a part Of that far singing, and the life thereof
Part of that life that feeds the world with love :
Yea, heart in heart is molten, hers and his,
Into the world's heart and the soul that is Beyond or sense or vision ; and their breath
Stirs the soft springs of deathless life and death, Death that bears life, and change that brings forth seed

Of life to death and death to life indeed,
As blood recircling through the unsounded veins
Of earth and heaven with all their joys and pains.
Ah, that when love shall laugh no more nor weep
We too, we too might hear that song and sleep !”

“ Yea,” said Iseult, “ some joy it were to be Lost in the sun's light and the all-girdling sea, Mixed with the winds and woodlands, and to bear
Part in the large life of the quickening air,
And the sweet earth's, our mother : yet to pass
More fleet than mirrored faces from the glass
Out of all pain and all delight, so far
That love should seem but as the furthest star Sunk deep in trembling heaven, scarce seen or known,

As a dead moon forgotten, once that shone
Where now the sun shines—nay, not all things yet,
Not all things always, dying, would I forget.”

And Tristram answered amorously, and said :
“ O heart that here art mine, O heavenliest head
That ever took men's worship here, which art
Mine, how shall death put out the fire at heart, Quench in men's eyes the head's remembered light,
That time shall set but higher in more men's sight ?

Think thou not much to die one earthly day,
Being made not in their mould who pass away Nor who shall pass for ever."

" Ah," she said,
" What shall it profit me, being praised and dead ?
What profit have the flowers of all men's praise ?
What pleasure of our pleasure have the days
That pour on us delight of life and mirth ?
What fruit of all our joy on earth has earth ?
Nor am I—nay, my lover, am I one
To take such part in heaven's enkindling sun
And in the inviolate air and sacred sea
As clothes with grace that wondrous Nimue ?
For all her works are bounties, all her deeds Blessings ; her days are scrolls wherein love reads

The record of his mercies ; heaven above
Hath not more heavenly holiness of love
Than earth beneath, wherever pass or pause
Her feet that move not save by love's own laws,
In gentleness of godlike wayfaring
To heal men's hearts as earth is healed by spring
Of all such woes as winter : what am I,
Love, that have strength but to desire and die,
That have but grace to love and do thee wrong,
What am I that my name should live so long,
Save as the star that crossed thy star-struck lot,
With hers whose light was life to Launcelot ?
Life gave she him, and strength, and fame to be
For ever : I, what gift can I give thee ?
Peril and sleepless watches, fearful breath
Of dread more bitter for my sake than death
When death came nigh to call me by my name,
Exile, rebuke, remorse, and—O, not shame.

Shame only, this I gave thee not, whom none
May give that worst thing ever—no, not one.
Of all that hate, all hateful hearts that see Darkness for light and hate where love should be,
None for my shame's sake may speak shame of thee."

And Tristram answering ere he kissed her smiled :
" O very woman, god at once and child,
What ails thee to desire of me once more
The assurance that thou hadst in heart before ?
For all this wild sweet waste of sweet vain breath, Thou knowest I know thou hast given me life, not
death.

The shadow of death, informed with shows of strife,

Was ere I won thee all I had of life.
Light war, light love, light living, dreams in sleep,
Joy slight and light, not glad enough to weep,
Filled up my foolish days with sound and shine,
Vision and gleam from strange men's cast on mine, Reverberate light from eyes presaging thine
That shed but shadowy moonlight where thy face
Now sheds forth sunshine in the deep same place,
The deep live heart half dead and shallower then Than summer fords which thwart not wandering
men.

For how should I, signed sorrow's from my birth,
Kiss dumb the loud red laughing lips of mirth ?
Or how, sealed thine to be, love less than heaven on earth ?

My heart in me was held at restless rest,
Presageful of some prize beyond its quest,
Prophetic still with promise, fain to find the best.
For one was fond and one was blithe and one Fairer than all save twain whose peers are none ;

For third on earth is none that heaven hath seen
 To stand with Guenevere beside my queen.
 Not Nimue, girt with blessing as a guard :
 Not the soft lures and laughters of Ettarde :
 Not she, that splendour girdled round with gloom,
 Crowned as with iron darkness of the tomb,
 And clothed with clouding conscience of a monstrous
 doom,

Whose blind incestuous love brought forth a fire
 To burn her ere it burn its darkling sire,
 Her mother's son, King Arthur : yet but late
 We saw pass by that fair live shadow of fate,
 The queen Morgause of Orkney, like a dream
 That scares the night when moon and starry beam Sicken and swoon before some sorcerer's eyes
 Whose wordless charms defile the saintly skies, Bright still with fire and pulse of blood and breath, Whom her own sons have doomed for shame to
 death."

"Death—yea," quoth she, "there is not said or heard

So oft aloud on earth so sure a word.
 Death, and again death, and for each that saith Ten tongues chime answer to the sound of death.
 Good end God send us ever—so men pray.
 But I—this end God send me, would I say,
 To die not of division and a heart
 Rent or with sword of severance cloven apart,
 But only when thou diest and only where thou art,
 O thou my soul and spirit and breath to me,
 O light, life, love ! yea, let this only be,
 That dying I may praise God who gave me thee, Let hap what will thereafter."

So that day

They communed, even till even was worn away,
Nor aught they said seemed strange or sad to say,
But sweet as night's dim dawn to weariness.
Nor loved they life or love for death's sake less,
Nor feared they death for love's or life's sake more
And on the sounding soft funereal shore
They, watching till the day should wholly die,
Saw the far sea sweep to the far grey sky,
Saw the long sands sweep to the long grey sea.
And night made one sweet mist of moor and lea,
And only far off shore the foam gave light.
And life in them sank silent as the night.

THE WIFE'S VIGIL

BUT all that year in Brittany forlorn,
More sick at heart with wrath than fear of scorn
And less in love with love than grief, and less
With grief than pride of spirit and bitterness, Till all the sweet life of her blood was changed
And all her soul from all her past estranged
And all her will with all itself at strife
And all her mind at war with all her life,
Dwelt the white-handed Iseult, maid and wife,
A mourner that for mourning robes had on Anger and doubt and hate of things foregone.
For that sweet spirit of old which made her sweet Was parched with blasts of thought as flowers with heat
And withered as with wind of evil will ;
Though slower than frosts or fires consume or kill That bleak black wind vexed all her spirit still.
As ripples reddening in the roughening breath
Of the eager east when dawn does night to death,
So rose and stirred and kindled in her thought Fierce barren fluctuant fires that lit not aught,
But scorched her soul with yearning keen as hate
And dreams that left her wrath disconsolate.

When change came first on that first heaven where all Life's hours were flowers that dawn's light hand let fall,

The sun that smote her dewy cloud of days
Wrought from its showery folds his rainbow's rays,
For love the red, for hope the gentle green,
But yellow jealousy glared pale between.
Ere yet the sky grew heavier, and her head
Bent flowerwise, chill with change and fancies fled,
She saw but love arch all her heaven across with red,
A burning bloom that seemed to breathe and beat
And waver only as flame with rapturous heat Wavers ; and all the world therewith smelt sweet,
As incense kindling from the rose-red flame :
And when that full flush waned, and love became Scarce fainter, though his fading horoscope
From certitude of sight receded, hope
Held yet her April-coloured light aloft
As though to lure back love, a lamp sublime and soft.
But soon that light paled as a leaf grows pale
And fluttered leaf-like in the gathering gale
And melted even as dew-flakes, whose brief sheen
The sun that gave despoils of glittering green ;
Till harder shone 'twixt hope and love grown cold
A sallow light like withering autumn's gold,
The pale strong flame of jealous thought, that glows
More deep than hope's green bloom or love's enkindled rose :

As though the sunflower's faint fierce disk absorbed
The spirit and heart of starrier flowers disorbed.

That same full hour of twilight's doors unbarred
To let bright night behold in Joyous Gard
The glad grave eyes of lovers far away Watch with sweet thoughts of death the death of day

Saw lonelier by the narrower opening sea
Sit fixed at watch Iseult of Brittany.
As darkness from deep valleys void and bleak
Climbs till it clothe with night the sunniest peak
Where only of all a mystic mountain-land
Day seems to cling yet with a trembling hand
And yielding heart reluctant to recede,
So, till her soul was clothed with night indeed, Rose the slow cloud of envious will within
And hardening hate that held itself no sin,
Veiled heads of vision, eyes of evil gleam, Dim thought on thought, and darkling dream on dream.

Far off she saw in spirit, and seeing abhorred,
The likeness wrought on darkness of her lord Shine, and the imperial semblance at his side Whose shadow from her seat cast down the bride, Whose power and ghostly presence thrust her forth :
Beside that unknown other sea far north
She saw them, clearer than in present sight
Rose on her eyes the starry shadow of night ;
And on her heart that heaved with gathering fate
Rose red with storm the starless shadow of hate ;
And eyes and heart made one saw surge and swell
The fires of sunset like the fires of hell.
As though God's wrath would burn up sin with shame,
The incensed red gold of deepening heaven grew flame :

The sweet green spaces of the soft low sky
Faded, as fields that withering wind leaves dry :
The sea's was like a doomsman's blasting breath
From lips afoam with ravenous lust of death.
A night like desolation, sombre-starred,
Above the great walled girth of Joyous Gard

Spread forth its wide sad strength of shadow and gloom

Wherein those twain were compassed round with
doom :

Hell from beneath called on them, and she heard Reverberate judgment in the wild wind's word
Cry, till the sole sound of their names that rang Clove all the sea-mist with a clarion's clang,
And clouds to clouds and flames to clustering flames
Beat back the dark noise of the direful names.
Fear and strong exultation caught her breath,
And triumph like the bitterness of death,
And rapture like the rage of hate allayed
With ruin and ravin that its might hath made ;
And her heart swelled and strained itself to hear What may be heard of no man's hungering ear,
And as a soil that cleaves in twain for drouth Thirsted for judgment given of God's own mouth Against them, till the strength of dark desire
Was in her as a flame of hell's own fire.

Nor seemed the wrath which held her spirit in stress
Aught else or worse than passionate holiness,
Nor the ardent hate which called on judgment's rod
More hateful than the righteousness of God.

“ How long, till thou do justice, and my wrong Stand expiate ? O long-suffering judge, how long ?
Shalt thou not put him in mine hand one day
Whom I so loved, to spare not but to slay ?
Shalt thou not cast her down for me to tread,
Me, on the pale pride of her humbled head ?
Do I not well, being angry ? doth not hell Require them ? yea, thou knowest that I do well.
Is not thy seal there set of bloodred light
For witness on the brows of day and night ?

Who shall unseal it? what shall melt away
Thy signet from the doors of night and day?
No man, nor strength of any spirit above,
Nor prayer, nor ardours of adulterous love.
Thou art God, the strong lord over body and soul:
Hast thou not in the terrors of thy scroll
All names of all men written as with fire?
Thine only breath bids time and space respire:
And are not all things evil in them done
More clear in thine eyes than in ours the sun?
Hast thou not sight stretched wide enough to see These that offend it, these at once and me?
Is thine arm shortened or thine hand struck down
As palsied? have thy brows not strength to frown?
Are thine eyes blind with film of withering age?
Burns not thine heart with righteousness of rage
Yet, and the royal rancour toward thy foes Retributive of ruin? Time should close,
Thou said'st, and earth fade as a leaf grows grey,
Ere one word said of thine should pass away.
Was this then not thy word, thou God most high,
That sin shall surely bring forth death and die,
Seeing how these twain live and have joy of life,
His harlot and the man that made me wife?
For is it I, perchance, I that have sinned?
Me, peradventure, should thy wasting wind
Smite, and thy sun blast, and thy storms devour Me with keen fangs of lightning? should thy power
Put forth on me the weight of its awakening hour?
Shall I that bear this burden bear that weight
Of judgment? is my sin against thee great,
If all my heart against them burn with all its hate?
Thine, and not mine, should hate be? nay, but me
They have spoiled and scoffed at, who can touch not thee.

Me, me, the fullness of their joy drains dry,
Their fruitfulness makes barren : thou, not I,
Lord, is it, whom their wrongdoing clothes with shame
That all who speak shoot tongues out at thy name
As all who hear mock mine ? Make me thy sword
At least, if even thou too be wronged, O Lord,
At all of these that wrong me : make mine hand
As lightning, or my tongue a fiery brand,
To burn or smite them with thy wrath : behold,
I have nought on earth save thee for hope or hold,
Fail me not thou : I have nought but this to crave,
Make me thy mean to give them to the grave,
Thy sign that all men seeing may speak thee just,
Thy word which turns the strengths of sin to dust, Thy blast which burns up towers and thrones with fire.

Lord, is this gift, this grace that I require,
So great a gift, Lord, for thy grace to give
And bid me bear thy part retributive ?
That I whom scorn makes mouths at, I might be Thy witness if loud sin may mock at thee ?
For lo, my life is as a barren ear
Plucked from the sheaf : dark days drive past me here
Downtrodden, while joy's reapers pile their sheaves,
A thing more vile than autumn's weariest leaves,
For these the sun filled once with sap of life.
O thou my lord that hadst me to thy wife,
Dost thou not fear at all, remembering me,
The love that bowed my whole soul down to thee ?
Is this so wholly nought for man to dread,
Man, whose life walks between the quick and dead,
Naked, and warred about with wind and sea,
That one should love and hate as I do thee ?
That one should live in all the world his foe
So mortal as the hate that loves him so ?

Nought, is it nought, O husband, O my knight,
O strong man and indomitable in fight,
That one more weak than foam-bells on the sea
Should have in heart such thoughts as I of thee?
Thou art bound about with stately strengths for bands:

What strength shall keep thee from my strengthless hands?

Thou art girt about with goodly guards and great :
What fosse may fence thee round as deep as hate?
Thou art wise : will wisdom teach thee fear of me?
Thou art great of heart : shall this deliver thee?
What wall so massive, or what tower so high,
Shall be thy surety that thou shouldst not die,
If that which comes against thee be but I?
Who shall rise up of power to take thy part,
What skill find strength to save, what strength find art,

If that which wars against thee be my heart?
Not iron, nor the might of force afield,
Nor edge of sword, nor sheltering weight of shield,
Nor all thy fame since all thy praise began,
Nor all the love and laud thou hast of man,
Nor, though his noiseless hours with wool be shod,
Shall God's love keep thee from the wrath of God.
O son of sorrows, hast thou said at heart,
Haply, God loves thee, God shall take thy part,
Who hath all these years endured thee, since thy birth

From sorrow's womb bade sin be born on earth?
So long he hath cast his buckler over thee,
Shall he not surely guard thee even from me?
Yea, but if yet he give thee while I live Into mine hands as he shall surely give,

Ere death at last bring darkness on thy face,
Call then on him, call not on me for grace,
Cast not away one prayer, one suppliant breath,
On me that commune all this while with death.
For I that was not and that was thy wife
Desire not but one hour of all thy life
Wherein to triumph till that hour be past ;
But this mine hour I look for is thy last."

So mused she till the fire in sea and sky
Sank, and the northwest wind spake harsh on high,
And like the sea's heart waxed her heart that heard,
Strong, dark, and bitter, till the keen wind's word Seemed of her own soul spoken, and the breath
All round her not of darkness, but of death.

VIII

THE LAST PILGRIMAGE

ENOUGH of ease, O Love, enough of light,
 Enough of rest before the shadow of night.
 Strong Love, whom death finds feeble ; kingly Love.
 Whom time discrowns in season, seeing thy dove Spell-stricken by the serpent ; for thy sake
 These that saw light see night's dawn only break, Night's cup filled up with slumber, whence men think
 The draught more dread than thine was dire to drink.
 O Love, thy day sets darkling : hope and fear
 Fall from thee standing stern as death stands here.

For what have these to do with fear or hope
 On whom the gates of outer darkness ope,
 On whom the door of life's desire is barred ?
 Past like a cloud, their days in Joyous Gard Gleam like a cloud the westering sun stains red Till all the blood of day's blithe heart be bled
 And all night's heart requickened ; in their eyes
 So flame and fade those far memorial skies,
 So shines the moorland, so revives the sea, Whereon they gazing mused of things to be
 And wist not more of them than waters know What wind with next day's change of tide shall blow.

Dark roll the deepening days whose waves divide Unseasonably, with storm-struck change of tide, Tristram from Iseult : nor may sorrow say
If better wind shall blow than yesterday
With next day risen or any day to come.
For ere the songs of summer's death fell dumb,
And autumn bade the imperial moorlands change
Their purples, and the bracken's bloom grow strange As hope's green blossom touched with time's harsh rust,
Was all their joy of life shaken to dust,
And all its fire made ashes : by the strand Where late they strayed and communed hand from hand
For the last time fell separate, eyes of eyes
Took for the last time leave, and saw the skies Dark with their deep division. The last time—
The last that ever love's rekindling rhyme
Should keep for them life's days and nights in tune
With refluence of the morning and the moon Alternative in music, and make one
The secrets of the stardawn and the sun
For these twain souls ere darkness held them fast ;
The last before the labour marked for last
And toil of utmost knighthood, till the wage
Of rest might crown his crowning pilgrimage
Whereon forth faring must he take farewell,
With spear for staff and sword for scallop-shell
And scrip wherein close memory hoarded yet
Things holier held than death might well forget ;
The last time ere the travel were begun
Whose goal is un beholden of the sun,
The last, wherewith love's eyes might yet be lit,
Came, and they could but dream they knew not it.

For Tristram parting from her wist at heart
How well she wist they might not choose but part,
And he pass forth a pilgrim, when there came
A sound of summons in the high king's name
For succour toward his vassal Triamour,
King in wild Wales, now spoiled of all his power.
As Tristram's father ere his fair son's birth,
By one the strongest of the sons of earth,
Urgan, an iron bulk of giant mould :
And Iseult in Tintagel as of old
Sat crowned with state and sorrow : for her lord
At Arthur's hand required her back restored,
And willingly compelled against her will She yielded, saying within her own soul still Some season yet of soft or stormier breath
Should haply give her life again or death :
For now nor quick nor dead nor bright nor dark
Were all her nights and days wherein King Mark Held haggard watch upon her, and his eyes
Were cloudier than the gradual wintering skies
That closed about the wan wild land and sea.
And bitter toward him waxed her heart : but he Was rent in twain betwixt harsh love and hate
With pain and passion half compassionate
That yearned and laboured to be quit of shame,
And could not : and his life grew smouldering flame.
And hers a cloud full-charged with storm and shower,
Though touched with trembling gleams of fire's bright flower
That flashed and faded on its fitful verge,
As hope would strive with darkness and emerge
And sink, a swimmer strangled by the swallowing surge.

But Tristram by dense hills and deepening vales Rode through the wild glad wastes of glorious Wales,

High-hearted with desire of happy fight
And strong in soul with merrier sense of might Than since the fair first years that hailed him knight :

For all his will was toward the war, so long
Had love repressed and wrought his glory wrong,
So far the triumph and so fair the praise
Seemed now that kindled all his April days.
And here in bright blown autumn, while his life
Was summer's yet for strength toward love or strife, Blithe waxed his hope toward battle, and high desire
To pluck once more as out of circling fire Fame, the broad flower whose breath makes death more sweet

Than roses crushed by love's receding feet.
But all the lovely land wherein he went
The blast of ruin and ravenous war had rent ;
And black with fire the fields where homesteads were,
And foul with festering dead the high soft air,
And loud with wail of women many a stream Whose own live song was like love's deepening dream,

Spake all against the spoiler : wherefore still Wrath waxed with pity, quickening all his will,
In Tristram's heart for every league he rode Through the aching land so broad a curse bestrode
With so supreme a shadow : till one dawn
Above the green bloom of a gleaming lawn,
High on the strait steep windy bridge that spanned
A glen's deep mouth, he saw that shadow stand Visible, sword on thigh and mace in hand

Vast as the mid bulk of a roof-tree's beam.
So, sheer above the wild wolf-haunted stream,
Dire as the face disfeatured of a dream,
Rose Urgan : and his eyes were night and flame ;
But like the fiery dawn were his that came Against him, lit with more sublime desire
Than lifts toward heaven the leaping heart of fire :
And strong in vantage of his perilous place
The huge high presence, red as earth's first race,
Reared like a reed the might up of his mace,
And smote : but lightly Tristram swerved, and drove
Right in on him, whose void stroke only clove Air, and fell wide, thundering athwart : and he Sent forth a stormier cry than wind or sea
When midnight takes the tempest for her lord .
And all the glen's throat seemed as hell's that roared ;
But high like heaven's light over hell shone
Tristram's sword,
Falling, and bright as storm shows God's bare brand
Flashed as it shore sheer off the huge right hand Whose strength was as the shadow of death on all that land.
And like the trunk of some grim tree sawn through Reeled Urgan, as his left hand grasped and drew A steel by sorcerers tempered : and anew
Raged the red wind of fluctuant fight, till all
The cliffs were thrilled as by the clangorous call
Of storm's blown trumpets from the core of night, Charging : and even as with the storm-wind's might On Tristram's helm that sword crashed : and the knight

Fell, and his arms clashed, and a wide cry brake
From those far off that heard it, for his sake Soul-stricken : and that bulk of monstrous birth Sent forth again a cry more dire for mirth :
But ere the sunbright arms were soiled of earth
They flashed again, re-risen : and swift and loud
Rang the strokes out as from a circling cloud, So dense the dust wrought over them its drifted shroud.

Strong strokes, within the mist their battle made,
Each hailed on other through the shifting shade
That clung about them hurtling as the swift fight swayed :

And each between the jointed corslet saw
Break forth his foe's bright blood at each grim flaw
Steel made in hammered iron : till again
The fiend put forth his might more strong for pain And cleft the great knight's glittering shield in twain,

Laughing for very wrath and thirst to kill,
A beast's broad laugh of blind and wolfish will,
And smote again ere Tristram's lips drew breath
Panting, and swept as by the sense of death,
That surely should have touched and sealed them fast

Save that the sheer stroke shrilled aside, and passed Frustrate : but answering Tristram smote anew,
And thrust the brute breast as with lightning through Clean with one cleaving stroke of perfect might :
And violently the vast bulk leapt upright,
And plunged over the bridge, and fell : and all
The cliffs reverberate from his monstrous fall Rang : and the land by Tristram's grace was free.
So with high laud and honour thence went he,

And southward set his sail again, and passed
The lone land's ending, first beheld and last
Of eyes that look on England from the sea :
And his heart mourned within him, knowing how she

Whose heart with his was fatefully made fast Sat now fast bound, as though some charm were cast

About her, such a brief space eastward thence,
And yet might soul not break the bonds of sense
And bring her to him in very life and breath
More than had this been even the sea of death
That washed between them, and its wide sweet
light

The dim strait's darkness of the narrowing night
That shuts about men dying whose souls put forth
To pierce its passage through : but south and north Alike for him were other than they were :
For all the northward coast shone smooth and fair,
And off its iron cliffs the keen-edged air
Blew summer, kindling from her mute bright mouth ;
But winter breathed out of the murmuring south,
Where, pale with wrathful watch on passing ships,
The lone wife lay in wait with wan dumb lips.
Yet, sailing where the shoreward ripple curled
Of the most wild sweet waves in all the world,
His soul took comfort even for joy to see
The strong deep joy of living sun and sea,
The large deep love of living sea and land,
As past the lonely lion-guarded strand
Where that huge warder lifts his couchant sides, Asleep, above the sleepless lapse of tides,
The light sail swept, and past the unsounded caves Unsearchable, wherein the pulse of waves

Throbs through perpetual darkness to and fro,
And the blind night swims heavily below
While heavily the strong noon broods above,
Even to the very bay whence very Love,
Strong daughter of the giant gods who wrought
Sun, earth, and sea out of their procreant thought,
Most meetly might have risen, and most divine Beheld and heard things round her sound and shine
From floors of foam and gold to walls of serpentine.
For splendid as the limbs of that supreme Incarnate beauty through men's visions gleam, Whereof all fairest things are even but shadow or dream,

And lovely like as Love's own heavenliest face, Gleams there and glows the presence and the grace
Even of the mother of all, in perfect pride of place.
For elsewhere beneath our world-wide sky
There may not be beheld of men that die
Aught else like this that dies not, nor may stress
Of ages that bow down men's works make less
The exultant awe that clothes with power its loveliness.

For who sets eye thereon soever knows How since these rocks and waves first rolled and rose
The marvel of their many-coloured might Hath borne this record sensible to sight,
The witness and the symbol of their own delight,
The gospel graven of life's most heavenly law,
Joy, brooding on its own still soul with awe,
A sense of godlike rest in godlike strife,
The sovereign conscience of the spirit of life.
Nor elsewhere on strand or mountain tower
Hath such fair beauty shining forth in flower
Put on the imperial robe of such imperious power.

For all the radiant rocks from depth to height
Burn with vast bloom of glories blossom-bright As though the sun's own hand had thrilled them through with light

And stained them through with splendour : yet from thence

Such awe strikes rapture through the spirit of sense

From all the inaccessible sea-wall's girth,
That exultation, bright at heart as mirth,
Bows deeper down before the beauty of earth
Than fear may bow down ever : nor shall one Who meets at Alpine dawn the mounting sun
On heights too high for many a wing to climb
Be touched with sense of aught seen more sublime Than here smiles high and sweet in face of heaven and time.

For here the flower of fire, the soft hoar bloom
Of springtide olive-woods, the warm green gloom Of clouded seas that swell and sound with dawn of
doom,

The keen thwart lightning and the wan grey light
Of stormy sunrise crossed and vexed with night, Flash, loom, and laugh with divers hues in one
From all the curved cliff's face, till day be done, Against the sea's face and the gazing sun.
And whensoever a strong wave, high in hope, Sweeps up some smooth slant breadth of stone aslope,

That glowed with duskier fire of hues less bright,
Swift as it sweeps back springs to sudden sight
The splendour of the moist rock's fervent light, Fresh as from dew of birth when time was born :
Out of the world-conceiving womb of morn.

All its quenched flames and darkling hues divine Leap into lustrous life and laugh and shine
And darken into swift and dim decline
For one brief breath's space till the next wave run Right up, and ripple down again, undone,
And leave it to be kissed and kindled of the sun.
And all these things, bright as they shone before
Man first set foot on earth or sail from shore, Rose not less radiant than the sun sees now
When the autumn sea was cloven of Tristram's prow,
And strong in sorrow and hope and woful will
That hope might move not nor might sorrow kill
He held his way back toward the wild sad shore
Whence he should come to look on these no more,
Nor ever, save with sunless eyes shut fast,
Sail home to sleep in home-born earth at last.

And all these things fled fleet as light or breath
Past, and his heart waxed cold and dull as death,
Or swelled but as the tides of sorrow swell,
To sink with sullen sense of slow farewell.
So surely seemed the silence even to sigh Assurance of inveterate prophecy,
"Thou shalt not come again home hither ere thou die."

And the wind mourned and triumphed, and the sea Wailed and took heart and trembled ; nor might he Hear more of comfort in their speech, or see More certitude in all the waste world's range
Than the only certitude of death and change.
And as the sense and semblance fluctuated
Of all things heard and seen alive or dead
That smote far off upon his ears or eyes
Or memory mixed with forecasts fain to rise
And fancies faint as ghostliest prophecies,

So seemed his own soul, changefully forlorn,
To shrink and triumph and mount up and mourn ;
Yet all its fitful waters, clothed with night,
Lost heart not wholly, lacked not wholly light,
Seeing over life and death one star in sight
Where evening's gates as fair as morning's ope, Whose name was memory, but whose flame was hope.
For all the tides of thought that rose and sank Felt its fair strength wherefrom strong sorrow shrank
A mightier trust than time could change or cloy,
More strong than sorrow, more secure than joy.
So came he, nor content nor all unblest,
Back to the grey old land of Merlin's rest.

But ere six paces forth on shore he trod
Before him stood a knight with feet unshod,
And kneeling called upon him, as on God
Might sick men call for pity, praying aloud
With hands held up and head made bare and bowed ; “ Tristram, for God's love and thine own dear fame,
I Tristram that am one with thee in name
And one in heart with all that praise thee—I,
Most woful man of all that may not die
For heartbreak and the heavier scourge of shame,
By all thy glory done our woful name
Beseech thee, called of all men gentlest knight,
Be now not slow to do my sorrows right.
I charge thee for thy fame's sake through this land,
I pray thee by thine own wife's fair white hand,
Have pity of me whose love is borne away
By one that makes of poor men's lives his prey,
A felon masked with knighthood : at his side
Seven brethren hath he night or day to ride With seven knights more that wait on all his will :
And here at hand, ere yet one day fulfil

Its flight through light and darkness, shall they fare
Forth, and my bride among them, whom they bear
Through these wild lands his prisoner ; and if now
I lose her, and my prayer be vain, and thou Less fain to serve love's servants than of yore, Then surely shall I see her face no more.
But if thou wilt, for love's sake of the bride
Who lay most loved of women at thy side,
Strike with me, straight then hence behoves us ride
And rest between the moorside and the sea
Where we may smite them passing : but for me,
Poor stranger, me not worthy scarce to touch
Thy kind strong hand, how shouldst thou do so much ?
For now lone left this long time waits thy wife
And lacks her lord and light of wedded life
Whilst thou far off art famous : yet thy fame,
If thou take pity on me that bear thy name Unworthily, but by that name implore
Thy grace, how shall not even thy fame grow more ?
But be thy will as God's among us done,
Who art far in fame above us as the sun :
Yet only of him have all men help and grace."

And all the lordly light of Tristram's face
Was softened as the sun's in kindly spring.
"Nay, then may God send me as evil a thing
When I give ear not to such prayers," he said,
"And make my place among the nameless dead
When I put back one hour the time to smite
And do the unrighteous griefs of good men right Behold, I will not enter in nor rest
Here in mine own halls till this piteous quest Find end ere noon to-morrow : but do thou,
Whose sister's face I may not look on now,
Go, Ganhardine, with tiding of the vow

That bids me turn aside for one day's strife
Or live dishonoured all my days of life,
And greet for me in brother's wise my wife,
And crave her pardon that for knighthood's sake
And womanhood's, whose bands may no man break
And keep the bands of bounden honour fast,
I seek not her till two nights yet be past
And this my quest accomplished, so God please
By me to give this young man's anguish ease
And on his wrongdoer's head his wrong requite."

And Tristram with that woful thankful knight Rode by the seaside moorland wastes away
Between the quickening night and darkening day
Ere half the gathering stars had heart to shine.
And lightly toward his sister Ganhardine
Sped, where she sat and gazed alone afar
Above the grey sea for the sunset star,
And lightly kissed her hand and lightly spake
His tidings of that quest for knighthood's sake.
And the white-handed Iseult, bowing her head,
Gleamed on him with a glance athwart, and said,
"As God's on earth and far above the sun,
So toward his handmaid be my lord's will done."
And doubts too dim to question or divine Touched as with shade the spirit of Ganhardine, Hearing ; and scarce for half a doubtful breath
His bright light heart held half a thought of death
And knew not whence this darkling thought might be,
But surely not his sister's work : for she Was ever sweet and good as summer air,
And soft as dew when all the night is fair,
And gracious as the golden maiden moon
When darkness craves her blessing : so full soon

His mind was light again as leaping waves,
Nor dreamed that hers was like a field of graves
Where no man's foot dares swerve to left or right, Nor ear dares hearken, nor dares eye take sight
Of aught that moves and murmurs there at night.

But by the sea-banks where at morn their foes
Might find them, lay those knightly name-fellows,
One sick with grief of heart and sleepless, one
With heart of hope triumphant as the sun
Dreaming asleep of love and fame and fight :
But sleep at last wrapped warm the wan young
knight ;

And Tristram with the first pale windy light Woke ere the sun spake summons, and his ear
Caught the sea's call that fired his heart to hear,
A noise of waking waters : for till dawn
The sea was silent as a mountain lawn
When the wind speaks not, and the pines are dumb,
And summer takes her fill ere autumn come
Of life'more soft than slumber : but ere day
Rose, and the first beam smote the bounding bay, Up sprang the strength of the dark East, and took
With its wide wings the waters as they shook,
And hurled them huddling on aheap, and cast
The full sea shoreward with a great glad blast, Blown from the heart of morning : and with joy
Full-souled and perfect passion, as a boy
That leaps up light to wrestle with the sea
For pure heart's gladness and large ecstasy,
Up sprang the might of Tristram ; and his soul
Yearned for delight within him, and waxed whole
As a young child's with rapture of the hour
That brought his spirit and all the world to flower,

And all the bright blood in his veins beat time
To the wind's clarion and the water's chime
That called him and he followed it and stood
On the sand's verge before the grey great flood Where the white hurtling heads of waves that met Rose unsaluted of the sunrise yet.
And from his heart's root outward shot the sweet Strong joy that thrilled him to the hands and feet, Filling his limbs with pleasure and glad might,
And his soul drank the immeasurable delight
That earth drinks in with morning, and the free Limitless love that lifts the stirring sea
When on her bare bright bosom as a bride
She takes the young sun, perfect in his pride,
Home to his place with passion: and the heart Trembled for joy within the man whose part
Was here not least in living; and his mind
Was rapt abroad beyond man's meaner kind
And pierced with love of all things and with mirth
Moved to make one with heaven and heavenlike earth
And with the light live water. So awhile
He watched the dim sea with a deepening smile,
And felt the sound and savour and swift flight
Of waves that fled beneath the fading night
And died before the darkness, like a song
With harps between and trumpets blown along
Through the loud air of some triumphant day,
Sink through his spirit and purge all sense away Save of the glorious gladness of his hour
And all the world about to break in flower
Before the sovereign laughter of the sun;
And he, ere night's wide work lay all undone,
As earth from her bright body casts off night,
Cast off his raiment for a rapturous flight

And stood between the sea's edge and the sea Naked, and godlike of his mould as he Whose swift foot's sound shook all the towers of Troy ;

So clothed with might, so girt upon with joy
As, ere the knife had shorn to feed the fire
His glorious hair before the unkindled pyre
Whereon the half of his great heart was laid,
Stood, in the light of his live limbs arrayed,
Child of heroic earth and heavenly sea,
The flower of all men : scarce less bright than he,
If any of all men latter-born might stand,
Stood Tristram, silent, on the glimmering strand.
Not long : but with a cry of love that rang
As from a trumpet golden-mouthed, he sprang,
As toward a mother's where his head might rest
Her child rejoicing, toward the strong sea's breast
That none may gird nor measure : and his heart
Sent forth a shout that bade his lips not part,
But triumphed in him silent : no man's voice,
No song, no sound of clarions that rejoice,
Can set that glory forth which fills with fire
The body and soul that have their whole desire Silent, and freer than birds or dreams are free Take all their will of all the encountering sea.
And toward the foam he bent and forward smote,
Laughing, and launched his body like a boat
Full to the sea-breach, and against the tide Struck strongly forth with amorous arms made wide

To take the bright breast of the wave to his
And on his lips the sharp sweet minute's kiss
Given of the wave's lip for a breath's space curled
And pure as at the daydawn of the world.

And round him all the bright rough shuddering sea Kindled, as though the world were even as he,
Heart-stung with exultation of desire :
And all the life that moved him seemed to aspire,
As all the sea's life toward the sun : and still Delight within him waxed with quickening will More smooth and strong and perfect as a flame That springs and spreads, till each glad limb became A note of rapture in the tune of life,
Live music mild and keen as sleep and strife :
Till the sweet change that bids the sense grow sure
Of deeper depth and purity more pure
Wrapped him and lapped him round with clearer cold,
And all the rippling green grew royal gold
Between him and the far sun's rising rim.
And like the sun his heart rejoiced in him,
And brightened with a broadening flame of mirth :
And hardly seemed its life a part of earth,
But the life kindled of a fiery birth
And passion of a new-begotten son
Between the live sea and the living sun.
And mightier grew the joy to meet full-faced Each wave, and mount with upward plunge, and taste
The rapture of its rolling strength, and cross
Its flickering crown of snows that flash and toss Like plumes in battle's blithest charge, and thence To match the next with yet more strenuous sense ;
Till on his eyes the light beat hard and bade
His face turn west and shoreward through the glad Swift revel of the waters golden-clad,
And back with light reluctant heart he bore
Across the broad-backed rollers in to shore ;
Strong-spirited for the chance and cheer of fight,
And donned his arms again, and felt the might

In all his limbs rejoice for strength, and praised God for such life as that whereon he gazed,
And wist not surely its joy was even as fleet
As that which laughed and lapsed against his feet,
The bright thin grey foam-blossom, glad and hoar,
That flings its flower along the flowerless shore
On sand or shingle, and still with sweet strange snows,
As where one great white storm-dishevelled rose
May rain her wild leaves on a windy land, Strews for long leagues the sounding slope of strand,
And flower on flower falls flashing, and anew
A fresh light leaps up whence the last flash flew,
And casts its brief glad gleam of life away
To fade not flowerwise but as drops the day
Storm-smitten, when at once the dark devours
Heaven and the sea and earth with all their flowers ;
No star in heaven, on earth no rose to see,
But the white blown brief blossoms of the sea,
That make her green gloom starrier than the sky,
Dance yet before the tempest's tune, and die.
And all these things he glanced upon, and knew How fair they shone, from earth's least flake of dew
To stretch of seas and imminence of skies, Unwittingly, with unpresageful eyes,
For the last time. The world's half heavenly face,
The music of the silence of the place,
The confluence and the reflux of the sea,
The wind's note ringing over wold and lea,
Smote once more through him keen as fire that smote,
Rang once more through him one reverberate note,
That faded as he turned again and went,
Fulfilled by strenuous joy with strong content,
To take his last delight of labour done
That yet should be beholden of the sun

Or ever give man comfort of his hand.

Beside a wood's edge in the broken land
An hour at wait the twain together stood,
Till swift between the moorside and the wood Flashed the spears forward of the coming train ;
And seeing beside the strong chief spoiler's rein
His wan love riding prisoner in the crew, Forth with a cry the young man leapt, and flew Right on that felon sudden as a flame ;
And hard at hand the mightier Tristram came,
Bright as the sun and terrible as fire :
And there had sword and spear their soul's desire,
And blood that quenched the spear's thirst as it poured Slaked royally the hunger of the sword,
Till the fierce heart of steel could scarce fulfil Its greed and ravin of insatiate will.
For three the fiery spear of Tristram drove Down ere a point of theirs his harness clove
Or its own sheer mid shaft splintered in twain :
And his heart bounded in him, and was fain
As fire or wind that takes its fill by night
Of tempest and of triumph : so the knight
Rejoiced and ranged among them, great of hand,
Till seven lay slain upon the heathery sand
Or in the dense breadth of the woodside fern.
Nor did his heart not mightier in him burn Seeing at his hand that young knight fallen, and high
The red sword reared again that bade him die.
But on the slayer exulting like the flame Whose foot foreshines the thunder Tristram came Raging, for piteous wrath had made him fire ;
And as a lion's look his face was dire
That flashed against his foeman ere the sword
Lightened and wrought the heart's will of its lord,

And clove through casque and crown the wrongdoer's head.

And right and left about their dark chief dead
Hurtled and hurled those felons to and fro,
Till as a storm-wind scatters leaves and snow
His right hand ravening scattered them ; but one That fled with sidelong glance athwart the sun
Shot, and the shaft flew sure, and smote aright, Full in the wound's print of his great first fight
When at his young strength's peril he made free Cornwall, and slew beside its bordering sea
The fair land's foe, who yielding up his breath
Yet left him wounded nigh to dark slow death.
And hardly with long toil thence he won home
Between the grey moor and the glimmering foam,
And halting fared through his own gate, and fell,
Thirsting : for as the sleepless fire of hell
The fire within him of his wound again
Burned, and his face was dark as death for pain,
And blind the blithe light of his eyes : but they Within that watched and wist not of the fray
Came forth and cried aloud on him for woe.
And scarce aloud his thanks fell faint and slow
As men reared up the strong man fallen and bore Down the deep hall that looked along the shore,
And laid him soft abed, and sought in vain
If herb or hand of leech might heal his pain.
And the white-handed Iseult hearkening heard
All, and drew nigh, and spake no wifely word,
But gazed upon him doubtfully, with eyes
Clouded ; and he in kindly knightly wise Spake with scant breath, and smiling : " Surely this Is penance for discourteous lips to kiss

And feel the brand burn through them, here to lie
And lack the strength here to do more than sigh
And hope not hence for pardon." Then she bowed Her head, still silent as a stooping cloud,
And laid her lips against his face ; and he Felt sink a shadow across him as the sea
Might feel a cloud stoop toward it : and his heart Darkened as one that wastes by sorcerous art
And knows not whence it withers : and he turned Back from her emerald eyes his own, and yearned
All night for eyes all golden : and the dark Hung sleepless round him till the loud first lark Rang record forth once more of darkness done,
And all things born took comfort from the sun.

IX

THE SAILING OF THE SWAN

FATE, that was born ere spirit and flesh were made,
The fire that fills man's life with light and shade ;
The power beyond all godhead which puts on All forms of multitudinous unison,
A raiment of eternal change inwrought
With shapes and hues more subtly spun than thought, Where all things old bear fruit of all things new
And one deep chord throbs all the music through,
The chord of change unchanging, shadow and light
Inseparable as reverberate day from night ;
Fate, that of all things save the soul of man
Is lord and God since body and soul began ;
Fate, that keeps all the tune of things in chime ;
Fate, that breathes power upon the lips of time ;
That smites and soothes with heavy and healing hand
All joys and sorrows born in life's dim land,
Till joy be found a shadow and sorrow a breath
And life no discord in the tune with death,
But all things fain alike to die and live
In pulse and lapse of tides alternative,
Through silence and through sound of peace and strife,
Till birth and death be one in sight of life ;
Fate, heard and seen of no man's eyes or ears,
To no man shown through light of smiles or tears,

And moved of no man's prayer to fold its wings ;
 Fate, that is night and light on worldly things ;
 Fate, that is fire to burn and sea to drown,
 Strength to build up and thunder to cast down ;
 Fate, shield and screen for each man's lifelong head,
 And sword at last or dart that strikes it dead ;
 Fate, higher than heaven and deeper than the grave,
 That saves and spares not, spares and doth not save ;
 Fate, that in gods' wise is not bought and sold
 For prayer or price of penitence or gold ;
 Whose law shall live when life bids earth farewell,
 Whose justice hath for shadows heaven and hell .
 Whose judgment into no god's hand is given,
 Nor is its doom not more than hell or heaven :
 Fate, that is pure of love and clean of hate,
 Being equal-eyed as nought may be but fate ;
 Through many and weary days of foiled desire Leads life to rest where tears no more take fire ;
 Through many and weary dreams of quenched delight
 Leads life through death past sense of day and night.

Nor shall they feel or fear, whose date is done,
 Aught that made once more dark the living sun
 And bitterer in their breathing lips the breath
 Than the dark dawn and bitter dust of death.
 For all the light, with fragrance as of flowers,
 That clothes the lithe live limbs of separate hours,
 More sweet to savour and more clear to sight
 Dawns on the soul death's undivided night.
 No vigils has that perfect night to keep,
 No fever-fits of vision shake that sleep.
 Nor if they wake, and any place there be Wherein the soul may feel her wings beat free
 Through air too clear and still for sound or strife
 If life were haply death, and death be life ;

If love with yet some lovelier laugh revive,
 And song relume the light it bore alive,
 And friendship, found of all earth's gifts most good,
 Stand perfect in perpetual brotherhood ;
 If aught indeed at all of all this be,
 Though none might say nor any man might see,
 Might he that sees the shade thereof not say
 This dream were trustier than the truth of day.
 Nor haply may not hope, with heart more clear,
 Burn deathward, and the doubtful soul take cheer, Seeing through the channelled darkness yearn a star

Whose eyebeams are not as the morning's are,
 Transient, and subjugate of lordlier light,
 But all unconquerable by noon or night,
 Being kindled only of life's own inmost fire,
 Truth, stablished and made sure by strong desire.
 Fountain of all things living, source and seed,
 Force that perforce transfigures dream to deed
 God that begets on time, the body of death,
 Eternity : nor may man's darkening breath,
 Albeit it stain, disfigure or destroy
 The glass wherein the soul sees life and joy
 Only, with strength renewed and spirit of youth,
 And brighter than the sun's the body of Truth
 Eternal, unimaginable of man,
 Whose very face not Thought's own eyes may scan,
 But see far off his radiant feet at least,
 Trampling the head of Fear, the false high priest, Whose broken chalice foams with blood no more,
 And prostrate on that high priest's chancel floor, Bruised, overthrown, blind, maimed, with bloodless rod,
 The miscreation of his miscreant God.

That sovereign shadow cast of souls that dwell
 In darkness and the prison-house of hell
 Whose walls are built of deadly dread, and bound
 The gates thereof with dreams as iron round,
 And all the bars therein and stanchions wrought
 Of shadow forged like steel and tempered thought
 And words like swords and thunder-clouded creeds
 And faiths more dire than sin's most direful deeds :
 That shade accursed and worshipped, which hath made

The soul of man that brought it forth a shade
 Black as the womb of darkness, void and vain,
 A throne for fear, a pasturage for pain,
 Impotent, abject, clothed upon with lies,
 A foul blind fume of words and prayers that rise,
 Aghast and harsh, abhorrent and abhorred,
 Fierce as its God, blood-saturate as its Lord ;
 With loves and mercies on its lips that hiss
 Comfort, and kill compassion with a kiss,
 And strike the world black with their blasting breath ;
 That ghost whose core of life is very death
 And all its light of heaven a shadow of hell,
 Fades, falls, wanes, withers by none other spell
 But theirs whose eyes and ears have seen and heard
 Not the face naked, not the perfect word,
 But the bright sound and feature felt from far
 Of life which feeds the spirit and the star,
 Thrills the live light of all the suns that roll,
 And stirs the still sealed springs of every soul.

Three dim days through, three slumberless nights long,
 Perplexed at dawn, oppressed at evensong,
 The strong man's soul now sealed indeed with pain
 And all its springs half dried with drought, had lain

Prisoner within the fleshly dungeon-dress
 Sore chafed and wasted with its weariness.
 And fain it would have found the star, and fain
 Made this funereal prison-house of pain
 A watch-tower whence its eyes might sweep, and see If any place for any hope might be Beyond the hells and heavens of sleep and strife,
 Or any light at all of any life
 Beyond the dense false darkness woven above,
 And could not, lacking grace to look on love,
 And in the third night's dying hour he spake, Seeing scarce the seals that bound the dayspring
 break

And scarce the daystar burn above the sea :
 " O Ganhardine, my brother true to me,
 I charge thee by those nights and days we knew
 No great while since in England, by the dew
 That bathed those nights with blessing, and the fire
 That thrilled those days as music thrills a lyre,
 Do now for me perchance the last good deed
 That ever love may crave or life may need Ere love lay life in ashes : take to thee
 My ship that shows aloft against the sea
 Carved on her stem the semblance of a swan,
 And ere the waves at even again wax wan
 Pass, if it may be, to my lady's land,
 And give this ring into her secret hand,
 And bid her think how hard on death I lie,
 And fain would look upon her face and die.
 But as a merchant's laden be the bark
 With royal ware for fraughtage, that King Mark
 May take for toll thereof some costly thing ;
 And when this gift finds grace before the king,
 Choose forth a cup, and put therein my ring

Where sureliest only of one it may be seen,
 And bid her handmaid bear it to the queen
 For earnest of thine homage : then shall she Fear, and take counsel privily with thee,
 To know what errand there is thine from me
 And what my need in secret of her sight.
 But make thee two sails, one like sea-foam white
 To spread for signal if thou bring her back,
 And if she come not see the sail be black,
 That I may know or ever thou take land
 If these my lips may die upon her hand
 Or hers may never more be mixed with mine."

And his heart quailed for grief in Ganhardine, Hearing ; and all his brother bade he swore Surely to do, and straight fare forth from shore.
 But the white-handed Iseult hearkenēg heard
 All, and her heart waxed hot, and every word
 Thereon seemed graven and printed in her thought
 As lines with fire and molten iron wrought.
 And hard within her heavy heart she cursed Both, and her life was turned to fiery thirst,
 And all her soul was hunger, and its breath
 Of hope and life a blast of raging death.
 For only in hope of evil was her life.
 So bitter burned within the unchilded wife
 A virgin lust for vengeance, and such hate Wrought in her now the fervent work of fate.

Then with a south-west wind the Swan set forth,
 And over wintering waters bore to north,
 And round the wild land's windy westward end
 Up the blown channel bade her bright way bend
 East on toward high Tintagel ; where at dark Landing, fair welcome found they of King Mark,

And Ganhardine with Brangwain as of old Spake, and she took the cup of chiselled gold Wherein lay secret Tristram's trothplight ring,
 And bare it un beholden of the king
 Even to her lady's hand, which hardly took A gift whereon a queen's eyes well might look,
 With grace forlorn of weary gentleness.
 But, seeing, her life leapt in her, keen to guess
 The secret of the symbol : and her face Flashed bright with blood whence all its grief-worn grace
 Took fire and kindled to the quivering hair.
 And in the dark soft hour of starriest air Thrilled through with sense of midnight, when the world
 Feels the wide wings of sleep about it furled,
 Down stole the queen, deep-muffled to her war
 Mute restless lips, and came where yet the Swan Swung fast at anchor : whence by starlight she Hoised snowbright sails, and took the glimmering
 sea.

But all the long night long more keen and sore
 His wound's grief waxed in Tristram evermore,
 And heavier always hung his heart asway
 Between dim fear and clouded hope of day.
 And still with face and heart at silent strife
 Beside him watched the maiden called his wife,
 Patient, and spake not save when scarce he spake, Murmuring with sense distraught and spirit awake
 Speech bitterer than the words thereof were sweet :
 And hatred thrilled her to the hands and feet,
 Listening : for alway back reiterate came
 The passionate faint burden of her name.

Nor ever through the labouring lips astir
Came any word of any thought of her.
But the soul wandering struggled and clung hard
Only to dreams of joy in Joyous Gard
Or wildwood nights beside the Cornish strand,
Or Merlin's holier sleep here hard at hand Wrapped round with deep soft spells in dim Broceliande.

And with such thirst as joy's drained wine-cup leaves
When fear to hope as hope to memory cleaves
His soul desired the dewy sense of leaves,
The soft green smell of thickets drenched with dawn.
The faint slot kindling on the fiery lawn
As day's first hour made keen the spirit again
That lured and spurred on quest his hound Hodain,
The breeze, the bloom, the splendour and the sound,
That stung like fire the hunter and the hound.
The pulse of wind, the passion of the sea,
The rapture of the woodland : then would he Sigh, and as one that fain would all be dead Heavily turn his heavy-laden head Back, and close eyes for comfort, finding none.
And fain he would have died or seen the sun,
Being sick at heart of darkness : yet afresh
Began the long strong strife of spirit and flesh
And branching pangs of thought whose branches bear
The bloodred fruit whose core is black, despair.
And the wind slackened and again grew great,
Palpitant as men's pulses palpitate
Between the flowing and ebbing tides of fate
That wash their lifelong waifs of weal and woe
Through night and light and twilight to and fro.
Now as a pulse of hope its heartbeat throbbed,
Now like one stricken shrank and sank and sobbed,

Then, yearning as with child of death, put forth
 A wail that filled the night up south and north With woful sound of waters : and he said,
 " So might the wind wail if the world were dead
 And its wings wandered over nought but sea.
 I would I knew she would not come to me,
 For surely she will come not : then should I,
 Once knowing I shall not look upon her, die.
 I knew not life could so long breathe such breath
 As I do. Nay, what grief were this, if death,
 The sole sure friend of whom the whole world saith
 He lies not, nor hath ever this been said,
 That death would heal not grief—if death were dead And all ways closed whence grief might pass with life ! "

Then softly spake his watching virgin wife
 Out of her heart, deep down below her breath :
 " Fear not but death shall come—and after death Judgment." And he that heard not answered her, Saying—" Ah, but one there was, if truth not err,
 For true men's trustful tongues have said it—one Whom these mine eyes knew living while the sun
 Looked yet upon him, and mine own ears heard
 The deep sweet sound once of his godlike word—
 Who sleeps and dies not, but with soft live breath Takes always all the deep delight of death,
 Through love's gift of a woman : but for me
 Love's hand is not the hand of Nimue, Love's word no still smooth murmur of the dove,
 No kiss of peace for me the kiss of love.
 Nor, whatsoe'er thy life's love ever give,
 Dear, shall it ever bid me sleep or live ;
 Nor from thy brows and lips and living breast
 As his from Nimue's shall my soul take rest ;

Not rest but unrest hath our long love given—
 Unrest on earth that wins not rest in heaven.
 What rest may we take ever? what have we Had ever more of peace than has the sea?
 Has not our life been as a wind that blows
 Through lonelier lands than rear the wild white rose
 That each year sees requickened, but for us
 Time once and twice hath here or there done thus
 And left the next year following empty and bare?
 What rose hath our last year's rose left for heir,
 What wine our last year's vintage? and to me
 More were one fleet forbidden sense of thee,
 One perfume of thy present grace, one thought
 Made truth one hour, ere all mine hours be nought,
 One very word, breath, look, sign, touch of hand,
 Than all the green leaves in Broceliande
 Full of sweet sound, full of sweet wind and sun;
 O God, thou knowest I would no more but one,
 I would no more but once more ere I die
 Find thus much mercy. Nay, but then were I Happier than he whom there thy grace hath found,
 For thine it must be, this that wraps him round,
 Thine only, albeit a fiend's force gave him birth,
 Thine that has given him heritage on earth
 Of slumber-sweet eternity to keep Fast in soft hold of everliving sleep.
 Happier were I, more sinful man, than he,
 Whom one love-worthier then than Nimue
 Should with a breath make blest among the dead."

And the wan wedded maiden answering said,
 Soft as hate speaks within itself apart:

"Surely ye shall not, ye that rent mine heart, Being one in 'sin, in punishment be twain."

And the great knight that heard not spake again

And sighed, but sweet thought of sweet things gone by

Kindled with fire of joy the very sigh

And touched it through with rapture : " Ay, this were

How much more than the sun and sunbright air,

How much more than the springtide, how much more

Than sweet strong sea-wind quickening wave and shore

With one divine pulse of continuous breath,

If she might kiss me with the kiss of death,

And make the light of life by death's look dim ! "

And the white wedded virgin answered him,

Inwardly, wan with hurt no herb makes whole :

" Yea surely, ye whose sin hath slain my soul,

Surely your own souls shall have peace in death

And pass with benediction in their breath

And blessing given of mine their sin hath slain."

And Tristram with sore yearning spake again,

Saying : " Yea, might this thing once be, how should I,

With all my soul made one thanksgiving, die,

And pass before what judgment-seat may be,

And cry, ' Lord, now do all thou wilt with me,

Take all thy fill of justice, work thy will ;

Though all thy heart of wrath have all its fill,

My heart of suffering shall endure, and say,

For that thou gavest me living yesterday

I bless thee though thou curse me.' Ay, and well

Might one cast down into the gulf of hell,

Remembering this, take heart and thank his fate—

That God, whose doom now scourges him with hate

Once, in the wild and whirling world above,

Bade mercy kiss his dying lips with love.

But if this come not, then he doth me wrong.
For what hath love done, all this long life long
That death should trample down his poor last prayer Who prays not for forgiveness? Though love were Sin dark as hate, have we not here that sinned Suffered? has that been less than wintry wind Wherewith our love lies blasted? O mine own,
O mine and no man's yet save mine alone,
Iseult! what ails thee that I lack so long
All of thee, all things thine for which I long?
For more than watersprings to shadeless sands,
More to me were the comfort of her hands
Touched once, and more than rays that set and rise
The glittering arrows of her glorious eyes,
More to my sense than fire to dead cold air
The wind and light and odour of her hair,
More to my soul than summer's to the south
The mute clear music of her amorous mouth,
And to my heart's heart more than heaven's great rest
The fullness of the fragrance of her breast.
Iseult, Iseult, what grace hath life to give
More than we twain have had of life, and live?
Iseult, Iseult, what grace may death not keep
As sweet for us to win of death, and sleep?
Come therefore, let us twain pass hence and try
If it be better not to live but die,
With love for lamp to light us out of life."

And on that word his wedded maiden wife,
Pale as the moon in star-forsaken skies
Ere the sun fill them, rose with set strange eyes
And gazed on him that saw not: and her heart
Heaved as a man's death-smitten with a dart
That smites him sleeping, warm and full of life:
So toward her lord that was not looked his wife,

His wife that was not : and her heart within Burnt bitter like an aftertaste of sin
 To one whose memory drinks and loathes the lee
 Of shame or sorrow deeper than the sea :
 And no fear touched him of her eyes above
 And ears that hoarded each poor word whence love
 Made sweet the broken music of his breath.
 "Iseult, my life that wast and art my death,
 My life in life that hast been, and that art Death in my death, sole wound that cleaves mine heart,

Mine heart that else, how spent soe'er, were whole,
 Breath of my spirit and anguish of my soul,
 How can this be that hence thou canst not hear,
 Being but by space divided ? One is here,
 But one of twain I looked at once to see ;
 Shall death keep time and thou not keep with me ?"

And the white married maiden laughed at heart,
 Hearing, and scarce with lips at all apart
 Spake, and as fire between them was her breath ;
 "Yea, now thou liest not : yea, for I am death."

By this might eyes that watched without behold
 Deep in the gulfs of aching air acold
 The roses of the dawning heaven that strew
 The low soft sun's way ere his power shine through And burn them up with fire : but far to west
 Had sunk the dead moon on the live sea's breast, Slain as with bitter fear to see the sun :
 And eastward was a strong bright wind begun
 Between the clouds and waters : and he said, Seeing hardly through dark dawn her doubtful head ;
 "Iseult ?" and like a death-bell faint and clear
 The virgin voice rang answer—"I am here."

And his heart sprang, and sank again : and she Spake, saying, " What would my knightly lord with me ? "

And Tristram : " Hath my lady watched all night
Beside me, and I knew not ? God requite
Her love for comfort shown a man nigh dead."

" Yea, God shall surely guerdon it," she said,
" Who hath kept me all my days through to this hour."

And Tristram : " God alone hath grace and power
To pay such grace toward one unworthier shown
Than ever durst, save only of God alone, Crave pardon yet and comfort, as I would Crave now for charity if my heart were good,
But as a coward's it fails me, even for shame."

Then seemed her face a pale funereal flame
That burns down slow by midnight, as she said :
" Speak, and albeit thy bidding spake me dead, God's love renounce me if it were not done."

And Tristram : " When the sea-line takes the sun
That now should be not far off sight from far,
Look if there come not with the morning star
My ship bound hither from the northward back,
And if the sail be white thereof or black."

And knowing the soothfast sense of his desire
So sore the heart within her raged like fire
She could not wring forth of her lips a word,
But bowing made sign how humbly had she heard.
And the sign given made light his heart ; and she Set her face hard against the yearning sea
Now all athirst with trembling trust of hope
To see the sudden gates of sunrise open ;
But thirstier yearned the heart whose fiery gate
Lay wide that vengeance might come in to hate.

And Tristram lay at thankful rest, and thought
 Now surely life nor death could grieve him aught, Since past was now life's anguish as a breath,
 And surely past the bitterness of death.
 For seeing he had found at these her hands this grace,
 It could not be but yet some breathing-space
 Might leave him life to look again on love's own face.
 "Since if for death's sake," in his heart he said,
 "Even she take pity upon me quick or dead, How shall not even from God's hand be compassion shed ?

For night bears dawn, how weak soe'er and wan,
 And sweet ere death, men fable, sings the swan.
 So seems the Swan my signal from the sea
 To sound a song that sweetens death to me
 Clasped round about with radiance from above
 Of dawn, and closer clasped on earth by love.
 Shall all things brighten, and this my sign be dark ? "

And high from heaven suddenly rang the lark, Triumphant ; and the far first refluent ray Filled all the hollow darkness full with day.
 And on the deep sky's verge a fluctuant light Gleamed, grew, shone, strengthened into perfect sight,

As bowed and dipped and rose again the sail's clear white.

And swift and steadfast as a sea-mew's wing
 It neared before the wind, as fain to bring Comfort, and shorten yet its narrowing track.
 And she that saw looked hardly toward him back, Saying, "Ay, the ship comes surely ; but her sail is black."

And fain he would have sprung upright, and seen,
 And spoken : but strong death struck sheer between,

And darkness closed as iron round his head :
And smitten through the heart lay Tristram dead.

And scarce the word had flown abroad, and wail
Risen, ere to shoreward came the snowbright sail,
And lightly forth leapt Ganhardine on land,
And led from ship with swift and reverent hand
Iseult : and round them up from all the crowd Broke the great wail for Tristram out aloud.
And ere her ear might hear her heart had heard,
Nor sought she sign for witness of the word ;
But came and stood above him newly dead,
And felt his death upon her : and her head Bowed, as to reach the spring that slakes all drouth ;
And their four lips became one silent mouth.

So came their hour on them that were in life
Tristram and Iseult : so from love and strife
The stroke of love's own hand felt last and best Gave them deliverance to perpetual rest.
So, crownless of the wreaths that life had wound,
They slept, with flower of tenderer comfort crowned ;
From bondage and the fear of time set free,
And all the yoke of space on earth and sea
Cast as a curb for ever : nor might now
Fear and desire bid soar their souls or bow,
Lift up their hearts or break them : doubt nor grief
More now might move them, dread nor disbelief
Touch them with shadowy cold or fiery sting,
Nor sleepless languor with its weary wing,
Nor harsh estrangement, born of time's vain breath,
Nor change, a darkness deeper far than death.

And round the sleep that fell around them then Earth lies not wrapped, nor records wrought of men Rise up for timeless token : but their sleep
 Hath round it like a raiment all the deep ;
 No change or gleam or gloom of sun and rain,
 But all time long the might of all the main Spread round them as round earth soft heaven is spread,

And peace more strong than death round all the dead.
 For death is of an hour, and after death
 Peace : nor for aught that fear or fancy saith, Nor even for very love's own sake, shall strife
 Perplex again that perfect peace with life.
 And if, as men that mourn may deem or dream, Rest haply here than there might sweeter seem,
 And sleep, that lays one hand on all, more good
 By some sweet grave's grace given of wold or wood Or clear high glen or sunbright wind-worn down
 Than where life thunders through the trampling town
 With daylong feet and nightlong overhead,
 What grave may cast such grace round any dead,
 What so sublime sweet sepulchre may be
 For all that life leaves mortal, as the sea ?
 And these, rapt forth perforce from earthly ground,
 These twain the deep sea guards, and girdles round
 Their sleep more deep than any sea's gulf lies,
 Though changeless with the change in shifting skies,
 Nor mutable with seasons : for the grave
 That held them once, being weaker than a wave,
 The waves long since have buried : though their tomb
 Was royal that by ruth's relenting doom
 Men gave them in Tintagel : for the word Took wing which thrilled all piteous hearts that heard

The word wherethrough their lifelong lot stood shown,

And when the long sealed springs of fate were known,

The blind bright innocence of lips that quaffed
Love, and the marvel of the mastering draught,
And all the fraughtage of the fateful bark,
Loud like a child upon them wept King Mark, Seeing round the sword's hilt which long since had fought

For Cornwall's love a scroll of writing wrought, A scripture writ of Tristram's hand, wherein Lay bare the sinless source of all their sin,
No choice of will, but chance and sorcerous art,
With prayer of him for pardon : and his heart
Was molten in him, wailing as he kissed Each with the kiss of kinship—" Had I wist, Ye had never sinned nor died thus, nor had I Borne in this doom that bade you sin and die
So sore a part of sorrow." And the king Built for their tomb a chapel bright like spring
With flower-soft wealth of branching tracery made Fair as the frondage each fleet year sees fade,
That should not fall till many a year were done.
There slept they wedded under moon and sun
And change of stars : and through the casements came

Midnight and noon girt round with shadow and flame

To illumine their grave or veil it : till at last
On these things too was doom as darkness cast :
For the strong sea hath swallowed wall and tower,
And where their limbs were laid in woful hour

For many a fathom gleams and moves and moans
The tide that sweeps above their coffined bones
In the wrecked chancel by the shivered shrine :
Nor where they sleep shall moon or sunlight shine
Nor man look down for ever : none shall say,
Here once, or here, Tristram and Iseult lay :
But peace they have that none may gain who live,
And rest about them that no love can give,
And over them, while death and life shall be,
The light and sound and darkness of the sea.

THE TALE OF BALEN

DEDICATION

TO MY MOTHER

LOVE that holds life and death in fee,
Deep as the clear unsounded sea
And sweet as life or death can be,
Lays here my hope, my heart, and me
 Before you, silent, in a song.
Since the old wild tale, made new, found grace,
When half sung through, before your face,
It needs must live a springtide space,
 While April suns grow strong.

March 24, 1896.

I

IN hawthorn-time the heart grows light,
 The world is sweet in sound and sight,
 Glad thoughts and birds take flower and flight,
 The heather kindles toward the light,
 The whin is frankincense and flame.
 And be it for strife or be it for love
 The falcon quickens as the dove
 When earth is touched from heaven above
 With joy that knows no name.

And glad in spirit and sad in soul
 With dream and doubt of days that roll
 As waves that race and find no goal
 Rode on by bush and brake and bole
 A northern child of earth and sea.
 The pride of life before him lay
 Radiant : the heavens of night and day Shone less than shone before his way
 His ways and days to be.

And all his life of blood and breath
 Sang out within him : time and death
 Were even as words a dreamer saith
 When sleep within him slackeneth,
 And light and life and spring were one.

The steed between his knees that sprang,
The moors and woods that shone and sang,
The hours wherethrough the spring's breath rang,
Seemed ageless as the sun.

But alway through the bounteous bloom
That earth gives thanks if heaven illume
His soul forefelt a shadow of doom,
His heart foreknew a gloomier gloom
Than closes all men's equal ways.
Albeit the spirit of life's light spring
With pride of heart upheld him, king
And lord of hours like snakes that sting
And nights that darken days.

And as the strong spring round him grew Stronger, and all blithe winds that blew
Blither, and flowers that flowered anew
More glad of sun and air and dew,
The shadow lightened on his soul
And brightened into death and died
Like winter, as the bloom waxed wide
From woodside on to riverside
And southward goal to goal.

Along the wandering ways of Tyne,
By beech and birch and thorn that shine
And laugh when life's requickening wine
Makes night and noon and dawn divine
And stirs in all the veins of spring,
And past the brightening banks of Tees,
He rode as one that breathes and sees
A sun more blithe, a merrier breeze,
A life that hails him king.

And down the softening south that knows
No more how glad the heather glows,
Nor how, when winter's clarion blows
Across the bright Northumbrian snows,
 Sea-mists from east and westward meet,
Past Avon senseless yet of song
And Thames that bore but swans in throng
He rode elate in heart and strong
 In trust of days as sweet.

So came he through to Camelot,
Glad, though for shame his heart waxed hot,
For hope within it withered not To see the shaft it dreamed of shot
 Fair toward the glimmering goal of fame.
And all King Arthur's knightliest there
Approved him knightly, swift to dare
And keen to bid their records bear
 Sir Balen's northern name.

Sir Balen of Northumberland
Gat grace before the king to stand
High as his heart was, and his hand
Wrought honour toward the strange north strand
 That sent him south so goodly a knight.
And envy, sick with sense of sin,
Began as poisonous herbs begin
To work in base men's blood, akin
 To men's of nobler might.

And even so fell it that his doom,
For all his bright life's kindling bloom
And light that took no thought for gloom, Fell as a breath from the opening tomb
 Full on him ere he wist or thought.

For once a churl of royal seed,
King Arthur's kinsman, faint in deed
And loud in word that knew not heed,
 Spake shame where shame was nought.

“ What doth one here in Camelot Whose birth was northward ? Wot we not As all his brethren borderers wot
How blind of heart, how keen and hot,
 The wild north lives and hates the south ?
Men of the narrowing march that knows
Nought save the strength of storms and snows,
What would these carles where knighthood blows
 A trump of kinglike mouth ? ”

Swift from his place leapt Balen, smote
The liar across his face, and wrote
His wrath in blood upon the bloat
Brute cheek that challenged shame for note How vile a king-born knave might be.
Forth sprang their swords, and Balen slew
The knave ere well one witness knew Of all that round them stood or drew
 What sight was there to see.

Then spake the great king's wrathful will
A doom for six dark months to fill Wherein close prison held him, still
And steadfast-souled for good or ill.
 But when those weary days lay dead
His lordliest knights and barons spake
Before the king for Balen's sake
Good speech and wise, of force to break
 The bonds that bowed his head.

II

IN linden-time the heart is high
 For pride of summer passing by
 With lordly laughter in her eye ;
 A heavy splendour in the sky
 Uplifts and bows it down again.
 The spring had waned from wood and wold
 Since Balen left his prison hold
 And lowlier-hearted than of old Beheld it wax and wane.

Though humble heart and poor array Kept not from spirit and sense away
 Their noble nature, nor could slay
 The pride they bade but pause and stay
 Till time should bring its trust to flower,
 Yet even for noble shame's sake, born
 Of hope that smiled on hate and scorn,
 He held him still as earth ere morn
 Ring forth her rapturous hour.

But even as earth when dawn takes flight
 And beats her wings of dewy light
 Full in the faltering face of night,
 His soul awoke to claim by right
 The life and death of deed and doom,

When once before the king there came
A maiden clad with grief and shame
And anguish burning her like flame
That feeds on flowers in bloom.

Beneath a royal mantle, fair
With goodly work of lustrous vair, Girt fast against her side she bare
A sword whose weight bade all men there Quail to behold her face again.
Save of a passing perfect knight
Not great alone in force and fight
It might not be for any might Drawn forth, and end her pain.

So said she : then King Arthur spake :
“ Albeit indeed I dare not take Such praise on me, for knighthood's sake
And love of ladies will I make Assay if better none may be.”
By girdle and by sheath he caught
The sheathed and girded sword, and wrought
With strength whose force availed him nought
To save and set her free.

Again she spake : “ No need to set
The might that man has matched not yet Against it ; he whose hand shall get Grace to release the bonds that fret
My bosom and my girdlestead
With little strain of strength or strife
Shall bring me as from death to life
And win to sister or to wife Fame that outlives men dead.”

Then bade the king his knights assay
This mystery that before him lay
And mocked his might of manhood. "Nay," Quoth she, "the man that takes away

 This burden laid on me must be
A knight of record clean and fair
As sunlight and the flowerful air,
By sire and mother born to bear
 A name to shame not me."

Then forth strode Launcelot, and laid
The mighty-moulded hand that made Strong knights reel back like birds affrayed
By storm that smote them as they strayed

 Against the hilt that yielded not.
Then Tristram, bright and sad and kind
As one that bore in noble mind
Love that made light as darkness blind,
 Fared even as Launcelot.

Then Lamoracke, with hardier cheer,
As one that held all hope and fear
Wherethrough the spirit of man may steer
In life and death less dark or dear, Laid hand thereon, and fared as they.
With half a smile his hand he drew Back from the spell-bound thing, and threw
With half a glance his heart anew Toward no such blameless may.

Between Iseult and Guenevere
Sat one of name as high to hear,
But darklier doomed than they whose cheer
Foreshowed not yet the deadlier year
 That bids the queenliest head bow down,

The queen Morgause of Orkney : they
With scarce a flash of the eye could say
The very word of dawn, when day
Gives earth and heaven their crown.

But bright and dark as night or noon
And lowering as a storm-flushed moon
When clouds and thwarting winds distune
The music of the midnight, soon
To die from darkening star to star
And leave a silence in the skies
That yearns till dawn find voice and rise, Shone strange as fate Morgause, with eyes
That dwelt on days afar.

A glance that shot on Lamoracke
As from a storm-cloud bright and black Fire swift and blind as death's own track Turned fleet as flame on Arthur back
From him whose hand forsook the hilt :
And one in blood and one in sin
Their hearts caught fire of pain within
And knew no goal for them to win
But death that guerdons guilt.

Then Gawain, sweet of soul and gay
As April ere he dreams of May,
Strove, and prevailed not ; then Sir Kay,
The snake-souled envier, vile as they
That fawn and foam and lurk and lie,
Sire of the bastard band whose brood
Was alway found at servile feud
With honour, faint and false and lewd, Scarce grasped and put it by.

Then wept for woe the damsel bound
With iron and with anguish round,
That none to help her grief was found
Or loose the inextricably inwound

Grim curse that girt her life with grief
And made a burden of her breath,
Harsh as the bitterness of death.
Then spake the king as one that saith Words bitterer even than brief.

“Methought the wide round world could bring Before the face of queen or king
No knights more fit for fame to sing
Than fill this full Round Table's ring

With honour higher than pride of place :
But now my heart is wrung to know,
Damsel, that none whom fame can show Finds grace to heal or help thy woe :
God gives them not the grace.”

Then from the lowliest place thereby,
With heart-enkindled cheek and eye
Most like the star and kindling sky
That say the sundawn's hour is high

When rapture trembles through the sea,
Strode Balen in his poor array Forth, and took heart of grace to pray
The damsel suffer even him to assay
His power to set her free.

Nay, how should he avail, she said,
Averse with scorn-averted head,
Where these availed not ? none had sped
Of all these mightier men that led
The lists wherein he might not ride,

And how should less men speed ? But he,
With lordlier pride of courtesy,
Put forth his hand and set her free
From pain and humbled pride.

But on the sword he gazed elate
With hope set higher than fear or fate,
Or doubt of darkling days in wait ;
And when her thankful praise waxed great
And craved of him the sword again,
He would not give it. " Nay, for mine
It is till force may make it thine."
A smile that shone as death may shine
Spake toward him bale and bane.

Strange lightning flickered from her eyes.
" Gentle and good in knightliest guise
And meet for quest of strange emprise
Thou hast here approved thee ; yet not wise
To keep the sword from me, I wis.
For with it thou shalt surely slay
Of all that look upon the day
The man best loved of thee, and lay Thine own life down for his."

" What chance God sends, that chance I take,"
He said. Then soft and still she spake ;
" I would but for thine only sake
Have back the sword of thee, and break
The links of doom that bind thee round.
But seeing thou wilt not have it so,
My heart for thine is wrung with woe."
" God's will," quoth he, " it is, we know, .
Wherewith our lives are bound."

“ Repent it must thou soon,” she said,
“ Who wouldst not hear the rede I read
For thine and not for my sake, sped
In vain as waters heavenward shed

From springs that falter and depart Earthward. God bids not thee believe Truth, and the web thy life must weave
For even this sword to close and cleave Hangs heavy round my heart.”

So passed she mourning forth. But he,
With heart of springing hope set free
As birds that breast and brave the sea,
Bade horse and arms and armour be Made straightway ready toward the fray.

Nor even might Arthur's royal prayer
Withhold him, but with frank and fair Thanksgiving and leave-taking there
He turned him thence away.

III

As the east wind, when the morning's breast
Gleams like a bird's that leaves the nest,
A fledgeling halcyon's bound on quest,
Drives wave on wave on wave to west
 Till all the sea be life and light,
So time's mute breath, that brings to bloom
All flowers that strew the dead spring's tomb,
Drives day on day on day to doom
 Till all man's day be night.

Brief as the breaking of a wave
That hurls on man his thunderous grave
Ere fear find breath to cry or crave
Life that no chance may spare or save,
 The light of joy and glory shone
Even as in dreams where death seems dead
Round Balen's hope-exalted head,
Shone, passed, and lightened as it fled
 The shadow of doom thereon.

For as he bound him thence to fare,
Before the stately presence there
A lady like a windflower fair,
Girt on with raiment strange and rare
 That rippled whispering round her, came.

Her clear cold eyes, all glassy grey,
Seemed lit not with the light of day
But touched with gleams that waned away
Of quelled and fading flame.

Before the king she bowed and spake :
“ King, for thine old faith’s plighted sake
To me the lady of the lake,
I come in trust of thee to take The guerdon of the gift I gave, Thy sword Excalibur.” And he Made answer : “ Be it whate’er it be,
If mine to give, I give it thee,
Nor need is thine to crave.”

As when a gleam of wicked light Turns half a low-lying water bright
That moans beneath the shivering night
With sense of evil sound and sight
And whispering witchcraft’s bated breath
Her wan face quickened as she said :
“ This knight that won the sword—his head
I crave or hers that brought it. Dead, Let these be one in death.”

“ Not with mine honour this may be ;
Ask all save this thou wilt,” quoth he,
“ And have thy full desire.” But she Made answer : “ Nought will I of thee, Nought if not this.” Then Balen turned,
And saw the sorceress hard beside
By whose fell craft his mother died :
Three years he had sought her; and here espied
His heart against her yearned.

" Ill be thou met," he said, " whose ire
Would slake with blood thy soul's desire :
By thee my mother died in fire ;
Die thou by me a death less dire."

Sharp flashed his sword forth, fleet as flame,
And shore away her sorcerous head.

" Alas for shame," the high king said,
" That one found once my friend lies dead ;
Alas for all our shame !

" Thou shouldst have here forborne her ; yea,
Were all the wrongs that bid men slay Thine, heaped too high for wrath to weigh,
Not here before my face to-day

Was thine the right to wreak thy wrong."
Still stood he then as one that found
His rose of hope by storm discrowned,
And all the joy that girt him round
Brief as a broken song.

Yet ere he passed he turned and spake :
" King, only for thy nobler sake
Than aught of power man's power may take Or pride of place that pride may break

I bid the lordlier man in thee,
That lives within the king, give ear.
This justice done before thee here
On one that hell's own heart holds dear, Needs might not this but be.

" Albeit, for all that pride would prove,
My heart be wrung to lose thy love,
It yet repents me not hereof :
So many an eagle and many a dove,
So many a knight, so many a may,

This water-snake of poisonous tongue
To death by words and wiles hath stung,
That her their slayer, from hell's lake sprung,
I did not ill to slay."

"Yea," said the king, "too high of heart
To stand before a king thou art ;
Yet irks it me to bid thee part
And take thy penance for thy part,
That God may put upon thy pride."
Then Balen took the severed head
And toward his hostry turned and sped
As one that knew not quick from dead
Nor good from evil tide.

He bade his squire before him stand
And take that sanguine spoil in hand
And bear it far by shore and strand
Till all in glad Northumberland
That loved him, seeing it, all might know
His deadliest foe was dead, and hear
How free from prison as from fear
He dwelt in trust of the answering year
To bring him weal for woe.

"And tell them, now I take my way
To meet in battle, if I may,
King Ryons of North Wales, and slay
That king of kernes whose fiery sway Doth all the marches dire despite That serve King Arthur : so shall he Again be gracious lord to me,
And I that leave thee meet with thee
Once more in Arthur's sight."

So spake he ere they parted, nor Took shame or fear to counsellor,
As one whom none laid ambush for ;
And wist not how Sir Launceor,

 The wild king's son of Ireland, hot
And high in wrath to know that one Stood higher in fame before the sun,
Even Balen, since the sword was won,
 Drew nigh from Camelot.

For thence, in heat of hate and pride,
As one that man might bid not bide,
He craved the high king's grace to ride,
On quest of Balen far and wide

 And wreak the wrong his wrath had wrought
" Yea," Arthur said, " for such despite Was done me never in my sight
As this thine hand shall now requite
 If trust avail us aught."

But ere he passed, in eager mood
To feed his hate with bitter food,
Before the king's face Merlin stood
And heard his tale of ill and good,
 Of Balen, and the sword achieved,
And whence it smote as heaven's red ire
That direful dame of doom as dire ;
And how the king's wrath turned to fire
 The grief wherewith he grieved.

And darkening as he gave it ear,
The still face of the sacred seer
Waxed wan with wrath and not with fear,
And ever changed its cloudier cheer
 Till all his face was very night.

“ This damosel that brought the sword,”
He said, “ before the king my lord,
And all these knights about his board,
Hath done them all despite.

“ The falsest damosel she is That works men ill on earth, I wis,
And all her mind is toward but this,
To kill as with a lying kiss
Truth, and the life of noble trust.
A brother hath she,—see but now
The flame of shame that brands her brow !—
A true man, pure as faith’s own vow,
Whose honour knows not rust.

“ This good knight found within her bower
A felon and her paramour,
And slew him in his shameful hour,
As right gave might and righteous power
To hands that wreaked so foul a wrong.
Then, for the hate her heart put on,
She sought by ways where death had gone
The lady Lyle of Avalon,
Whose crafts are strange and strong.

“ The sorceress, one with her in thought,
Gave her that sword of magic, wrought
By charms whereof sweet heaven sees nought,
That hither girt on her she brought
To be by doom her brother’s bane.
And grief it is to think how he
That won it, being of heart so free
And perfect found in chivalry,
Shall by that sword lie slain.

“Great pity it is and strange despite That one whose eyes are stars to light
Honour, and shine as heaven’s own height,
Should perish, being the goodliest knight
That even the all-glorious north has borne.
Nor shall my lord the king behold
A lordlier friend of mightier mould
Than Balen, though his tale be told Ere noon fulfil his morn.”

IV

As morning hears before it run
 The music of the mounting sun,
 And laughs to watch his trophies won
 From darkness, and her hosts undone,
 And all the night become a breath,
 Nor dreams that fear should hear and flee
 The summer menace of the sea,
 So hears our hope what life may be,
 And knows it not for death.

Each day that slays its hours and dies
 Weeps, laughs, and lightens on our eyes,
 And sees and hears not : smiles and sighs
 As flowers ephemeral fall and rise
 About its birth, about its way,
 And pass as love and sorrow pass,
 As shadows flashing down a glass,
 As dew-flowers blowing in flowerless grass,
 As hope from yesterday.

The blossom of the sunny dew
 That now the stronger sun strikes through Fades off the blade whereon it blew
 No fleetlier than the flowers that grew
 On hope's green stem in life's fierce light.

Nor might the glory soon to sit Awhile on Balen's crest alit
Outshine the shadow of doom on it
Or stay death's wings from flight.

Dawn on a golden moorland side
By holt and heath saw Balen ride
And Launceor after, pricked with pride
And stung with spurring envy : wide
And far he had ridden athwart strange lands
And sought amiss the man he found
And cried on, till the stormy sound Rang as a rallying trumpet round
That fires men's hearts and hands.

Abide he bade him : nor was need
To bid when Balen wheeled his steed Fiercely, less fain by word than deed
To bid his envier evil speed,
And cried, "What wilt thou with me?" Loud Rang Launceor's vehement answer : "Knight, To avenge on thee the dire despite Thou hast done us all in Arthur's sight
I stand toward Arthur vowed."

"Ay?" Balen said : "albeit I see
I needs must deal in strife with thee,
Light is the wyte thou layest on me ;
For her I slew and sinned not, she Was dire in all men's eyes as death,
Or none were lother found than I
By me to bid a woman die :
As lief were loyal men to lie,
Or scorn what honour saith."

As the arched wave's weight against the reef
Hurls, and is hurled back like a leaf
Storm-shrivelled, and its rage of grief
Speaks all the loud broad sea in brief,

And quells the hearkening hearts of men,
Or as the crash of overfalls
Down under blue smooth water brawls
Like jarring steel on ruining walls,
So rang their meeting then.

As wave on wave shocks, and confounds
The bounding bulk whereon it bounds
And breaks and shattering seaward sounds
As crying of the old sea's wolves and hounds
That moan and ravin and rage and wail,
So steed on steed encountering sheer Shocked, and the strength of Launceor's spear Shivered on Balen's shield, and fear
Bade hope within him quail.

But Balen's spear through Launceor's shield
Clove as a ploughshare cleaves the field
And pierced the hauberk triple-steeled,
That horse with horseman stricken reeled,
And as a storm-breached rock falls, fell,
And Balen turned his horse again
And wist not yet his foe lay slain,
And saw him dead that sought his bane
And wrought and fared not well.

Suddenly, while he gazed and stood,
And mused in many-minded mood
If life or death were evil or good,
Forth of a covert of a wood
That skirted half the moorland lea

Fast rode a maiden flower-like white
Full toward that fair wild place of fight, Anhungered of the woful sight
 God gave her there to see.

And seeing the man there fallen and dead,
She cried against the sun that shed Light on the living world, and said, “ O Balen, slayer whose hand is red,
 Two bodies and one heart thou hast slain,
Two hearts within one body : aye,
Two souls thou hast lost ; by thee they die,
Cast out of sight of earth and sky
 And all that made them fain.”

And from the dead his sword she caught,
And fell in trance that wist of nought,
Swooning : but softly Balen sought
To win from her the sword she thought
 To die on, dying by Launceor's side.
Again her wakening wail outbroke
As wildly, sword in hand, she woke
And struck one swift and bitter stroke
 That healed her, and she died.

And sorrowing for their strange love's sake
Rode Balen forth by lawn and lake,
By moor and moss and briar and brake,
And in his heart their sorrow spake
 Whose lips were dumb as death, and said
Mute words of presage blind and vain
As rain-stars blurred and marred by rain
To wanderers on a moonless main
 Where night and day seem dead.

Then toward a sunbright wildwood side
He looked and saw beneath it ride
A knight whose arms afar espied
By note of name and proof of pride

Bare witness of his brother born,
His brother Balan, hard at hand,
Twin flower of bright Northumberland,
Twin sea-bird of their loud sea-strand,
Twin song-bird of their morn.

Ah then from Balen passed away
All dread of night, all doubt of day,
All care what life or death might say,
All thought of all worse months than May :

Only the might of joy in love
Brake forth within him as a fire,
And deep delight in deep desire
Of far-flown days whose full-souled quire Rang round from the air above.

From choral earth and quiring air
Rang memories winged like songs that bear
Sweet gifts for spirit and sense to share :
For no man's life knows love more fair

And fruitful of memorial things
Than this the deep dear love that breaks
With sense of life on life, and makes
The sundawn sunnier as it wakes
Where morning round it rings.

"O brother, O my brother !" cried
Each upon each, and cast aside
Their helms unbraced that might not hide
From sight of memory single-eyed
The likeness graven of face and face,

And kissed and wept upon each other
For joy and pity of either brother,
And love engrafted by sire and mother,
God's natural gift of grace.

And each with each took counsel meet
For comfort, making sorrow sweet,
And grief a goodly thing to greet :
And word from word leapt light and fleet
Till all the venturous tale was told,
And how in Balen's hope it lay
To meet the wild Welsh king and slay,
And win from Arthur back for pay
The grace he gave of old.

"And thither wilt not thou with me And win as great a grace for thee?"
"That will I well," quoth Balan : "we Will cleave together, bound and free,
As brethren should, being twain and one."
But ere they parted thence there came
A creature withered as with flame,
A dwarf mismade in nature's shame,
Between them and the sun.

And riding fleet as fire may glide
He found the dead lie side by side,
And wailed and rent his hair and cried,
"Who hath done this deed?" And Balen eyed
The strange thing loathfully, and said,
"The knight I slew, who found him fain
And keen to slay me : seeing him slain,
The maid I sought to save in vain,
Self-stricken, here lies dead.

“Sore grief was mine to see her die,
And for her true faith’s sake shall I Love, and with love of heart more high,
All women better till I die.”

“Alas,” the dwarf said, “ill for thee
In evil hour this deed was done :
For now the quest shall be begun Against thee, from the dawning sun
Even to the sunset sea.

“From shore to mountain, dawn to night,
The kinsfolk of this great dead knight
Will chase thee to thy death.” A light
Of swift blithe scorn flashed answer bright As fire from Balen’s eye. “For that, Small fear shall fret my heart,” quoth he :
“But that my lord the king should be
For this dead man’s sake wroth with me,
Weep might it well thereat.”

Then murmuring passed the dwarf away,
And toward the knights in fair array Came riding eastward up the way
From where the flower-soft lowlands lay
A king whose name the sweet south-west
Held high in honour, and the land
That bowed beneath his gentle hand
Wore on its wild bright northern strand
Tintagel for a crest.

And Balen hailed with homage due King Mark of Cornwall, when he knew
The pennon that before him flew :
And for those lovers dead and true
The king made moan to hear their doom ;

And for their sorrow's sake he sware
To seek in all the marches there
The church that man might find most fair
And build therein their tomb.

v

As thought from thought takes wing and flies,
 As month on month with sunlit eyes
 Tramples and triumphs in its rise,
 As wave smites wave to death and dies,
 So chance on hurtling chance like steel
 Strikes, flashes, and is quenched, ere fear
 Can whisper hope, or hope can hear,
 If sorrow or joy be far or near
 For time to hurt or heal.

Swift as a shadow and strange as light
 That cleaves in twain the shadow of night
 Before the wide-winged word takes flight
 That thunder speaks to depth and height
 And quells the quiet hour with sound,
 There came before King Mark and stood Between the moorside and the wood
 The man whose word God's will made good,
 Nor guile was in it found.

And Merlin said to Balen : " Lo,
 Thou hast wrought thyself a grievous woe
 To let this lady die, and know
 Thou mightst have stayed her deadly blow."
 And Balen answered him and said,

"Nay, by my truth to faith, not I,
So fiercely fain she was to die ;
Ere well her sword had flashed on high,
Self-slain she lay there dead."

Again and sadly Merlin spake :

"My heart is wrung for this deed's sake,
To know thee therefore doomed to take Upon thine hand a curse, and make Three kingdoms pine through twelve years'
change,
In want and woe : for thou shalt smite
The man most noble and truest knight
That looks upon the live world's light
A dolorous stroke and strange.

"And not till years shall round their goal May this man's wound thou hast given be whole."
And Balen, stricken through the soul
By dark-winged words of doom and dole, Made answer : " If I wist it were No lie but sooth thou sayest of me,
Then even to make a liar of thee
Would I too slay myself, and see How death bids dead men fare."

And Merlin took his leave and passed
And was not : and the shadow as fast
Went with him that his word had cast,
Too fleet for thought thereof to last :

And there those brethren bade King Mark
Farewell : but fain would Mark have known
The strong knight's name who had overthrown
The pride of Launceor, when it shone Bright as it now lay dark.

And Balan for his brother spake, Saying : " Sir, albeit him list not break
The seal of secret time, nor shake Night off him ere his morning wake,

By these two swords he is girt withal
May men that praise him, knights and lords,
Call him the knight that bears two swords,
And all the praise his fame accords
Make answer when they call."

So parted they toward eventide ;
And tender twilight, heavy-eyed,
Saw deep down glimmering woodlands ride
Balen and Balan side by side,

Till where the leaves grew dense and dim Again they spied from far draw near
The presence of the sacred seer,
But so disguised and strange of cheer
That seeing they knew not him.

" Now whither ride ye," Merlin said,
" Through shadows that the sun strikes red, Ere night be born or day be dead ? "
But they, for doubt half touched with dread,
Would say not where their goal might lie.
" And thou," said Balen, " what art thou,
To walk with shrouded eye and brow ? "
He said : " Me lists not show thee now
By name what man am I."

" Ill seen is this of thee," said they,
" That thou art true in word and way
Nor fain to fear the face of day,
Who wilt not as a true man say
The name it shames not him to bear."

He answered : " Be it or be it not so,
Yet why ye ride this way I know,
To meet King Ryons as a foe,
And how your hope shall fare.

" Well, if ye hearken toward my rede, Ill, if ye hear not, shall ye speed."
" Ah, now," they cried, " thou art ours at need.
What Merlin saith we are fain to heed."

" Great worship shall ye win," said he,
" And look that ye do knightly now,
For great shall be your need, I trow."
And Balen smiled : " By knighthood's vow,
The best we may will we."

Then Merlin bade them turn and take Rest, for their good steeds' weary sake,
Between the highway and the brake,
Till starry midnight bade them wake :
Then " Rise," he said, " the king is nigh,
Who hath stolen from all his host away
With threescore horse in armed array,
The goodliest knights that bear his sway
And hold his kingdom high.

" And twenty ride of them before
To bear his errand, ere the door
Turn of the night, sealed fast no more,
And sundawn bid the stars wax hoar ;
For by the starshine of to-night
He seeks a leman where she waits
His coming, dark and swift as fate's,
And hearkens toward the unopening gates
That yield not him to sight."

Then through the glimmering gloom around
A shadowy sense of light and sound
Made, ere the proof thereof were found,
The brave blithe hearts within them bound,
 And "Where," quoth Balen, "rides the king?"
But softer spake the seer: "Abide,
Till hither toward your spears he ride,
Where all the narrowing woodland side Grows dense with boughs that cling."

There in that straitening way they met
The wild Welsh host against them set,
And smote their strong king down, ere yet
His hurrying horde of spears might get Fierce vantage of them. Then the fight Grew great and joyous as it grew,
For left and right those brethren slew,
Till all the lawn waxed red with dew
 More deep than dews of night.

And ere the full fierce tale was read
Full forty lay before them dead,
And fast the hurtling remnant fled
And wist not whither fear had led:
 And toward the king they went again,
And would have slain him: but he bowed Before them, crying in fear aloud
For grace they gave him, seeing the proud Wild king brought lowest of men.

And ere the wildwood leaves were stirred
With song or wing of wakening bird,
In Camelot was Merlin's word
With joy in joyous wonder heard
 That told of Arthur's bitterest foe

Diskingdomed and discomfited.

"By whom?" the high king smiled and said.

He answered: "Ere the dawn wax red,

To-morrow bids you know.

"Two knights whose heart and hope are one

And fain to win your grace have done

This work whereby if grace be won

Their hearts shall hail the enkindling sun

With joy more keen and deep than day."

And ere the sundawn drank the dew

Those brethren with their prisoner drew

To the outer guard they gave him to

And passed again away.

And Arthur came as toward his guest

To greet his foe, and bade him rest

As one returned from nobler quest

And welcome from the stormbright west,

But by what chance he fain would hear.

"The chance was hard and strange, sir king,"

Quoth Ryons, bowed in thanksgiving.

"Who won you?" Arthur said: "the thing

Is worth a warrior's ear."

The wild king flushed with pride and shame,

Answering: "I know not either name

Of those that there against us came

And withered all our strength like flame:

The knight that bears two swords is one,

And one his brother: not on earth

May men meet men of knightlier worth

Nor mightier born of mortal birth

That hail the sovereign sun."

And Arthur said : " I know them not ;
But much am I for this, God wot, Beholden to them : Launcelot
Nor Tristram, when the war waxed hot
 Along the marches east and west, Wrought ever nobler work than this."
" Ah," Merlin said, " sore pity it is
And strange mischance of doom, I wis,
 That death should mar their quest.

" Balen, the perfect knight that won
The sword whose name is malison,
And made his deed his doom, is one :
Nor hath his brother Balan done
 Less royal service : not on earth
Lives there a nobler knight, more strong
Of soul to win men's praise in song,
Albeit the light abide not long
 That lightened round his birth.

" Yea, and of all sad things I know
The heaviest and the highest in woe
Is this, the doom whose date brings low Too soon in timeless overthrow
 A head so high, a hope so sure.
The greatest moan for any knight
That ever won fair fame in fight Shall be for Balen, seeing his might Must now not long endure."

" Alas," King Arthur said, " he hath shown Such love to me-ward that the moan
Made of him should be mine alone
Above all other, knowing it known
 I have ill deserved it of him." " Nay,"

Said Merlin, " he shall do for you
Much more, when time shall be anew,
Than time hath given him chance to do
Or hope may think to say.

" But now must be your powers purveyed
To meet, ere noon of morn be made
To-morrow, all the host arrayed
Of this wild foe's wild brother, laid Around against you : see to it well,
For now I part from you." And soon,
When sundawn slew the withering moon,
Two hosts were met to win the boon
 Whose tale is death's to tell.

A lordly tale of knights and lords
For death to tell by count of swords
When war's wild harp in all its chords
Rang royal triumph, and the hordes
 Of hurtling toemen rocked and reeled
As waves wind-thwarted on the sea,
Was told of all that there might be,
Till scarce might battle hear or see
 The fortune of the field.

And many a knight won fame that day
When even the serpent soul of Kay
Was kindled toward the fiery play
As might a lion's be for prey,
 And won him fame that might not die
With passing of his rancorous breath
But clung about his life and death
As fire that speaks in cloud, and saith
 What strong men hear and fly.

And glorious works were Arthur's there,
That lit the battle-darkened air :

But when they saw before them fare
Like stars of storm the knight that bare

Two swords about him girt for fray, Balén, and Balan with him, then Strong wonder smote the souls of men
If heaven's own host or hell's deep den
Had sent them forth to slay.

So keen they rode across the fight,
So sharp they smote to left and right,
And made of hurtling darkness light
With lightning of their swords, till flight

And fear before them flew like flame,
That Arthur's self had never known,
He said, since first his blast was blown,
Such lords of war as these alone
That whence he knew not came.

But while the fire of war waxed hot
The wild king hearkened, hearing not,
Through storm of spears and arrow-shot,
For succour toward him from King Lot
And all his host of sea-born men,
Strong as the strong storm-baffling bird
Whose cry round Orkney's headlands heard
Is as the sea's own sovereign word
That mocks our mortal ken.

For Merlin's craft of prophecy,
Who wist that one of twain must die,
Put might in him to say thereby
Which head should lose its crown, and lie Stricken, though loth he were to know

That either life should wane and fail ;
Yet most might Arthur's love avail,
And still with subtly tempered tale
His wile held fast the foe.

With woven words of magic might Wherein the subtle shadow and light
Changed hope and fear till fear took flight,
He stayed King Lot's fierce lust of fight Till all the wild Welsh war was driven
As foam before the wind that wakes
With the all-awakening sun, and breaks Strong ships that rue the mirth it makes
When grace to slay is given.

And ever hotter lit and higher,
As fire that meets encountering fire,
Waxed in King Lot his keen desire
To bid revenge within him tire
On Arthur's ravaged fame and life :
Across the waves of war between Floated and flashed, unseen and seen,
The lustrous likeness of the queen
Whom shame had sealed his wife.

But when the woful word was brought
That while he tarried, doubting nought,
The hope was lost whose goal he sought
And all the fight he yearned for fought,
His heart was rent for grief and shame,
And half his hope was set on flight
Till word was given him of a knight
Who said : " They are weary and worn with fight,
And we more fresh than flame."

And bright and dark as night and day
Ere either find the unopening way Clear, and forego the unaltering sway,
The sad king's face shone, frowning: "Yea,
 I would that every knight of mine
Would do his part as I shall do,"
He said, "till death or life anew Shall judge between us as is due
 With wiser doom than thine."

Then thundered all the awakening field
With crash of hosts that clashed and reeled,
Banner to banner, shield to shield,
And spear to splintering spear-shaft, steeled
 As heart against high heart of man,
As hope against high hope of knight
To pluck the crest and crown of fight
From war's clenched hand by storm's wild light,
 For blessing given or ban.

All hearts of hearkening men that heard
The ban twin-born with blessing, stirred
Like springtide waters, knew the word Whereby the steeds of storm are spurred
 With ravenous rapture to destroy,
And laughed for love of battle, pierced
With passion of tempestuous thirst
And hungering hope to assuage it first
 With draughts of stormy joy.

But sheer ahead of the iron tide
That rocked and roared from side to side
Rode as the lightning's lord might ride
King Lot, whose heart was set to abide
 All peril of the raging hour,

And all his host of warrior's born
Where lands by warring seas are worn
Was only by his hands upborne
 Who gave them pride and power.

But as the sea's hand smites the shore
And shatters all the strengths that bore
The ravage earth may bear no more,
So smote the hand of Pellinore Charging, a knight of Arthur's chief,
And clove his strong steed's neck in twain,
And smote him sheer through brow and brain,
Falling : and there King Lot lay slain,
 And knew not wrath or grief.

And all the host of Orkney fled,
And many a mother's son lay dead :
But when they raised the stricken head
Whence pride and power and shame were fled
 And rage and anguish now cast out,
And bore it toward a kingly tomb,
The wife whose love had wrought his doom
Came thither, fair as morning's bloom
 And dark as twilight's doubt.

And there her four strong sons and his,
Gawain and Gareth, Gaherys
And Agravain, whose sword's sharp kiss
With sound of hell's own serpent's hiss
 Should one day turn her life to death, Stood mourning with her : but by these Seeing Mordred as a seer that sees,
Anguish of terror bent her knees
 And caught her shuddering breath.

The splendour of her sovereign eyes
Flashed darkness deeper than the skies
Feel or fear when the sunset dies
On his that felt as midnight rise
 Their doom upon them, there undone
By faith in fear ere thought could yield
A shadowy sense of days revealed,
The ravin of the final field,
 The terror of their son.

For Arthur's, as they caught the light
That sought and durst not seek his sight, Darkened, and all his spirit's might Withered within him even as night
 Withers when sunrise thrills the sea.
But Mordred's lightened as with fire
That smote his mother and his sire
With darkling doom and deep desire That bade its darkness be.

And heavier on their hearts the weight
Sank of the fear that brings forth fate,
The bitter doubt whose womb is great
With all the grief and love and hate
 That turn to fire men's days on earth.
And glorious was the funeral made,
And dark the deepening dread that swayed
Their darkening souls whose light grew shade
 With sense of death in birth.

VI

IN autumn, when the wind and sea
 Rejoice to live and laugh to be,
 And scarce the blast that curbs the tree
 And bids before it quail and flee

 The fiery foliage, where its brand
 Is radiant as the seal of spring,
 Sounds less delight, and waves a wing
 Less lustrous, life's loud thanksgiving
 Puts life in sea and land.

High hope in Balen's heart alight Laughed, as from all that clamorous fight
 He passed and sought not Arthur's sight,
 Who fain had found his kingliest knight

 And made amend for Balen's wrong.
 But Merlin gave his soul to see Fate, rising as a shoreward sea,
 And all the sorrow that should be Ere hope or fear thought long.

“O where are they whose hands upbore
 My battle,” Arthur said, “before
 The wild Welsh host's wide rage and roar?
 Balen and Balan, Pellinore,
 Where are they?” Merlin answered him

" Balen shall be not long away
From sight of you, but night nor day Shall bring his brother back to say If life burn bright or dim."

" Now, by my faith," said Arthur then,
" Two marvellous knights are they, whose ken Toward battle makes the twain as ten,
And Balen most of all born men
Passeth of prowess all I know
Or ever found or sought to see :
Would God he would abide with me
To face the times foretold of thee
And all the latter woe."

For there had Merlin shown the king
The doom that songs unborn should sing,
The gifts that time should rise and bring
Of blithe and bitter days to spring
As weeds and flowers against the sun.
And on the king for fear's sake fell Sickness, and sorrow deep as hell,
Nor even might sleep bid fear farewell
If grace to sleep were won.

Down in a meadow green and still He bade the folk that wrought his will Pitch his pavilion, where the chill
Soft night would let not rest fulfil
His heart wherein dark fears lay deep.
And sharp against his hearing cast Came a sound as of horsehoofs fast
Passing, that ere their sound were past Aroused him as from sleep.

And forth he looked along the grass
And saw before his portal pass
A knight that wailed aloud, " Alas
That life should find this dolorous pass
And find no shield from doom and dole ! "
And hearing all his moan, " Abide, Fair sir," the king arose and cried,
" And say what sorrow bids you ride
So sorrowful of soul."

" My hurt may no man heal, God wot,
And help of man may speed me not,"
The sad knight said, " nor change my lot."
And toward the castle of Melyot

Whose towers arose a league away
He passed forth sorrowing : and anon,
Ere well the woful sight were gone,
Came Balen down the meads that shone,
Strong, bright, and brave as day.

And seeing the king there stand, the knight
Drew rein before his face to alight
In reverence made for love's sake bright
With joy that set his face alight

As theirs who see, alive, above,
The sovereign of their souls, whose name
To them is even as love's own flame
To enkindle hope that heeds not fame
And knows no lord but love.

And Arthur smiled on him, and said,
" Right welcome be thou : by my head,
I would not wish me better sped.
For even but now there came and fled
Before me like a cloud that flies

A knight that made most heavy cheer,
I know not wherefore ; nor may fear
Or pity give my heart to hear
Or lighten on mine eyes.

“ But even for fear’s and pity’s sake
Fain were I thou shouldst overtake
And fetch again this knight that spake
No word of answering grace to make Reply to mine that hailed him : thou,
By force or by goodwill, shalt bring His face before me.” “ Yea, my king,” Quoth Balen, “ and a greater thing
Were less than is my vow.

“ I would the task required and heard
Were heavier than your sovereign word Hath laid on me : ” and thence he spurred Elate at heart as youth, and stirred
With hope as blithe as fires a boy :
And many a mile he rode, and found Far in a forest’s glimmering bound
The man he sought afar around
And seeing took fire for joy.

And with him went a maiden, fair
As flowers aflush with April air.
And Balen bade him turn him there
To tell the king what woes they were That bowed him down so sore : and he Made woful answer : “ This should do Great scathe to me, with nought for you
Of help that hope might hearken to
For boot that may not be.”

And Balen answered : " I were loth
To fight as one perforce made wroth
With one that owes by knighthood's oath
One love, one service, and one troth

With me to him whose gracious hand
Holds fast the helm of knighthood here
Whereby man's hope and heart may steer :
I pray you let not sorrow or fear Against his bidding stand."

The strange knight gazed on him, and spake :
" Will you, for Arthur's royal sake,
Be warrant for me that I take No scathe from strife that man may make ?

Then will I go with you." And he Made joyous answer : " Yea, for I Will be your warrant or will die."
And thence they rode with hearts as high
As men's that search the sea.

And as by noon's large light the twain
Before the tented hall drew rein,
Suddenly fell the strange knight, slain
By one that came and went again

And none might see him ; but his spear
Clove through the body, swift as fire,
The man whose doom, forefelt as dire,
Had darkened all his life's desire,
As one that death held dear.

And dying he turned his face and said,
" Lo now thy warrant that my head Should fall not, following forth where led A knight whose pledge hath left me dead.
This darkling manslayer hath to name

Gairlon : take thou my goodlier steed,
Seeing thine is less of strength and speed,
And ride, if thou be knight indeed,
Even thither whence we came.

“ And as the maiden’s fair behest
Shall bid you follow on my quest,
Follow : and when God’s will sees best,
Revenge my death, and let me rest
As one that lived and died a knight, Unstained of shame alive or dead.”
And Balen, wrung with sorrow, said,
“ That shall I do : my hand and head
I pledge to do you right.”

And thence with sorrowing heart and cheer
He rode, in grief that cast out fear Lest death in darkness yet were near,
And bore the truncheon of the spear
Wherewith the woful knight lay slain
To her with whom he rode, and she Still bare it with her, fain to see What righteous doom of God’s might be The darkling manslayer’s bane.

And down a dim deep woodland way
They rode between the boughs asway
With flickering winds whose flash and play
Made sunlight sunnier where the day
Laughed, leapt, and fluttered like a bird
Caught in a light loose leafy net
That earth for amorous heaven had set
To hold and see the sundawn yet
And hear what morning heard.

There in the sweet soft shifting light Across their passage rode a knight
Flushed hot from hunting as from fight,
And seeing the sorrow-stricken sight Made question of them why they rode As mourners sick at heart and sad,
When all alive about them bade
Sweet earth for heaven's sweet sake be glad
 As heaven for earth's love glowed.

"Me lists not tell you," Balen said.
The strange knight's face grew keen and red ;
"Now, might my hand but keep my head,
Even here should one of twain lie dead
 Were he no better armed than I."
And Balen spake with smiling speed,
Where scorn and courtesy kept heed
Of either : "That should little need :
 Not here shall either die."

And all the cause he told him through
As one that feared not though he knew
All : and the strange knight spake anew, Saying : "I will part no more from you While life shall last me." So they went Where he might arm himself to ride,
And rode across wild ways and wide
To where against a churchyard side
 A hermit's harbour leant.

And there against them riding came Fleet as the lightning's laugh and flame
The invisible evil, even the same
They sought and might not curse by name
 As hell's foul child on earth set free,

And smote the strange knight through, and fled,
And left the mourners by the dead.

“Alas, again,” Sir Balen said,
“This wrong he hath done to me.”

And there they laid their dead to sleep Royally, lying where wild winds keep Keen watch and wail more soft and deep
Than where men's choirs bid music weep
 And song like incense heave and swell.
And forth again they rode, and found
Before them, dire in sight and sound,
A castle girt about and bound
 With sorrow like a spell.

Above it seemed the sun at noon
Sad as a wintry withering moon
That shudders while the waste wind's tune
Craves ever none may guess what boon,
 But all may know the boon for dire.
And evening on its darkness fell
More dark than very death's farewell,
And night about it hung like hell,
 Whose fume the dawn made fire.

And Balen lighted down and passed Within the gateway, whence no blast
Rang as the sheer portcullis, cast
Suddenly down, fell, and made fast
 The gate behind him, whence he spied
A sudden rage of men without
And ravin of a murderous rout
That girt the maiden hard about
 With death on either side.

And seeing that shame and peril, fear
Bade wrath and grief awake and hear What shame should say in fame's wide ear
If she, by sorrow sealed more dear

Than joy might make her, so should die :
And up the tower's curled stair he sprang
As one that flies death's deadliest fang,
And leapt right out amid their gang
As fire from heaven on high.

And they thereunder seeing the knight
Unhurt among their press alight
And bare his sword for chance of fight Stood from him, loth to strive or smite,
And bade him hear their woful word,
That not the maiden's death they sought ;
But there through years too dire for thought
Had lain their lady stricken, and nought
Might heal her : and he heard.

For there a maiden clean and whole
In virgin body and virgin soul,
Whose name was writ on royal roll,
That would but stain a silver bowl
With offering of her stainless blood, Therewith might heal her : so they stayed
For hope's sad sake each blameless maid
There journeying in that dolorous shade
Whose bloom was bright in bud.

No hurt nor harm to her it were
If she should yield a sister there
Some tribute of her blood, and fare
Forth with this joy at heart to bear,
That all unhurt and unafraid

This grace she had here by God's grace wrought.
And kindling all with kindly thought
And love that saw save love's self nought, Shone, smiled, and spake the maid.

"Good knight of mine, good will have I To help this healing though I die."
"Nay," Balen said, "but love may try What help in living love may lie.

—I will not lose the life of her While my life lasteth." So she gave The tribute love was fain to crave,
But might not heal though fain to save,
Were God's grace helpfuller.

Another maid in later Mays
Won with her life that woful praise,
And died. But they, when surging day's Deep tide fulfilled the dawn's wide ways,
Rode forth, and found by day or night
No chance to cross their wayfaring
Till when they saw the fourth day spring
A knight's hall gave them harbouring Rich as a king's house might.

And while they sat at meat and spake Words bright and kind as grace might make Sweet for true knighthood's kindly sake,
They heard a cry beside them break

The still-souled joy of blameless rest.
"What noise is this?" quoth Balen. "Nay," His knightly host made answer, "may Our grief not grieve you though I say How here I dwell unblest.

“Not many a day has lived and died Since at a tourney late I tried
My strength to smite and turn and ride
Against a knight of kinglike pride,

King Pellam's brother : twice I smote
The splendour of his strength to dust :
And he, fulfilled of hate's fierce lust,
Swore vengeance, pledged for hell to trust,
And keen as hell's wide throat.

“Invisible as the spirit of night
That heaven and earth in depth and height
May see not by the mild moon's light
Nor even when stars would grant them sight,

He walks and slays as plague's blind breath
Slays : and my son, whose anguish here
Makes moan perforce that mars our cheer,
He wounded, even ere love might fear
That hate were strong as death.

“Nor may my son be whole till he Whose stroke through him hath stricken me Shall give again his blood to be Our healing : yet may no man see

This felon, clothed with darkness round
And keen as lightning's life.” Thereon
Spake Balen, and his presence shone
Even as the sun's when stars are gone,
That hear dawn's trumpet sound.

“That knight I know : two knights of mine,
Two comrades, sealed by faith's bright sign,
Whose eyes as ours that live should shine,
And drink the golden sunlight's wine
With joy's thanksgiving that they live,

He hath slain in even the same blind wise :
Were all wide wealth beneath the skies
Mine, might I meet him, eyes on eyes,
All would I laugh to give."

His host made answer, and his gaze
Grew bright with trust as dawn's moist maze
With fire : " Within these twenty days,
King Pellam, lord of Lystenayse,
Holds feast through all this country cried,
And there before the knightly king
May no knight come except he bring
For witness of his wayfaring
His paramour or bride.

" And there that day, so soon to shine,
'This knight, your feion foe and mine,
Shall show, full-flushed with bloodred wine,
The fierce false face whereon we pine
To wreak the wrong he hath wrought us, bare
As shame should see and brand it." " Then,"
Said Balen, " shall he give again
His blood to heal your son, and men Shall see death blind him there."

" Forth will we fare to-morrow," said
His host : and forth, as sunrise led,
They rode ; and fifteen days were fled
Ere toward their goal their steeds had sped.
And there alighting might they find
For Balen's host no place to rest,
Who came without a gentler guest
Beside him : and that household's hest
Bade leave his sword behind.

“Nay,” Balen said, “that do I not :
My country’s custom stands, God wot,
That none whose lot is knighthood’s lot,
To ride where chance as fire is hot

With hope or promise given of fight,
Shall fail to keep, for knighthood’s part,
His weapon with him as his heart ;
And as I came will I depart,
Or hold herein my right.”

Then gat he leave to wear his sword
Beside the strange king’s festal board
Where feasted many a knight and lord
In seemliness of fair accord :

And Balen asked of one beside,
“Is there not in this court, if fame
Keep faith, a knight that hath to name
Garlon ?” and saying that word of shame,
He scanned that place of pride.

“Yonder he goeth against the light,
He with the face as swart as night,” Quoth the other : “but he rides to fight
Hid round by charms from all men’s sight,
And many a noble knight he hath slain,
Being wrapt in darkness deep as hell
And silence dark as shame.” “Ah, well,”
Said Balen, “is that he ? the spell
May be the sorcerer’s bane.”

Then Balen gazed upon him long,
And thought, “If here I wreak my wrong,
Alive I may not scape, so strong
The felon’s friends about him throng ;
And if I leave him here alive,

This chance perchance may life not give Again : much evil, if he live,
He needs must do, should fear forgive
When wrongs bid strike and strive."

And Garlon, seeing how Balen's eye
Dwelt on him as his heart waxed high
With joy in wrath to see him nigh,
Rose wolf-like with a wolfish cry
And crossed and smote him on the face, Saying, " Knight, what wouldst thou with me?
Eat,
For shame, and gaze not : eat thy meat :
Do that thou art come for : stands thy seat Next ours of royal race ? "

" Well hast thou said : thy rede rings true ;
That which I came for will I do," Quoth Balen : forth his fleet sword flew,
And clove the head of Garlon through Clean to the shoulders. Then he cried Loud to his lady, " Give me here
The truncheon of the shameful spear
Wherewith he slew your knight, when fear Bade hate in darkness ride."

And gladly, bright with grief made glad,
She gave the truncheon as he bade,
For still she bare it with her, sad
And strong in hopeless hope she had,
Through all dark days of thwarting fear,
To see if doom should fall aright
And as God's fire-fraught thunder smite
That head, clothed round with hell-faced night, Bare now before her here.

And Balen smote therewith the dead
Dark felon's body through, and said Aloud, "With even this truncheon, red
With baser blood than brave men bled

Whom in thy shameful hand it slew,
Thou hast slain a nobler knight, and now
It clings and cleaves thy body : thou Shalt cleave again no brave man's brow, Though hell would aid anew."

And toward his host he turned and spake ;
"Now for your son's long-suffering sake Blood ye may fetch enough, and take Wherewith to heal his hurt, and make Death warm as life." Then rose a cry Loud as the wind's when stormy spring
Makes all the woodland rage and ring :
"Thou hast slain my brother," said the king,
"And here with him shalt die."

"Ay?" Balen laughed him answer. "Well, Do it then thyself." And the answer fell Fierce as a blast of hate from hell,
"No man of mine that with me dwell Shall strike at thee but I their lord
For love of this my brother slain."
And Pellam caught and grasped amain
A grim great weapon, fierce and fain
To feed his hungering sword.

And eagerly he smote, and sped
Not well : for Balen's blade, yet red
With lifeblood of the murderous dead,
Between the swordstroke and his head
Shone, and the strength of the eager stroke

Shore it in sunder : then the knight,
Naked and weaponless for fight,
Ran seeking him a sword to smite
As hope within him woke.

And so their flight for deathward fast
From chamber forth to chamber passed Where lay no weapon, till the last Whose doors made way for Balen cast
Upon him as a sudden spell
Wonder that even as lightning leapt Across his heart and eyes, and swept As storm across his soul that kept Wild watch, and watched not well.

For there the deed he did, being near Death's danger, breathless as the deer
Driven hard to bay, but void of fear, Brought sorrow down for many a year
On many a man in many a land.
All glorious shone that chamber, bright
As burns at sunrise heaven's own height :
With cloth of gold the bed was dight,
That flamed on either hand.

And one he saw within it lie :
A table of all clear gold thereby Stood stately, fair as morning's eye,
With four strong silver pillars, high
And firm as faith and hope may be :
And on it shone the gift he sought,
A spear most marvellously wrought,
That when his eye and handgrip caught Small fear at heart had he.

Right on King Pellam then, as fire
Turns when the thwarting winds wax higher,
He turned, and smote him down. So dire
The stroke was, when his heart's desire Struck, and had all its fill of hate,
That as the king fell swooning down
Fell the walls, rent from base to crown,
Prone as prone seas that break and drown
 Ships fraught with doom for freight.

And there for three days' silent space
Balén and Pellam face to face
Lay dead or deathlike, and the place
Was death's blind kingdom, till the grace
 That God had given the sacred seer
For counsel or for comfort led His Merlin thither, and he said,
Standing between the quick and dead,
 "Rise up, and rest not here."

And Balén rose and set his eyes
Against the seer's as one that tries
His heart against the sea's and sky's
And fears not if he lives or dies,
 Saying, "I would have my damosel, Ere I fare forth, to fare with me."
And sadly Merlin answered, "See Where now she lies ; death knows if she Shall now fare ill or well.

"And in this world we meet no more, Balén." And Balén, sorrowing sore,
Though fearless yet the heart he bore
Beat toward the life that lay before,
 Rode forth through many a wild waste land

Where men cried out against him, mad
With grievous faith in fear that bade
Their wrath make moan for doubt they had Lest hell had armed his hand.

For in that chamber's wondrous shrine
Was part of Christ's own blood, the wine
Shed of the true triumphal vine
Whose growth bids earth's deep darkness shine
As heaven's deep light through the air and sea ;
That mystery toward our northern shore
Arimathea Joseph bore
For healing of our sins of yore,
That grace even there might be.

And with that spear there shrined apart
Was Christ's side smitten to the heart.
And fiercer than the lightning's dart
The stroke was, and the deathlike smart
Wherewith, nigh drained of blood and breath,
The king lay stricken as one long dead :
And Joseph's was the blood there shed,
For near akin was he that bled,
Near even as life to death.

And therefore fell on all that land
Sorrow : for still on either hand,
As Balen rode alone and scanned
Bright fields and cities built to stand
Till time should break them, dead men lay ;
And loud and long from all their folk Living, one cry that cursed him broke ;
Three countries had his dolorous stroke
Slain, or should surely slay.

IN winter, when the year burns low
 As fire wherein no firebrands glow,
 And winds dishevel as they blow
 The lovely stormy wings of snow,
 The hearts of northern men burn bright
 With joy that mocks the joy of spring
 To hear all heaven's keen clarions ring
 Music that bids the spirit sing
 And day give thanks for night.

Aloud and dark as hell or hate
 Round Balen's head the wind of fate
 Blew storm and cloud from death's wide gate :
 But joy as grief in him was great
 To face God's doom and live or die, Sorrowing for ill wrought unaware,
 Rejoicing in desire to dare
 All ill that innocence might bear
 With changeless heart and eye.

Yet passing fain he was when past
 Those lands and woes at length and last.
 Eight times, as thence he fared forth fast,
 Dawn rose and even was overcast
 With starry darkness dear as day,

Before his venturous quest might meet Adventure, seeing within a sweet
Green low-lying forest, hushed in heat,
A tower that barred his way.

Strong summer, dumb with rapture, bound
With golden calm the woodlands round Wherethrough the knight forth faring found
A knight that on the greenwood ground
Sat mourning : fair he was to see,
And moulded as for love or fight
A maiden's dreams might frame her knight ;
But sad in joy's far-flowering sight
As grief's blind thrall might be.

" God save you," Balen softly said,
" What grief bows down your heart and head
Thus, as one sorrowing for his dead ?
Tell me, if haply I may stead
In aught your sorrow, that I may."
" Sir knight," that other said, " thy word Makes my grief heavier that I heard."
And pity and wonder inly stirred Drew Balen thence away.

And so withdrawn with silent speed
He saw the sad knight's stately steed,
A war-horse meet for warrior's need,
That none who passed might choose but heed,
So strong he stood, so great, so fair,
With eyes afire for flight or fight,
A joy to look on, mild in might,
And swift and keen and kind as light,
And all as clear of care.

And Balen, gazing on him, heard
Again his master's woful word
Sound sorrow through the calm unstirred
By fluttering wind or flickering bird,

Thus : " Ah, fair lady and faithless, why Break thy pledged faith to meet me ? soon
An hour beyond thy trothplight noon
Shall strike my death-bell, and thy boon
Is this, that here I die.

" My curse for all thy gifts may be Heavier than death or night on thee ;
For now this sword thou gavest me
Shall set me from thy bondage free."

And there the man had died self-slain,
But Balen leapt on him and caught
The blind fierce hand that fain had wrought
Self-murder, stung with fire of thought,
As rage makes anguish fain.

Then, mad for thwarted grief, " Let go
My hand," the fool of wrath and woe
Cried, " or I slay thee." Scarce the glow
In Balen's cheek and eye might show,

As dawn shows day while seas lie chill,
He heard, though pity took not heed,
But smiled and spake, " That shall not need .
What man may do to bid you speed
I, so God speed me, will."

And the other craved his name, beguiled
By hope that made his madness mild.
Again Sir Balen spake and smiled :

" My name is Balen, called the Wild
By knights whom kings and courts make tame,

Because I ride alone afar
And follow but my soul for star."
" Ah, sir, I know the knight you are
And all your fiery fame.

" The knight that bears two swords I know,
Most praised of all men, friend and foe,
For prowess of your hands, that show
Dark war the way where balefires glow
And kindle glory like the dawn's."
So spake the sorrowing knight, and stood
As one whose heart fresh hope made good :
And forth they rode by wold and wood
And down the glimmering lawns.

And Balen craved his name who rode Beside him, where the wild wood glowed
With joy to feel how noontide flowed
Through glade and glen and rough green road Till earth grew joyful as the sea.
" My name is Garnysshe of the Mount,
A poor man's son of none account,"
He said, " where springs of loftier fount Laugh loud with pride to be.

" But strength in weakness lives and stands
As rocks that rise through shifting sands ;
And for the prowess of my hands
One made me knight and gave me lands, Duke Hermel, lord from far to near,
Our prince ; and she that loved me—she
I love, and deemed she loved but me,
His daughter, pledged her faith to be Ere now beside me here."

And Balen, brief of speech as light
Whose word, beheld of depth and height,
Strikes silence through the stars of night,
Spake, and his face as dawn's grew bright,
For hope to help a happier man,
"How far then lies she hence?" "By this,"
Her lover sighed and said, "I wis,
Not six fleet miles the passage is,
And straight as thought could span."

So rode they swift and sure, and found
A castle walled and dyked around :
And Balen, as a warrior bound
On search where hope might fear to sound
The darkness of the deeps of doubt,
Made entrance through the guardless gate
As life, while hope in life grows great,
Makes way between the doors of fate
That death may pass thereout.

Through many a glorious chamber, wrought
For all delight that love's own thought Might dream or dwell in, Balen sought
And found of all he looked for nought,
For like a shining shell her bed Shone void and vacant of her : thence Through devious wonders bright and dense
He passed and saw with shame-struck sense
Where shame and faith lay dead.

Down in a sweet small garden, fair
With flowerful joy in the ardent air,
He saw, and raged with loathing. where She lay with love-dishevelled hair
Beneath a broad bright laurel tree

And clasped in amorous arms a knight,
The unloveliest that his scornful sight
Had dwelt on yet ; a shame the bright Broad noon might shrink to see.

And thence in wrathful hope he turned,
Hot as the heart within him burned,
To meet the knight whose love, so spurned
And spat on and made nought of, yearned
And dreamed and hoped and lived in vain,
And said, " I have found her sleeping fast,"
And led him where the shadows cast
From leaves wherethrough light winds ran past Screened her from sun and rain.

But Garnysshe, seeing, reeled as he stood
Like a tree, kingliest of the wood,
Half hewn through : and the burning blood
Through lips and nostrils burst aflood :

And gathering back his rage and might
As broken breakers rally and roar
The loud wind down that drives off shore,
He smote their heads off : there no more
Their life might shame the light.

Then turned he back toward Balen, mad With grief, and said, " The grief I had Was nought : ere this my life was glad :
Thou hast done this deed : I was but sad

And fearful how my hope might fare :
I had lived my sorrow down, hadst thou
Not shown me what I saw but now."

The sorrow and scorn on Balen's brow
Bade silence curb him there.

And Balen answered : " What I did
I did to hearten thee and bid Thy courage know that shame should rid A man's high heart of love that hid Blind shame within its core : God knows,
I did, to set a bondman free,
But as I would thou hadst done by me,
That seeing what love must die to see Love's end might well be woe's."

" Alas," the woful weakling said,
" I have slain what most I loved : I have shed
The blood most near my heart : the head
Lies cold as earth, defiled and dead,
 That all my life was lighted by,
That all my soul bowed down before,
And now may bear with life no more :
For now my sorrow that I bore
 Is twofold, and I die."

Then with his red wet sword he rove
His breast in sunder, where it clove
Life, and no pulse against it strove,
So sure and strong the deep stroke drove Deathward : and Balen, seeing him dead,
Rode thence, lest folk would say he had slain
Those three : and ere three days again
Had seen the sun's might wax and wane,
 Far forth he had spurred and sped.

And riding past a cross whereon
Broad golden letters written shone, Saying, " No knight born may ride alone Forth toward this castle," and all the stone Glowed in the sun's glare even as though

Blood stained it from the crucified
Dead burden of one that there had died,
An old hoar man he saw beside Whose face was wan as woe.

“ Balen the Wild,” he said, “ this way
Thy way lies not : thou hast passed to-day
Thy bands : but turn again, and stay
Thy passage, while thy soul hath sway
Within thee, and through God’s good power
It will avail thee : ” and anon
His likeness as a cloud was gone,
And Balen’s heart within him shone
Clear as the cloudless hour.

Nor fate nor fear might overcast
The soul now near its peace at last.
Suddenly, thence as forth he past,
A mighty and a deadly blast
Blown of a hunting-horn he heard,
As when the chase hath nobly sped.
“ That blast is blown for me,” he said,
“ The prize am I who am yet not dead,”
And smiled upon the word.

As toward a royal hart’s death rang
That note, whence all the loud wood sang
With winged and living sound that sprang
Like fire, and keen as fire’s own fang
Pierced the sweet silence that it slew.
But nought like death or strife was here :
Fair semblance and most goodly cheer
They made him, they whose troop drew near As death among them drew.

A hundred ladies well arrayed
And many a knight well weaponed made
That kindly show of cheer : the glade
Shone round them till its very shade
 Lightened and laughed from grove to lawn
To hear and see them : so they brought Within a castle fair as thought
Could dream that wizard hands had wrought
 The guest among them drawn.

All manner of glorious joy was there :
Harping and dancing, loud and fair,
And minstrelsy that made of air
Fire, so like fire its raptures were.

 Then the chief lady spake on high :
“ Knight with the two swords, one of two Must help you here or fall from you :
For needs you now must have ado
 And joust with one hereby.

“ A good knight guards an island here Against all swords that chance brings near,
And there with stroke of sword and spear
Must all for whom these halls make cheer

 Fight, and redeem or yield up life.”
“ An evil custom,” Balen said, “ Is this, that none whom chance hath led Hither, if knighthood crown his head,
 May pass unstirred to strife.”

“ You shall not have ado to fight Here save against one only knight,”
She said, and all her face grew bright
As hell-fire, lit with hungry light
 That wicked laughter touched with flame.

“ Well, since I shall thereto,” said he,
“ I am ready at heart as death for me :
Fain would I be where death should be
And life should lose its name.

“ But travelling men whose goal afar Shines as a cloud-constraining star
Are often weary, and wearier are Their steeds that feel each fret and jar
Wherewith the wild ways wound them : yet, Albeit my horse be weary, still My heart is nowise weary ; will Sustains it even till death fulfil
My trust upon him set.”

“ Sir,” said a knight thereby that stood, “ Meseems your shield is now not good But worn with warrior work, nor could Sustain in strife the strokes it would :
A larger will I lend you.” “ Ay, Thereof I thank you,” Balen said,
Being single of heart as one that read
No face aright whence faith had fled,
Nor dreamed that faith could fly.

And so he took that shield unknown
And left for treason's touch his own,
And toward that island rode alone,
Nor heard the blast against him blown Sound in the wind's and water's sound,
But hearkening toward the stream's edge heard
Nought save the soft stream's rippling word,
Glad with the gladness of a bird,
That sang to the air around.

And Balen rose again from swoon
First, and went toward him : all too soon
He too then rose, and the evil boon
Of strength came back, and the evil tune
 Of battle unnatural made again
Mad music as for death's wide ear Listening and hungering toward the near Last sigh that life or death might hear
 At last from dying men.

Balen smote Balen first, and clove
His lifted shield that rose and strove
In vain against the stroke that drove Down : as the web that morning wove
 Of glimmering pearl from spray to spray
Dies when the strong sun strikes it, so Shrank the steel, tempered thrice to show Strength, as the mad might of the blow Shore Balen's helm away.

Then turning as a turning wave
Against the land-wind, blind and brave
In hope that dreams despair may save,
With even the unhappy sword that gave
 The gifts of fame and fate in one
He smote his brother, and there had nigh
Felled him : and while they breathed, his eye
Glanced up, and saw beneath the sky
 Sights fairer than the sun.

The towers of all the castle there Stood full of ladies, blithe and fair
As the earth beneath and the amorous air
About them and above them were :
 So toward the blind and fateful fight

Again those brethren went, and sore
Were all the strokes they smote and bore,
And breathed again, and fell once more
To battle in their sight.

With blood that either spilt and bled
Was all the ground they fought on red,
And each knight's hauberk hewn and shred
Left each unmailed and naked, shed
From off them even as mantles cast :
And oft they breathed, and drew but breath
Brief as the word strong sorrow saith,
And poured and drank the draught of death,
Till fate was full at last.

And Balan, younger born than he Whom darkness bade him slay, and be Slain, as in mist where none may see
If aught abide or fall or flee,
Drew back a little and laid him down,
Dying : but Balen stood, and said,
As one between the quick and dead Might stand and speak, " What good knight's head Hath won this mortal crown ?

" What knight art thou ? for never I Who now beside thee dead shall die Found yet the knight afar or nigh
That matched me." Then his brother's eye Flashed pride and love ; he spake and smiled
And felt in death life's quickening flame,
And answered : " Balan is my name,
The good knight Balen's brother ; fame Calls and miscalls him wild."

The cry from Balen's lips that sprang Sprang sharper than his sword's stroke rang.
More keen than death's or memory's fang,
Through sense and soul the shuddering pang Shivered : and scarce he had cried, " Alas
That ever I should see this day,"
When sorrow swooned from him away
As blindly back he fell, and lay
 Where sleep lets anguish pass.

But Balan rose on hands and knees
And crawled by childlike dim degrees
Up toward his brother, as a breeze
Creeps wingless over sluggard seas
 When all the wind's heart fails it : so Beneath their mother's eyes had he,
A babe that laughed with joy to be,
Made toward him standing by her knee
 For love's sake long ago.

Then, gathering strength up for a space,
From off his brother's dying face
With dying hands that wrought apace
While death and life would grant them grace
 He loosed his helm and knew not him,
So scored with blood it was, and hewn
Athwart with darkening wounds : but soon
Life strove and shuddered through the swoon
 Wherein its light lay dim.

And sorrow set these chained words free :
" O Balan, O my brother ! me
Thou hast slain, and I, my brother, thee :
And now far hence, on shore and sea,
 Shall all the wide world speak of us."

"Alas," said Balan, "that I might Not know you, seeing two swords were dight
About you ; now the unanswering sight Hath here found answer thus.

"Because you bore another shield
Than yours, that even ere youth could wield
Like arms with manhood's tried and steeled Shone as my star of battle-field,
I deemed it surely might not be My brother." Then his brother spake Fiercely : "Would God, for thy sole sake, I had my life again, to take Revenge for only thee !

"For all this deadly work was wrought
Of one false knight's false word and thought,
Whose mortal craft and counsel caught
And snared my faith who doubted nought,
And made me put my shield away.
Ah, might I live, I would destroy
That castle for its customs : joy
There makes of grief a deadly toy,
And death makes night of day."

"Well done were that, if aught were done Well ever here beneath the sun,"
Said Balan : "better work were none :
For hither since I came and won
A woful honour born of death,
When here my hap it was to slay
A knight who kept this island way,
I might not pass by night or day
Hence, as this token saith.

"No more shouldst thou, for all the might
Of heart and hand that seals thee knight
Most noble of all that see the light,
Brother, hadst thou but slain in fight

Me, and arisen unscathed and whole,
As would to God thou hadst risen ! though here
Light is as darkness, hope as fear,
And love as hate : and none draws near Save toward a mortal goal."

Then, fair as any poison-flower
Whose blossom blights the withering bower
Whereon its blasting breath has power,
Forth fared the lady of the tower

With many a lady and many a knight,
And came across the water-way
Even where on death's dim border lay
Those brethren sent of her to slay
And die in kindless fight.

And all those hard light hearts were swayed
With pity passing like a shade
That stays not, and may be not stayed,
To hear the mutual moan they made,
Each to behold his brother die,
Saying, "Both we came out of one tomb,
One star-crossed mother's woful womb,
And so within one grave-pit's gloom Untimely shall we lie."

And Balan prayed, as God should bless
That lady for her gentleness,
That where the battle's mortal stress
Had made for them perforce to press
The bed whence never man may rise

They twain, free now from hopes and fears,
Might sleep ; and she, as one that hears,
Bowed her bright head : and very tears
Fell from her cold fierce eyes.

Then Balen prayed her send a priest
To housel them, that ere they ceased
The hansel of the heavenly feast
That fills with light from the answering east
The sunset of the life of man Might bless them, and their lips be kissed
With death's requickening eucharist,
And death's and life's dim sunlit mist
Pass as a stream that ran.

And so their dying rites were done :
And Balen, seeing the death-struck sun
Sink, spake as he whose goal is won :
“ Now, when our trophied tomb is one,
And over us our tale is writ,
How two that loved each other, two Born and begotten brethren, slew
Each other, none that reads anew
Shall choose but weep for it.

“ And no good knight and no good man Whose eye shall ever come to scan
The record of the imperious ban
That made our life so sad a span
Shall read or hear, who shall not pray
For us for ever.” Then anon
Died Balan ; but the sun was gone,
And deep the stars of midnight shone,
Ere Balen passed away.

And there low lying, as hour on hour
Fled, all his life in all its flower
Came back as in a sunlit shower
Of dreams, when sweet-souled sleep has power

On life less sweet and glad to be.
He drank the draught of life's first wine
Again : he saw the moorland shine,
The rioting rapids of the Tyne,
The woods, the cliffs, the sea.

The joy that lives at heart and home,
The joy to rest, the joy to roam,
The joy of crags and scaurs he clomb,
The rapture of the encountering foam
Embraced and breasted of the boy,
The first good steed his knees bestrode,
The first wild sound of songs that flowed
Through ears that thrilled and heart that glowed, Fulfilled his death with joy.

So, dying not as a coward that dies
And dares not look in death's dim eyes
Straight as the stars on seas and skies
Whence moon and sun recoil and rise,
He looked on life and death, and slept.
And there with morning Merlin came,
And on the tomb that told their fame
He wrote by Balan's Balen's name,
And gazed thereon, and wept.

For all his heart within him yearned
With pity like as fire that burned.
The fate his fateful eye discerned Far off now dimmed it, ere he turned His face toward Camelot, to tell

Arthur of all the storms that woke Round Balen, and the dolorous stroke,
And how that last blind battle broke
The consummated spell.

“ Alas,” King Arthur said, “ this day
I have heard the worst that woe might say :
For in this world that wanes away
I know not two such knights as they.”

This is the tale that memory writes
Of men whose names like stars shall stand,
Balen and Balan, sure of hand,
Two brethren of Northumberland,
In life and death good knights.

THE ARGUMENT

ALTHÆA, daughter of Thestius and Eurythemis, queen of Calydon, being with child of Meleager her first-born son, dreamed that she brought forth a brand burning ; and upon his birth came the three Fates and prophesied of him three things, namely these ; that he should have great strength of his hands, and good fortune in this life, and that he should live no longer when the brand then in the fire were consumed : wherefore his mother plucked it forth and kept it by her. And the child being a man grown sailed with Jason after the fleece of gold, and won himself great praise of all men living ; and when the tribes of the north and west made war upon Ætolia, he fought against their army and scattered it. But Artemis, having at the first stirred up these tribes to war against Ceneus king of Calydon, because he had offered sacrifice to all the gods saving her alone, but her he had forgotten to honour, was yet more wroth because of the destruction of this army, and sent upon the land of Calydon a wild boar which slew many and wasted all their increase, but him could none slay, and many went against him and perished. Then were all the chief men of Greece gathered together, and among them Atalanta daughter of Iasius the Arcadian, a virgin ; for whose sake Artemis let slay the boar, seeing she favoured the maiden greatly ; and Meleager having despatched it gave the spoil thereof to Atalanta, as one beyond measure enamoured of her ; but the brethren of Althæa his mother, Toxeus and Plexippus, with such others as misliked that she only should bear off the praise whereas many had borne the labour, laid wait for her to take away her spoil ; but Meleager fought against them and slew them : whom when Althæa their sister beheld and knew to be slain of her son, she waxed for wrath and sorrow like as one mad, and taking the brand whereby the measure of her son's life was meted to him, she cast it upon a fire ; and with the wasting thereof his life likewise wasted away, that being brought back to his father's house he died in a brief space ; and his mother also endured not long after for very sorrow ; and this was his end, and the end of that hunting.

ATALANTA IN CALYDON

CHIEF HUNTSMAN

MAIDEN, and mistress of the months and stars
 Now folded in the flowerless fields of heaven,
 Goddess whom all gods love with threefold heart,
 Being treble in thy divided deity,
 A light for dead men and dark hours, a foot
 Swift on the hills as morning, and a hand
 To all things fierce and fleet that roar and range Mortal, with gentler shafts than snow or sleep ;
 Hear now and help and lift no violent hand,
 But favourable and fair as thine eye's beam
 Hidden and shown in heaven ; for I all night
 Amid the king's hounds and the hunting men Have wrought and worshipped toward thee ; nor shall man
 See goodlier hounds or deadlier edge of spears ;
 But for the end, that lies unreached at yet
 Between the hands and on the knees of gods.
 O fair-faced sun, killing the stars and dews
 And dreams and desolation of the night !
 Rise up, shine, stretch thine hand out, with thy bow Touch the most dimmest height of trembling heaven,
 And burn and break the dark about thy ways,
 Shot through and through with arrows ; let thine hair
 Lighten as flame above that flameless shell
 Which was the moon, and thine eyes fill the world

And thy lips kindle with swift beams ; let earth Laugh, and the long sea fiery from thy feet
Through all the roar and ripple of streaming springs
And foam in reddening flakes and flying flowers Shaken from hands and blown from lips of nymphs Whose hair or breast divides the wandering wave
With salt close tresses cleaving lock to lock,
All gold, or shuddering and unfurrowed snow ;
And all the winds about thee with their wings,
And fountain-heads of all the watered world ;
Each horn of Achelous, and the green
Euenus, wedded with the straitening sea.
For in fair time thou comest ; come also thou,
Twin-born with him, and virgin, Artemis,
And give our spears their spoil, the wild boar's hide,
Sent in thine anger against us for sin done
And bloodless altars without wine or fire.
Him now consume thou ; for thy sacrifice
With sanguine-shining steam divides the dawn,
And one, the maiden rose of all thy maids,
Arcadian Atalanta, snowy-souled,
Fair as the snow and footed as the wind,
From Ladon and well-wooded Mænalus
Over the firm hills and the fleeting sea
Hast thou drawn hither, and many an armed king, Heroes, the crown of men, like gods in fight.
Moreover out of all the Ætolian land,
From the full-flowered Lelantian pasturage
To what of fruitful field the son of Zeus Won from the roaring river and labouring sea
When the wild god shrank in his horn and fled,
And foamed and lessened through his wrathful fords,
Leaving clear lands that steamed with sudden sun,
These virgins with the lightening of the day

Bring thee fresh wreaths and their own sweeter hair, Luxurious locks and flower-like mixed with flowers,
Clean offering, and chaste hymns ; but me the time
Divides from these things ; whom do thou not less Help and give honour, and to mine hounds good speed,
And edge to spears, and luck to each man's hand.

CHORUS

When the hounds of spring are on winter's traces,
The mother of months in meadow or plain Fills the shadows and windy places
With lisp of leaves and ripple of rain ;
And the brown bright nightingale amorous
Is half assuaged for Itylus,
For the Thracian ships and the foreign faces,
The tongueless vigil, and all the pain.

Come with bows bent and with emptying of quivers, Maiden most perfect, lady of light,
With a noise of winds and many rivers,
With a clamour of waters, and with might ;
Bind on thy sandals, O thou most fleet,
Over the splendour and speed of thy feet ;
For the faint east quickens, the wan west shivers,
Round the feet of the day and the feet of the night.

Where shall we find her, how shall we sing to her,
Fold our hands round her knees, and cling ?
O that man's heart were as fire and could spring to her,
Fire, or the strength of the streams that spring !
For the stars and the winds are unto her
As raiment, as songs of the harp-player ;
For the risen stars and the fallen cling to her,
And the southwest-wind and the west-wind sing.

For winter's rains and ruins are over,
And all the season of snows and sins ;
The days dividing lover and lover,
The light that loses, the night that wins ;
And time remembered is grief forgotten,
And frosts are slain and flowers begotten,
And in green underwood and cover
Blossom by blossom the spring begins.

The full streams feed on flower of rushes,
Ripe grasses trammel a travelling foot,
The faint fresh flame of the young year flushes
From leaf to flower and flower to fruit ;
And fruit and leaf are as gold and fire,
And the oat is heard above the lyre,
And the hoofed heel of a satyr crushes
The chestnut-husk at the chestnut-root.

And Pan by noon and Bacchus by night, Fleeter of foot than the fleet-foot kid,
Follows with dancing and fills with delight
The Mænad and the Bassarid ;
And soft as lips that laugh and hide
The laughing leaves of the trees divide,
And screen from seeing and leave in sight
The god pursuing, the maiden hid.

The ivy falls with the Bacchanal's hair
Over her eyebrows hiding her eyes ;
The wild vine slipping down leaves bare
Her bright breast shortening into sighs ;
The wild vine slips with the weight of its leaves,
But the berried ivy catches and cleaves
To the limbs that glitter, the feet that scare
The wolf that follows, the fawn that flies.

ALTHÆA

What do ye singing ? what is this ye sing ?

CHORUS

Flowers bring we, and pure lips that please the gods,
And raiment meet for service : lest the day
Turn sharp with all its honey in our lips.

ALTHÆA

Night, a black hound, follows the white fawn day, Swifter than dreams the white flown feet of sleep ;
Will ye pray back the night with any prayers ?
And though the spring put back a little while Winter, and snows that plague all men for sin,
And the iron time of cursing, yet I know
Spring shall be ruined with the rain, and storm Eat up like fire the ashen autumn days.
I marvel what men do with prayers awake
Who dream and die with dreaming ; any god,
Yea the least god of all things called divine,
Is more than sleep and waking ; yet we say,
Perchance by praying a man shall match his god.
For if sleep have no mercy, and man's dreams
Bite to the blood and burn into the bone,
What shall this man do waking ? By the gods,
He shall not pray to dream sweet things to-night,
Having dreamt once more bitter things than death.

CHORUS

Queen, but what is it that hath burnt thine heart ?
For thy speech flickers like a blown-out flame.

Look, ye say well, and know not what ye say ;
For all my sleep is turned into a fire,
And all my dreams to stuff that kindles it.

CHORUS

Yet one doth well being patient of the gods.

ALTHÆA

Yea, lest they smite us with some four-foot plague.

CHORUS

But when time spreads find out some herb for it.

ALTHÆA

And with their healing herbs infect our blood.

CHORUS

What ails thee to be jealous of their ways ?

ALTHÆA

What if they give us poisonous drinks for wine ?

CHORUS

They have their will ; much talking mends it not.

ALTHÆA

And gall for milk, and cursing for a prayer ?

CHORUS

Have they not given life, and the end of life ?

ALTHÆA

Lo, where they heal, they help not ; thus they do,
They mock us with a little piteousness,
And we say prayers, and weep ; but at the last,
Sparing awhile, they smite and spare no whit.

Small praise man gets dispraising the high gods :
What have they done that thou dishonourest them ?

ALTHÆA

First Artemis for all this harried land
I praise not, and for wasting of the boar
That mars with tooth and tusk and fiery feet
Green pasturage and the grace of standing corn
And meadow and marsh with springs and unblown leaves,
Flocks and swift herds and all that bite sweet grass,
I praise her not ; what things are these to praise ?

CHORUS

But when the king did sacrifice, and gave Each god fair dues of wheat and blood and wine,
Her not with bloodshed nor burnt-offering Revered he, nor with salt or cloven cake ; Wherefore being wroth she plagued the land ; but now
Takes off from us fate and her heavy things.
Which deed of these twain were not good to praise ?
For a just deed looks always either way
With blameless eyes, and mercy is no fault.

Yea, but a curse she hath sent above all these
To hurt us where she healed us ; and hath lit
Fire where the old fire went out, and where the wind Slackened, hath blown on us with deadlier air.

CHORUS

What storm is this that tightens all our sail ?

ALTHÆA

Love, a thwart sea-wind full of rain and foam.

CHORUS

Whence blown, and born under what stormier star ?

ALTHÆA

Southward across Euenus from the sea.

CHORUS

Thy speech turns toward Arcadia like blown wind.

ALTHÆA

Sharp as the north sets when the snows are out.

CHORUS

Nay, for this maiden hath no touch of love.

ALTHÆA

I would she had sought in some cold gulf of sea
Love, or in dens where strange beasts lurk, or fire,
Or snows on the extreme hills, or iron land Where no spring is ; I would she had sought therein
And found, or ever love had found her here.

CHORUS

She is holier than all holy days or things,
The sprinkled water or fume of perfect fire ;
Chaste, dedicated to pure prayers, and filled
With higher thoughts than heaven ; a maiden clean, Pure iron, fashioned for a sword ; and man
She loves not ; what should one such do with love ?

ALTHÆA

Look you, I speak not as one light of wit,
But as a queen speaks, being heart-vexed ; for oft
I hear my brothers wrangling in mid hall,
And am not moved ; and my son chiding them,
And these things nowise move me, but I know
Foolish and wise men must be to the end,
And feed myself with patience ; but this most,
This moves me, that for wise men as for fools
Love is one thing, an evil thing, and turns Choice words and wisdom into fire and air.
And in the end shall no joy come, but grief,
Sharp words and soul's division and fresh tears
Flower-wise upon the old root of tears brought forth, Fruit-wise upon the old flower of tears sprung up,
Pitiful sighs, and much regrafted pain.
These things are in my presage, and myself Am part of them and know not ; but in dreams
The gods are heavy on me, and all the fates
Shed fire across my eyelids mixed with night,
And burn me blind, and disilluminate
My sense of seeing, and my perspicuous soul
Darken with vision ; seeing I see not, hear
And hearing am not holpen, but mine eyes
Stain many tender broideries in the bed

Drawn up about my face that I may weep
And the king wake not ; and my brows and lips
Tremble and sob in sleeping, like swift flames
That tremble, or water when it sobs with heat Kindled from under ; and my tears fill my breast
'And speck the fair dyed pillows round the king
With barren showers and saltier than the sea,
Such dreams divide me dreaming ; for long since I dreamed that out of this my womb had sprung
Fire and a firebrand ; this was ere my son,
Meleager, a goodly flower in fields of fight,
Felt the light touch him coming forth, and wailed
Childlike ; but yet he was not ; and in time
I bare him, and my heart was great ; for yet
So royally was never strong man born,
Nor queen so nobly bore as noble a thing
As this my son was : such a birth God sent And such a grace to bear it. Then came in Three weaving women, and span each a thread, Saying This for strength and That for luck, and one Saying Till the brand upon the hearth burn down,
So long shall this man see good days and live.
And I with gathered raiment from the bed
Sprang, and drew forth the brand, and cast on it Water, and trod the flame bare-foot, and crushed
With naked hand spark beaten out of spark
And blew against and quenched it ; for I said,
These are the most high Fates that dwell with us,
And we find favour a little in their sight,
A little, and more we miss of, and much time
Foils us ; howbeit they have pitied me, O son,
And thee most piteous, thee a tenderer thing
Than any flower of fleshly seed alive.
Wherefore I kissed and hid him with my hands,
And covered under arms and hair, and wept,

And feared to touch him with my tears, and laughed ;
So light a thing was this man, grown so great Men cast their heads back, seeing against the sun Blaze the armed man carved on his shield, and hear
The laughter of little bells along the brace Ring, as birds singing or flutes blown, and watch, High up, the cloven shadow of either plume Divide the bright light of the brass, and make His helmet as a windy and wintering moon Seen through blown cloud and plume-like drift, when ships

Drive, and men strive with all the sea, and oars
Break, and the beaks dip under, drinking death ;
Yet was he then but a span long, and moaned
With inarticulate mouth inseparate words,
And with blind lips and fingers wrung my breast
Hard, and thrust out with foolish hands and feet, Murmuring ; but those grey women with bound hair
Who fright the gods frightened not him ; he laughed
Seeing them, and pushed out hands to feel and haul Distaff and thread, intangible ; but they Passed, and I hid the brand, and in my heart Laughed likewise, having all my will of heaven.
But now I know not if to left or right
The gods have drawn us hither ; for again
I dreamt, and saw the black brand burst on fire
As a branch bursts in flower, and saw the flame Fade flower-wise, and Death came and with dry lips Blew the charred ash into my breast ; and Love Trampled the ember and crushed it with swift feet.
This I have also at heart ; that not for me,
Not for me only or son of mine, O girls,
The gods have wrought life, and desire of life,
Heart's love and heart's division ; but for all

There shines one sun and one wind blows till night.
And when night comes the wind sinks and the sun,
And there is no light after, and no storm,
But sleep and much forgetfulness of things.
In such wise I gat knowledge of the gods
Years hence, and heard high sayings of one most wise, Eurythemis my mother, who beheld
With eyes alive and spake with lips of these
As one on earth disfleshed and disallied
From breath or blood corruptible ; such gifts
Time gave her, and an equal soul to these
And equal face to all things ; thus she said.
But whatsoever intolerable or glad
The swift hours weave and unweave, I go hence
Full of mine own soul, perfect of myself,
Toward mine and me sufficient ; and what chance
The gods cast lots for and shake out on us,
That shall we take, and that much bear withal.
And now, before these gather to the hunt,
I will go arm my son and bring him forth,
Lest love or some man's anger work him harm.

CHORUS

Before the beginning of years
There came to the making of man
Time, with a gift of tears ;
Grief, with a glass that ran ;
Pleasure, with pain for leaven ;
Summer, with flowers that fell ;
Remembrance fallen from heaven,
And madness risen from hell ;
Strength without hands to smite ;
Love that endures for a breath :
Night, the shadow of light,
And life, the shadow of death.

And the high gods took in hand
 Fire, and the falling of tears,
 And a measure of sliding sand
 From under the feet of the years ;
 And froth and drift of the sea ;
 And dust of the labouring earth ;
 And bodies of things to be
 In the houses of death and of birth ;
 And wrought with weeping and laughter,
 And fashioned with loathing and love
 With life before and after
 And death beneath and above,
 For a day and a night and a morrow,
 That his strength might endure for a span
 With travail and heavy sorrow,
 The holy spirit of man.

From the winds of the north and the south
 They gathered as unto strife ;
 They breathed upon his mouth,
 They filled his body with life ;
 Eyesight and speech they wrought
 For the veils of the soul therein,
 A time for labour and thought,
 A time to serve and to sin ;
 They gave him light in his ways,
 And love, and a space for delight,
 And beauty and length of days,
 And night, and sleep in the night.
 His speech is a burning fire ;
 With his lips he travailleth ;
 In his heart is a blind desire,
 In his eyes foreknowledge of death ;

He weaves, and is clothed with derision ;
Sows, and he shall not reap ;
His life is a watch or a vision
Between a sleep and a sleep.

MELEAGER

O sweet new heaven and air without a star,
Fair day, be fair and welcome, as to men
With deeds to do and praise to pluck from thee.
Come forth a child, born with clear sound and light,
With laughter and swift limbs and prosperous looks ;
That this great hunt with heroes for the hounds
May leave thee memorable and us well sped.

ALTHÆA

Son, first I praise thy prayer, then bid thee speed ;
But the gods hear men's hands before their lips,
And heed beyond all crying and sacrifice
Light of things done and noise of labouring men.
But thou, being armed and perfect for the deed,
Abide ; for like rain-flakes in a wind they grow,
The men thy fellows, and the choice of the world,
Bound to root out the tuskèd plague, and leave
Thanks and safe days and peace in Calydon.

MELEAGER

For the whole city and all the low-lying land Flames, and the soft air sounds with them that come ;
The gods give all these fruit of all their works.

ALTHÆA

Set thine eye thither and fix thy spirit and say Whom there thou knowest ; for sharp mixed shadow and wind

Blown up between the morning and the mist,
With steam of steeds and flash of bridle or wheel,
And fire, and parcels of the broken dawn,
And dust divided by hard light, and spears
That shine and shift as the edge of wild beasts' eyes, Smite upon mine ; so fiery their blind edge
Burns, and bright points break up and baffle day.

MELEAGER

The first, for many I know not, being far off, Peleus the Larissæan, couched with whom Sleeps the white sea-bred wife and silver-shod, Fair as fled foam, a goddess ; and their son
Most swift and splendid of men's children born,
Most like a god, full of the future fame.

ALTHÆA

Who are these shining like one sundered star ?

MELEAGER

Thy sister's sons, a double flower of men.

ALTHÆA

O sweetest kin to me in all the world,
O twin-born blood of Leda, gracious heads
Like kindled lights in untempestuous heaven,
Fair flower-like stars on the iron foam of fight,
With what glad heart and kindliness of soul,
Even to the staining of both eyes with tears
And kindling of warm eyelids with desire,
A great way off I greet you, and rejoice
Seeing you so fair, and moulded like as gods.
Far off ye come, and least in years of these,
But lordliest, but worth love to look upon.

MELEAGER

Even such (for sailing hither I saw far hence,
And where Eurotas hollows his moist rock Nigh Sparta with a strenuous-hearted stream)
Even such I saw their sisters ; one swan-white,
The little Helen, and less fair than she Fair Clytæmnestra, grave as pasturing fawns
Who feed and fear some arrow ; but at whiles,
As one smitten with love or wrung with joy,
She laughs and lightens with her eyes, and then Weeps ; whereat Helen, having laughed, weeps too,
And the other chides her, and she being chid speaks nought,
But cheeks and lips and eyelids kisses her,
Laughing ; so fare they, as in their bloomless bud
And full of unblown life, the blood of gods.

ALTHÆA

Sweet days befall them and good loves and lords,
And tender and temperate honours of the hearth,
Peace, and a perfect life and blameless bed.
But who shows next an eagle wrought in gold,
That flames and beats broad wings against the sun
And with void mouth gapes after emptier prey ?

MELEAGER

Know by that sign the reign of Telamon
Between the fierce mouths of the encountering brine
On the strait reefs of twice-washed Salamis.

ALTHÆA

For like one great of hand he bears himself,
Vine-chapleted, with savours of the sea,

Glittering as wine and moving as a wave.
But who girt round there roughly follows him ?

MELEAGER

Ancæus, great of hand, an iron bulk,
Two-edged for fight as the axe against his arm,
Who drives against the surge of stormy spears
Full-sailed ; him Cepheus follows, his twin-born, Chief name next his of all Arcadian men.

ALTHÆA

Praise be with men abroad ; chaste lives with us,
Home-keeping days and household reverences.

Next by the left unsandalled foot know thou
The sail and oar of this Ætolian land,
Thy brethren, Toxeus and the violent-souled Plexippus, over-swift with hand and tongue ;
For hands are fruitful, but the ignorant mouth
Blows and corrupts their work with barren breath.

ALTHÆA

Speech too bears fruit, being worthy ; and air blows down
Things poisonous, and high-seated violences,
And with charmed words and songs have men put out
Wild evil, and the fire of tyrannies.

MELEAGER

Yea, all things have they, save the gods and love.

ALTHÆA

Love thou the law and cleave to things ordained.

MELEAGER

Law lives upon their lips whom these applaud.

ALTHÆA

How sayest thou these? what god applauds new things?

MELEAGER

Zeus, who hath fear and custom under foot.

ALTHÆA

But loves not laws thrown down and lives awry.

MELEAGER

Yet is not less himself than his own law.

ALTHÆA

Nor shifts and shuffles old things up and down.

MELEAGER

But what he will remoulds and discreates.

ALTHÆA

Much, but not this, that each thing live its life.

MELEAGER

Nor only live, but lighten and lift up higher.

ALTHÆA

Pride breaks itself, and too much gained is gone.

MELEAGER

Things gained are gone, but great things done endure,

ALTHÆA

Child, if a man serve law through all his life
And with his whole heart worship, him all gods
Praise ; but who loves it only with his lips,
And not in heart and deed desiring it
Hides a perverse will with obsequious words,
Him heaven infatuates and his twin-born fate
Tracks, and gains on him, scenting sins far off,
And the swift hounds of violent death devour.
Be man at one with equal-minded gods,
So shall he prosper ; not through laws torn up,
Violated rule and a new face of things.
A woman armed makes war upon herself,
Unwomanlike, and treads down use and wont
And the sweet common honour that she hath,
Love, and the cry of children, and the hand
Trothplight and mutual mouth of marriages.
This doth she, being unloved ; whom if one love,
Not fire nor iron and the wide-mouthed wars
Are deadlier than her lips or braided hair.
For of the one comes poison, and a curse
Falls from the other and burns the lives of men.
But thou, son, be not filled with evil dreams, Nor with desire of these things ; for with time Blind love burns out ; but if one feed it full Till some discolouring stain dyes all his life,
He shall keep nothing praiseworthy, nor die
The sweet wise death of old men honourable,
Who have lived out all the length of all their years
Blameless, and seen well-pleased the face of gods,
And without shame and without fear have wrought Things memorable, and while their days held out
In sight of all men and the sun's great light

Have gat them glory and given of their own praise
To the earth that bare them and the day that bred, Home friends and far-off hospitalities,
And filled with gracious and memorial fame
Lands loved of summer or washed by violent seas, Towns populous and many unfooted ways,
And alien lips and native with their own.
But when white age and venerable death
Mow down the strength and life within their limbs, Drain out the blood and darken their clear eyes,
Immortal honour is on them, having past
Through splendid life and death desirable
To the clear seat and remote throne of souls,
Lands indiscoverable in the unheard-of west,
Round which the strong stream of a sacred sea
Rolls without wind for ever, and the snow
There shows not her white wings and windy feet, Nor thunder nor swift rain saith anything,
Nor the sun burns, but all things rest and thrive ;
And these, filled full of days, divine and dead,
Sages and singers fiery from the god,
And such as loved their land and all things good
And, best beloved of best men, liberty,
Free lives and lips, free hands of men free-born,
And whatsoever on earth was honourable
And whosoever of all the ephemeral seed,
Live there a life no liker to the gods
But nearer than their life of terrene days.
Love thou such life and look for such a death.
But from the light and fiery dreams of love
Spring heavy sorrows and a sleepless life,
Visions not dreams, whose lids no charm shall close Nor song assuage them waking ; and swift death
Crushes with sterile feet the unripening ear,

Treads out the timeless vintage ; whom do thou Eschewing embrace the luck of this thy life,
Not without honour ; and it shall bear to thee
Such fruit as men reap from spent hours and wear, Few men, but happy ; of whom be thou, O son,
Happiest, if thou submit thy soul to fate,
And set thine eyes and heart on hopes high-born
And divine deeds and abstinence divine.
So shalt thou be toward all men all thy days
As light and might communicable, and burn
From heaven among the stars above the hours,
And break not as a man breaks nor burn down :
For to whom other of all heroic names
Have the gods given his life in hand as thine ?
And gloriously hast thou lived, and made thy life
To me that bare thee and to all men born Thankworthy, a praise for ever ; and hast won fame
When wild wars broke all round thy father's house,
And the mad people of windy mountain ways
Laid spears against us like a sea, and all Ætolia thundered with Thessalian hoofs ;
Yet these, as wind baffles the foam, and beats Straight back the relaxed ripple, didst thou break
And loosen all their lances, till undone
And man from man they fell ; for ye twain stood God against god, Ares and Artemis,
And thou the mightier ; wherefore she unleashed
A sharp-toothed curse thou too shalt overcome ;
For in the greener blossom of thy life Ere the full blade caught flower, and when time gave
Respite, thou didst not slacken soul nor sleep,
But with great hand and heart seek praise of men
Out of sharp straits and many a grievous thing,

Seeing the strange foam of undivided seas
On channels never sailed in, and by shores Where the old winds cease not blowing, and all the
 night
Thunders, and day is no delight to men.

CHORUS

Meleager, a noble wisdom and fair words
The gods have given this woman ; hear thou these.

MELEAGER

O mother, I am not fain to strive in speech
Nor set my mouth against thee, who art wise
Even as they say and full of sacred words.
But one thing I know surely, and cleave to this ;
That though I be not subtle of wit as thou Nor womanlike to weave sweet words, and melt Mutable minds of wise men as with fire,
I too, doing justly and reverencing the gods,
Shall not want wit to see what things be right.
For whom they love and whom reject, being gods,
There is no man but seeth, and in good time
Submits himself, refraining all his heart,
And I too as thou sayest have seen great things ;
Seen elsewhere, but chiefly when the sail
First caught between stretched ropes the roaring west,
And all our oars smote eastward, and the wind
First flung round faces of seafaring men
White splendid snow-flakes of the sundering foam,
And the first furrow in virginal green sea
Followed the plunging ploughshare of hewn pine,
And closed, as when deep sleep subdues man's breath
Lips close and heart subsides ; and closing, shone

Sunlike with many a Nereid's hair, and moved Round many a trembling mouth of doubtful gods,
Risen out of sunless and sonorous gulfs
Through waning water and into shallow light, That watched us ; and when flying the dove was snared

As with men's hands, but we shot after and sped
Clear through the irremeable Symplegades ;
And chiefliest when hoar beach and herbless cliff Stood out ahead from Colchis, and we heard Clefts hoarse with wind, and saw through narrowing reefs

The lightning of the intolerable wave
Flash, and the white wet flame of breakers burn
Far under a kindling south-wind, as a lamp
Burns and bends all its blowing flame one way ;
Wild heights untravelled of the wind, and vales Cloven seaward by their violent streams, and white
With bitter flowers and bright salt scurf of brine ; Heard sweep their sharp swift gales, and bowing birdwise

Shriek with birds' voices, and with furious feet
Tread loose the long skirts of a storm ; and saw
The whole white Euxine clash together and fall Full-mouthed, and thunderous from a thousand throats :

Yet we drew thither and won the fleece and won Medea, deadlier than the sea ; but there
Seeing many a wonder and fearful things to men
I saw not one thing like this one seen here,
Most fair and fearful, feminine, a god,
Faultless ; whom I that love not, being unlike, Fear, and give honour, and choose from all the gods.

CENEUS

Lady, the daughter of Thestius, and thou, son,
Not ignorant of your strife nor light of wit, Scared with vain dreams and fluttering like spent
fire,

I come to judge between you, but a king
Full of past days and wise from years endured.
Nor thee I praise, who art fain to undo things done :
Nor thee, who art swift to esteem them overmuch.
For what the hours have given is given, and this Changeless ; howbeit these change, and in good time

Devise new things and good, not one thing still.
Us have they sent now at our need for help
Among men armed a woman, foreign born,
Virgin, not like the natural flower of things That grows and bears and brings forth fruit and dies ;

Unlovable, no light for a husband's house,
Espoused ; a glory among unwedded girls,
And chosen of gods who reverence maidenhood.
These too we honour in honouring her ; but thou,
Abstain thy feet from following, and thine eyes From amorous touch ; nor set toward hers thine
heart,

Son, lest hate bear no deadlier fruit than love.

ALTHÆA

O king, thou art wise, but wisdom halts ; and just,
But the gods love not justice more than fate,
And smite the righteous and the violent mouth,
And mix with insolent blood the reverent man's,
And bruise the holier as the lying lips.

Enough ; for wise words fail me, and my heart
Takes fire and trembles flamewise, O my son,
O child, for thine head's sake ; mine eyes wax thick,
Turning toward thee, so goodly a weaponed man,
So glorious ; and for love of thine own eyes
They are darkened, and tears burn them, fierce as
fire,

And my lips pause and my soul sinks with love.
But by thine hand, by thy sweet life and eyes,
By thy great heart and these clasped knees, O son,
I pray thee that thou slay me not with thee.
For there was never a mother woman-born
Loved her sons better ; and never a queen of men
More perfect in her heart toward whom she loved.
For what lies light on many and they forget,
Small things and transitory as a wind o' the sea,
I forget never ; I have seen thee all thine years
A man in arms, strong and a joy to men
Seeing thine head glitter and thine hand burn its way Through a heavy and iron furrow of sundering spears ;

But always also a flower of three suns old,
The small one thing that lying drew down my life
To lie with thee and feed thee ; a child and weak, Mine, a delight to no man, sweet to me.
Who then sought to thee ? who gat help ? who knew
If thou wert goodly ? nay, no man at all.
Or what sea saw thee, or sounded with thine oar, Child ? or what strange land shone with war through
thee ?

But fair for me thou wert, O little life,
Fruitless, the fruit of mine own flesh, and blind,
More than much gold, ungrown, a foolish flower.
For silver nor bright snow nor feather of foam

Was whiter, and no gold yellower than thine hair,
O child, my child ; and now thou art lordlier grown,
Not lovelier, nor a new thing in mine eyes,
I charge thee by thy soul and this my breast,
Fear thou the gods and me and thine own heart,
Lest all these turn against thee ; for who knows What wind upon what wave of altering time Shall speak a storm and blow calamity ?
And there is nothing stabile in the world
But the gods break it ; yet not less, fair son,
If but one thing be stronger, if one endure,
Surely the bitter and the rooted love
That burns between us, going from me to thee, Shall more endure than all things. What dost thou, Following strange loves ? why wilt thou kill mine heart ?

Lo, I talk wild and windy words, and fall
From my clear wits, and seem of mine own self Dethroned, dispraised, disseated ; and my mind,
That was my crown, breaks, and mine heart is gone,
And I am naked of my soul, and stand
Ashamed, as a mean woman ; take thou thought :
Live if thou wilt, and if thou wilt not, look,
The gods have given thee life to lose or keep,
Thou shalt not die as men die, but thine end Fallen upon thee shall break me unaware.

MELEAGER

Queen, my whole heart is molten with thy tears,
And my limbs yearn with pity of thee, and love
Compels with grief mine eyes and labouring breath ;
For what thou art I know thee, and this thy breast .
And thy fair eyes I worship, and am bound Toward thee in spirit and love thee in all my soul.

For there is nothing terrible to men Than the sweet face of mothers, and the might.
 But what shall be let be ; for us the day
 Once only lives a little, and is not found.
 Time and the fruitful hour are more than we,
 And these lay hold upon us ; but thou, God,
 Zeus, the sole steersman of the helm of things,
 Father, be swift to see us, and as thou wilt Help : or if adverse, as thou wilt, refrain.

CHORUS

We have seen thee, O Love, thou art fair ; thou art goodly, O Love ;
 Thy wings make light in the air as the wings of a dove.
 Thy feet are as winds that divide the stream of the
 sea ;
 Earth is thy covering to hide thee, the garment of
 thee.
 Thou art swift and subtle and blind as a flame of
 fire ;
 Before thee the laughter, behind thee the tears of desire ;
 And twain go forth beside thee, a man with a maid ;
 Her eyes are the eyes of a bride whom delight makes afraid ;
 As the breath in the buds that stir is her bridal
 breath :
 But Fate is the name of her ; and his name is Death.

For an evil blossom was born
 Of sea-foam and the frothing of blood,
 Blood-red and bitter of fruit,
 And the seed of it laughter and tears,

And the leaves of it madness and scorn ;
A bitter flower from the bud,
Sprung of the sea without root,
Sprung without graft from the years.

The weft of the world was untorn
That is woven of the day on the night,
The hair of the hours was not white
Nor the raiment of time overworn,
When a wonder, a world's delight,
A perilous goddess was born ;
And the waves of the sea as she came Clove, and the foam at her feet,
Fawning, rejoiced to bring forth
A fleshly blossom, a flame
Filling the heavens with heat
To the cold white ends of the north.

And in air the clamorous birds,
And men upon earth that hear
Sweet articulate words
Sweetly divided apart,
And in shallow and channel and mere
The rapid and footless herds,
Rejoiced, being foolish of heart.

For all they said upon earth,
She is fair, she is white like a dove,
And the life of the world in her breath
Breathes, and is born at her birth ;
For they knew thee for mother of love,
And knew thee not mother of death.

What hadst thou to do being born,
Mother, when winds were at ease,
As a flower of the springtime of corn,
A flower of the foam of the seas ?
For bitter thou wast from thy birth,
Aphrodite, a mother of strife ;
For before thee some rest was on earth,
A little respite from tears,
A little pleasure of life ;
For life was not then as thou art,
But as one that waxeth in years
Sweet-spoken, a fruitful wife ;
Earth had no thorn, and desire
No sting, neither death any dart ;
What hadst thou to do amongst these,
Thou, clothed with a burning fire,
Thou, girt with sorrow of heart,
Thou, sprung of the seed of the seas
As an ear from a seed of corn,
As a brand plucked forth of a pyre,
As a ray shed forth of the morn,
For division of soul and disease,
For a dart and a sting and a thorn ?
What ailed thee then to be born ?

Was there not evil enough,
Mother, and anguish on earth
Born with a man at his birth,
Wastes underfoot, and above
Storm out of heaven, and dearth Shaken down from the shining thereof,
Wrecks from afar overseas
And peril of shallow and firth,

And tears that spring and increase
In the barren places of mirth,
That thou, having wings as a dove,
Being girt with desire for a girth,
That thou must come after these,
That thou must lay on him love ?

Thou shouldst not so have been born :
But death should have risen with thee,
Mother, and visible fear,
Grief, and the wringing of hands,
And noise of many that mourn ;
The smitten bosom, the knee Bowed, and in each man's ear
A cry as of perishing lands,
A moan as of people in prison,
A tumult of infinite griefs ;
And thunder of storm on the sands,
And wailing of wives on the shore ;
And under thee newly arisen
Loud shoals and shipwrecking reefs,
Fierce air and violent light ;
Sail rent and sundering oar,
Darkness, and noises of night ;
Clashing of streams in the sea,
Wave against wave as a sword,
Clamour of currents, and foam ;
Rains making ruin on earth,
Winds that wax ravenous and roam
As wolves in a wolfish horde ;
Fruits growing faint in the tree,
And blind things dead in their birth ;
Famine, and blighting of corn,
When thy time was come to be born.

All these we know of ; but thee
 Who shall discern or declare ?
 In the uttermost ends of the sea
 The light of thine eyelids and hair,
 The light of thy bosom as fire
 Between the wheel of the sun
 And the flying flames of the air ?
 Wilt thou turn thee not yet nor have pity,
 But abide with despair and desire
 And the crying of armies undone,
 Lamentation of one with another
 And breaking of city by city ;
 The dividing of friend against friend,
 The severing of brother and brother ;
 Wilt thou utterly bring to an end ?
 Have mercy, mother !

For against all men from of old
 Thou hast set thine hand as a curse,
 And cast out gods from their places.
 These things are spoken of thee.
 Strong kings and goodly with gold
 Thou hast found out arrows to pierce,
 And made their kingdoms and races
 As dust and surf of the sea.
 All these, overburdened with woes
 And with length of their days waxen weak, Thou slewest ; and sentest moreover Upon Tyro an evil thing,
 Rent hair and a fether and blows
 Making bloody the flower of the cheek,
 Though she lay by a god as a lover,
 Though fair, and the seed of a king.

For of old, being full of thy fire,
She endured not longer to wear
On her bosom a saffron vest,
On her shoulder an ashwood quiver ;
Being mixed and made one through desire
With Enipeus, and all her hair
Made moist with his mouth, and her breast Filled full of the foam of the river.

ATALANTA

Sun, and clear light among green hills, and day
Late risen and long sought after, and you just gods
Whose hands divide anguish and recompense,
But first the sun's white sister, a maid in heaven,
On earth of all maids worshipped—hail, and hear,
And witness with me if not without sign sent,
Not without rule and reverence, I a maid
Hallowed, and huntress holy as whom I serve,
Here in your sight and eyeshot of these men Stand, girt as they toward hunting, and my shafts
Drawn ; wherefore all ye stand up on my side,
If I be pure and all ye righteous gods,
Lest one revile me, a woman, yet no wife,
That bear a spear for spindle, and this bow strung
For a web woven ; and with pure lips salute
Heaven, and the face of all the gods, and dawn Filling with maiden flames and maiden flowers
The starless fold o' the stars, and making sweet
The warm wan heights of the air, moon-trodden ways
And breathless gates and extreme hills of heaven.
Whom, having offered water and bloodless gifts,
Flowers, and a golden circlet of pure hair,
Next Artemis I bid be favourable
And make this day all golden, hers and ours,

Gracious and good and white to the unblamed end.
But thou, O well-beloved, of all my days
Bid it be fruitful, and a crown for all,
To bring forth leaves and bind round all my hair
With perfect chaplets woven for thine of thee.
For not without the word of thy chaste mouth,
For not without law given and clean command,
Across the white straits of the running sea
From Elis even to the Acheloean horn,
I with clear winds came hither and gentle gods,
Far off my father's house, and left uncheered Iasius, and uncheered the Arcadian hills
And all their green-haired waters, and all woods Disconsolate, to hear no horn of mine
Blown, and behold no flash of swift white feet.

MELEAGER

For thy name's sake and awe toward thy chaste head,
O holiest Atalanta, no man dares
Praise thee, though fairer than whom all men praise,
And godlike for thy grace of hallowed hair
And holy habit of thine eyes, and feet
That make the blown foam neither swift nor white Though the wind winnow and whirl it ; yet we praise Gods, found because of thee adorable
And for thy sake praiseworthy from all men :
Thee therefore we praise also, thee as these,
Pure, and a light lit at the hands of gods.

TOXEUS

How long will ye whet spears with eloquence,
Fight, and kill beasts dry-handed with sweet words ?
Cease, or talk still and slay thy boars at home.

PLEXIPPUS

Why, if she ride among us for a man,
Sit thou for her and spin ; a man grown girl
Is worth a woman weaponed ; sit thou here.

MELEAGER

Peace, and be wise ; no gods love idle speech.

PLEXIPPUS

Nor any man a man's mouth woman-tongued.

MELEAGER

For my lips bite not sharper than mine hands.

PLEXIPPUS

Nay, both bite soft, but no whit softly mine.

MELEAGER

Keep thine hands clean ; they have time enough to stain.

For thine shall rest and wax not red to-day.

MELEAGER

Have all thy will of words ; talk out thine heart.

ALTHÆA'

Refrain your lips, O brethren, and my son,
Lest words turn snakes and bite you uttering them.

Except she give her blood before the gods,
What profit shall a maid be among men ?

PLEXIPPUS

Let her come crowned and stretch her throat for a knife,
Bleat out her spirit and die, and so shall men Through her too prosper and through prosperous
gods,
But nowise through her living ; shall she live
A flower-bud of the flower-bed, or sweet fruit
For kisses and the honey-making mouth,
And play the shield for strong men and the spear ?
Then shall the heifer and her mate lock horns,
And the bride overbear the groom, and men Gods ; for no less division sunders these ;
Since all things made are seasonable in time,
But if one alter unseasonable are all.
But thou, O Zeus, hear me that I may slay
This beast before thee and no man halve with me
Nor woman, lest these mock thee, though a god, Who hast made men strong, and thou being wise be held
Foolish ; for wise is that thing which endures.

ATALANTA

Men, and the chosen of all this people, and thou,
King, I beseech you a little bear with me.
For if my life be shameful that I live,
Let the gods witness and their wrath ; but these Cast no such word against me. Thou, O mine, O holy, O happy goddess, if I sin .
Changing the words of women and the works
For spears and strange men's faces, hast not thou
One shaft of all thy sudden seven that pierced Seven through the bosom or shining throat or side,

All couched about one mother's loosening knees,
All holy born, engrafted of Tantalus ?
But if toward any of you I am overbold
That take thus much upon me, let him think How I, for all my forest holiness,
Fame, and this armed and iron maidenhood,
Pay thus much also ; I shall have no man's love
For ever, and no face of children born
Or feeding lips upon me or fastening eyes
For ever, nor being dead shall kings my sons Mourn me and bury, and tears on daughters' cheeks Burn ; but a cold and sacred life, but strange,
But far from dances and the back-blowing torch, Far off from flowers or any bed of man,
Shall my life be for ever : me the snows
That face the first o' the morning, and cold hills
Full of the land-wind and sea-travelling storms
And many a wandering wing of noisy nights
That know the thunder and hear the thickening wolves—

Me the utmost pine and footless frost of woods
That talk with many winds and gods, the hours
Re-risen, and white divisions of the dawn,
Springs thousand-tongued with the intermitting reed
And streams that murmur of the mother snow—
Me these allure, and know me ; but no man Knows, and my goddess only. Lo now, see
If one of all you these things vex at all.
Would God that any of you had all the praise
And I no manner of memory when I die,
So might I show before her perfect eyes
Pure, whom I follow, a maiden to my death.
But for the rest let all have all they will ;
For is it a grief to you that I have part,

Being woman merely, in your male might and deeds
Done by main strength ? yet in my body is throned
As great a heart, and in my spirit, O men,
I have not less of godlike. Evil it were
That one a coward should mix with you, one hand Fearful, one eye abase itself ; and these Well might ye hate and well revile, not me.
For not the difference of the several flesh
Being vile or noble or beautiful or base Makes praiseworthy, but purer spirit and heart Higher than these meaner mouths and limbs, that feed,

Rise, rest, and are and are not ; and for me,
What should I say ? but by the gods of the world
And this my maiden body, by all oaths That bind the tongue of men and the evil will,
I am not mighty-minded, nor desire
Crowns, nor the spoil of slain things nor the fame ;
Feed ye on these, eat and wax fat ; cry out,
Laugh, having eaten, and leap without a lyre,
Sing, mix the wind with clamour, smite and shake Sonorous timbrels and tumultuous hair,
And fill the dance up with tempestuous feet,
For I will none ; but having prayed my prayers
And made thank-offering for prosperities,
I shall go hence and no man see me more.
What thing is this for you to shout me down,
What, for a man to grudge me this my life
As it were envious of all yours, and I
A thief of reputations ? nay, for now,
If there be any highest in heaven, a god
Above all thrones and thunders of the gods
Throned, and the wheel of the world roll under him, Judge he between me and all of you, and see

If I transgress at all : but ye, refrain Transgressing hands and reinless mouths, and keep Silence, lest by much foam of violent words
And proper poison of your lips ye die.

GENEUS

O flower of Tegea, maiden, fleetest foot
And holiest head of women, have good cheer
Of thy good words : but ye, depart with her
In peace and reverence, each with blameless eye
Following his fate ; exalt your hands and hearts, Strike, cease not, arrow on arrow and wound on wound,
And go with gods and with the gods return.

CHORUS

Who hath given man speech ? or who hath set therein
A thorn for peril and a snare for sin ?
For in the word his life is and his breath,
And in the word his death,
That madness and the infatuate heart may breed
From the word's womb the deed
And life bring one thing forth ere all pass by,
Even one thing which is ours yet cannot die—
Death. Hast thou seen him ever anywhere, Time's twin-born brother, imperishable as he Is perishable and plaintive, clothed with care
And mutable as sand,
But death is strong and full of blood and fair
And perdurable and like a lord of land ?
Nay, time thou seest not, death thou wilt not see Till life's right hand be loosened from thine hand
And thy life-days from thee.

For the gods very subtly fashion
 Madness with sadness upon earth :
 Not knowing in any wise compassion,
 Nor holding pity of any worth ;
 And many things they have given and taken,
 And wrought and ruined many things ;
 The firm land have they loosed and shaken,
 And sealed the sea with all her springs ;
 They have wearied time with heavy burdens
 And vexed the lips of life with breath :
 Set men to labour and given them guerdons,
 Death, and great darkness after death :
 Put moans into the bridal measure
 And on the bridal wools a stain ;
 And circled pain about with pleasure,
 And girdled pleasure about with pain ;
 And strewed one marriage-bed with tears and fire
 For extreme loathing and supreme desire.

What shall be done with all these tears of ours ?
 Shall they make watersprings in the fair heaven
 To bathe the brows of morning ? or like flowers
 Be shed and shine before the starriest hours,
 Or made the raiment of the weeping Seven ?
 Or rather, O our masters, shall they be Food for the famine of the grievous sea,
 A great well-head of lamentation
 Satiating the sad gods ? or fall and flow
 Among the years and seasons to and fro,
 And wash their feet with tribulation
 And fill them full with grieving ere they go ?
 Alas, our lords, and yet alas again,
 Seeing all your iron heaven is gilt as gold
 But all we smite thereat in vain ;

Smite the gates barred with groanings manifold,
But all the floors are paven with our pain.

Yea, and with weariness of lips and eyes,
With breaking of the bosom, and with sighs,

We labour, and are clad and fed with grief
And filled with days we would not fain behold
And nights we would not hear of ; we wax old,
All we wax old and wither like a leaf.

We are outcast, strayed between bright sun and
moon ;

Our light and darkness are as leaves of flowers,
Black flowers and white, that perish ; and the noon
As midnight, and the night as daylight hours.
A little fruit a little while is ours,
And the worm finds it soon.

But up in heaven the high gods one by one
Lay hands upon the draught that quickeneth,
Fulfilled with all tears shed and all things done,

And stir with soft imperishable breath
The bubbling bitterness of life and death,
And hold it to our lips and laugh ; but they Preserve their lips from tasting night or day,
Lest they too change and sleep, the fates that spun,
The lips that made us and the hands that slay ; Lest all these change, and heaven bow down to none,

Change and be subject to the secular sway
And terrene revolution of the sun.
Therefore they thrust it from them, putting time away.

I would the wine of time, made sharp and sweet
With multitudinous days and nights and tears
And many mixing savours of strange years,

Were no more trodden of them under feet,
 Cast out and spilt about their holy places :
 That life were given them as a fruit to eat
 And death to drink as water ; that the light
 Might ebb, drawn backward from their eyes, and night Hide for one hour the imperishable faces.
 That they might rise up sad in heaven, and know Sorrow and sleep, one paler than young snow,
 One cold as blight of dew and ruinous rain ;
 Rise up and rest and suffer a little, and be Awhile as all things born with us and we,
 And grieve as men, and like slain men be slain.

For now we know not of them ; but one saith
 The gods are gracious, praising God ; and one,
 When hast thou seen ? or hast thou felt his breath Touch, nor consume thine eyelids as the sun,
 Nor fill thee to the lips with fiery death ?
 None hath beheld him, none
 Seen above other gods and shapes of things,
 Swift without feet and flying without wings,
 Intolerable, not clad with death or life,
 Insatiable, not known of night or day,
 The lord of love and loathing and of strife
 Who gives a star and takes a sun away ;
 Who shapes the soul, and makes her a barren wife
 To the earthly body and grievous growth of clay ;
 Who turns the large limbs to a little flame
 And binds the great sea with a little sand ;
 Who makes desire, and slays desire with shame ;
 Who shakes the heaven as ashes in his hand ;
 Who, seeing the light and shadow for the same,
 Bids day waste night as fire devours a brand,
 Smites without sword, and scourges without rod ;
 The supreme evil, God.

Yea, with thine hate, O God, thou hast covered us,
One saith, and hidden our eyes away from sight,
And made us transitory and hazardous,
Light things and slight ;
Yet have men praised thee, saying, He hath made man thus,
And he doeth right.
Thou hast kissed us, and hast smitten ; thou hast laid
Upon us with thy left hand life, and said, Live : and again thou hast said, Yield up your
breath,
And with thy right hand laid upon us death.
Thou hast sent us sleep, and stricken sleep with
dreams,
Saying, Joy is not, but love of joy shall be ;
Thou hast made sweet springs for all the pleasant streams,
In the end thou hast made them bitter with the
sea.
Thou hast fed one rose with dust of many men ;
Thou hast marred one face with fire of many tears ;
Thou hast taken love, and given us sorrow again ;
With pain thou hast filled us full to the eyes and ears.
Therefore because thou art strong, our father, and we
Feeble ; and thou art against us, and thine hand
Constrains us in the shallows of the sea
And breaks us at the limits of the land ;
Because thou hast bent thy lightnings as a bow,
And loosed the hours like arrows ; and let fall
Sins and wild words and many a wingèd woe
And wars among us, and one end of all ;

Because thou hast made the thunder, and thy feet
 Are as a rushing water when the skies
 Break, but thy face as an exceeding heat
 And flames of fire the eyelids of thine eyes ;
 Because thou art over all who are over us ;
 Because thy name is life and our name death ;
 Because thou art cruel and men are piteous,
 And our hands labour and thine hand scattereth ;
 Lo, with hearts rent and knees made tremulous,
 Lo, with ephemeral lips and casual breath,
 At least we witness of thee ere we die
 That these things are not otherwise, but thus ;
 That each man in his heart sigheth, and saith,
 That all men even as I,
 All we are against thee, against thee, O God most high.

But ye, keep ye on earth
 Your lips from over-speech,
 Loud words and longing are so little worth ;
 And the end is hard to reach.
 For silence after grievous things is good,
 And reverence, and the fear that makes men whole,
 And shame, and righteous governance of blood,
 And lordship of the soul.
 But from sharp words and wits men pluck no fruit,
 And gathering thorns they shake the tree at root ;
 For words divide and rend ;
 But silence is most noble till the end.

ALTHÆA

I heard within the house a cry of news
 And came forth eastward hither, where the dawn
 Cheers first these warder gods that face the sun

And next our eyes unrisen ; for unaware Came clashes of swift hoofs and trampling feet
And through the windy pillared corridor
Light sharper than the frequent flames of day
That daily fill it from the fiery dawn ;
Gleams, and a thunder of people that cried out,
And dust and hurrying horsemen ; lo their chief,
That rode with Æneus rein by rein, returned.
What cheer, O herald of my lord the king ?

HERALD

Lady, good cheer and great ; the boar is slain.

CHORUS

Praised be all gods that look toward Calydon.

ALTHÆA

Good news and brief ; but by whose happier hand ?

HERALD

A maiden's and a prophet's and thy son's.

ALTHÆA

Well fare the spear that severed him and life.

HERALD

Thine own, and not an alien, hast thou blest.

ALTHÆA

Twice be thou too for my sake blest and his.

HERALD

At the king's word I rode afoam for thine.

ALTHÆA

Thou sayest he tarrieth till they bring the spoil ?

HERALD

Hard by the quarry, where they breathe, O queen.

ALTHÆA

Speak thou their chance ; but some bring flowers and crown

These gods and all the lintel, and shed wine, Fetch sacrifice and slay ; for heaven is good.

HERALD

Some furlongs northward where the brakes begin
West of that narrowing range of warrior hills
Whose brooks have bled with battle when thy son Smote Acarnania, there all they made halt,
And with keen eye took note of spear and hound, Royally ranked ; Laertes island-born,
The young Gerenian Nestor, Panopeus,
And Cepheus and Ancæus, mightiest thewed, Arcadians ; next, and evil-eyed of these,
Arcadian Atalanta, with twain hounds
Lengthening the leash, and under nose and brow
Glittering with lipless tooth and fire-swift eye ;
But from her white braced shoulder the plumed shafts Rang, and the bow shone from her side ; next her Meleager, like a sun in spring that strikes
Branch into leaf and bloom into the world,
A glory among men meaner ; Iphicles,
And following him that slew the biform bull Pirithous, and divine Eurytion,
And, bride-bound to the gods, Æacides.
Then Telamon his brother, and Argive-born
The seer and sayer of visions and of truth, Amphiaraus ; and a four-fold strength,

Thine, even thy mother's and thy sister's sons.
And recent from the roar of foreign foam
Jason, and Dryas twin-begot with war,
A blossom of bright battle, sword and man
Shining ; and Idas, and the keenest eye
Of Lynceus, and Admetus twice-espoused,
And Hippasus and Hyleus, great in heart.
These having halted bade blow horns, and rode Through woods and waste lands cleft by stormy streams,

Past yew-trees and the heavy hair of pines,
And where the dew is thickest under oaks,
This way and that ; but questing up and down
They saw no trail nor scented ; and one said,
Plexippus, Help, or help not, Artemis,
And we will flay thy boarskin with male hands ;
But saying, he ceased and said not that he would,
Seeing where the green ooze of a sun-struck marsh
Shook with a thousand reeds untunable,
And in their moist and multitudinous flower Slept no soft sleep, with violent visions fed,
The blind bulk of the immeasurable beast.
And seeing, he shuddered with sharp lust of praise
Through all his limbs, and launched a double dart.
And missed ; for much desire divided him,
Too hot of spirit and feebler than his will,
That his hand failed, though fervent ; and the shaft,
Sundering the rushes, in a tamarisk stem
Shook, and stuck fast ; then all abode save one,
The Arcadian Atalanta ; from her side Sprang her hounds, labouring at the leash, and slipped,
And plashed ear-deep with plunging feet ; but she Saying, Speed it as I send it for thy sake,

Goddess, drew bow and loosed ; the sudden string Rang, and sprang inward, and the waterish air Hissed, and the moist plumes of the songless reeds Moved as a wave which the wind moves no more.
But the boar heaved half out of ooze and slime
His tense flank trembling round the barbèd wound, Hateful ; and fiery with invasive eyes
And bristling with intolerable hair Plunged, and the hounds clung, and green flowers and white

Reddened and broke all round them where they came.

And charging with sheer tusk he drove, and smote Hyleus ; and sharp death caught his sudden soul,
And violent sleep shed night upon his eyes.
Then Peleus, with strong strain of hand and heart,
Shot ; but the sidelong arrow slid, and slew
His comrade born and loving countryman,
Under the left arm smitten, as he no less Poised a like arrow ; and bright blood brake afoam,
And falling, and weighed back by clamorous arms,
Sharp rang the dead limbs of Eurytion.
Then one shot happier, the Cadmean seer, Amphiaraus ; for his sacred shaft
Pierced the red circlet of one ravening eye
Beneath the brute brows of the sanguine boar,
Now bloodier from one slain ; but he so galled
Sprang straight, and rearing cried no lesser cry
Than thunder and the roar of wintering streams
That mix their own foam with the yellower sea ;
And as a tower that falls by fire in fight
With ruin of walls and all its archery,
And breaks the iron flower of war beneath,
Crushing charred limbs and molten arms of men ;

So through crushed branches and the reddening brake

Clamoured and crashed the fervour of his feet,
And trampled, springing sideways from the tusk,
Too tardy a moving mould of heavy strength,
Ancæus ; and as flakes of weak-winged snow
Break, all the hard thews of his heaving limbs Broke, and rent flesh fell every way, and blood Flew, and fierce fragments of no more a man.
Then all the heroes drew sharp breath, and gazed,
And smote not ; but Meleager, but thy son,
Right in the wild way of the coming curse
Rock-rooted, fair with fierce and fastened lips, Clear eyes, and springing muscle and shortening limb—

With chin aslant indrawn to a tightening throat, Grave, and with gathered sinews, like a god,— Aimed on the left side his well-handled spear Grasped where the ash was knottiest hewn, and smote,

And with no missile wound, the monstrous boar
Right in the hairiest hollow of his hide
Under the last rib, sheer through bulk and bone,
Deep in ; and deeply smitten, and to death,
The heavy horror with his hanging shafts
Leapt, and fell furiously, and from raging lips Foamed out the latest wrath of all his life.
And all they praised the gods with mightier heart,
Zeus and all gods, but chiefliest Artemis,
Seeing ; but Meleager bade whet knives and flay,
Strip and stretch out the splendour of the spoil ;
And hot and horrid from the work all these Sat, and drew breath and drank and made great cheer.

And washed the hard sweat off their calmer brows.
For much sweet grass grew higher than grew the reed,
And good for slumber, and every holier herb,
Narcissus, and the low-lying melilote,
And all of goodliest blade and bloom that springs
Where, hid by heavier hyacinth, violet buds
Blossom and burn ; and fire of yellower flowers
And light of crescent lilies, and such leaves
As fear the Faun's and know the Dryad's foot ;
Olive and ivy and poplar dedicate,
And many a well-spring overwatched of these.
There now they rest ; but me the king bade bear
Good tidings to rejoice this town and thee.
Wherefore be glad, and all ye give much thanks,
For fallen is all the trouble of Calydon.

ALTHÆA

Laud ye the gods ; for this they have given is good,
And what shall be they hide until their time.
Much good and somewhat grievous hast thou said,
And either well ; but let all sad things be,
Till all have made before the prosperous gods
Burnt-offering, and poured out the floral wine.
Look fair, O gods, and favourable ; for we Praise you with no false heart or flattering mouth,
Being merciful, but with pure souls and prayer.

HERALD

Thou hast prayed well ; for whoso fears not these,
But once being prosperous waxes huge of heart,
Him shall some new thing unaware destroy.

CHORUS

O that I now, I too were
By deep wells and water-floods, Streams of ancient hills, and where All the wan green places bear
Blossoms cleaving to the sod,
Fruitless fruit, and grasses fair,
Or such darkest ivy-buds
As divide thy yellow hair,
Bacchus, and their leaves that nod
Round thy fawnskin brush the bare Snow-soft shoulders of a god ;
There the year is sweet, and there
Earth is full of secret springs,
And the fervent rose-cheeked hours,
Those that marry dawn and noon,
There are sunless, there look pale
In dim leaves and hidden air,
Pale as grass or latter flowers
Or the wild vine's wan wet rings
Full of dew beneath the moon,
And all day the nightingale
Sleeps, and all night sings ;
There in cold remote recesses
That nor alien eyes assail,
Feet, nor imminence of wings,
Nor a wind nor any tune,
Thou, O queen and holiest,
Flower the whitest of all things,
With reluctant lengthening tresses
And with sudden splendid breast
Save of maidens un beholden,
There art wont to enter, there

Thy divine swift limbs and golden Maiden growth of unbound hair,
Bathed in waters white,
Shine, and many a maid's by thee
In moist woodland or the hilly Flowerless brakes where wells abound
Out of all men's sight ;
Or in lower pools that see
All their margins clothed all round
With the innumerable lily,
Whence the golden-girdled bee
Flits through flowering rush to fret
White or duskier violet,
Fair as those that in far years
With their buds left luminous
And their little leaves made wet,
From the warmer dew of tears,
Mother's tears in extreme need,
Hid the limbs of Iamus,
Of thy brother's seed ;
For his heart was piteous
Toward him, even as thine heart now
Pitiful toward us ;
Thine, O goddess, turning hither
A benignant blameless brow ;
Seeing enough of evil done
And lives withered as leaves wither
In the blasting of the sun ;
Seeing enough of hunters dead,
Ruin enough of all our year,
Herds and harvests slain and shed,
Herdsmen stricken many an one,
Fruits and flocks consumed together,
And great length of deadly days.

Yet with reverent lips and fear
Turn we toward thee, turn and praise
For this lightening of clear weather
And prosperities begun.
For not seldom, when all air
As bright water without breath
Shines, and when men fear not, fate
Without thunder unaware Breaks, and brings down death.
Joy with grief ye great gods give,
Good with bad, and overbear
All the pride of us that live,
All the high estate,
As ye long since overbore,
As in old time long before,
Many a strong man and a great,
All that were.
But do thou, sweet, otherwise,
Having heed of all our prayer,
Taking note of all our sighs ;
We beseech thee by thy light,
By thy bow, and thy sweet eyes,
And the kingdom of the night,
Be thou favourable and fair ;
By thine arrows and thy might
And Orion overthrown ;
By the maiden thy delight,
By the indissoluble zone
And the sacred hair.

MESSENGER

Maidens, if ye will sing now, shift your song,
Bow down, cry, wail for pity ; is this a time
For singing ? nay, for strewing of dust and ash, Rent raiment, and for bruising of the breast.

CHORUS

What new thing wolf-like lurks behind thy words?
What snake's tongue in thy lips? what fire in the eyes?

MESSENGER

Bring me before the queen and I will speak.

CHORUS

Lo, she comes forth as from thank-offering made.

MESSENGER

A barren offering for a bitter gift.

ALTHÆA

What are these borne on branches, and the face
Covered? no mean men living, but now slain
Such honour have they, if any dwell with death.

MESSENGER

Queen, thy twain brethren and thy mother's sons.

ALTHÆA

Lay down your dead till I behold their blood
If it be mine indeed, and I will weep.

MESSENGER

Weep if thou wilt, for these men shall no more.

ALTHÆA

O brethren, O my father's sons, of me
Well loved and well reputed, I should weep
Tears dearer than the dear blood drawn from you
But that I know you not uncomforted,
Sleeping no shameful sleep, however slain,
For my son surely hath avenged you dead.

MESSENGER

Nay, should thine own seed slay himself, O queen ?

ALTHÆA

Thy double word brings forth a double death.

MESSENGER

Know this then singly, by one hand they fell.

ALTHÆA

What mutterest thou with thine ambiguous mouth ?

MESSENGER

Slain by thy son's hand ; is that saying so hard ?

ALTHÆA

Our time is come upon us : it is here.

CHORUS

O miserable, and spoiled at thine own hand.

ALTHÆA

Wert thou not called Meleager from this womb ?

CHORUS

A grievous huntsman hath it bred to thee.

ALTHÆA

Wert thou born fire, and shalt thou not devour ?

CHORUS

The fire thou madest, will it consume even thee ?

ALTHÆA

My dreams are fallen upon me ; burn thou too.

CHORUS

Not without God are visions born and die.

ALTHÆA

The gods are many about me ; I am one.

CHORUS

She groans as men wrestling with heavier gods.

ALTHÆA

They rend me, they divide me, they destroy.

CHORUS

Or one labouring in travail of strange births.

ALTHÆA

They are strong, they are strong ; I am broken, and these prevail.

CHORUS

The god is great against her ; she will die.

ALTHÆA

Yea, but not now ; for my heart too is great.
I would I were not here in sight of the sun.
But thou, speak all thou sawest, and I will die.

MESSENGER

O queen, for queenlike hast thou borne thyself,
A little word may hold so great mischance.
For in division of the sanguine spoil
These men thy brethren wrangling bade yield up
The boar's head and the horror of the hide
That this might stand a wonder in Calydon,

Hallowed ; and some drew toward them ; but thy son
With great hands grasping all that weight of hair
Cast down the dead heap clanging and collapsed
At female feet, saying This thy spoil not mine, Maiden, thine own hand for thyself hath reaped,
And all this praise God gives thee : she thereat Laughed, as when dawn touches the sacred night
The sky sees laugh and redden and divide
Dim lips and eyelids virgin of the sun,
Hers, and the warm slow breasts of morning heave,
Fruitful, and flushed with flame from lamp-lit hours,
And maiden undulation of clear hair
Colour the clouds ; so laughed she from pure heart,
Lit with a low blush to the braided hair,
And rose-coloured and cold like very dawn,
Golden and godlike, chastely with chaste lips,
A faint grave laugh ; and all they held their peace,
And she passed by them. Then one cried Lo now,
Shall not the Arcadian shoot out lips at us,
Saying all we were despoiled by this one girl ?
And all they rode against her violently
And cast the fresh crown from her hair, and now
They had rent her spoil away, dishonouring her,
Save that Meleager, as a tame lion chafed,
Bore on them, broke them, and as fire cleaves wood So clove and drove them, smitten in twain ; but she Smote not nor heaved up hand ; and this man first,
Plexippus, crying out This for love's sake, sweet, Drove at Meleager, who with spear straightening Pierced his cheek through ; then Toxeus made for him,
Dumb, but his spear spake ; vain and violent words.
Fruitless ; for him too stricken through both sides
The earth felt falling, and his horse's foam

Blanched thy son's face, his slayer ; and these being slain, None moved nor spake ; but Æneus bade bear hence
These made of heaven infatuate in their deaths, Foolish ; for these would baffle fate, and fell.
And they passed on, and all men honoured her,
Being honourable, as one revered of heaven.

ALTHÆA

What say you, women ? is all this not well done ?

CHORUS

No man doth well but God hath part in him.

ALTHÆA

But no part here ; for these my brethren born Ye have no part in, these ye know not of
As I that was their sister, a sacrifice Slain in their slaying. I would I had died for these ;
For this man dead walked with me, child by child,
And made a weak staff for my feebler feet
With his own tender wrist and hand, and held
And led me softly and shewed me gold and steel
And shining shapes of mirror and bright crown
And all things fair ; and threw light spears, and brought Young hounds to huddle at my feet and thrust Tame heads against my little maiden breasts
And please me with great eyes ; and those days went
And these are bitter and I a barren queen
And sister miserable, a grievous thing
And mother of many curses ; and she too,
My sister Leda, sitting overseas
With fair fruits round her, and her faultless lord,

Shall curse me, saying A sorrow and not a son,
Sister, thou barest, even a burning fire,
A brand consuming thine own soul and me.
But ye now, sons of Thestius, make good cheer,
For ye shall have such wood to funeral fire
As no king hath ; and flame that once burnt down Oil shall not quicken or breath relume or wine Refresh again ; much costlier than fine gold,
And more than many lives of wandering men.

CHORUS

O queen, thou hast yet with thee love-worthy things, Thine husband, and the great strength of thy son.

ALTHÆA

Who shall get brothers for me while I live ?
Who bear them ? who bring forth in lieu of these ?
Are not our fathers and our brethren one,
And no man like them ? are not mine here slain ?
Have we not hung together, he and I,
Flowerwise feeding as the feeding bees,
With mother-milk for honey ? and this man too,
Dead, with my son's spear thrust between his sides, Hath he not seen us, later born than he,
Laugh with lips filled, and laughed again for love ?
There were no sons then in the world, nor spears,
Nor deadly births of women ; but the gods Allowed us, and our days were clear of these.
I would I had died unwedded, and brought forth
No swords to vex the world ; for these that spake
Sweet words long since and loved me will not speak
Nor love nor look upon me ; and all my life
I shall not hear nor see them living men.
But I too living, how shall I now live ?

What life shall this be with my son, 'to know What hath been and desire what will not be,
Look for dead eyes and listen for dead lips,
And kill mine own heart with remembering them,
And with those eyes that see their slayer alive
Weep, and wring hands that clasp him by the hand?
How shall I bear my dreams of them, to hear False voices, feel the kisses of false mouths
And footless sound of perished feet, and then Wake and hear only it may be their own hounds
Whine masterless in miserable sleep,
And see their boar-spears and their beds and seats
And all the gear and housings of their lives
And not the men? shall hounds and horses mourn, Pine with strange eyes, and prick up hungry ears,
Famish and fail at heart for their dear lords,
And I not heed at all? and those blind things
Fall off from life for love's sake, and I live?
Surely some death is better than some life,
Better one death for him and these and me
For if the gods had slain them it may be
I had endured it; if they had fallen by war
Or by the nets and knives of privy death
And by hired hands while sleeping, this thing too
I had set my soul to suffer; or this hunt,
Had this despatched them, under tusk or tooth
Torn, sanguine, trodden, broken; for all deaths
Or honourable or with facile feet avenged
And hands of swift gods following, all save this,
Are bearable; but not for their sweet land Fighting, but not a sacrifice, lo these Dead; for I had not then shed all mine heart
Out at mine eyes: then either with good speed,
Being just, I had slain their slayer atoningly,

Or strewn with flowers their fire and on their tombs Hung crowns, and over them a song, and seen
Their praise outflame their ashes : for all men,
All maidens, had come thither, and from pure lips
Shed songs upon them, from heroic eyes
Tears ; and their death had been a deathless life ;
But now, by no man hired nor alien sword,
By their own kindred are they fallen, in peace,
After much peril, friendless among friends,
By hateful hands they loved ; and how shall mine
Touch these returning red and not from war,
These fatal from the vintage of men's veins,
Dead men my brethren ? how shall these wash off
No festal stains of undelightful wine,
How mix the blood, my blood on them, with me,
Holding mine hand ? or how shall I say, son,
That am no sister ? but by night and day Shall we not sit and hate each other, and think Things hate-worthy ? not live with shamefast eyes, Brow-beaten, treading soft with fearful feet,
Each unupbraided, each without rebuke Convicted, and without a word reviled
Each of another ? and I shall let thee live
And see thee strong and hear men for thy sake Praise me, but these thou wouldest not let live
No man shall praise for ever ? these shall lie Dead, unbeloved, unholpen, all through thee ?
Sweet were they toward me living, and mine heart
Desired them, but was then well satisfied,
That now is as men hungered ; and these dead
I shall want always to the day I die.
For all things else and all men may renew ;
Yea, son for son the gods may give and take,
But never a brother or sister any more.

CHORUS

Nay, for the son lies close about thine heart,
 Full of thy milk, warm from thy womb, and drains
 Life and the blood of life and all thy fruit, Eats thee and drinks thee as who breaks bread and eats,
 Treads wine and drinks, thyself, a sect of thee ;
 And if he feed not, shall not thy flesh faint ?
 Or drink not, are not thy lips dead for thirst ?
 This thing moves more than all things, even thy son,
 That thou cleave to him ; and he shall honour thee,
 Thy womb that bare him and the breasts he knew,
 Reverencing most for thy sake all his gods.

ALTHÆA

But these the gods too gave me, and these my son,
 Not reverencing his gods nor mine own heart
 Nor the old sweet years nor all venerable things,
 But cruel, and in his ravin like a beast, Hath taken away to slay them : yea, and she
 She the strange woman, she the flower, the sword,
 Red from spilt blood, a mortal flower to men, Adorable, detestable—even she Saw with strange eyes and with strange lips rejoiced, Seeing these mine own slain of mine own, and me
 Made miserable above all miseries made,
 A grief among all women in the world,
 A name to be washed out with all men's tears.

CHORUS

Strengthen thy spirit ; is this not also a god,
 Chance, and the wheel of all necessities ?
 Hard things have fallen upon us from harsh gods, Whom lest worse hap rebuke we not for these.

ALTHÆA

My spirit is strong against itself, and I
For these things' sake cry out on mine own soul
That it endures outrage, and dolorous days,
And life, and this inexpiable impotence.
Weak am I, weak and shameful ; my breath drawn Shames me, and monstrous things and violent gods.
What shall atone ? what heal me ? what bring back Strength to the foot, light to the face ? what herb Assuage me ? what restore me ? what release ?
What strange thing eaten or drunken, O great gods,
Make me as you or as the beasts that feed,
Slay and divide and cherish their own hearts ?
For these ye show us ; and we less than these Have not wherewith to live as all these things Which all their lives fare after their own kind
As who doth well rejoicing ; but we ill,
Weeping or laughing, we whom eyesight fails,
Knowledge and light of face and perfect heart,
And hands we lack, and wit ; and all our days
Sin, and have hunger, and die infatuated.
For madness have ye given us and not health,
And sins whereof we know not ; and for these Death, and sudden destruction unaware.
What shall we say now ? what thing comes of us ?

CHORUS

Alas, for all this all men undergo.

ALTHÆA

Wherefore I will not that these twain, O gods,
Die as a dog dies, eaten of creeping things,
Abominable, a loathing ; but though dead
Shall they have honour and such funereal flame

As strews men's ashes in their enemies' face
And blinds their eyes who hate them : lest men say,
" Lo how they lie, and living had great kin,
And none of these hath pity of them, and none
Regards them lying, and none is wrung at heart,
None moved in spirit for them, naked and slain, Abhorred, abased, and no tears comfort them : "
And in the dark this grieve Eurythemis,
Hearing how these her sons come down to her Unburied, unavenged, as kinless men,
And had a queen their sister. That were shame Worse than this grief. Yet how to atone at all I know not ; seeing the love of my born son,
A new-made mother's new-born love, that grows
From the soft child to the strong man, now soft
Now strong as either, and still one sole same love, Strives with me, no light thing to strive withal ;
This love is deep, and natural to man's blood,
And ineffaceable with many tears.
Yet shall not these rebuke me though I die,
Nor she in that waste world with all her dead,
My mother, among the pale flocks fallen as leaves,
Folds of dead people, and alien from the sun ;
Nor lack some bitter comfort, some poor praise,
Being queen, to have borne her daughter like a queen,
Righteous ; and though mine own fire burn me too,
She shall have honour and these her sons, though dead.
But all the gods will, all they do, and we Not all we would, yet somewhat ; and one choice
We have, to live and do just deeds and die.

CHORUS

Terrible words she communes with, and turns
Swift fiery eyes in doubt against herself, . .
And murmurs as who talks in dreams with death.

ALTHÆA

For the unjust also dieth, and him all men
Hate, and himself abhors the unrighteousness,
And seeth his own dishonour intolerable.
But I being just, doing right upon myself,
Slay mine own soul, and no man born shames me.
For none constrains nor shall rebuke, being done, What none compelled me doing ; thus these things fare.

Ah, ah, that such things should so fare ; ah me,
That I am found to do them and endure,
Chosen and constrained to choose, and bear myself
Mine own wound through mine own flesh to the heart
Violently stricken, a spoiler and a spoil,
A ruin ruinous, fallen on mine own son.
Ah, ah, for me too as for these ; alas,
For that is done that shall be, and mine hand
Full of the deed, and full of blood mine eyes,
That shall see never nor touch anything
Save blood unstanch'd and fire unquenchable.

CHORUS

What wilt thou do ? what ails thee ? for the house Shakes ruinously ; wilt thou bring fire for it ?

ALTHÆA

Fire in the roofs, and on the lintels fire.
Lo ye, who stand and weave, between the doors,
There ; and blood drips from hand and thread, and stains
Threshold and raiment and me passing in Flecked with the sudden sanguine drops of death.

CHORUS

Alas that time is stronger than strong men,
Fate than all gods : and these are fallen on us.

ALTHÆA

A little since and I was glad ; and now
I never shall be glad or sad again.

CHORUS

Between two joys a grief grows unaware.

ALTHÆA

A little while and I shall laugh ; and then
I shall weep never and laugh not any more.

CHORUS

What shall be said ? for words are thorns to grief.
Withhold thyself a little and fear the gods.

ALTHÆA

Fear died when these were slain ; and I am as dead,
And fear is of the living ; these fear none.

CHORUS

Have pity upon all people for their sake.

ALTHÆA

It is done now ; shall I put back my day ?

CHORUS

An end is come, an end ; this is of God.

ALTHÆA

I am fire, and burn myself ; keep clear of fire,

CHORUS

The house is broken, is broken ; it shall not stand

ALTHÆA

Woe, woe for him that breaketh ; and a rod Smote it of old, and now the axe is here.

CHORUS

Not as with sundering of the earth
Nor as with cleaving of the sea
Nor fierce foreshadowings of a birth Nor flying dreams of death to be Nor loosening of the large world's girth
And quickening of the body of night,
And sound of thunder in men's ears
And fire of lightning in men's sight,
Fate, mother of desires and fears,
Bore unto men the law of tears ;
But sudden, an unfathered flame,
And broken out of night, she shone,
She, without body, without name,
In days forgotten and foregone ;
And heaven rang round her as she came Like smitten cymbals, and lay bare ;
Clouds and great stars, thunders and snows,
The blue sad fields and folds of air,
The life that breathes, the life that grows,
All wind, all fire, that burns or blows,
Even all these knew her : for she is great ;
The daughter of doom, the mother of death,
The sister of sorrow ; a lifelong weight
That no man's finger lighteneth,
Nor any god can lighten fate ;

A landmark seen across the way
Where one race treads as the other trod ;
An evil sceptre, an evil stay,
Wrought for a staff, wrought for a rod,
The bitter jealousy of God.

For death is deep as the sea,
And fate as the waves thereof.
Shall the waves take pity on thee
Or the southwind offer thee love ?
Wilt thou take the night for thy day
Or the darkness for light on thy way,
Till thou say in thine heart Enough ?
Behold, thou art over fair, thou art over wise ;
The sweetness of spring in thine hair, and the light in thine eyes.
The light of the spring in thine eyes, and the sound in thine ears ;
Yet thine heart shall wax heavy with sighs and thine eyelids with tears.
Wilt thou cover thine hair with gold, and with silver thy feet ?
Hast thou taken the purple to fold thee, and made thy mouth sweet ?
Behold, when thy face is made bare, he that loved thee shall hate ;
Thy face shall be no more fair at the fall of thy fate.
For thy life shall fall as a leaf and be shed as the rain ;
And the veil of thine head shall be grief ; and the crown shall be pain.

Ho, ye that wail, and ye that sing, make way
Till I be come among you. Hide your tears,

Ye little weepers, and your laughing lips,
Ye laughers for a little ; lo mine eyes
That outweep heaven at rainiest, and my mouth That laughs as gods laugh at us. Fate's are we,
Yet fate is ours a breathing-space ; yea, mine,
Fate is made mine for ever ; he is my son,
My bedfellow, my brother. You strong gods,
Give place unto me ; I am as any of you,
To give life and to take life. Thou, old earth,
That hast made man and unmade ; thou whose mouth
Looks red from the eaten fruits of thine own womb ;
Behold me with what lips upon what food
I feed and fill my body ; even with flesh
Made of my body. Lo, the fire I lit
I burn with fire to quench it ; yea, with flame
I burn up even the dust and ash thereof.

CHORUS

Woman, what fire is this thou burnest with ?

ALTHÆA

Yea to the bone, yea to the blood and all.

CHORUS

For this thy face and hair are as one fire.

ALTHÆA

A tongue that licks and beats upon the dust.

CHORUS

And in thine eyes are hollow light and heat.

ALTHÆA

Of flame not fed with hand or frankincense.

CHORUS

I fear thee for the trembling of thine eyes,

ALTHÆA

Neither with love they tremble nor for fear.

CHORUS

And thy mouth shuddering like a shot bird.

ALTHÆA

Not as the bride's mouth when man kisses it.

CHORUS

Nay, but what thing is this thing thou hast done?

ALTHÆA

Look, I am silent, speak your eyes for me.

CHORUS

I see a faint fire lightening from the hall.

ALTHÆA

Gaze, stretch your eyes, strain till the lids drop off.

CHORUS

Flushed pillars down the flickering vestibule.

ALTHÆA

Stretch with your necks like birds : cry, chirp as they.

CHORUS

And a long brand that blackens ; and white dust.

ALTHÆA

O children, what is this ye see ? your eyes
Are blinder than night's face at fall of moon.
That is my son, my flesh, my fruit of life,
My travail, and the year's weight of my womb.
Meleager, a fire enkindled of mine hands
And of mine hands extinguished ; this is he.

CHORUS

O gods, what word has flown out at thy mouth ?

ALTHÆA

I did this and I say this and I die.

CHORUS

Death stands upon the doorway of thy lips,
And in thy mouth has death set up his house.

ALTHÆA

O death, a little, a little while, sweet death,
Until I see the brand burnt down and die.

CHORUS

She reels as any reed under the wind,
And cleaves unto the ground with staggering feet.

ALTHÆA

Girls, one thing will I say and hold my peace.
I that did this will weep not nor cry out,
Cry ye and weep : I will not call on gods,
Call ye on them ; I will not pity man,
Shew ye your pity. I know not if I live ;
Save that I feel the fire upon my face
And on my cheek the burning of a brand.

Yea the smoke bites me, yea I drink the steam
With nostril and with eyelid and with lip
Insatiate and intolerant ; and mine hands
Burn, and fire feeds upon mine eyes ; I reel
As one made drunk with living, whence he draws Drunken delight ; yet I, though mad for joy, Loathe my long living and am waxen red
As with the shadow of shed blood ; behold,
I am kindled with the flames that fade in him,
I am swollen with subsiding of his veins,
I am flooded with his ebbing ; my lit eyes
Flame with the falling fire that leaves his lids Bloodless ; my cheek is luminous with blood
Because his face is ashen. Yet, O child,
Son, first-born, fairest—O sweet mouth, sweet eyes,
That drew my life out through my suckling breast,
That shone and clove mine heart through—O soft knees

Clinging, O tender treadings of soft feet,
Cheeks warm with little kissings—O child, child, What have we made each other ? Lo, I felt Thy weight cleave to me, a burden of beauty, O son, Thy cradled brows and loveliest loving lips,
The floral hair, the little lightening eyes,
And all thy goodly glory ; with mine hands Delicately I fed thee, with my tongue
Tenderly spake, saying, Verily in God's time,
For all the little likeness of thy limbs,
Son, I shall make thee a kingly man to fight,
A lordly leader ; and hear before I die,
“ She bore the goodliest sword of all the world.”
Oh ! oh ! For all my life turns round on me ;
I am severed from myself, my name is gone,
My name that was a healing, it is changed,

My name is a consuming. From this time,
Though mine eyes reach to the end of all these things,
My lips shall not unfasten till I die.

SEMICHORUS

She has filled with sighing the city,
And the ways thereof with tears ;
She arose, she girdled her sides,
She set her face as a bride's ;
She wept, and she had no pity ;
Trembled, and felt no fears.

SEMICHORUS

Her eyes were clear as the sun,
Her brows were fresh as the day ;
She girdled herself with gold,
Her robes were manifold ;
But the days of her worship are done,
Her praise is taken away.

SEMICHORUS

For she set her hand to the fire,
With her mouth she kindled the same
As the mouth of a flute-player,
So was the mouth of her ;
With the might of her strong desire
She blew the breath of the flame.

SEMICHORUS

She set her hand to the wood,
She took the fire in her hand ;
As one who is nigh to death,
She panted with strange breath ;
She opened her lips unto blood,
She breathed and kindled the brand.

SEMICHORUS

As a wood-dove newly shot,
 She sobbed and lifted her breast ;
 She sighed and covered her eyes,
 Filling her lips with sighs ;
 She sighed, she withdrew herself not,
 She refrained not, taking not rest ;

SEMICHORUS

But as the wind which is drouth,
 And as the air which is death,
 As storm that severeth ships,
 Her breath severing her lips,
 The breath came forth of her mouth
 And the fire came forth of her breath.

SECOND MESSENGER

Queen, and you maidens, there is come on us
 A thing more deadly than the face of death ;
 Meleager the good lord is as one slain.

SEMICHORUS

Without sword, without sword is he stricken ;
 Slain, and slain without hand.

For as keen ice divided of the sun
 His limbs divide, and as thawed snow the flesh
 Thaws from off all his body to the hair.

SEMICHORUS

He wastes as the embers quicken ;
 With the brand he fades as a brand.

SECOND MESSENGER

Even while they sang and all drew hither and he Lifted both hands to crown the Arcadian's hair
And fix the looser leaves, both hands fell down.

SEMICHORUS

With rending of cheek and of hair
Lament ye, mourn for him, weep.

SECOND MESSENGER

Straightway the crown slid off and smote on earth,
First fallen ; and he, grasping his own hair, groaned
And cast his raiment round his face and fell.

SEMICHORUS

Alas for visions that were,
And soothsayings spoken in sleep.

SECOND MESSENGER

But the king twitched his reins in and leapt down And caught him, crying out twice " O child " and thrice,
So that men's eyelids thickened with their tears.

SEMICHORUS

Lament with a long lamentation,
Cry, for an end is at hand.

SECOND MESSENGER

O son, he said, son, lift thine eyes, draw breath, Pity me ; but Meleager with sharp lips
Gasped, and his face waxed like as sunburnt grass.

SEMICHORUS

Cry aloud, O thou kingdom, O nation,
O stricken, a ruinous land.

SECOND MESSENGER

Whereat king Ceneus, straightening feeble knees,
With feeble hands heaved up a lessening weight,
And laid him sadly in strange hands, and wept.

SEMICHORUS

Thou art smitten, her lord, her desire,
Thy dear blood wasted as rain.

SECOND MESSENGER

And they with tears and rendings of the beard Bear hither a breathing body, wept upon
And lightening at each footfall, sick to death.

SEMICHORUS

Thou madest thy sword as a fire,
With fire for a sword thou art slain.

SECOND MESSENGER

And lo, the feast turned funeral, and the crowns
Fallen ; and the huntress and the hunter trapped ;
And weeping and changed faces and veiled hair.

MELEAGER

Let your hands meet
Round the weight of my head ;
Lift ye my feet
As the feet of the dead ;
For the flesh of my body is molten, the limbs of it molten as lead.

CHORUS

O thy luminous face.
Thine imperious eyes !
O the grief, O the grace,
As of day when it dies !

Who is this bending over thee, lord, with tears and suppression of sighs ?

MELEAGER

Is a bride so fair ?
Is a maid so meek ?
With unchapleted hair,
With unfileted cheek, Atalanta, the pure among women, whose name is as blessing to speak.

ATALANTA

I would that with feet
Unsandalled, unshod,
Overbold, overfleet,
I had swum not nor trod
From Arcadia to Calydon northward, a blast of the envy of God.

MELEAGER

Unto each man his fate ;
Unto each as he saith
In whose fingers the weight
Of the world is as breath ;
Yet I would that in clamour of battle mine hands had laid hold upon death.

CHORUS

Not with cleaving of shields
 And their clash in thine ear,
 When the lord of fought fields
 Breaketh spearshaft from spear, Thou art broken, our lord, thou art broken, with travail and labour and fear.

MELEAGER

Would God he had found me
 Beneath fresh boughs !
 Would God he had bound me
 Unawares in mine house,
 With light in mine eyes, and songs in my lips, and a crown on my brows !

CHORUS

Whence art thou sent from us ?
 Whither thy goal ?
 How art thou rent from us,
 Thou that wert whole,
 As with severing of eyelids and eyes, as with sundering of body and soul !

MELEAGER

My heart is within me
 As an ash in the fire ;
 Whosoever hath seen me,
 Without lute, without lyre, Shall sing of me grievous things, even things that were ill to desire.

Who shall raise thee
From the house of the dead ?
Or what man praise thee
That thy praise may be said ?
Alas thy beauty ! alas thy body ! alas thine head !

MELEAGER

But thou, O mother,
The dreamer of dreams,
Wilt thou bring forth another
To feel the sun's beams
When I move among shadows a shadow, and wail by impassable streams ?

What thing wilt thou leave me
Now this thing is done ?
A man wilt thou give me,
A son for my son,
For the light of mine eyes, the desire of my life, the desirable one ?

CHORUS

Thou wert glad above others,
Yea, fair beyond word ;
Thou wert glad among mothers ;
For each man that heard
Of thee, praise there was added unto thee, as wings to the feet of a bird.

Who shall give back
Thy face of old years,
With travail made black,
Grown grey among fears,
Mother of sorrow, mother of cursing, mother of tears?

MELEAGER

Though thou art as fire
Fed with fuel in vain,
My delight, my desire,
Is more chaste than the rain,
More pure than the dewfall, more holy than stars are that live without stain.

ATALANTA

I would that as water
My life's blood had thawed,
Or as winter's wan daughter
Leaves lowland and lawn Spring-stricken, or ever mine eyes had beheld thee made dark in thy dawn.

When thou dravest the men
Of the chosen of Thrace,
None turned him again
Nor endured he thy face Clothed round with the blush of the battle, with light from a terrible place.

CENEUS

Thou shouldst die as he dies
For whom none sheddeth tears ;
Filling thine eyes
And fulfilling thine ears
With the brilliance of battle, the bloom and the beauty, the splendour of spears.

CHORUS

In the ears of the world
It is sung, it is told,
And the light thereof hurled
And the noise thereof rolled From the Acroceraunian snow to the ford of the fleece of gold.

MELEAGER

Would God ye could carry me Forth of all these ;
Heap sand and bury me
By the Chersonese
Where the thundering Bosphorus answers the thunder of Pontic seas.

Dost thou mock at our praise
And the singing begun
And the men of strange days Praising my son
In the folds of the hills of home, high places of Calydon?

MELEAGER

For the dead man no home is ;
Ah, better to be What the flower of the foam is
In fields of the sea,
That the sea-waves might be as my raiment, the gulf-stream a garment for me.

CHORUS

Who shall seek thee and bring
And restore thee thy day,
When the dove dipt her wing
And the oars won their way Where the narrowing Symplegades whitened the straits of Propontis with spray?

MELEAGER

Will ye crown me my tomb
Or exalt me my name,
Now my spirits consume,
Now my flesh is a flame?
Let the sea slake it once, and men speak of me sleeping to praise me or shame.

CHORUS

Turn back now, turn thee,
As who turns him to wake ;
Though the life in thee burn thee,
Couldst thou bathe it and slake
Where the sea-ridge of Helle hangs heavier, and east upon west waters break?

MELEAGER

Would the winds blow me back
Or the waves hur me home ?
Ah, to touch in the track
Where the pine learnt to roam Cold girdles and crowns of the sea-gods, cool blossoms of water and foam !

CHORUS

The gods may release
That they made fast ;
Thy soul shall have ease
In thy limbs at the last ;
But what shall they give thee for life, sweet life that is overpast ?

MELEAGER

Not the life of men's veins,
Not of flesh that conceives ;
But the grace that remains,
The fair beauty that cleaves
To the life of the rains in the grasses, the life of the dews on the leaves.

CHORUS

Thou wert helmsman and chief ;
Wilt thou turn in an hour,
Thy limbs to the leaf,
Thy face to the flower,
Thy blood to the water, thy soul to the gods who divide and devour ?

MELEAGER

The years are hungry,
 They wail all their days ;
 The gods wax angry
 And weary of praise ;
 And who shall bridle their lips ? and who shall straiter their ways ?

CHORUS

The gods guard over us
 With sword and with rod ;
 Weaving shadow to cover us,
 Heaping the sod,
 That law may fulfil herself wholly, to darken man's face before God.

MELEAGER

O holy head of Æneus, lo thy son
 Guiltless, yet red from alien guilt, yet foul
 With kinship of contaminated lives,
 Lo, for their blood I die ; and mine own blood
 For bloodshedding of mine is mixed therewith,
 That death may not discern me from my kin.
 Yet with clean heart I die and faultless hand,
 Not shamefully ; thou therefore of thy love
 Salute me, and bid fare among the dead
 Well, as the dead fare ; for the best man dead Fares sadly ; nathless I now faring well
 Pass without fear where nothing is to fear
 Having thy love about me and thy goodwill,
 O father, among dark places and men dead.

CENEUS

Child, I salute thee with sad heart and tears,
And bid thee comfort, being a perfect man
In fight, and honourable in the house of peace.
The gods give thee fair wage and dues of death,
And me brief days and ways to come at thee.

MELEAGER

Pray thou thy days be long before thy death,
And full of ease and kingdom ; seeing in death
There is no comfort and none aftergrowth,
Nor shall one thence look up and see day's dawn
Nor light upon the land whither I go.
Live thou and take thy fill of days and die
When thy day comes ; and make not much of death
Lest ere thy day thou reap an evil thing.
Thou too, the bitter mother and mother-plague
Of this my weary body—thou too, queen,
The source and end, the sower and the scythe,
The rain that ripens and the drought that slays,
The sand that swallows and the spring that feeds,
To make me and unmake me—thou, I say,
Althæa, since my father's ploughshare, drawn Through fatal seedland of a female field,
Furrowed thy body, whence a wheaten ear
Strong from the sun and fragrant from the rains
I sprang and cleft the closure of thy womb,
Mother, I dying with unforgetful tongue Hail thee as holy and worship thee as just Who art unjust and unholy ; and with my knees
Would worship, but thy fire and subtlety, Dissundering them, devour me ; for these limbs
Are as light dust and crumbings from mine urn

Before the fire has touched them ; and my face
As a dead leaf or dead foot's mark on snow,
And all this body a broken barren tree
That was so strong, and all this flower of life
Disbranched and desecrated miserably,
And minished all that god-like muscle and might
And lesser than a man's : for all my veins
Fail me, and all mine ashen life burns down.
I would thou hadst let me live ; but gods averse,
But fortune, and the fiery feet of change,
And time, these would not, these tread out my life,
These and not thou ; me too thou hast loved, and I Thee ; but this death was mixed with all my life,
Mine end with my beginning : and this law,
This only, slays me, and not my mother at all.
And let no brother or sister grieve too sore,
Nor melt their hearts out on me with their tears,
Since extreme love and sorrowing overmuch
Vex the great gods, and overloving men
Slay and are slain for love's sake ; and this house Shall bear much better children ; why should these Weep ? but in patience let them live their lives
And mine pass by forgotten : thou alone,
Mother, thou sole and only, thou not these,
Keep me in mind a little when I die
Because I was thy first-born ; let thy soul Pity me, pity even me gone hence and dead,
Though thou wert wroth, and though thou bear again
Much happier sons, and all men later born Exceedingly excel me ; yet do thou Forget not, nor think shame ; I was thy son.
Time was I did not shame thee ; and time was I thought to live and make thee honourable
With deeds as great as these men's ; but they live,

These, and I die ; and what thing should have been Surely I know not ; yet I charge thee, seeing
I am dead already, love me not the less,
Me, O my mother ; I charge thee by these gods,
My father's, and that holier breast of thine,
By these that see me dying, and that which nursed,
Love me not less, thy first-born : though grief come,
Grief only, of me, and of all these great joy,
And shall come always to thee ; for thou knowest,
O mother, O breasts that bare me, for ye know,
O sweet head of my mother, sacred eyes,
Ye know my soul albeit I sinned, ye know
Albeit I kneel not neither touch thy knees,
But with my lips I kneel, and with my heart
I fall about thy feet and worship thee.
And ye farewell now, all my friends ; and ye,
Kinsmen, much younger and glorious more than I,
Sons of my mother's sister ; and all farewell
That were in Colchis with me, and bare down
The waves and wars that met us : and though times
Change, and though now I be not anything, Forget not me among you, what I did
In my good time ; for even by all those days,
Those days and this, and your own living souls,
And by the light and luck of you that live,
And by this miserable spoil, and me
Dying, I beseech you, let my name not die.
But thou, dear, touch me with thy rose-like hands.
And fasten up mine eyelids with thy mouth,
A bitter kiss ; and grasp me with thine arms,
Printing with heavy lips my light waste flesh,
Made light and thin by heavy-handed fate,
And with thine holy maiden eyes drop dew,
Drop tears for dew upon me who am dead,

Me who have loved thee ; seeing without sin done
 I am gone down to the empty weary house Where no flesh is nor beauty nor swift eyes
 Nor sound of mouth nor might of hands and feet.
 But thou, dear, hide my body with thy veil,
 And with thy raiment cover foot and head,
 And stretch thyself upon me and touch hands
 With hands and lips with lips : be pitiful
 As thou art maiden perfect ; let no man
 Defile me to despise me, saying, This man Died woman-wise, a woman's offering, slain
 Through female fingers in his woof of life, Dishonourable ; for thou hast honoured me.
 And now for God's sake kiss me once and twice
 And let me go ; for the night gathers me,
 And in the night shall no man gather fruit

ATALANTA

Hail thou : but I with heavy face and feet
 Turn homeward and am gone out of thine eyes.

CHORUS

Who shall contend with his lords
 Or cross them or do them wrong ?
 Who shall bind them as with cords ?
 Who shall tame them as with song ?
 Who shall smite them as with swords ?
 For the hands of their kingdom are strong.

ERECHTHEUS

MOTHER of life and death and all men's days,
 Earth, whom I chief of all men born would bless,
 And call thee with more loving lips than theirs Mother, for of this very body of thine
 And living blood I have my breath and live,
 Behold me, even thy son, me crowned of men,
 Me made thy child by that strong cunning God
 Who fashions fire and iron, who begat
 Me for a sword and beacon-fire on thee,
 Me fosterling of Pallas, in her shade
 Reared, that I first might pay the nursing debt, Hallowing her fame with flower of third-year feasts,
 And first bow down the bridled strength of steeds
 To lose the wild wont of their birth, and bear Clasp of man's knees and steerage of his hand
 Or fourfold service of his fire-swift wheels
 That whirl the four-yoked chariot ; me the king
 Who stand before thee naked now, and cry,
 O holy and general mother of all men born,
 But mother most and motherliest of mine,
 Earth, for I ask thee rather of all the Gods,
 What have we done ? what word mistimed or work Hath winged the wild feet of this timeless curse
 To fall as fire upon us ? Lo, I stand

Here on this brow's crown of the city's head
That crowns its lovely body, till death's hour
Waste it ; but now the dew of dawn and birth Is fresh upon it from thy womb, and we Behold it born how beauteous ; one day more
I see the world's wheel of the circling sun Roll up rejoicing to regard on earth
This one thing goodliest, fair as heaven or he,
Worth a God's gaze or strife of Gods ; but now
Would this day's ebb of their spent wave of strife Sweep it to sea, wash it on wreck, and leave
A costless thing contemned ; and in our stead,
Where these walls were and sounding streets of men,
Make wide a waste for tongueless water-herds
And spoil of ravening fishes ; that no more Should men say, Here was Athens. This shalt thou Sustain not, nor thy son endure to see,
Nor thou to live and look on ; for the womb
Bare me not base that bare me miserable,
To hear this loud brood of the Thracian foam
Break its broad strength of billowy-beating war
Here, and upon it as a blast of death
Blowing, the keen wrath of a fire-souled king,
A strange growth grafted on our natural soil,
A root of Thrace in Eleusinian earth
Set for no comfort to the kindly land,
Son of the sea's lord and our first-born foe,
Eumolpus ; nothing sweet in ears of thine
The music of his making, nor a song
Toward hopes of ours auspicious ; for the note Rings as for death oracular to thy sons
That goes before him on the sea-wind blown Full of this charge laid on me, to put out
The brief light kindled of mine own child's life,

Or with this helmsman hand that steers the state
Run right on the under shoal and ridge of death
The populous ship with all its fraughtage gone
And sails that were to take the wind of time Rent, and the tackling that should hold out fast
In confluent surge of loud calamities Broken, with spars of rudders and lost oars
That were to row toward harbour and find rest
In some most glorious haven of all the world
And else may never near it : such a song
The Gods have set his lips on fire withal
Who threatens now in all their names to bring Ruin ; but none of these, thou knowest, have I Chid with my tongue or cursed at heart for grief, Knowing how the soul runs reinless on sheer death
Whose grief or joy takes part against the Gods.
And what they will is more than our desire,
And their desire is more than what we will.
For no man's will and no desire of man's Shall stand as doth a God's will. Yet, O fair Mother, that seest me how I cast no word
Against them, plead no reason, crave no cause,
Boast me not blameless, nor bewEEP me wronged,
By this fair wreath of towers we have decked thee with,
This chaplet that we give thee woven of walls,
This girdle of gate and temple and citadel Drawn round beneath thy bosom, and fast linked
As to thine heart's root—this dear crown of thine.
This present light, this city—be not thou Slow to take heed nor slack to strengthen her,
Fare we so short-lived howsoe'er, and pay
What price we may to ransom thee thy town,
Not me my life ; but thou that diest not, thou,

Though all our house die for this people's sake,
Keep thou for ours thy crown our city, guard
And give it life the lovelier that we died.

CHORUS.

Sun, that hast lightened and loosed by thy might Ocean and Earth from the lordship of night, Quickening with vision his eye that was veiled,
Freshening the force in her heart that had failed,
That sister fettered and blinded brother Should have sight by thy grace and delight of each other,

Behold now and see

What profit is given them of thee ;
What wrath has enkindled with madness of mind
Her limbs that were bounden, his face that was blind,
To be locked as in wrestle together, and lighten
With fire that shall darken thy fire in the sky, Body to body and eye against eye

In a war against kind,

Till the bloom of her fields and her high hills whiten
With the foam of his waves more high.

For the sea-marks set to divide of old
The kingdoms to Ocean and Earth assigned,
The hoar sea-fields from the cornfields' gold,
His wine-bright waves from her vineyards' fold,

Frail forces we find

To bridle the spirit of Gods or bind

Till the heat of their hearts wax cold.

But the peace that was stablished between them to stand

Is rent now in twain by the strength of his hand
Who stirs up the storm of his sons overbold
To pluck from fight what he lost of right,

By council and judgment of Gods that spake
And gave great Pallas the strife's fair stake,
The lordship and love of the lovely land,
The grace of the town that hath on it for crown
 But a headband to wear
 Of violets one-hued with her hair :
For the vales and the green high places of earth
 Hold nothing so fair,
And the depths of the sea bear no such birth
 Of the manifold births they bear.
Too well, too well was the great stake worth
A strife divine for the Gods to judge,
A crowned God's triumph, a foiled God's grudge,
Though the loser be strong and the victress wise
Who played long since for so large a prize,
The fruitful immortal anointed adored
Dear city of men without master or lord,
Fair fortress and fostress of sons born free,
Who stand in her sight and in thine, O sun,
Slaves of no man, subjects of none ;
A wonder enthroned on the hills and sea,
A maiden crowned with a fourfold glory
That none from the pride of her head may rend, Violet and olive-leaf purple and hoary,
Song-wreath and story the fairest of fame,
Flowers that the winter can blast not or bend ;
A light upon earth as the sun's own flame,
 A name as his name,
 Athens, a praise without end.

A noise is arisen against us of waters, [Str. 1.

 A sound as of battle come up from the sea.
Strange hunters are hard on us, hearts without pity;
They have staked their nets round the fair young city,

That the sons of her strength and her virgin daughters

Should find not whither alive to flee.

And we know not yet of the word unwritten, [Ant. 1.

The doom of the Pythian we have not heard ;
From the navel of earth and the veiled mid altar
We wait for a token with hopes that falter,
With fears that hang on our hearts thought-smitten
Lest her tongue be kindled with no good word.

O thou not born of the womb, nor bred [Str. 2.

In the bride-night's warmth of a changed God's bed, But thy life as a lightning was flashed from the light of thy father's head,

O chief God's child by a motherless birth,

If aught in thy sight we indeed be worth,

Keep death from us thou, that art none of the Gods of the dead under earth.

Thou that hast power on us, save, if thou wilt ; [Ant. 2.

Let the blind wave breach not thy wall scarce built ;

But bless us not so as by bloodshed, impute not for grace to us guilt,

Nor by price of pollution of blood set us free ;

Let the hands be taintless that clasp thy knee,

Nor a maiden be slain to redeem for a maiden her shrine from the sea.

O earth, O sun, turn back [Str. 3.

Full on his deadly track

Death, that would smite you black and mar your creatures,

And with one hand disroot

All tender flower and fruit,

With one strike blind and mute the heaven's fair features.

Pluck out the eyes of morn, and make Silence in the east and blackness whence the bright songs break.

Help, earth, help, heaven, that hear [Ant. 3.
The song-notes of our fear,
Shrewd notes and shrill, not clear or joyful-sounding ;
Hear, highest of Gods, and stay
Death on his hunter's way,
Full on his forceless prey his beagles hounding ;
Break thou his bow, make short his hand, Maim his fleet foot whose passage kills the living land.

Let a third wave smite not us, father, [Str. 4
Long since sore smitten of twain,
Lest the house of thy son's son perish
And his name be barren on earth.

Whose race wilt thou comfort rather
If none to thy son remain ?
Whose seed wilt thou choose to cherish
If his be cut off in the birth ?

For the first fair graft of his grafting [Ant. 4
Was rent from its maiden root
By the strong swift hand of a lover
Who fills the night with his breath ;

• On the lip of the stream low-laughing
Her green soft virginal shoot
Was plucked from the stream-side cover
By the grasp of a love like death.

For a God's was the mouth that kissed her [Str. 5
Who speaks, and the leaves lie dead,
When winter awakes as at warning
To the sound of his foot from Thrace.

Nor happier the bed of her sister
Though Love's self laid her abed

ERECHTHEUS

O, of what breath shall such a word be made,
Or from what heart find utterance? Would my tongue
Were rent forth rather from the quivering root Than made as fire or poison thus for thee.

PRAXITHEA

But if thou speak of blood, and I that hear
Be chosen of all for this land's love to die
And save to thee thy city, know this well,
Happiest I hold me of her seed alive.

ERECHTHEUS

O sun that seest, what saying was this of thine,
God, that thy power has breathed into my lips?
For from no sunlit shrine darkling it came.

What portent from the mid oracular place
Hath smitten thee so like a curse that flies
Wingless, to waste men with its plagues? yet speak.

ERECHTHEUS

Thy blood the Gods require not; take this first.

PRAXITHEA

To me than thee more grievous this should sound.

ERECHTHEUS

That word rang truer and bitterer than it knew.

PRAXITHEA

This is not then thy grief, to see me die?

ERECHTHEUS

Die shalt thou not, yet give thy blood to death.

PRAXITHEA

If this ring worse I know not ; strange it rang.

ERECHTHEUS

Alas, thou knowest not ; woe is me that know.

PRAXITHEA

And woe shall mine be, knowing ; yet halt not here.

ERECHTHEUS

Guiltless of blood this state may stand no more.

PRAXITHEA

Firm let it stand whatever bleed or fall.

ERECHTHEUS

O Gods, that I should say it shall and weep.

PRAXITHEA

Weep, and say this ? no tears should bathe such words.

ERECHTHEUS

Woe's me that I must weep upon them, woe.

PRAXITHEA

What stain is on them for thy tears to cleanse ?

ERECHTHEUS

A stain of blood unpurgeable with tears.

PRAXITHEA

Whence ? for thou sayest it is and is not mine.

ERECHTHEUS

Hear then and know why only of all men I
That bring such news as mine is, I alone
Must wash good words with weeping ; I and thou, Woman, must wail to hear men sing, must groan
To see their joy who love us ; all our friends
Save only we, and all save we that love
This holiness of Athens, in our sight
Shall lift their hearts up, in our hearing praise Gods whom we may not ; for to these they give Life of their children, flower of all their seed,
For all their travail fruit, for all their hopes Harvest ; but we for all our good things, we Have at their hands which fill all these folk full Death, barrenness, child-slaughter, curses, cares, Sea-leaguer and land-shipwreck ; which of these,
Which wilt thou first give thanks for ? all are thine.

PRAXITHEA

What first they give who give this city good,
For that first given to save it I give thanks
First, and thanks heartier from a happier tongue,
More than for any my peculiar grace
Shown me and not my country ; next for this That none of all these but for all these I Must bear my burden, and no eye but mine
Weep of all women's in this broad land born
Who see their land's deliverance ; but much more,
But most for this I thank them most of all,
That this their edge of doom is chosen to pierce
My heart and not my country's ; for the sword
Drawn to smite there and sharpened for such stroke Should wound more deep than any turned on me.

CHORUS

Well fares the land that bears such fruit, and well
The spirit that breeds such thought and speech in man.

ERECHTHEUS

O woman, thou hast shamed my heart with thine,
To show so strong a patience ; take then all ;
For all shall break not nor bring down thy soul.
The word that journeying to the bright God's shrine
Who speaks askance and darkling, but his name Hath in it slaying and ruin broad writ out,
I heard, hear thou : thus saith he ; There shall die
One soul for all this people ; from thy womb
Came forth the seed that here on dry bare ground
Death's hand must sow untimely, to bring forth
Nor blade nor shoot in season, being by name
To the under Gods made holy, who require
For this land's life her death and maiden blood
To save a maiden city. Thus I heard,
And thus with all said leave thee ; for save this No word is left us, and no hope alive.

CHORUS

He hath uttered too surely his wrath not obscurely, nor wrapt as in mists of his breath, [Str.
The master that lightens not hearts he enlightens, but gives them foreknowledge of death.
As a bolt from the cloud hath he sent it aloud and proclaimed it afar,
From the darkness and height of the horror of night hath he shown us a star.
Star may I name it and err not, or flame shall I say, Born of the womb that was born for the tomb of the day ?

O Night, whom other but thee for mother, and Death for the father, Night, [Ant.] Shall we dream to discover, save thee and thy lover, to bring such a sorrow to sight?
From the slumberless bed for thy bedfellow spread and his bride under earth Hast thou brought forth a wild and insatiable child, an unbearable birth.
Fierce are the fangs of his wrath, and the pangs that they give;
None is there, none that may bear them, not one that would live.

CHTHONIA

Forth of the fine-spun folds of veils that hide
My virgin chamber toward the full-faced sun
I set my foot not moved of mine own will,
Unmaidenlike, nor with unprompted speed
Turn eyes too broad or doglike unabashed
On reverend heads of men and thence on thine, Mother, now covered from the light and bowed
As hers who mourns her brethren; but what grief Bends thy blind head thus earthward, holds thus mute,
I know not till thy will be to lift up Toward mine thy sorrow-muffled eyes and speak;
And till thy will be would I know this not.

Old men and childless, or if sons ye have seen
And daughters, elder-born were these than mine,
Look on this child, how young of years, how sweet,
How scant of time and green of age her life Puts forth its flower of girlhood; and her gait
How virginal, how soft her speech, her eyes

How seemly smiling ; wise should all ye be,
All honourable and kindly men of age ;
Now give me counsel and one word to say That I may bear to speak, and hold my peace
Henceforth for all time even as all ye now.
Dumb are ye all, bowed eyes and tongueless mouths,
Unprofitable ; if this were wind that speaks,
As much its breath might move you. Thou then,
child,
Set thy sweet eyes on mine ; look through them well ;
Take note of all the writing of my face
As of a tablet or a tomb inscribed
That bears me record ; lifeless now, my life
Thereon that was think written ; brief to read, Yet shall the scripture sear thine eyes as fire
And leave them dark as dead men's. Nay, dear child, Thou hast no skill, my maiden, and no sense
To take such knowledge ; sweet is all thy lore,
And all this bitter ; yet I charge thee learn
And love and lay this up within thine heart,
Even this my word ; less ill it were to die
Than live and look upon thy mother dead,
Thy mother-land that bare thee ; no man slain
But him who hath seen it shall men count unblest, None blest as him who hath died and seen it not.

CHTHONIA

That sight some God keep from me though I die.

PRAXITHEA

A God from thee shall keep it ; fear not this.

CHTHONIA

Thanks all my life long shall he gain of mine.

PRAXITHEA

Short gain of all yet shall he get of thee.

CHTHONIA

Brief be my life, yet so long live my thanks.

PRAXITHEA

So long? so little; how long shall they live?

CHTHONIA

Even while I see the sunlight and thine eyes.

PRAXITHEA

Would mine might shut ere thine upon the sun.

CHTHONIA

For me thou prayest unkindly; change that prayer.

PRAXITHEA

Not well for me thou sayest, and ill for thee.

CHTHONIA

Nay, for me well, if thou shalt live, not I.

PRAXITHEA

How live, and lose these loving looks of thine?

CHTHONIA

It seems I too, thus praying, then, love thee not.

PRAXITHEA

Lov'st thou not life? what wouldst thou do to die?

CHTHONIA

Well, but not more than all things, love I life.

PRAXITHEA

And fain wouldst keep it as thine age allows?

CHTHONIA

Fain would I live, and fain not fear to die.

PRAXITHEA

That I might bid thee die not ! Peace ; no more.

CHORUS

A godlike race of grief the Gods have set
For these to run matched equal, heart with heart.

PRAXITHEA

Child of the chief of Gods, and maiden crowned,
Queen of these towers and fostress of their king,
Pallas, and thou my father's holiest head,
A living well of life nor stanch'd nor stained,
O God Cephissus, thee too charge I next,
Be to me judge and witness ; nor thine ear
Shall now my tongue invoke not, thou to me
Most hateful of things holy, mournfullest
Of all old sacred streams that wash the world,
Ilissus, on whose marge at flowery play
A whirlwind-footed bridegroom found my child
And rapt her northward where mine elder-born Keeps now the Thracian bride-bed of a God Intolerable to seamen, but this land
Finds him in hope for her sake favourable,
A gracious son by wedlock ; hear me then Thou likewise, if with no faint heart or false
The word I say be said, the gift be given,
Which might I choose I had rather die than give Or speak and die not. Ere thy limbs were made

Or thine eyes lightened, strife, thou knowest, my child,

'Twixt God and God had risen, which heavenlier
name

Should here stand hallowed, whose more liberal grace
Should win this city's worship, and our land

To which of these do reverence ; first the lord Whose wheels make lightnings of the foam-flowered
sea

Here on this rock, whose height brow-bound with dawn

Is head and heart of Athens, one sheer blow Struck, and beneath the triple wound that shook

The stony sinews and stark roots of the earth
Sprang toward the sun a sharp salt fount, and sank

Where lying it lights the heart up of the hill,
A well of bright strange brine ; but she that reared

Thy father with her same chaste fostering hand
Set for a sign against it in our guard

The holy bloom of the olive, whose hoar leaf
High in the shadowy shrine of Pandrosus

Hath honour of us all ; and of this strife

The twelve most high Gods judging with one mouth Acclaimed her victress ; wroth whereat, as wronged

That she should hold from him such prize and place,
The strong king of the tempest-rifted sea

Loosed reinless on the low Thriasian plain

The thunders of his chariots, swallowing stunned Earth, beasts, and men, the whole blind foundering
world

That was the sun's at morning, and ere noon

Death's ; nor this only prey fulfilled his mind ;

For with strange crook-toothed prows of Carian folk
Who snatch a sanguine life out of the sea,

Thieves keen to pluck their bloody fruit of spoil
From the grey fruitless waters, has their God
Furrowed our shores to waste them, as the fields
Were landward harried from the north with swords Aonian, sickles of man-slaughtering edge
Ground for no hopeful harvest of live grain Against us in Bœotia ; these being spent,
Now this third time his wind of wrath has blown Right on this people a mightier wave of war,
Three times more huge a ruin ; such its ridge
Foam-rimmed and hollow like the womb of heaven,
But black for shining, and with death for life
Big now to birth and ripe with child, full-blown With fear and fruit of havoc, takes the sun
Out of our eyes, darkening the day, and blinds
The fair sky's face unseasonably with change,
A cloud in one and billow of battle, a surge High reared as heaven with monstrous surf of spears
That shake on us their shadow, till men's heads Bend, and their hearts even with its forward wind Wither, so blasts all seed in them of hope
Its breath and blight of presage ; yea, even now
The winter of this wind out of the deeps
Makes cold our trust in comfort of the Gods
And blind our eye toward outlook ; yet not here, Here never shall the Thracian plant on high
For ours his father's symbol, nor with wreaths
A strange folk wreath it upright set and crowned Here where our natural people born behold
The golden Gorgon of the shield's defence
That screens their flowering olive, nor strange Gods
Be graced, and Pallas here have praise no more.
And if this be not I must give my child,
Thee, mine own very blood and spirit of mine,

Thee to be slain. Turn from me, turn thine eyes
A little from me ; I can bear not yet
To see if still they smile on mine or no,
If fear make faint the light in them, or faith Fix them as stars of safety. Need have we,
Sore need of stars that set not in mid storm,
Lights that outlast the lightnings ; yet my heart Endures not to make proof of thine or these,
Not yet to know thee whom I made, and bare
What manner of woman ; had I borne thee man,
I had made no question of thine eyes or heart,
Nor spared to read the scriptures in them writ,
Wert thou my son ; yet couldst thou then but die Fallen in sheer fight by chance and charge of spears
And have no more of memory, fill no tomb
More famous than thy fellows in fair field,
Where many share the grave, many the praise ;
But one crown shall one only girl my child Wear, dead for this dear city, and give back life
To him that gave her and to me that bare,
And save two sisters living ; and all this,
Is this not all good ? I shall give thee, child, Thee but by fleshly nature mine, to bleed
For dear land's love ; but if the city fall
What part is left me in my children then ?
But if it stand and thou for it lie dead,
Then hast thou in it a better part than we,
A holier portion than we all ; for each
Hath but the length of his own life to live,
And this most glorious mother-land on earth
To worship till that life have end ; but thine
Hath end no more than hers ; thou, dead, shalt live Till Athens live not ; for the days and nights
Given of thy bare brief dark dividual life,

Shall she give thee half all her agelong own
And all its glory ; for thou givest her these ;
But with one hand she takes and gives again
More than I gave or she requires of thee.
Come therefore, I will make thee fit for death,
I that could give thee, dear, no gift at birth Save of light life that breathes and bleeds, even I Will help thee to this better gift than mine
And lead thee by this little living hand
That death shall make so strong, to that great end Whence it shall lighten like a God's, and strike Dead the strong heart of battle that would break
Athens ; but ye, pray for this land, old men,
That it may bring forth never child on earth
To love it less, for none may more, than we.

CHORUS

Out of the north wind grief came forth, [Str. 1.
And the shining of a sword out of the sea.
Yea, of old the first-blown blast blew the prelude of this last,
The blast of his trumpet upon Rhodope.
Out of the north skies full of his cloud,
With the clamour of his storms as of a crowd
At the wheels of a great king crying aloud,
At the axle of a strong king's car
That has girded on the girdle of war—
With hands that lightened the skies in sunder
And feet whose fall was followed of thunder,
A God, a great God strange of name,
With horse-yoke fleeter-hoofed than flame,
To the mountain bed of a maiden came,
Oreithyia, the bride mismated,

Wofully wed in a snow-strewn bed
 With a bridegroom that kisses the bride's mouth
 dead ;

Without garland, without glory, without song,
 As a fawn by night on the hills belated,
 Given over for a spoil unto the strong.

From lips how pale so keen a wail [Ant. 1.]

At the grasp of a God's hand on her she gave,
 When his breath that darkens air made a havoc of her hair,

It rang from the mountain even to the wave ;
 Rang with a cry, Woe's me, woe is me !
 From the darkness upon Hæmus to the sea :
 And with hands that clung to her new lord's knee,
 As a virgin overborne with shame,
 She besought him by her spouseless fame,
 By the blameless breasts of a maid unmarried,
 And locks unmaidenly rent and harried,

And all her flower of body, born
 To match the maidenhood of morn,
 With the might of the wind's wrath wrenched and torn.

Vain, all vain as a dead man's vision
 Falling by night in his old friends' sight,
 To be scattered with slumber and slain ere light ;
 Such a breath of such a bridegroom in that hour
 Of her prayers made mock, of her fears derision,
 And a ravage of her youth as of a flower.

With a leap of his limbs as a lion's, a cry from his lips as of thunder, [Str. 2.]

In a storm of amorous godhead filled with fire, From the height of the heaven that was rent with the roar of his coming in sunder, Sprang the strong God on the spoil of his desire.

And the pines of the hills were as green reeds shattered,
And their branches as buds of the soft spring scattered,
And the west wind and east, and the sound of the south,
Fell dumb at the blast of the north wind's mouth,
At the cry of his coming out of heaven.
And the wild beasts quailed in the rifts and hollows
Where hound nor clarion of huntsman follows,
And the depths of the sea were aghast, and whitened,
And the crowns of their waves were as flame that lightened,
And the heart of the floods thereof was riven.
But she knew not him coming for terror, she felt not her wrong that he wrought her, [Ant. 2.
When her locks as leaves were shed before his
breath,
And she heard not for terror his prayer, though the cry was a God's that besought her, Blown from lips that strew the world-wide seas with death.
For the heart was molten within her to hear,
And her knees beneath her were loosened for fear,
And her blood fast bound as a frost-bound water,
And the soft new bloom of the green earth's daughter
Wind-wasted as blossom of a tree ;
As the wild God rapt her from earth's breast lifted,
On the strength of the stream of his dark breath drifted,

From the bosom of earth as a bride from the mother,
With storm for bridesman and wreck for brother.
As a cloud that he sheds upon the sea.

Of this hoary-headed woe [Epode.]
Song made memory long ago ;
Now a younger grief to mourn
Needs a new song younger born.
Who shall teach our tongues to reach
What strange height of saddest speech,
For the new bride's sake that is given to be A stay to fetter the foot of the sea,
Lest it quite spurn down and trample the town, Ere the violets be dead that were plucked for its crown,
Or its olive-leaf whiten and wither ?
Who shall say of the wind's way
That he journeyed yesterday,
Or the track of the storm that shall sound to-morrow,
If the new be more than the grey-grown sorrow ?
For the wind of the green first season was keen,
And the blast shall be sharper than blew between
That the breath of the sea blows hither.

HERALD OF EUMOLPUS

Old men, grey borderers on the march of death,
Tongue-fighters, tough of talk and sinewy speech,
Else nerveless, from no crew of such faint folk Whose tongues are stouter than their hands come I
To bid not you to battle ; let them strike Whose swords are sharper than your keen-tongued wail,

And ye, sit fast and sorrow ; but what man
Of all this land-folk and earth-labouring herd
For heart or hand seems foremost, him I call
If heart be his to hearken, him bid forth
To try if one be in the sun's sight born
Of all that grope and grovel on dry ground
That may join hands in battle grip for death
With them whose seed and strength is of the sea.

CHORUS

Know thou this much for all thy loud blast blown,
We lack not hands to speak with, swords to plead,
For proof of peril, not of boisterous breath,
Sea-wind and storm of barren mouths that foam
And rough rock's edge of menace ; and short space
May lesson thy large ignorance and inform
This insolence with knowledge if there live
Men earth-begotten of no tenderer thews
Than knit the great joints of the grim sea's brood
With hasps of steel together ; heaven to help,
One man shall break, even on their own flood's verge,
That iron bulk of battle ; but thine eye
That sees it now swell higher than sand or shore Haply shall see not when thine host shall shrink

HERALD OF EUMOLPUS

Not haply, nay, but surely, shall not thine.

CHORUS

That lot shall no God give who fights for thee.

HERALD OF EUMOLPUS

Shall Gods bear bit and bridle, fool, of men ?

CHORUS

Nor them forbid we nor shalt thou constrain.

HERALD OF EUMOLPUS

Yet say'st thou none shall make the good lot mine ?

CHORUS

Of thy side none, nor moved for fear of thee.

HERALD OF EUMOLPUS

Gods hast thou then to baffle Gods of ours ?

CHORUS

Nor thine nor mine, but equal-souled are they.

HERALD OF EUMOLPUS

Toward good and ill, then, equal-eyed of soul ?

CHORUS

Nay, but swift-eyed to note where ill thoughts breed.

HERALD OF EUMOLPUS

Thy shaft word-feathered flies yet far of me.

CHORUS

Pride knows not, wounded, till the heart be cleft.

HERALD OF EUMOLPUS

No shaft wounds deep whose wing is plumed with words.

CHORUS

Lay that to heart, and bid thy tongue learn grace.

HERALD OF EUMOLPUS

Grace shall thine own crave soon too late of mine.

CHORUS

Boast thou till then, but I wage words no more.

ERECHTHEUS

Man, what shrill wind of speech and wrangling air
Blows in our ears a summons from thy lips
Winged with what message, or what gift or grace Requiring ? none but what his hand may take Here may the foe think hence to reap, nor this Except some doom from Godward yield it him.

HERALD OF EUMOLPUS

King of this land-folk, by my mouth to thee
Thus saith the son of him that shakes thine earth, Eumolpus ; now the stakes of war are set,
For land or sea to win by throw and wear ;
Choose therefore or to quit thy side and give
The palm unfought for to his bloodless hand,
Or by that father's sceptre, and the foot
Whose tramp far off makes tremble for pure fear
Thy soul-struck mother, piercing like a sword
The immortal womb that bare thee ; by the waves
That no man bridles and that bound thy world,
And by the winds and storms of all the sea,
He swears to raze from eyeshot of the sun
This city named not of his father's name,
And wash to deathward down one flood of doom
This whole fresh brood of earth yeaned naturally,
Green yet and faint in its first blade, unblown
With yellow hope of harvest ; so do thou,

Seeing whom thy time is come to meet, for fear
Yield, or gird up thy force to fight and die.

ERECHTHEUS

To fight then be it ; for if to die or live,
No man but only a God knows this much yet
Seeing us fare forth, who bear but in our hands
The weapons not the fortunes of our fight ;
For these now rest as lots that yet undrawn Lie in the lap of the unknown hour ; but this
I know, not thou, whose hollow mouth of storm
Is but a warlike wind, a sharp salt breath
That bites and wounds not ; death nor life of mine
Shall give to death or lordship of strange kings
The soul of this live city, nor their heel
Bruise her dear brow discrowned, nor snaffle or goad Wound her free mouth or stain her sanguine side
Yet masterless of man ; so bid thy lord
Learn ere he weep to learn it, and too late Gnash teeth that could not fasten on her flesh,
And foam his life out in dark froth of blood
Vain as a wind's waif of the loud-mouthed sea Torn from the wave's edge whitening. Tell him this ; Though thrice his might were mustered for our scathe

And thicker set with fence of thorn-edged spears
Than sands are whirled about the wintering beach
When storms have swoln the rivers, and their blasts Have breached the broad sea-banks with stress of
sea,

That waves of inland and the main make war
As men that mix and grapple ; though his ranks
Were more to number than all wildwood leaves
The wind waves on the hills of all the world,

Yet should the heart not faint, the head not fall,
The breath not fail of Athens. Say, the Gods
From lips that have no more on earth to say
Have told thee this the last good news or ill
That I shall speak in sight of earth and sun
Or he shall hear and see them : for the next That ear of his from tongue of mine may take Must be the first word spoken underground From dead to dead in darkness. Hence ; make haste,
Lest war's fleet foot be swifter than thy tongue
And I that part not to return again
On him that comes not to depart away
Be fallen before thee ; for the time is full,
And with such mortal hope as knows not fear
I go this high last way to the end of all.

CHORUS

Who shall put a bridle in the mourner's lips to chasten them, [Str. 1.
Or seal up the fountains of his tears for shame ?
Song nor prayer nor prophecy shall slacken tears nor hasten them,
Till grief be within him as a burnt-out flame ;
Till the passion be broken in his breast
And the might thereof molten into rest,
And the rain of eyes that weep be dry,
And the breath be stilled of lips that sigh.
Death at last for all men is a harbour ; yet they flee from it, [Ant. 1.
Set sails to the storm-wind and again to sea ;
Yet for all their labour no whit further shall they be from it,
Nor longer but wearier shall their life's work be.

How the veils and the wreaths that should cover [Ant. 5.]

The brows of the bride
Shall be shed by the breath of what lover
And scattered aside ?

With a blast of the mouth of what bridegroom the crowns shall be cast from her hair,
And her head by what altar made humble be left of them naked and bare ?

At a shrine unbeloved of a God un beholden a gift shall be given for the land, [Str. 6.]

That its ramparts though shaken with clamour and horror of manifold waters may stand :

That the crests of its citadels crowned and its turrets that thrust up their heads to the sun

May behold him unblinded with darkness of waves overmastering their bulwarks begun.

As a bride shall they bring her, a prey for the bridegroom, a flower for the couch of her lord ; [Ant. 6.]

They shall muffle her mouth that she cry not or curse them, and cover her eyes from the sword.

They shall fasten her lips as with bit and with bridle, and darken the light of her face,

That the soul of the slayer may not falter, his heart be not molten, his hand give not grace.

If she weep then, yet may none that hear take pity ; [Str. 7.]

If she cry not, none should hearken though she cried.

Shall a virgin shield thine head for love, O city,
With a virgin's blood anointed as for pride ?

Yet we held thee dear and hallowed of her favour,
[Ant. 7.]

Dear of all men held thy people to her heart ;

Nought she loves the breath of blood, the sanguine savour,

Who hath built with us her throne and chosen her part.

Bloodless are her works, and sweet [Epode.

All the ways that feel her feet ;

From the empire of her eyes

Light takes life and darkness flies ;

From the harvest of her hands

Wealth strikes root in prosperous lands ;

Wisdom of her word is made ;

At her strength is strength afraid ;

From the beam of her bright spear

War's fleet foot goes back for fear ;

In her shrine she reared the birth

Fire-begotten on live earth ;

Glory from her helm was shed

On his olive-shadowed head ;

By no hand but his shall she

Scourge the storms back of the sea,

To no fame but his shall give

Grace, being dead, with hers to live,

And in double name divine

Half the godhead of their shrine.

But now with what word, with what woe may we meet

The timeless passage of piteous feet,

Hither that bend to the last way's end

They shall walk upon earth ?

What song be rolled for a bride black-stoled

And the mother whose hand of her hand hath hold ?

For anguish of heart is my soul's strength broken

And the tongue sealed fast that would fain have spoken,

To behold thee, O child of so bitter a birth
That we counted so sweet,
What way thy steps to what bride-feast tend,
What gift he must give that shall wed thee for token
If the bridegroom be goodly to greet.

CHTHONIA

People, old men of my city, lordly wise and hoar of
head,
I a spouseless bride and crownless but with garlands of the dead
From the fruitful light turn silent to my dark un-childbed bed.

CHORUS

Wise of word was he too surely, but with deadlier wisdom wise,
First who gave thee name from under earth, no breath from upper skies,
When, foredoomed to this day's darkness, their first daylight filled thine eyes.

PRAXITHEA

Child, my child that wast and art but death's and now no more of mine,
Half my heart is cloven with anguish by the sword made sharp for thine, Half exalts its wing for triumph, that I bare thee thus divine.

CHTHONIA

Though for me the sword's edge thirst that sets no point against thy breast, Mother, O my mother, where I drank of life and fell on rest.
Thine, not mine, is all the grief that marks this hour accurst and blest.

CHORUS

Sweet thy sleep and sweet the bosom was that gave thee sleep and birth ;
Harder now the breast, and girded with no marriage-band for girth,
Where thine head shall sleep, the namechild of the lords of under earth.

PRAXITHEA

Dark the name and dark the gifts they gave thee, child, in childbirth were,
Sprung from him that rent the womb of earth, a bitter seed to bear,
Born with groanings of the ground that gave him way toward heaven's dear air.

CHTHONIA

Day to day makes answer, first to last, and life to death ; but I,
Born for death's sake, die for life's sake, if indeed this be to die,
This my doom that seals me deathless till the springs of time run dry,

CHORUS

Children shalt thou bear to memory, that to man shalt bring forth none ;
Yea, the lordliest that lift eyes and hearts and songs to meet the sun,
Names to fire men's ears like music till the round world's race be run.

PRAXITHEA

I thy mother, named of Gods that wreak revenge and brand with blame,
Now for thy love shall be loved as thou, and famous with thy fame,
While this city's name on earth shall be for earth her mightiest name.

CHTHONIA

That I may give this poor girl's blood of mine Scarce yet sun-warmed with summer, this thin life
Still green with flowerless growth of seedling days,
To build again my city ; that no drop Fallen of these innocent veins on the cold ground
But shall help knit the joints of her firm walls
To knead the stones together, and make sure
The band about her maiden girdlestead
Once fastened, and of all men's violent hands Inviolable for ever ; these to me
Were no such gifts as crave no thanksgiving,
If with one blow dividing the sheer life
I might make end, and one pang wind up all
And seal mine eyes from sorrow ; for such end
The Gods give none they love not ; but my heart,
That leaps up lightened of all sloth or fear

To take the sword's point, yet with one thought's load

Flags, and falls back, broken of wing, that halts
Maimed in mid flight for thy sake and borne down, Mother, that in the places where I played An arm's length from thy bosom and no more Shalt find me never, nor thine eye wax glad To mix with mine its eyesight and for love
Laugh without word, filled with sweet light, and speak
Divine dumb things of the inward spirit and heart,
Moved silently ; nor hand or lip again
Touch hand or lip of either, but for mine
Shall thine meet only shadows of swift night, Dreams and dead thoughts of dead things ; and the bed

Thou strewedst, a sterile place for all time, strewn
For my sleep only, with its void sad sheets
Shall vex thee, and the unfruitful coverlid
For empty days reproach me dead, that leave
No profit of my body, but am gone
As one not worth being born to bear no seed,
A sapless stock and branchless ; yet thy womb Shall want not honour of me, that brought forth
For all this people freedom, and for earth
From the unborn city born out of my blood
To light the face of all men evermore
Glory ; but lay thou this to thy great heart
Whereunder in the dark of birth conceived
Mine unlit life lay girdled with the zone
That bound thy bridal bosom ; set this thought Against all edge of evil as a sword
To beat back sorrow, that for all the world
Thou brought'st me forth a saviour, who shall save Athens ; for none but I from none but thee

Shall take this death for garland ; and the men
Mine unknown children of unsounded years,
My sons unrisen shall rise up at thine hand,
Sown of thy seed to bring forth seed to thee,
And call thee most of all most fruitful found Blessed ; but me too for my barren womb
More than my sisters for their children born Shall these give honour, yea in scorn's own place Shall men set love and bring for mockery praise
And thanks for curses ; for the dry wild vine Scoffed at and cursed of all men that was I Shall shed them wine to make the world's heart warm,

That all eyes seeing may lighten, and all ears
Hear and be kindled ; such a draught to drink
Shall be the blood that bids this dust bring forth,
The chaliced life here spilt on this mine earth,
Mine, my great father's mother ; whom I pray
Take me now gently, tenderly take home,
And softly lay in his my cold chaste hand
Who is called of men by my name, being of Gods
Charged only and chosen to bring men under earth,
And now must lead and stay me with his staff
A silent soul led of a silent God,
Toward sightless things led sightless ; and on earth
I see now but the shadow of mine end,
And this last light of all for me in heaven.

PRAXITHEA

Farewell I bid thee ; so bid thou not me, Lest the Gods hear and mock us ; yet on these I lay the weight not of this grief, nor cast
Ill words for ill deeds back ; for if one say

They have done men wrong, what hurt have they to hear,
Or he what help to have said it? surely, child,
If one among men born might say it and live Blameless, none more than I may, who being vexed Hold yet my peace ; for now through tears enough Mine eyes have seen the sun that from this day
Thine shall see never more ; and in the night
Enough has blown of evil, and mine ears
With wail enough the winds have filled, and brought Too much of cloud from over the sharp sea
To mar for me the morning ; such a blast
Rent from these wide void arms and helpless breast
Long since one graft of me disbranched, and bore
Beyond the wild ways of the unwandered world
And loud wastes of the thunder-throated sea,
Springs of the night and openings of the heaven,
The old garden of the Sun ; whence never more
From west or east shall winds bring back that blow
From folds of opening heaven or founts of night
The flower of mine once ravished, born my child
To bear strange children ; nor on wings of theirs
Shall comfort come back to me, nor their sire
Breathe help upon my peril, nor his strength
Raise up my weakness ; but of Gods and men
I drift unsteered on ruin, and the wave
Darkens my head with imminent height, and hangs Dumb, filled too full with thunder that shall leave
These ears death-deafened when the tide finds tongue
And all its wrath bears on them ; thee, O child.
I help not, nor am holpen ; fain, ah fain,
More than was ever mother born of man,
Were I to help thee ; fain beyond all prayer, Beyond all thought fain to redeem thee, torn

More timeless from me sorrowing than the dream
That was thy sister ; so shalt thou be too,
Thou but a vision, shadow-shaped of sleep,
By grief made out of nothing ; now but once
I touch, but once more hold thee, one more kiss
This last time and none other ever more Leave on thy lips and leave them. Go ; thou wast
My heart, my heart's blood, life-blood of my life,
My child, my nursling : now this breast once thine Shall rear again no children ; never now
Shall any mortal blossom born like thee
Lie there, nor ever with small silent mouth Draw the sweet springs dry for an hour that feed
The blind blithe life that knows not ; never head Rest here to make these cold veins warm, nor eye Laugh itself open with the lips that reach Lovingly toward a fount more loving ; these Death makes as all good lesser things now dead,
And all the latter hopes that flowered from these
And fall as these fell fruitless ; no joy more Shall man take of thy maidenhood, no tongue
Praise it ; no good shall eyes get more of thee
That lightened for thy love's sake. Now, take note, Give ear, O all ye people, that my word May pierce your hearts through, and the stroke that cleaves
Be fruitful to them ; so shall all that hear Grow great at heart with child of thought most high
And bring forth seed in season ; this my child,
This flower of this my body, this sweet life,
This fair live youth I give you, to be slain,
Spent, shed, poured out, and perish ; take my gift
And give it death and the under Gods who crave
So much for that they give ; for this is more,

Much more is this than all we ; for they give Freedom, and for a blast, an air of breath,
A little soul that is not, they give back
Light for all eyes, cheer for all hearts, and life
That fills the world's width full of fame and praise And mightier love than children's. This they give,
The grace to make thy country great, and wrest
From time and death power to take hold on her
And strength to scathe for ever ; and this gift,
Is this no more than man's love is or mine,
Mine and all mothers' ? nay, where that seems more,
Where one loves life of child, wife, father, friend,
Son, husband, mother, more than this, even there Are all these lives worth nothing, all loves else
With this love slain and buried, and their tomb
A thing for shame to spit on ; for what love Hath a slave left to love with ? or the heart
Base-born and bound in bondage fast to fear,
What should it do to love thee ? what hath he,
The man that hath no country ? Gods nor men
Have such to friend, yoked beast-like to base life, Vile, fruitless, grovelling at the foot of death,
Landless and kinless thralls of no man's blood, Unchilded and unmothered, abject limbs
That breed things abject ; but who loves on earth
Not friend, wife, husband, father, mother, child, Nor loves his own life for his own land's sake,
But only this thing most, more this than all,
He loves all well and well of all is loved,
And this love lives for ever. See now, friends,
My countrymen, my brothers, with what heart
I give you this that of your hands again
The Gods require for Athens ; as I give So give ye to them what their hearts would have

Who shall give back things better ; yea, and these I take for me to witness, all these Gods, Were their great will more grievous than it is,
Not one but three, for this one thin-spun thread
A threefold band of children would I give
For this land's love's sake ; for whose love to-day
I bid thee, child, fare deathward and farewell.

CHORUS . . .

O wofullest of women, yet of all
Happiest, thy word be hallowed ; in all time Thy name shall blossom, and from strange new tongues
High things be spoken of thee ; for such grace
The Gods have dealt to no man, that on none
Have laid so heavy sorrow. From this day
Live thou assured of godhead in thy blood,
And in thy fate no lowlier than a God
In all good things and evil ; such a name
Shall be thy child this city's, and thine own Next hers that called it Athens. Go now forth Blest, and grace with thee to the doors of death.

CHTHONIA

O city, O glory of Athens, O crown of my father's land, farewell.

For welfare is given her of thee.

CHTHONIA

O Goddess, be good to thy people, that in them dominion and freedom may dwell.

Turn from us the strengths of the sea.

CHTHONIA

Let glory's and theirs be one name in the mouths of all nations made glad with the sun.

CHORUS

For the cloud is blown back with thy breath.

CHTHONIA

With the long last love of mine eyes I salute thee,
O land where my days now are done.

CHORUS

But her life shall be born of thy death.

CHTHONIA

I put on me the darkness thy shadow, my mother, and symbol, O Earth, of my name.

CHORUS

For thine was her witness from birth.

CHTHONIA

In thy likeness I come to thee darkling, a daughter whose dawn and her even are the same.

CHORUS

Be thine heart to her gracious, O Earth.

CHTHONIA

To thine own kind be kindly, for thy son's name's sake.

CHORUS

That sons unborn may praise thee and thy first-born son.

CHTHONIA

Give me thy sleep, who give thee all my life awake.

CHORUS

Too swift a sleep, ere half the web of day be spun.

Death brings the shears or ever life wind up the weft.

CHORUS

Their edge is ground and sharpened ; who shall stay his hand ?

The woof is thin, a small short life, with no thread left.

CHORUS

Yet hath it strength, stretched out, to shelter all the land.

CHTHONIA

Too frail a tent for covering, and a screen too strait.

CHORUS

Yet broad enough for buckler shall thy sweet life be.

CHTHONIA

A little bolt to bar off battle from the gate.

CHORUS

A wide sea-wall, that shatters the besieging sea.

I lift up mine eyes from the skirts of the shadow, [Str.
From the border of death to the limits of light ;
O streams and rivers of mountain and meadow
That hallow the last of my sight,
O father that wast of my mother
Cephisus, O thou too his brother
From the bloom of whose banks as a prey
Winds harried my sister away,
O crown on the world's head lying Too high for its waters to drown,
Take yet this one word of me dying,
• O city, O crown.

Though land-wind and sea wind with mouths that blow slaughter [Anl.
Should gird them to battle against thee again,
New-born of the blood of a maiden thy daughter,
The rage of their breath shall be vain.
For their strength shall be quenched and made idle,
And the foam of their mouths find a bridle,
And the height of their heads bow down
At the foot of the towers of the town.
Be blest and beloved as I love thee
Of all that shall draw from thee breath
Be thy life as the sun's is above thee ;
I go to my death.

CHORUS

Many loves of many a mood and many a kind [Str. 1.
Fill the life of man, and mould the secret mind ;
Many days bring many dooms, to loose and bind ;

Sweet is each in season, good the gift it brings,
Sweet as change of night and day with altering
wings,
Night that lulls world-weary day, day that comforts
night,
Night that fills our eyes with sleep, day that fills with
light.

None of all is lovelier, loftier love is none, [Ant. 1.
Less is bride's for bridegroom, mother's less for son,

Child, than this that crowns and binds up all in one ;

Love of thy sweet light, thy fostering breast and
hand,

Mother Earth, and city chosen, and natural land ; Hills that bring the strong streams forth, heights of heavenlier air,

Fields aflower with winds and suns, woods with shadowing hair.

But none of the nations of men shall they liken to thee, [Str. 2.

Whose children true-born and the fruit of thy body are we.

The rest are thy sons but in figure, in word are thy seed ;

We only the flower of thy travail, thy children indeed.

Of thy soil hast thou fashioned our limbs, of thy waters their blood,

And the life of thy springs everlasting is fount of our flood.

No wind oversea blew us hither adrift on thy shore, None sowed us by land in thy womb that conceived us and bore.

But the stroke of the shaft of the sunlight that brought us to birth
Pierced only and quickened thy furrows to bear us, O Earth.
With the beams of his love wast thou cloven as with iron or fire,
And the life in thee yearned for his life, and grew great with desire.
And the hunger and thirst to be wounded and healed with his dart
Made fruitful the love in thy veins and the depth of thine heart.
And the showers out of heaven overflowing and liquid with love
Fulfilled thee with child of his godhead as rain from above.
Such desire had ye twain of each other, till molten in one [Ant. 2.]
Ye might bear and beget of your bodies the fruits of the sun.
And the trees in their season brought forth and were kindled anew
By the warmth of the moisture of marriage, the childbearing dew.
And the firstlings were fair of the wedlock of heaven and of earth ;
All countries were bounteous with blossom and burgeon of birth.
Green pastures of grass for all cattle, and life-giving corn ;
But here of thy bosom, here only, the man-child was born.
All races but one are as aliens engrafted or sown,

Strange children and changelings ; but we, O our mother, thine own.

Thy nurslings are others, and seedlings they know not of whom ;

For these hast thou fostered, but us thou hast borne in thy womb.

Who is he of us all, O beloved, that owe thee for birth, Who would give not his blood for his birth's sake, O mother, O Earth ?

What landsman is he that was fostered and reared of thine hand

Who may vaunt him as we may in death though he died for the land ?

Well doth she therefore who gives thee in guerdon
The bloom of the life of thy giving ; [Epode.]
And thy body was bowed by no fruitless burden,
That bore such fruit of thee living.

For her face was not darkened for fear,

For her eyelids conceived not a tear,

Nor a cry from her lips craved pity ;

But her mouth was a fountain of song,

And her heart as a citadel strong

That guards the heart of the city.

MESSENGER

High things of strong-souled men that loved their land
On brass and stone are written, and their deeds
On high days chanted ; but none graven or sung
That ever set men's eyes or spirits on fire, Athenians, has the sun's height seen, or earth
Heard in her depth reverberate as from heaven,
More worth men's praise and good report of Gods
Than here I bring for record in your ears.

For now being come to the altar, where as priest
Death ministering should meet her, and his hand
Seal her sweet eyes asleep, the maiden stood,
With light in all her face as of a bride
Smiling, or shine of festal flame by night
Far flung from towers of triumph ; and her lips Trembled with pride in pleasure, that no fear
Blanched them nor death before his time drank dry
The blood whose bloom fulfilled them ; for her cheeks
Lightened, and brighter than a bridal veil
Her hair enrobed her bosom and enrolled
From face to feet the body's whole soft length
As with a cloud sun-saturate ; then she spake
With maiden tongue words manlike, but her eyes Lit mildly like a maiden's : Countrymen,
With more goodwill and height of happier heart
I give me to you than my mother bare,
And go more gladly this great way to death
Than young men bound to battle. Then with face Turned to the shadowiest part of all the shrine
And eyes fast set upon the further shade,
Take me, dear Gods ; and as some form had shone
From the deep hollow shadow, some God's tongue Answered, I bless you that your guardian grace
Gives me to guard this country, takes my blood,
Your child's by name, to heal it. Then the priest Set to the flower-sweet snow of her soft throat
The sheer knife's edge that severed it, and loosed
From the fair bondage of so spotless flesh
So strong a spirit ; and all that girt them round
Gazing, with souls that hung on that sad stroke, Groaned, and kept silence after while a man Might count how far the fresh blood crept, and bathed
How deep the dark robe and the bright shrine's base

Red-rounded with a running ring that grew
More large and duskier as the wells that fed
Were drained of that pure effluence : but the queen Groaned not nor spake nor wept, but as a dream Floats out of eyes awakening so past forth Ghost-like, a shadow of sorrow, from all sight
To the inner court and chamber where she sits Dumb, till word reach her of this whole day's end.

CHORUS

More hapless born by far [Str.]
Beneath some wintrier star,
One sits in stone among high Lydian snows,
The tomb of her own woes :
Yet happiest was once of the daughters of Gods, and divine by her sire and her lord, Ere her tongue was a shaft for the hearts of her sons, for the heart of her husband a sword.
For she, too great of mind, [Ant.]
Grown through her good things blind,
With godless lips and fire of her own breath
Spake all her house to death ;
But thou, no mother unmothered, nor kindled in spirit with pride of thy seed, Thou hast hallowed thy child for a blameless blood-offering, and ransomed thy race by thy deed.

MESSENGER

As flower is grafted on flower, so grief on grief
Engrafted brings forth new blossoms of strange tears,
Fresh buds and green fruits of an alien pain ;
For now flies rumour on a dark wide wing,

Murmuring of woes more than ye knew, most like Hers whom ye hailed most wretched ; for the twain
Last left of all this house that wore last night
A threefold crown of maidens, and to-day
Should let but one fall dead out of the wreath,
If mad with grief we know not and sore love
For this their sister, or with shame soul-stung
To outlive her dead or doubt lest their lives too
The Gods require to seal their country safe
And bring the oracular doom to perfect end,
Have slain themselves, and fallen at the altar-foot Lie by their own hands done to death ; and fear Shakes all the city as winds a wintering tree,
And as dead leaves are men's hearts blown about
And shrunken with ill thoughts, and flowerless hopes Parched up with presage, lest the piteous blood Shed of these maidens guiltless fall and fix
On this land's forehead like a curse that cleaves
To the unclean soul's inextinguishable hunted head Whom his own crime tracks hotlier than a hound
To life's veiled end unsleeping ; and this hour
Now blackens toward the battle that must close
All gates of hope and fear on all their hearts
Who tremble toward its issue, knowing not yet
If blood may buy them surety, cleanse or soil
The helpless hands men raise and reach no stay.

CHORUS

Ill thoughts breed fear, and fear ill words ; but these
The Gods turn from us that have kept their law.

Let us lift up the strength of our hearts in song, [Str. 1.
And our souls to the height of the darkling day.
If the wind in our eyes blow blood for spray,

Be the spirit that breathes in us life more strong,
Though the prow reel round and the helm point
wrong,

And sharp reefs whiten the shoreward way.

For the steersman time sits hidden astern, [Ant. 1.

With dark hand plying the rudder of doom,

And the surf-smoke under it flies like fume

As the blast shears off and the oar-blades churn

The foam of our lives that to death return,

Blown back as they break to the gulfling gloom.

What cloud upon heaven is arisen, what shadow, what sound, [Str. 2.

From the world beyond earth, from the night underground,

That scatters from wings un beholden the weight of its darkness around?

For the sense of my spirit is broken, and blinded its eye, [Ant. 2.

As the soul of a sick man ready to die,

With fear of the hour that is on me, with dread if an end be not nigh.

O Earth, O Gods of the land, have ye heart now to see and to hear [Str. 3.

What slays with terror mine eyesight and seals mine ear?

O fountains of streams everlasting, are all ye not shrunk up and withered for fear?

Lo, night is arisen on the noon, and her hounds are in quest by day, [Ant. 3.

And the world is fulfilled of the noise of them crying for their prey,

And the sun's self stricken in heaven, and cast out of his course as a blind man astray.

From east to west of the south sea-line [Str. 4.
Glitters the lightning of spears that shine ;
As a storm-cloud swoln that comes up from the skirts of the sea
By the wind for helmsman to shoreward ferried,
So black behind them the live storm serried Shakes earth with the tramp of its foot, and the terror to be.
Shall the sea give death whom the land gave birth ? [Ant. 4.
O Earth, fair mother, O sweet live Earth, Hide us again in thy womb from the waves of it, help us or hide.
As a sword is the heart of the God thy brother,
But thine as the heart of a new-made mother,
To deliver thy sons from his ravin, and rage of his tide.
O strong north wind, the pilot of cloud and rain, [Str. 5.
For the gift we gave thee what gift hast thou given us again ?
O God dark-winged, deep-throated, a terror to forthfaring ships by night, What bride-song is this that is blown on the blast of thy breath ?
A gift but of grief to thy kinsmen, a song but of
death,
For the bride's folk weeping, and woe for her father, who finds thee against him in fight.
Turn back from us, turn thy battle, take heed of our cry ; [Ant. 5.
Let thy dread breath sound, and the waters of war be dry ;

Let thy strong wrath shatter the strength of our foe-men, the sword of their strength and the shield ;
As vapours in heaven, or as waves or the wrecks of ships,

So break thou the ranks of their spears with the breath of thy lips,

Till their corpses have covered and clothed as with raiment the face of the sword-ploughed field.

O son of the rose-red morning, O God twin-born with the day, [Str. 6.]

O wind with the young sun waking, and winged for the same wide way,

Give up not the house of thy kin to the host thou hast marshalled from northward for prey.

From the cold of thy cradle in Thrace, from the mists of the fountains of night, [Ant. 6.]

From the bride-bed of dawn whence day leaps laughing, on fire for his flight,

Come down with their doom in thine hand on the ships thou hast brought up against us to fight.

For now not in word but in deed is the harvest of spears begun, [Str. 7.]

And its clamour outbellows the thunder, its lightning outlightens the sun.

From the springs of the morning it thunders and lightens across and afar

To the wave where the moonset ends and the fall of the last low star.

With a trampling of drenched red hoofs and an earth quake of men that meet,

Strong war sets hand to the scythe, and the furrows take fire from his feet.

Earth groans from her great rent heart, and the hollows of rocks are afraid,

And the mountains are moved, and the valleys as waves in a storm-wind swayed.
From the roots of the hills to the plain's dim verge and the dark loud shore, Air shudders with shrill spears crossing, and hurtling of wheels that roar.
As the grinding of teeth in the jaws of a lion that foam as they gnash
Is the shriek of the axles that loosen, the shock of the poles that crash.
The dense manes darken and glitter, the mouths of the mad steeds champ,
Their heads flash blind through the battle, and death's foot rings in their tramp.
For a fourfold host upon earth and in heaven is arrayed for the fight, Clouds ruining in thunder and armies encountering as clouds in the night.
Mine ears are amazed with the terror of trumpets, with darkness mine eyes,
At the sound of the sea's host charging that deafens the roar of the sky's.
White frontlet is dashed upon frontlet, and horse against horse reels hurled,
And the gorge of the gulfs of the battle is wide for the spoil of the world.
And the meadows are cumbered with shipwreck of chariots that founder on land, [Ant. 7.
And the horsemen are broken with breach as of breakers, and scattered as sand.
Through the roar and recoil of the charges that mingle their cries and confound, Like fire are the notes of the trumpets that flash through the darkness of sound.

As the swing of the sea churned yellow that sways with the wind as it swells
Is the lift and relapse of the wave of the chargers that clash with their bells ;
And the clang of the sharp shrill brass through the burst of the wave as it shocks Rings clean as the clear wind's cry through the roar of the surge on the rocks :
And the heads of the steeds in their headgear of war,
and their corsleted breasts, Gleam broad as the brows of the billows that brighten the storm with their crests, Gleam dread as their bosoms that heave to the ship-wrecking wind as they rise, Filled full of the terror and thunder of water, that slays as it dies.
So dire is the glare of their foreheads, so fearful the fire of their breath,
And the light of their eyeballs enkindled so bright with the lightnings of death ;
And the foam of their mouths as the sea's when the jaws of its gulf are as graves,
And the ridge of their necks as the wind-shaken mane on the ridges of waves :
And their fetlocks afire as they rear drip thick with a dewfall of blood
As the lips of the rearing breaker with froth of the manslaying flood.
And the whole plain reels and resounds as the fields of the sea by night
When the stroke of the wind falls darkling, and death is the seafarer's light.

But thou, fair beauty of heaven, dear face of the day nigh dead,

[Epode.

What horror hath hidden thy glory, what hand hath muffled thine head ?

O sun, with what song shall we call thee, or ward off thy wrath by what name,

With what prayer shall we seek to thee, soothe with what incense, assuage with what gift,

If thy light be such only as lightens to deathward the seaman adrift

With the fire of his house for a beacon, that foemen have wasted with flame ?

Arise now, lift up thy light ; give ear to us, put forth
thine hand,

Reach toward us thy torch of deliverance, a lamp for the night of the land.

Thine eye is the light of the living, no lamp for the
dead ;

O, lift up the light of thine eye on the dark of our dread.

Who hath blinded thee ? who hath prevailed on thee ? who hath ensnared ?

Who hath broken thy bow, and the shafts for thy battle prepared ?

Have they found out a fetter to bind thee, a chain for thine arm that was bared ?

Be the name of thy conqueror set forth, and the might of thy master declared.

O God, fair God of the morning, O glory of
day,

What ails thee to cast from thy forehead its garland away ?

To pluck from thy temples their chaplet enwreathed of the light,

And bind on the brows of thy godhead a frontlet of night ?

Thou hast loosened the necks of thine horses, and goaded their flanks with affright,
To the race of a course that we know not on ways that are hid from our sight.

As a wind through the darkness the wheels of their chariot are whirled,

And the light of its passage is night on the face of the world.

And there falls from the wings of thy glory no help from on high,

But a shadow that smites us with fear and desire of thine eye.

For our hearts are as reeds that a wind on the water bows down and goes by,

To behold not thy comfort in heaven that hath left us untimely to die.

But what light is it now leaps forth on the land
Enkindling the waters and ways of the air

 From thy forehead made bare,

 From the gleam of thy bow-bearing hand?

Hast thou set not thy right hand again to the string,
With the back-bowed horns bent sharp for a spring

 And the barbed shaft drawn,

Till the shrill steel sing and the tense nerve ring

That pierces the heart of the dark with dawn,

 O huntsman, O king,

When the flame of thy face hath twilight in chase

 As a hound hath a blood-mottled fawn?

He has glanced into golden the grey sea-strands,
And the clouds are shot through with the fires of his hands,

And the height of the hollow of heaven that he fills As the heart of a strong man is quickened and thrills ;

High over the folds of the low-lying lands,
On the shadowless hills

As a guard on his watchtower he stands.
All earth and all ocean, all depth and all height,
At the flash of an eyebeam are filled with his might :
The sea roars backward, the storm drops dumb,
And silence as dew on the fire of the fight
Falls kind in our ears as his face in our sight

With presage of peace to come.

Fresh hope in my heart from the ashes of dread
Leaps clear as a flame from the pyres of the dead,

That joy out of woe

May arise as the spring out of tempest and snow,
With the flower-feasted month in her hands rose-
red

Borne soft as a babe from the bearing-bed.

Yet it knows not indeed if a God be friend,

If rescue may be from the rage of the sea,

Or the wrath of its lord have end.

For the season is full now of death or of birth,

To bring forth life, or an end of all ;

And we know not if anything stand or fall

That is girdled about with the round sea's girth

As a town with its wall ;

But thou that art highest of the Gods most high,

That art lord if we live, that art lord though we die,

Have heed of the tongues of our terror that cry

For a grace to the children of Earth.

ATHENIAN HERALD

Sons of Athens, heavy-laden with the holy weight of years,

Be your hearts as young men's lightened of their loathlier load of fears ;

For the wave is sunk whose thunder shoreward shook the shuddering lands,
And unbreached of warring waters Athens like a sea-rock stands.

CHORUS

Well thy word has cheered us, well thy face and glittering eyes, that spake Ere thy tongue spake words of comfort: yet no pause behoves it make Till the whole good hap find utterance that the Gods have given at length.

ATHENIAN HERALD

All is this, that yet the city stands unforced by stranger strength.

Sweeter sound might no mouth utter in man's ear than this thy word.

ATHENIAN HERALD

Feed thy soul then full of sweetness till some bitterer note be heard.

CHORUS

None, if this ring sure, can mar the music fallen from heaven as rain.

ATHENIAN HERALD

If no fire of sun or star untimely sear the tender grain.

CHORUS

Fresh the dewfall of thy tidings on our hopes re-flowering lies.

ATHENIAN HERALD

Till a joyless shower and fruitless blight them, raining from thine eyes.

CHORUS

Bitter springs have barren issues ; these bedew grief's arid sands.

ATHENIAN HERALD

Such thank-offerings ask such altars as expect thy suppliant hands.

CHORUS

Tears for triumph, wail for welfare, what strange godhead's shrine requires ?

ATHENIAN HERALD

Death's or victory's be it, a funeral torch feeds all its festal fires.

CHORUS

Like a star should burn the beacon flaming from our city's head.

ATHENIAN HERALD

Like a balefire should the flame go up that says the king is dead.

CHORUS

Out of heaven, a wild-haired meteor, shoots this new sign, scattering fear.

ATHENIAN HERALD

Yea, the word has wings of fire that hovered, loth to burn thine ear.

ERECHTHEUS

From thy lips it leapt forth loosened on a shrill and shadowy wing.

ATHENIAN HERALD

Long they faltered, fain to hide it deep as death that hides the king.

CHORUS

Dead with him blind hope lies blasted by the lightning of one sword.

ATHENIAN HERALD

On thy tongue^{*} truth wars with error ; no man's edge hath touched thy lord.

CHORUS

False was thine then, jangling menace like a war-steed's brow-bound bell ?

ATHENIAN HERALD

False it rang not joy nor sorrow ; but by no man's hand he fell.

CHORUS

Vainly then good news and evil through so faint a trumpet spake.

ATHENIAN HERALD

All too long thy soul yet labours, as who sleeping fain would wake, Waking, fain would fall on sleep again ; the woe thou knowest not yet,
When thou knowest, shall make thy memory thirst and hunger to forget.

CHORUS

Long my heart has hearkened, hanging on thy clamorous ominous cry,
Fain yet fearful of the knowledge whence it looks to live or die ;
Now to take the perfect presage of thy dark and side-long flight
Comes a surer soothsayer sorrowing, sable-stoled as birds of night.

PRAXITHEA

Man, what thy mother bare thee born to say
Speak ; for no word yet wavering on thy lip
Can wound me worse than thought forestalls or fear.

ATHENIAN HERALD

I have no will to weave too fine or far,
O queen, the weft of sweet with bitter speech, Bright words with darkling ; but the brief truth
shown
Shall plead my pardon for a lingering tongue,
Loth yet to strike hope through the heart and slay.
The sun's light still was lordly housed in heaven
When the twain fronts of war encountering smote
First fire out of the battle ; but not long
Had the fresh wave of windy fight begun
Heaving, and all the surge of swords to sway,
When timeless night laid hold of heaven, and took
With its great gorge the noon as in a gulf, Strangled ; and thicker than the shrill-winged shafts Flew the fleet lightnings, held in chase through heaven
By headlong heat of thunders on their trail Loosed as on quest of quarry ; that our host Smit with sick presage of some wrathful God

Quailed, but the foe as from one iron throat
With one great sheer sole thousand-throated cry Shook earth, heart-staggered from their shout, and clove

The eyeless hollow of heaven ; and breached therewith

As with an onset of strength-shattering sound
The rent vault of the roaring noon of night
From her throned seat of usurpation rang Reverberate answer ; such response there pealed
As though the tide's charge of a storming sea
Had burst the sky's wall, and made broad a breach
In the ambient girth and bastion flanked with stars Guarding the fortress of the Gods, and all Crashed now together on ruin ; and through that cry
And higher above it ceasing one man's note Tore its way like a trumpet : Charge, make end, Charge, halt not, strike, rend up their strength by the roots,

Strike, break them, make your birthright's promise sure,

Show your hearts hardier than the fenced land breeds
And souls breathed in you from no spirit of earth,
Sons of the sea's waves ; and all ears that heard Rang with that fiery cry, that the fine air Thereat was fired, and kindling filled the plain Full of that fierce and trumpet-quenching breath
That spake the clarions silent ; no glad song
For folk to hear that wist how dire a God
Begot this peril to them, what strong race
Fathered the sea-born tongue that sang them death, Threatening ; so raged through the red foam of fight Poseidon's son Eumolpus ; and the war
Quailed round him coming, and our side bore back,

As a stream thwarted by the wind and sea
That meet it midway mouth to mouth, and beat
The flood back of its issue ; but the king
Shouted against them, crying, *O Father-God,
Source of the God my father, from thine hand
Send me what end seems good now in thy sight,
But death from mine to this man ;* and the word
Quick on his lips yet like a blast of fire
Blew them together ; and round its lords that met Paused all the reeling battle ; two main waves Meeting, one hurled sheer from the sea-wall back
That shocks it sideways, one right in from sea
Charging, that full in face takes at one blow
That whole recoil and ruin, with less fear
Startle men's eyes late shipwrecked ; for a breath, Crest fronting crest hung, wave to wave rose poised,
Then clashed, breaker to breaker ; cloud with cloud
In heaven, chariot with chariot closed on earth,
One fourfold flash and thunder ; yet a breath,
And with the king's spear through his red heart's root

Driven, like a rock split from its hill-side, fell Hurled under his own horsehoofs dead on earth
The sea-beast that made war on earth from sea,
Dumb, with no shrill note left of storming song, Eumolpus ; and his whole host with one stroke
Spear-stricken through its dense deep iron heart Fell hurtling from us, and in fierce recoil Drew seaward as with one wide wail of waves, Resorbed with reluctance ; such a groan
Rose from the fluctuant reflue of its ranks,
Sucked sullen back and strengthless ; but scarce yet
The steeds had sprung and wheels had bruised their lord

Fallen, when from highest height of the sundering heaven

The Father for his brother's son's sake slain
Sent a sheer shaft of lightning writhen and smote
Right on his son's son's forehead, that unhelmed Shone like the star that shines down storm, and gave Light to men's eyes that saw thy lord their king
Stand and take breath from battle ; then too soon Saw sink down as a sunset in sea-mist

The high bright head that here in van of the earth
Rose like a headland, and through storm and night
Took all the sea's wrath on it ; and now dead
They bring thee back by war-forsaken ways
The strength called once thy husband, the great guard

That was of all men, stay of all men's lives,
They bear him slain of no man but a God,
Godlike ; and toward him dead the city's gates Fling their arms open mother-like, through him
Saved ; and the whole clear land is purged of war
What wilt thou say now of this weal and woe ?

PRAXITHEA

I praise the Gods for Athens. O sweet Earth,
Mother, what joy thy soul has of thy son,
Thy life of my dead lord, mine own soul knows
That knows thee godlike ; and what grief should mine,
What sorrow should my heart have, who behold Thee made so heavenlike happy ? This alone
I only of all these blessed, all thy kind,
Crave this for blessing to me, that in theirs
Have but a part thus bitter ; give me too
Death, and the sight of eyes that meet not mine
And thee too from no godless heart or tongue

Reproachful, thee too by thy living name,
Father divine, merciful God, I call,
Spring of my life-springs, fountain of my stream,
Pure and poured forth to one great end with thine,
Sweet head sublime of triumph and these tears,
Cephisus, if thou seest as gladly shed Thy blood in mine as thine own waves are given
To do this great land good, to give for love
The same lips drink and comfort the same hearts,
Do thou then, O my father, white-souled God,
To thy most pure earth-hallowing heart eterne Take what thou gavest to be given for these,
Take thy child to thee ; for her time is full,
For all she hath borne she hath given, seen all she had

Flow from her, from her eyes and breasts and hands
Flow forth to feed this people ; but be thou,
Dear God and gracious to all souls alive,
Good to thine own seed also ; let me sleep,
Father ; my sleepless darkling day is done,
My day of life like night, but slumberless :
For all my fresh fair springs, and his that ran
In one stream's bed with mine, are all run out Into the deep of death. The Gods have saved
Athens ; my blood has bought her at their hand,
And ye sit safe ; be glorious and be glad
As now for all time always, countrymen,
And love my dead for ever ; but me, me,
What shall man give for these so good as death ?

CHORUS

From the cup of my heart I pour through my lips along [Str. 1.
The mingled wine of a joyful and sorrowful song :

Wine sweeter than honey and bitterer than blood that is poured

From the chalice of gold, from the point of the two-edged sword.

For the city redeemed should joy flow forth as a flood,
And a dirge make moan for the city polluted with blood.

Great praise should the Gods have surely, my country, of thee, [Ant. 1.]

Were thy brow but as white as of old for thy sons to see,

Were thy hands as bloodless, as blameless thy cheek divine ;

But a stain on it stands of the life-blood offered for thine.

What thanks shall we give that are mixed not and marred with dread

For the price that has ransomed thine own with thine own child's head ?

For a taint there cleaves to the people redeemed with blood, [Str. 2.]

And a plague to the blood-red hand.

The rain shall not cleanse it, the dew nor the sacred flood

That blesses the glad live land.

In the darkness of earth beneath, in the world without sun, [Ant. 2.]

The shadows of past things reign ;

And a cry goes up from the ghost of an ill deed done,
And a curse for a virgin slain.

ATHENA

Hear, men that mourn, and woman without mate,
Hearken ; ye sick of soul with fear, and thou

Dumb-stricken for thy children ; hear ye too,
Earth, and the glory of heaven, and winds of the air,
And the most holy heart of the deep sea,
Late wrath, now full of quiet ; hear thou, sun,
Rolled round with the upper fire of rolling heaven
And all the stars returning ; hills and streams, Springs and fresh fountains, day that seest these deeds,
Night that shalt hide not ; and thou child of mine,
Child of a maiden, by a maid redeemed,
Blood-guiltless, though bought back with innocent
blood,

City mine own ; I Pallas bring thee word,
I virgin daughter of the most high God Give all you charge and lay command on all
The word I bring be wasted not ; for this
The Gods have stablished and his soul hath sworn,
That time nor earth nor changing sons of man
Nor waves of generations, nor the winds
Of ages risen and fallen that steer their tides
Through light and dark of birth and lovelier death
From storm toward haven inviolable, shall see So great a light alive beneath the sun
As the awless eye of Athens ; all fame else
Shall be to her fame as a shadow in sleep
To this wide noon at waking ; men most praised
In lands most happy for their children found Shall hold as highest of honours given of God
To be but likened to the least of thine, Thy least of all, my city ; thine shall be
The crown of all songs sung, of all deeds done Thine the full flower for all time ; in thine hand Shall time be like a sceptre, and thine head
Wear worship for a garland ; nor one leaf Shall change or winter cast out of thy crown

Till all flowers wither in the world ; thine eyes Shall first in man's flash lightning liberty,
Thy tongue shall first say freedom ; thy first hand
Shall loose the thunder terror as a hound
To hunt from sunset to the springs of the sun
Kings that rose up out of the populous east
To make their quarry of thee, and shall strew
With multitudinous limbs of myriad herds
The foodless pastures of the sea, and make
With wrecks immeasurable and unsummed defeat.
One ruin of all their many-folded flocks Ill shepherded from Asia ; by thy side Shall fight thy son the north wind, and the sea
That was thine enemy shall be sworn thy friend
And hand be struck in hand of his and thine
To hold faith fast for aye ; with thee, though each Make war on other, wind and sea shall keep Peace, and take truce as brethren for thy sake Leagued with one spirit and single-hearted strength
To break thy foes in pieces, who shall meet
The wind's whole soul and might of the main sea Full in their face of battle, and become A laughter to thee ; like a shower of leaves
Shall their long galleys rank by staggering rank
Be dashed adrift on ruin, and in thy sight
The sea deride them, and that lord of the air
Who took by violent hand thy child to wife
With his loud lips bemoock them, by his breath Swept out of sight of being ; so great a grace
Shall this day give thee, that makes one in heart
With mine the deep sea's godhead, and his son
With him that was thine helmsman, king with king, Dead man with dead ; such only names as these Shalt thou call royal, take none else or less

To hold of men in honour ; but with me
Shall these be worshipped as one God, and mix
With mine the might of their mysterious names
In one same shrine served singly, thence to keep Perpetual guard on Athens ; time and change, Masters and lords of all men, shall be made
To thee that knowest no master and no lord Servants ; the days that lighten heaven and nights
That darken shall be ministers of thine
To attend upon thy glory, the great years
As light-engraven letters of thy name
Writ by the sun's hand on the front of the earth
For world-beholden witness ; such a gift
For one fair chaplet of three lives enwreathed
To hang for ever from thy storied shrine,
And this thy steersman fallen with tiller in hand
To stand for ever at thy ship's helm seen,
Shall he that bade their threefold flower be shorn
And laid him low that planted, give thee back
In sign of sweet land reconciled with sea
And heavenlike earth with heaven ; such promise-pledge

I daughter without mother born of God
To the most woful mother born of man Plight for continual comfort. Hail, and live Beyond all human hap of mortal doom
Happy ; for so my sire hath sworn and I.

PRAXITHEA

O queen Athena, from a heart made whole
Take as thou givest us blessing ; never tear
Shall stain for shame nor groan untune the song
That as a bird shall spread and fold its wings
Here in thy praise for ever, and fulfil

The whole world's crowning city crowned with thee
As the sun's eye fulfils and crowns with sight
The circling crown of heaven. There is no grief Great as the joy to be made one in will
With him that is the heart and rule of life
And thee, God born of God ; thy name is ours,
And thy large grace more great than our desire.

From the depth of the springs of my spirit a fountain is poured of thanksgiving,
My country, my mother, for thee,
That thy dead for their death shall have life in thy sight and a name everliving
At heart of thy people to be In the darkness of change on the waters of time they shall turn from afar
To the beam of this dawn for a beacon, the light of these pyres for a star.
They shall see thee who love and take comfort, who hate thee shall see and take warning,
Our mother that makest us free ;
And the sons of thine earth shall have help of the Waves that made war on their morning,
And friendship and fame of the sea.

SONG FOR THE CENTENARY OF
WALTER SAVAGE LANDOR

BORN JANUARY 30TH, 1775

DIED SEPTEMBER 17TH, 1864

There is delight in singing, though none hear Beside the singer : and there is delight
In praising, though the praiser sit alone
And see the praised far off him, far above.

LANDOR.

DEDICATION

TO MRS. LYNN LINTON

*DAUGHTER in spirit elect and consecrate
By love and reverence of the Olympian sire Whom I too loved and worshipped, seeing so great,
And found so gracious toward my long desire
To bid that love in song before his gate
Sound, and my lute be loyal to his lyre,
To none save one it now may dedicate
Song's new burnt-offering on a century's pyre.
And though the gift be light
As ashes in men's sight,
Left by the flame of no ethereal fire,
Yet, for his worthier sake Than words are worthless, take
This wreath of words ere yet their hour expire :
So, haply, from some heaven above,
He, seeing, may set next yours my sacrifice of love.*

May 24, 1880.

SONG FOR THE CENTENARY OF
WALTER SAVAGE LANDOR

I

FIVE years beyond an hundred years have seen
 Their winters, white as faith's and age's hue, Melt, smiling through brief tears that broke between,
 And hope's young conquering colours reared anew,
 Since, on the day whose edge for kings made keen Smote sharper once than ever storm-wind blew,
 A head predestined for the girdling green
 That laughs at lightning all the seasons through,
 Nor frost or change can sunder
 Its crown untouched of thunder,
 Leaf from least leaf of all its leaves that grew Alone for brows too bold
 For storm to sear of old,
 Elect to shine in time's eternal view,
 Rose on the verge of radiant life Between the winds and sunbeams mingling love with strife.

2

The darkling day that gave its bloodred birth
 To Milton's white republic undefiled
 That might endure so few fleet years on earth
 Bore in him likewise as divine a child;

But born not less for crowns of love and mirth,
 Of palm and myrtle passionate and mild,
 The leaf that girds about with gentler girth
 The brow steel-bound in battle, and the wild Soft spray that flowers above
 The flower-soft hair of love ;
 And the white lips of wayworn winter smiled
 And grew serene as spring's
 When with stretched clouds like wings Or wings like drift of snow-clouds massed and piled
 The godlike giant, softening, spread
 A shadow of stormy shelter round the new-born head.

3

And o'er it brightening bowed the wild-haired hour,
 And touched his tongue with honey and with fire,
 And breathed between his lips the note of power
 That makes of all the winds of heaven a lyre Whose strings are stretched from topmost peaks that tower :
 To softest springs of waters that suspire,
 With sounds too dim to shake the lowliest flower Breathless with hope and dauntless with desire :
 And bright before his face
 That Hour became a Grace,
 As in the light of their Athenian quire
 When the Hours before the sun
 And Graces were made one,
 Called by sweet Love down from the aerial gyre
 By one dear name of natural joy,
 To bear on her bright breast from heaven a heaven-born boy.

4

Ere light could kiss the little lids in sunder
Or love could lift them for the sun to smite,
His fiery birth-star as a sign of wonder
Had risen, perplexing the presageful night With shadow and glory around her sphere and under
And portents prophesying by sound and sight ;
And half the sound was song and half was thunder,
And half his life of lightning, half of light :
And in the soft clenched hand
Shone like a burning brand
A shadowy sword for swordless fields of fight, Wrought only for such lord
As so may wield the sword
That all things ill be put to fear and flight
Even at the flash and sweep and gleam
Of one swift stroke beheld but in a shuddering dream.

5

Like the sun's rays that blind the night's wild beasts
The sword of song shines as the swordsman sings ;
From the west wind's verge even to the arduous east's
The splendour of the shadow that it flings
Makes fire and storm in heaven above the feasts
Of men fulfilled with food of evil things ;
Strikes dumb the lying and hungering lips of priests, Smites dead the slaying and ravening hands of kings ;

424 SONG FOR THE CENTENARY OF

Turns dark the lamp's hot light,
And turns the darkness bright
As with the shadow of dawn's reverberate wings ;
And far before its way
Heaven, yearning toward the day, Shines with its thunder and round its lightning rings ;
And never hand yet earlier played With that keen sword whose hilt is cloud, and fire its blade.

6

As dropping flakes of honey-heavy dew
More soft than slumber's, fell the first note's sound
From strings the swift young hand strayed lightlier through Than leaves through calm air wheeling toward the ground
Stray down the drifting wind when skies are blue
Nor yet the wings of latter winds unbound,
Ere winter loosen all the Æolian crew
With storm unleashed behind them like a hound.
As lightly rose and sank
Beside a green-flowered bank
The clear first notes his burning boyhood found
To sing her sacred praise
Who rode her city's ways Clothed with bright hair and with high purpose crowned ;
A song of soft presageful breath,
Prefiguring all his love and faith in life and death ;

7

Who should love two things only and only praise
More than all else for ever : even the glory
Of goodly beauty in women, whence all days
Take light whereby death's self seems transitory ;
And loftier love than loveliest eyes can raise,
Love that wipes off the miry stains and gory
From Time's worn feet, besmirched on bloodred
ways,
And lightens with his light the night of story ;
Love that lifts up from dust
Life, and makes darkness just,
And purges as with fire of purgatory
The dense disastrous air,
To burn old falsehood bare
And give the wind its ashes heaped and hoary ;
Love, that with eyes of ageless youth
Sees on the breast of Freedom borne her nursling Truth.

8

For at his birth the sistering stars were one
That flamed upon it as one fiery star ;
Freedom, whose light makes pale the mounting sun,
And Song, whose fires are quenched when Freedom's are.
Of all that love not liberty let none
Love her that fills our lips with fire from far
To mix with winds and seas in unison
And sound athwart life's tideless harbour-bar
Out where our songs fly free
Across time's bounded sea,

426 SONG FOR THE CENTENARY OF

A boundless flight beyond the dim sun's car,
Till all the spheres of night
Chime concord round their flight
Too loud for blasts of warring change to mar,
From stars that sang for Homer's birth To these that gave our Landor welcome back from earth.

9

Shine, as above his cradle, on his grave,
Stars of our worship, lights of our desire !
For never man that heard the world's wind rave
To you was truer in trust of heart and lyre :
Nor Greece nor England on a brow more brave Beheld your flame against the wind burn higher :
Nor all the gusts that blanch life's worldly wave
With surf and surge could quench its flawless fire :
No blast of all that blow
Might bid the torch burn low
That lightens on us yet as o'er his pyre, Indomitable of storm,
That now no flaws deform
Nor thwart winds baffle ere it all aspire,
One light of godlike breath and flame,
To write on heaven with man's most glorious names his name.

10

The very dawn was dashed with stormy dew
And freaked with fire as when God's hand would mar
Palaces reared of tyrants, and the blue
Deep heaven was kindled round her thunderous car,

That saw how swift a gathering glory grew
About him risen, ere clouds could blind or bar
A splendour strong to burn and burst them through And mix in one sheer light things near and far.
First flew before his path
Light shafts of love and wrath,
But winged and edged as elder warriors' are ;
Then rose a light that showed Across the midsea road
From radiant Calpe to revealed Masar
The way of war and love and fate
Between the goals of fear and fortune, hope and hate.

II

Mine own twice banished fathers' harbour-land,
Their nursing-mother France, the well-beloved,
By the arduous blast of sanguine sunrise fanned, Flamed on him, and his burning lips were moved
As that live statue's throned on Lybian sand
When morning moves it, ere her light faith roved
From promise, and her tyrant's poisonous hand Fed hope with Corsic honey till she proved More deadly than despair
And falser even than fair, Though fairer than all elder hopes removed As landmarks by the crime
Of inundating time ;
Light faith by grief too loud too long reproved :
For even as in some darkling dance Wronged love changed hands with hate, and turned his heart from France.

12

But past the snows and summits Pyrenean
 Love stronger-winged held more prevailing flight
 That o'er Tyrrhene, Iberian, and Ægean Shores lightened with one storm of sound and
 light.

From earliest even to hoariest years one pæan Rang rapture through the fluctuant roar of fight,
 From Nestor's tongue in accents Achillean
 On death's blind verge dominant over night.
 For voice as hand and hand
 As voice for one fair land
 Rose radiant, smote sonorous, past the height
 Where darkling pines enrobe
 The steel-cold Lake of Gaube,
 Deep as dark death and keen as death to smite,
 To where on peak or moor or plain His heart and song and sword were one to strike for Spain.

13

Resurgent at his lifted voice and hand
 Pale in the light of war or treacherous fate
 Song bade before him all their shadows stand
 For whom his will unbarred their funeral grate.
 The father by whose wrong revenged his land
 Was given for sword and fire to desolate
 Rose fire-encircled as a burning brand,
 Great as the woes he wrought and bore were great.
 Fair as she smiled and died,
 Death's crowned and breathless bride
 Smiled as one living even on craft and hate :

And pity, a star unrisen,
Scarce lit Ferrante's prison
Ere night unnatural closed the natural gate
That gave their life and love and light
To those fair eyes despoiled by fratricide of sight.

14

Tears bright and sweet as fire and incense fell
In perfect notes of music-measured pain
On veiled sweet heads that heard not love's farewell
Sob through the song that bade them rise again ;
Rise in the light of living song, to dwell
With memories crowned of memory : so the strain
Made soft as heaven the stream that girdles hell
And sweet the darkness of the breathless plain,
And with Elysian flowers
Recrowned the wreathless hours
That mused and mourned upon their works in vain ;
For all their works of death
Song filled with light and breath,
And listening grief relaxed her lightening chain ;
For sweet as all the wide sweet south
She found the song like honey from the lion's mouth.

15

High from his throne in heaven Simonides, Crowned with mild aureole of memorial tears
That the everlasting sun of all time sees
All golden, molten from the forge of years,
Smiled, as the gift was laid upon his knees
Of songs that hang like pearls in mourners' ears Mild as the murmuring of Hymettian bees
And honied as their harvest, that endears

430 SONG FOR THE CENTENARY OF

The toil of flowery days ;
 And smiling perfect praise
 Hailed his one brother mateless else of peers :
 Whom we that hear not him
 For length of date grown dim
 Hear, and the heart grows glad of grief that hears ;
 And harshest heights of sorrowing hours, Like snows of Alpine April, melt from tears to flowers.

16

Therefore to him the shadow of death was none,
 The darkness was not, nor the temporal tomb :
 And multitudinous time for him was one,
 Who bade before his equal seat of doom
 Rise and stand up for judgment in the sun
 The weavers of the world's large-historied loom,
 By their own works of light or darkness done Clothed round with light or girt about with gloom
 In speech of purer gold
 Than even they spake of old
 He bade the breath of Sidney's lips relume
 The fire of thought and love
 That made his bright life move Through fair brief seasons of benignant bloom
 To blameless music ever, strong
 As death and sweet as death-annihilating song.

17

Thought gave his wings the width of time to roam, Love gave his thought strength equal to release
 From bonds of old forgetful years, like foam
 Vanished, the fame of memories that decrease ;

So strongly faith had fledged for flight from home
The soul's large pinions till her strife should cease :
And through the trumpet of a child of Rome Rang the pure music of the flutes of Greece.
As though some northern hand
Reft from the Latin land
A spoil more costly than the Colchian fleece
To clothe with golden sound
Of old joy newly found
And rapture as of penetrating peace
The naked north-wind's cloudiest clime,
And give its darkness light of the old Sicilian time.

18

He saw the brand that fired the towers of Troy
Fade, and the darkness at Ænone's prayer
Close upon her that closed upon her boy,
For all the curse of godhead that she bare ;
And the Apollonian serpent gleam and toy
With scathless maiden limbs and shuddering hair ;
And his love smitten in their dawn of joy
Leave Pan the pine-leaf of her change to wear ;
And one in flowery coils
Caught as in fiery toils Smite Calydon with mourning unaware ;
And where her low turf shrine
Showed Modesty divine
The fairest mother's daughter far more fair
Hide on her breast the heavenly shame That kindled once with love should kindle Troy with flame.

Nor less the light of story than of song
 With graver glories girt his godlike head,
 Reverted alway from the temporal throng
 Of lives that live not toward the living dead.
 The shadows and the splendours of their throng
 Made bright and dark about his board and bed
 The lines of life and vision, sweet or strong With sound of lutes or trumpets blown, that led Forth of the ghostly gate
 Opening in spite of fate
 Shapes of majestic or tumultuous tread,
 Divine and direful things,
 These foul as priests or kings,
 Those fair as heaven or love or freedom, red
 With blood and green with palms and white With raiment woven of deeds divine and words of
 light.

The thunder-fire of Cromwell, and the ray
 That keeps the place of Phocion's name serene
 And clears the cloud from Kosciusko's day, Alternate as dark hours with bright between,
 Met in the heaven of his high thought, which lay
 For all stars open that all eyes had seen Rise on the night or twilight of the way Where feet of human hopes and fears had been.
 Again the sovereign word
 On Milton's lips was heard
 Living : again the tender three days' queen

Drew bright and gentle breath
On the sharp edge of death :
And, staged again to show of mortal scene,
Tiberius, ere his name grew dire,
Wept, stainless yet of empire, tears of blood and fire.

21

Most ardent and most awful and most fond,
The fervour of his Apollonian eye
Yearned upon Hellas, yet enthralled in bond
Of time whose years beheld her and past by Silent and shameful, till she rose and donned
The casque again of Pallas ; for her cry
Forth of the past and future, depths beyond
This where the present and its tyrants lie,
As one great voice of twain
For him had pealed again,
Heard but of hearts high as her own was high,
High as her own and his
And pure as love's heart is,
That lives though hope at once and memory die :
And with her breath his clarion's blast
Was filled as cloud with fire or future souls with past.

22

As a wave only obsequious to the wind
Leaps to the lifting breeze that bids it leap,
Large-hearted, and its thickening mane be thinned
By the strong god's breath moving on the deep
From utmost Atlas even to extremest Ind
That shakes the plain where no men sow nor reap,

434 SONG FOR THE CENTENARY OF

So, moved with wrath toward men that ruled and sinned

And pity toward all tears he saw men weep,

Arose to take man's part

His loving lion heart,

Kind as the sun's that has in charge to keep

Earth and the seed thereof

Safe in his lordly love,

Strong as sheer truth and soft as very sleep ;

The mightiest heart since Milton's leapt,

The gentlest since the gentlest heart of Shakespeare slept.

23

Like the wind's own on her divided sea

His song arose on Corinth, and aloud

Recalled her Isthmian song and strife when she Was thronged with glories as with gods in crowd

And as the wind's own spirit her breath was free

And as the heaven's own heart her soul was proud,

But freer and prouder stood no son than he

Of all she bare before her heart was bowed ;

None higher than he who heard

Medea's keen last word

Transpierce her traitor, and like a rushing cloud

That sundering shows a star

Saw pass her thunderous car

And a face whiter and deadlier than a shroud

That lightened from it, and the brand

Of tender blood that falling seared his suppliant hand.

24

More fair than all things born and slain of fate,
More glorious than all births of days and nights.
He bade the spirit of man regenerate,
Rekindling, rise and reassume the rights
That in high seasons of his old estate Clothed him and armed with majesties and might Heroic, when the times and hearts were great
And in the depths of ages rose the heights Radiant of high deeds done
And souls that matched the sun
For splendour with the lightnings of their lights
Whence even their uttered names
Burn like the strong twin flames
Of song that shakes a throne and steel that smites ;
As on Thermopylæ when shone Leonidas, on Syracuse Timoleon.

25

Or, sweeter than the breathless buds when spring
With smiles and tears and kisses bids them breathe, Fell with its music from his quiring string Fragrance of pine-leaves and odorous heath
Twined round the lute whereto he sighed to sing
Of the oak that screened and showed its maid
beneath,
Who seeing her bee crawl back with broken wing
Faded, a fairer flower than all her wreath,
And paler, though her oak
Stood scathless of the stroke
More sharp than edge of axe or wolfish teeth,

436 SONG FOR THE CENTENARY OF

That mixed with mortals dead
Her own half heavenly head
And life incorporate with a sylvan sheath,
And left the wild rose and the dove
A secret place and sacred from all guests but Love.

26

But in the sweet clear fields beyond the river
Dividing pain from peace and man from shade
He saw the wings that there no longer quiver Sink of the hours whose parting footfalls fade
On ears which hear the rustling amaranth shiver
With sweeter sound of wind than ever made Music on earth : departing, they deliver
The soul that shame or wrath or sorrow swayed ;
And round the king of men
Clash the clear arms again,
Clear of all soil and bright as laurel braid,
That rang less high for joy
Through the gates fallen of Troy
Than here to hail the sacrificial maid,
Iphigeneia, when the ford Fast-flowing of sorrows brought her father and their lord.

27

And in the clear gulf of the hollow sea
He saw light glimmering through the grave green
gloom
That hardly gave the sun's eye leave to see Cymodameia ; but nor tower nor tomb,
No tower on earth, no tomb of waves may be,
That may not sometime by diviner doom

Be plain and perview to the poet ; he Bids time stand back from him and fate make room
For passage of his feet,
Strong as their own are fleet,
And yield the prey no years may reassume
Through all their clamorous track,
Nor night nor day win back
Nor give to darkness what his eyes illume
And his lips bless for ever : he Knows what earth knows not, sings truth sung not of the sea.

28

Before the sentence of a curule chair
More sacred than the Roman, rose and stood
To take their several doom the imperial pair Diversely born of Venus, and in mood
Diverse as their one mother, and as fair,
Though like two stars contrasted, and as good,
Though different as dark eyes from golden hair ;
One as that iron planet red like blood
That bears among the stars
Fierce witness of her Mars
In bitter fire by her sweet light subdued ;
One in the gentler skies
Sweet as her amorous eyes :
One proud of worlds and seas and darkness rude Composed and conquered ; one content With lightnings from loved eyes of lovers lightly sent.

And where Alpheus and where Ladon ran Radiant, by many a rushy and rippling cove
 More known to glance of god than wandering man,
 He sang the strife of strengths divine that strove,
 Unequal, one with other, for a span,
 Who should be friends for ever in heaven above
 And here on pastoral earth : Arcadian Pan,
 And the awless lord of kings and shepherds, Love :
 All the sweet strife and strange
 With fervid counterchange
 Till one fierce wail through many a glade and grove Rang, and its breath made shiver
 The reeds of many a river,
 And the warm airs waxed wintry that it clove,
 Keen-edged as ice-retempered brand ;
 Nor might god's hurt find healing save of godlike
 hand.

As when the jarring gates of thunder ope
 Like earthquake felt in heaven, so dire a cry,
 So fearful and so fierce—" Give the sword scope !"— Rang from a daughter's lips, darkening the sky
 To the extreme azure of all its cloudless cope
 With starless horror : nor the God's own eye Whose doom bade smite, whose ordinance bade hope,
 Might well endure to see the adulteress die,
 The husband-slayer fordome
 By swordstroke of her son,
 Unutterable, unimaginable on high,

On earth abhorrent, fell
Beyond all scourge of hell,
Yet righteous as redemption : Love stood nigh,
Mute, sister-like, and closer clung Than all fierce forms of threatening coil and maddening tongue.

31

All these things heard and seen and sung of old,
He heard and saw and sang them. Once again Might foot of man tread, eye of man behold
Things un beholden save of ancient men,
Ways save by gods untrodden. In his hold
The staff that stayed through some Ætnean glen
The steps of the most highest, most awful-souled
And mightiest-mouthed of singers, even as then Became a prophet's rod,
A lyre on fire of God,
Being still the staff of exile : yea, as when The voice poured forth on us
Was even of Æschylus,
And his one word great as the crying of ten,
Crying in men's ears of wrath toward wrong,
Of love toward right immortal, sanctified with song.

32

Him too whom none save one before him ever Beheld, nor since hath man again beholden,
Whom Dante seeing him saw not, nor the giver
Of all gifts back to man by time withholden,
Shakespeare—him too, whom sea-like ages sever,
As waves divide men's eyes from lights upholden

440 SONG FOR THE CENTENARY OF

To landward, from our songs that find him never,
Seeking, though memory fire and hope embolden—
Him too this one song found,
And raised at its sole sound
Up from the dust of darkling dreams and olden Legends forlorn of breath,
Up from the deeps of death,
Ulysses : him whose name turns all songs golden,
The wise divine strong soul, whom fate
Could make no less than change and chance beheld him great.

33

Nor stands the seer who raised him less august
Before us, nor in judgment frail and rathe, Less constant or less loving or less just,
But fruitful-ripe and full of tender faith,
Holding all high and gentle names in trust
Of time for honour ; so his quickening breath Called from the darkness of their martyred dust
Our sweet Saints Alice and Elizabeth, Revived and re-inspired
With speech from heavenward fired
By love to say what Love the Archangel saith Only, nor may such word
Save by such ears be heard
As hear the tongues of angels after death Descending on them like a dove Has taken all earthly sense of thought away but love.

34

All sweet, all sacred, all heroic things,
All generous names and loyal, and all wise,
With all his heart in all its wayfarings
He sought, and worshipped, seeing them with his eyes
In very present glory, clothed with wings
Of words and deeds and dreams immortal, rise
Visible more than living slaves and kings,
Audible more than actual vows and lies :
These, with scorn's fieriest rod,
These and the Lord their God,
The Lord their likeness, tyrant of the skies
As they Lord Gods of earth,
These with a rage of mirth
He mocked and scourged and spat on, in such wise
That none might stand before his rod,
And these being slain the Spirit alone be lord or God.

35

For of all souls for all time glorious none Loved Freedom better, of all who have loved her best,
Than he who wrote that scripture of the sun
Writ as with fire and light on heaven's own crest,
Of all words heard on earth the noblest one
That ever spake for souls and left them blest :
GLADLY WE SHOULD REST EVER, HAD WE WON FREEDOM : WE HAVE LOST, AND VERY GLADLY REST.
O poet hero, lord
And father, we record
Deep in the burning tablets of the breast

Thankfully those divine
 And living words of thine
 For faith and comfort in our hearts imprest
 With strokes engraven past hurt of years
 And lines inured with fire of immemorial tears.

36

But who being less than thou shall sing of thee
 Words worthy of more than pity or less than scorn?
 Who sing the golden garland woven of three,
 Thy daughters, Graces mightier than the morn,
 More godlike than the graven gods men see Made all but all immortal, human born And heavenly natured? With the first came He,
 Led by the living hand, who left forlorn Life by his death, and time
 More by his life sublime
 Than by the lives of all whom all men mourn,
 And even for mourning praise
 Heaven, as for all those days
 These dead men's lives clothed round with glories worn
 By memory till all time lie dead,
 And higher than all behold the bay round Shakespeare's head.

37

Then, fairer than the fairest Grace of ours,
 Came girt with Grecian gold the second Grace,
 And verier daughter of his most perfect hours
 Than any of latter time or alien place
 Named, or with hair inwoven of English flowers
 Only, nor wearing on her statelièr face

The lordlier light of Athens. All the Powers
That graced and guarded round that holiest race,
That heavenliest and most high
Time hath seen live and die,
Poured all their power upon him to retrace
The erased immortal roll
Of Love's most sovereign scroll
And Wisdom's warm from Freedom's wide embrace,
The scroll that on Aspasia's knees
Laid once made manifest the Olympian Pericles.

38

Clothed on with tenderest weft of Tuscan air,
Came laughing like Etrurian spring the third,
With green Valdelsa's hill-flowers in her hair Deep-drenched with May-dews, in her voice the bird
Whose voice hath night and morning in it ; fair
As the ambient gold of wall-flowers that engird
The walls engirdling with a circling stair
My sweet San Gimignano : nor a word
Fell from her flowerlike mouth
Not sweet with all the south ;
As though the dust shrined in Certaldo stirred
And spake, as o'er it shone
That bright Pentameron,
And his own vines again and chestnuts heard Boccaccio : nor swift Elsa's chime
Mixed not her golden babble with Petrarca's rhyme

No lovelier laughed the garden which receives Yet, and yet hides not from our following eyes
 With soft rose-laurels and low strawberry-leaves, Ternissa, sweet as April-coloured skies,
 Bowed like a flowering reed when May's wind heaves
 The reed-bed that the stream kisses and sighs,
 In love that shrinks and murmurs and believes What yet the wisest of the starriest wise Whom Greece might ever hear Speaks in the gentlest ear
 That ever heard love's lips philosophize
 With such deep-reasoning words
 As blossoms use and birds,
 Nor heeds Leontion lingering till they rise
 Far off, in no wise over far,
 Beneath a heaven all amorous of its first-born star.

What sound, what storm and splendour of what fire,
 Darkening the light of heaven, lightening the night,
 Rings, rages, flashes round what ravening pyre
 That makes time's face pale with its reflex light
 And leaves on earth, who seeing might scarce respire, A shadow of red remembrance? Right nor might Alternating wore ever shapes more dire
 Nor manifest in all men's awful sight
 In form and face that wore Heaven's light and likeness more Than these, or held suspense men's hearts at height

More fearful, since man first Slaked with man's blood his thirst,
Than when Rome clashed with Hannibal in fight, Till tower on ruining tower was hurled Where Scipio stood, and Carthage was not in the world.

41

Nor lacked there power of purpose in his hand
Who carved their several praise in words of gold
To bare the brows of conquerors and to brand,
Made shelterless of laurels bought and sold
For price of blood or incense, dust or sand, Triumph or terror. He that sought of old
His father Ammon in a stranger's land,
And shrank before the serpentine fold,
Stood in our seer's wide eye
No higher than man most high,
And lowest in heart when highest in hope to hold Fast as a scripture furled
The scroll of all the world
Sealed with his signet : nor the blind and bold
First thief of empire, round whose head Swarmed carrion flies for bees, on flesh for violets fed.¹

42

As fire that kisses, killing with a kiss,
He saw the light of death, riotous and red,
Flame round the bent brows of Semiramis
Re-risen, and mightier, from the Assyrian dead,

Time, in his children's blood who takes delight.

From the Greek of Landor.

446 SONG FOR THE CENTENARY OF

Kindling, as dawn a frost-bound precipice,
The steely snows of Russia, for the tread
Of feet that felt before them crawl and hiss
The snaky lines of blood violently shed
Like living creeping things
That writhe but have no stings
To scare adulterers from the imperial bed
Bowed with its load of lust,
Or chill the ravenous gust
That made her body a fire from heel to head ;
Or change her high bright spirit and clear,
For all its mortal stains, from taint of fraud or fear.

43

As light that blesses, hallowing with a look,
He saw the godhead in Vittoria's face Shine soft on Buonarroti's, till he took,
Albeit himself God, a more godlike grace,
A strength more heavenly to confront and brook
All ill things coiled about his worldly race,
From the bright scripture of that present book Wherein his tired grand eyes got power to trace Comfort more sweet than youth,
And hope whose child was truth,
And love that brought forth sorrow for a space,
Only that she might bear
Joy : these things, written there,
Made even his soul's high heaven a heavenlier place,
Perused with eyes whose glory and glow
Had in their fires the spirit of Michael Angelo.

44

With balms and dews of blessing he consoled
The fair fame wounded by the black priest's fang, Giovanna's, and washed off her blithe and bold Boy-bridegroom's blood, that seemed so long to hang
On her fair hand, even till the stain of old
Was cleansed with healing song, that after sang Sharp truth by sweetest singers' lips untold
Of pale Beatrice, though her death-note rang
From other strings divine
Ere his rekindling line
With yet more piteous and intolerant pang
Pierced all men's hearts anew
That heard her passion through Till fierce from throes of fiery pity sprang Wrath, armed for chase of monstrous beasts, Strong to lay waste the kingdom of the seed of priests.

45

He knew the high-souled humbleness, the mirth
And majesty of meanest men born free,
That made with Luther's or with Hofer's birth
The whole world worthier of the sun to see :
The wealth of spirit among the snows, the dearth Wherein souls festered by the servile sea
That saw the lowest of even crowned heads on earth Thronged round with worship in Parthenope.
His hand bade Justice guide
Her child Tyrannicide,
Light winged by fire that brings the dawn to be ;

448 SONG FOR THE CENTENARY OF

And pierced with Tyrrel's dart
 Again the riotous heart
 That mocked at mercy's tongue and manhood's knee :
 And oped the cell where kinglike death
 Hung o'er her brows discrowned who bare Elizabeth.

46

Toward Spenser or toward Bacon proud or kind
 He bared the heart of Essex, twain and one,
 For the base heart that soiled the starry mind
 Stern, for the father in his child undone Soft as his own toward children, stamped and signed With their sweet image visibly set on
 As by God's hand, clear as his own designed The likeness radiant out of ages gone
 That none may now destroy
 Of that high Roman boy Whom Julius and Cleopatra saw their son
 True-born of sovereign seed,
 Foredoomed even thence to bleed,
 The stately grace of bright Cæsarion,
 The head unbent, the heart unbowed,
 That not the shadow of death could make less clear and proud.

47

With gracious gods he communed, honouring thus
 At once by service and similitude,
 Service devout and worship emulous
 Of the same golden Muses once they wooed,
 The names and shades adored of all of us,
 The nurslings of the brave world's earlier brood,

Grown gods for us themselves : Theocritus
First, and more dear Catullus, names bedewed
 With blessings bright like tears
 From the old memorial years,
And loves and lovely laughters, every mood
 Sweet as the drops that fell
 Of their own ænomel
From living lips to cheer the multitude
 That feeds on words divine, and grows More worthy, seeing their world reblossom like a rose.

48

Peace, the soft seal of long life's closing story,
 The silent music that no strange note jars,
Crowned not with gentler hand the years that glory
 Crowned, but could hide not all the spiritual scars
Time writes on the inward strengths of warriors hoary
With much long warfare, and with gradual bars
Blindly pent in : but these, being transitory, Broke, and the power came back that passion mars :
 And at the lovely last
 Above all anguish past
Before his own the sightless eyes like stars Arose that watched arise
 Like stars in other skies
Above the strife of ships and hurtling cars
 The Dioscurian songs divine
That lighten all the world with lightning of their line.

He sang the last of Homer, having sung
 The last of his Ulysses. Bright and wide For him time's dark strait ways, like clouds that clung

About the day-star, doubtful to divide,
 Waxed in his spiritual eyeshot, and his tongue
 Spake as his soul bore witness, that descried,
 Like those twin towering lights in darkness hung,
 Homer, and grey Laertes at his side

Kingly as kings are none

Beneath a later sun,

And the sweet maiden ministering in pride

To sovereign and to sage

In their more sweet old age :

These things he sang, himself as old, and died.

And if death be not, if life be,

As Homer and as Milton are in heaven is he.

Poet whose large-eyed loyalty of love

Was pure toward all high poets, all their kind

And all bright words and all sweet works thereof ;

Strong like the sun, and like the sunlight kind ;

Heart that no fear but every grief might move

Wherewith men's hearts were bound of powers that bind ;

The purest soul that ever proof could prove

From taint of tortuous or of envious mind ;

Whose eyes elate and clear

Nor shame nor ever fear

But only pity or glorious wrath could blind ;

Name set for love apart,
Held lifelong in my heart,
Face like a father's toward my face inclined ;
No gifts like thine are mine to give,
Who by thine own words only bid thee hail, and live.

“J'en passe, et des meilleurs.” But who can enumerate all or half our obligations to the illimitable and inexhaustible genius of the great man whose life and whose labour lasted even from the generation of our fathers' fathers to our own? Hardly any reader can feel, I think, so deeply as I feel the inadequacy of my poor praise and too imperfect gratitude to the majestic subject of their attempted expression ; but “such as I had have I given him.”

GRAND CHORUS OF BIRDS

FROM

ARISTOPHANES

Attempted in English verse after the original metre

I WAS allured into the audacity of this experiment by consideration of a fact which hitherto does not seem to have been taken into consideration by any translator of the half divine humourist in whose incomparable genius the highest qualities of Rabelais were fused and harmonized with the supremest gifts of Shelley: namely, that his marvellous metrical invention of the anapæstic heptameter was almost exactly reproducible in a language to which all variations and combinations of anapæstic, iambic, or trochaic metre are as natural and pliable as all dactylic and spondaic forms of verse are unnatural and abhorrent. As it happens, this highest central interlude of a most adorable masterpiece is as easy to detach from its dramatic setting, and even from its lyrical context, as it was easy to give line for line of it in English. In two metrical points only does my version vary from the verbal pattern of the original. I have of course added rhymes, and double rhymes, as necessary makeweights for the imperfection of an otherwise inadequate language; and equally of course I have not attempted the impossible and undesirable task of reproducing the rare exceptional effect of a line overcharged on purpose with a preponderance of heavy-footed spondees: and this for the obvious reason that even if such a line—which I doubt—could be exactly represented, foot by foot and pause for pause, in English, this English line would no more be a verse in any proper sense of the word than is the line I am writing at this moment. And my main intention, or at least my main desire, in the undertaking of this brief adventure, was to renew as far as possible for English ears the music of this resonant and triumphant metre, which goes ringing at full gallop as of horses who “dance as ’twere to the music

Their own hoofs make.”

I would not seem over curious in search of an apt or inapt quotation: but nothing can be fitter than a verse of Shakespeare's to praise at once and to describe the most typical verse of Aristophanes.

THE BIRDS

(685-723)

COME on then, ye dwellers by nature in darkness, and like to the leaves' generations,
 That are little of might, that are moulded of mire, unenduring and shadowlike nations, Poor plumeless ephemerals, comfortless mortals, as visions of creatures fast fleeing, Lift up your mind unto us that are deathless, and dateless the date of our being :
 Us, children of heaven, us, ageless for aye, us, all of whose thoughts are eternal ;
 That ye may from henceforth, having heard of us all things aright as to matters supernal,
 Of the being of birds and beginning of gods, and of streams, and the dark beyond reaching, Truthfully knowing aright, in my name bid Prodicus pack with his preaching.

It was Chaos and Night at the first, and the blackness of darkness, and hell's broad border, Earth was not, nor air, neither heaven ; when in depths of the womb of the dark without order First thing first-born of the black-plumed Night was a wind-egg hatched in her bosom, Whence timely with seasons revolving again sweet Love burst out as a blossom,

Gold wings glittering forth of his back, like whirlwinds gustily turning.
He, after his wedlock with Chaos, whose wings are of darkness, in hell broad-burning,
For his nestlings begat him the race of us first, and upraised us to light new-lighted.
And before this was not the race of the gods, until all things by Love were united ;
And of kind united with kind in communion of nature the sky and the sea are Brought forth, and the earth, and the race of the gods everlasting and blest. So that we are Far away the most ancient of all things blest. And that we are of Love's generation
There are manifest manifold signs. We have wings, and with us have the Loves habitation ;
And manifold fair young folk that forswore love once, ere the bloom of them ended,
Have the men that pursued and desired them subdued, by the help of us only befriended, With such baits as a quail, a flamingo, a goose, or a cock's comb staring and splendid.

All best good things that befall men come from us birds, as is plain to all reason :
For first we proclaim and make known to them spring, and the winter and autumn in season ; Bid sow, when the crane starts clanging for Afric, in shrill-voiced emigrant number,
And calls to the pilot to hang up his rudder again for the season, and slumber ;
And then weave cloak for Orestes the thief, lest he strip men of theirs if it freezes.
And again thereafter the kite reappearing announces a change in the breezes,

And that here is the season for shearing your sheep of their spring wool. Then does the swallow Give you notice to sell your greatcoat, and provide something light for the heat that's to follow.
Thus are we as Ammon or Delphi unto you, Dodona, nay, Phœbus Apollo.
For, as first ye come all to get auguries of birds, even such is in all things your carriage, Be the matter a matter of trade, or of earning your bread, or of any one's marriage.
And all things ye lay to the charge of a bird that belong to discerning prediction :
Winged fame is a bird, as you reckon : you sneeze, and the sign's as a bird for conviction :
All tokens are "birds" with you—sounds too, and lackeys, and donkeys. Then must it not follow That we ARE to you all as the manifest godhead that speaks in prophetic Apollo ?

OFF SHORE

WHEN the might of the summer
 Is most on the sea ;
 When the days overcome her
 With joy but to be,
 With rapture of royal enchantment, and sorcery that sets her not free,

But for hours upon hours
 As a thrall she remains Spell-bound as with flowers
 And content in their chains,
 And her loud steeds fret not, and lift not a lock of their deep white manes ;

Then only, far under
 In the depths of her hold,
 Some gleam of its wonder Man's eye may behold,
 Its wild-weed forests of crimson and russet and olive and gold.

Still deeper and dimmer
 And goodlier they glow
 For the eyes of the swimmer
 Who scans them below
 As he crosses the zone of their flowerage that knows not of sunshine and snow.

Soft blossomless frondage
And foliage that gleams
As to prisoners in bondage
The light of their dreams,
The desire of a dawn un beholden, with hope on the wings of its beams.

Not as prisoners entombed
Waxen haggard and wizen,
But consoled and illumed
In the depths of their prison With delight of the light everlasting and vision of dawn on them risen,

From the banks and the beds
Of the waters divine
They lift up their heads
And the flowers of them shine
Through the splendour of darkness that clothes them of water that glimmers like wine.

Bright bank over bank Making glorious the gloom,
Soft rank upon rank,
Strange bloom after bloom,
They kindle the liquid low twilight, the dusk of the dim sea's womb.

Through the subtle and tangible
Gloom without form,
Their branches, infrangible
Ever of storm,
Spread softer their sprays than the shoots of the woodland when April is warm.

As the flight of the thunder, full Charged with its word, Dividing the wonderful
Depths like a bird,
Speaks wrath and delight to the heart of the night that exults to have heard,

So swiftly, though soundless
In silence's ear,
Light, winged from the boundless
Blue depths full of cheer, Speaks joy to the heart of the waters that part not before him, but hear.

Light, perfect and visible
Godhead of God,
God indivisible,
Lifts but his rod,
And the shadows are scattered in sunder, and darkness is light at his nod.

At the touch of his wand,
At the nod of his head
From the spaces beyond
Where the dawn hath her bed, Earth, water, and air are transfigured, and rise as one risen from the dead.

He puts forth his hand,
And the mountains are thrilled
To the heart as they stand
In his presence, fulfilled With his glory that utters his grace upon earth, and her sorrows are stilled.

The moan of her travail
That groans for the light
Till dayspring unravel
The west of the night,
At the sound of the strings of the music of morning, falls dumb with delight.

He gives forth his word,
And the word that he saith,
Ere well it be heard,
Strikes darkness to death ;
For the thought of his heart is the sunrise, and dawn as the sound of his breath.

And the strength of its pulses
That passion makes proud Confounds and convulses
The depths of the cloud
Of the darkness that heaven was engirt with, divided, and rent as a shroud,

As the veil of the shrine
Of the temple of old
When darkness divine
Over noonday was rolled ;
So the heart of the night by the pulse of the light is convulsed and controlled.

And the sea's heart, groaning
For glories withdrawn,
And the waves' mouths, moaning
All night for the dawn,
Are uplift as the hearts and the mouths of the singers ● on leaside and lawn.

And the sound of the quiring
Of all these as one,
Desired and desiring
Till dawn's will be done, Fills full with delight of them heaven till it burns as the heart of the sun.

Till the waves too inherit
And waters take part
In the sense of the spirit
That breathes from his heart,
And are kindled with music as fire when the lips of the morning part,

With music unheard
In the light of her lips,
In the life-giving word
Of the dewfall that drips
On the grasses of earth, and the wind that enkindles the wings of the ships.

White glories of wings
As of seafaring birds
That flock from the springs
Of the sunrise in herds
With the wind for a herdsman, and hasten or halt at the change of his words.

At the watchword's change
When the wind's note shifts,
And the skies grow strange,
And the white squall drifts
● Up sharp from the sea-line, vexing the sea till the low cloud lifts.

At the charge of his word
 Bidding pause, bidding haste,
When the ranks are stirred
 And the lines displaced,
They scatter as wild swans parting adrift on the wan green waste.

At the hush of his word
 In a pause of his breath
When the waters have heard
 His will that he saith,
They stand as a flock penned close in its fold for division of death.

As a flock by division
 Of death to be thinned,
As the shades in a vision
 Of spirits that sinned ;
So glimmer their shrouds and their sheetings as clouds on the stream of the wind.

But the sun stands fast,
 And the sea burns bright,
And the flight of them past
 Is no more than the flight Of the snow-soft swarm of serene wings poised and afloat in the light.

Like flowers upon flowers
 In a festival way
When hours after hours
 Shed grace on the day,
White blossomlike butterflies hover and gleam through the snows of the spray.

Like snow-coloured petals
Of blossoms that flee
From storm that unsettles
The flower as the tree
They flutter, a legion of flowers on the wing, through the field of the sea.

Through the furrowless field
Where the foam-blossoms blow
And the secrets are sealed
Of their harvest below
They float in the path of the sunbeams, as flakes or as blossoms of snow.

Till the sea's ways darken,
And the God, withdrawn,
Give ear not or hearken
If prayer on him fawn,
And the sun's self seem but a shadow, the noon as a ghost of the dawn.

No shadow, but rather God, father of song,
Show grace 'to me, Father
God, loved of me long,
That I lose not the light of thy face, that my trust in thee work me not wrong.

While yet I make forward
With face toward thee
Not turned yet in shoreward,
Be thine upon me ;
Be thy light on my forehead or ever I turn it again from the sea.

As a kiss on my brow
Be the light of thy grace,
Be thy glance on me now
From the pride of thy place :
As the sign of a sire to a son be the light on my face of thy face.

Thou wast father of olden Times hailed and adored,
And the sense of thy golden
Great harp's monochord
Was the joy in the soul of the singers that hailed thee for master and lord.

Fair father of all
In thy ways that have trod,
That have risen at thy call,
That have thrilled at thy nod, Arise, shine, lighten upon me, O sun that we see to be God.

As my soul has been dutiful
Only to thee,
O God most beautiful,
Lighten thou me,
As I swim through the dim long rollers, with eyelids uplift from the sea.

Be praised and adored of us
All in accord,
Father and lord of us
Always adored,
The slayer and the stayer and the harper, the light of us all and our lord.

At the sound of thy lyre,
At the touch of thy rod,
Air quickens to fire
By the foot of thee trod,
The saviour and healer and singer, the living and visible God.

The years are before thee
As shadows of thee,
As men that adore thee,
As cloudlets that flee :
But thou art the God, and thy kingdom is heaven, and thy shrine is the sea.

AFTER NINE YEARS

TO JOSEPH MAZZINI

Primâ dicte mihi, summâ dicende Camenâ

I

THE shadows fallen of years are nine
 Since heaven grew seven times more divine
 With thy soul entering, and the dearth
 Of souls on earth
 Grew sevenfold sadder, wanting One Whose light of life, quenched here and done,
 Burns there eternal as the sun.

2

Beyond all word, beyond all deed,
 Beyond all thought beloved, what need
 Has death or love that speech should be,
 Hast thou of me?
 I had no word, no prayer, no cry,
 To praise or hail or mourn thee by,
 As when thou too wast man as I,

3

Nay, never, nor as any born
Save one whose name priests turn to scorn,
Who haply, though we know not now,
Was man as thou,
A wanderer branded with men's blame,
Loved past man's utterance : yea, the same,
Perchance, and as his name thy name.

4

Thou wast as very Christ—not he Degraded into Deity,
And priest-polluted by such prayer
As poisons air,
Tongue-worship of the tongue that slays,
False faith and parricidal praise :
But the man crowned with suffering days.

5

God only, being of all mankind
Most manlike, of most equal mind
And heart most perfect, more than can Be heart of man
Once in ten ages, born to be
As haply Christ was, and as we Knew surely, seeing, and worshipped thee.

6

To know thee—this at least was ours,
God, clothed upon with human hours,
O face beloved, O spirit adored,
Saviour and lord !

That wast not only for thine own
Redeemer—not of these alone
But all to whom thy word was known.

7

Ten years have wrought their will with me
Since last my words took wing for thee
Who then wast even as now above
Me, and my love.
As then thou knewest not scorn, so now
With that beloved benignant brow
'Take these of him whose light wast thou.

FOR A PORTRAIT OF FELICE ORSINI

STEADFAST as sorrow, fiery sad, and sweet With underthoughts of love and faith, more strong
 Than doubt and hate and all ill thoughts which throng,
 Haply, round hope's or fear's world-wandering feet
 That find no rest from wandering till they meet Death, bearing palms in hand and crowns of song ;
 His face, who thought to vanquish wrong with
 wrong,
 Erring, and make rage and redemption greet,
 Havoc and freedom ; weaving in one web
 Good with his right hand, evil with his left ;
 But all a hero lived and erred and died ;
 Looked thus upon the living world he left
 So bravely that with pity less than pride
 Men hail him Patriot and Tyrannicide.

EVENING ON THE BROADS

OVER two shadowless waters, adrift as a pinnace in peril,
 Hangs as in heavy suspense, charged with irresolute
 light,
Softly the soul of the sunset upholden awhile on the sterile
 Waves and wastes of the land, half repossessed by the night.
Inland glimmer the shallows asleep and afar in the breathless
 Twilight : yonder the depths darken afar and asleep.
Slowly the semblance of death out of heaven descends on the deathless
 Waters : hardly the light lives on the face of the deep—Hardly, but here for awhile. All over the grey soft shallow
 Hover the colours and clouds of the twilight, void of a star.
As a bird unfledged is the broad-winged night, whose winglets are callow
 Yet, but soon with their plumes will she cover her brood from afar,

Cover the brood of her worlds that cumber the skies with their blossom

Thick as the darkness of leaf-shadowed spring is encumbered with flowers.

World upon world is enwound in the bountiful girth of her bosom,

Warm and lustrous with life lovely to look on as ours.

Still is the sunset adrift as a spirit in doubt that dissembles

Still with itself, being sick of division and dimmed by dismay—

Nay, not so ; but with love and delight beyond passion it trembles,

Fearful and fain of the night, lovely with love of the day :

Fain and fearful of rest that is like unto death, and begotten

Out of the womb of the tomb, born of the seed of the grave :

Lovely with shadows of loves that are only not wholly forgotten,

Only not wholly suppressed by the dark as a wreck by the wave.

Still there linger the loves of the morning and noon, in a vision

Blindly beheld, but in vain : ghosts that are tired, and would rest.

But the glories beloved of the night rise all too dense for division,

Deep in the depth of her breast sheltered as doves in a nest.

Fainter the beams of the loves of the daylight season enkindled

Wane, and the memories of hours that were fair with the love of them fade :
Loftier, aloft of the lights of the sunset stricken and dwindled,
Gather the signs of the love at the heart of the night new-made.
New-made night, new-born of the sunset, immeasurable, endless,
Opens the secret of love hid from of old in her heart,
In the deep sweet heart full-charged with faultless love of the friendless Spirits of men that are eased when the wheels of the sun depart.
Still is the sunset afloat as a ship on the waters upholden
Full-sailed, wide-winged, poised softly for ever asway—
Nay, not so, but at least for a little, awhile at the golden
Limit of arching air fain for an hour to delay.
Here on the bar of the sand-bank, steep yet aslope to the gleaming
Waste of the water without, waste of the water within,
Lights overhead and lights underneath seem doubt-fully dreaming
Whether the day be done, whether the night may begin.
Far and afar and farther again they falter and hover, Warm on the water and deep in the sky and pale on the cloud :
Colder again and slowly remoter, afraid to recover Breath, yet fain to revive, as it seems, from the skirt of the shroud.

Faintly the heartbeats shorten and pause of the light in the westward

Heaven, as eastward quicken the paces of star upon star

Hurried and eager of life as a child that strains to the breast-ward

Eagerly, yearning forth of the deeps where the ways of them are,

Glad of the glory of the gift of their life and the wealth of its wonder,

Fain of the night and the sea and the sweet wan face of the earth.

Over them air grows deeper, intense with delight in them : under

Things are thrilled in their sleep as with sense of a sure new birth.

But here by the sand-bank watching, with eyes on the sea-line, stranger

Grows to me also the weight of the sea-ridge gazed on of me,

Heavily heaped up, changefully changeless, void though of danger

Void not of menace, but full of the might of the dense dull sea.

Like as the wave is before me, behind is the bank deep-drifted ;

Yellow and thick as the bank is behind me in front is the wave.

As the wall of a prison imprisoning the mere is the girth of it lifted :

But the rampire of water in front is erect as the wall of a grave.

And the crests of it crumble and topple and change, but the wall is not broken :

Standing still dry-shod, I see it as higher than my
head,
Moving inland alway again, reared up as in token Still of impending wrath still in the foam of it shed.
And even in the pauses between them, dividing the rollers in sunder,
High overhead seems ever the sea-line fixed as a mark,
And the shore where I stand as a valley beholden of hills whence thunder
Cloud and torrent and storm, darkening the depths of the dark.
Up to the sea, not upon it or over it, upward from under Seems he to gaze, whose eyes yearn after it here from the shore :
A wall of turbid water, aslope to the wide sky's wonder
Of colour and cloud, it climbs, or spreads as a slanted floor.
And the large lights change on the face of the mere like things that were living, Winged and wonderful, beams like as birds are that pass and are free :
But the light is dense as darkness, a gift withheld in the giving,
That lies as dead on the fierce dull face of the landward sea.
Stained and stifled and soiled, made earthier than earth is and duller, Grimly she puts back light as rejected, a thing put away :
No transparent rapture, a molten music of colour ;
No translucent love taken and given of the day.

Fettered and marred and begrimed is the light's live self on her falling,

As the light of a man's life lighted the fume of a dungeon mars :

Only she knows of the wind, when her wrath gives ear to him calling ;

The delight of the light she knows not, nor answers the sun or the stars.

Love she hath none to return for the luminous love of their giving :

None to reflect from the bitter and shallow response of her heart.

Yearly she feeds on her dead, yet herself seems dead and not living,

Or confused as a soul heavy-laden with trouble that will not depart.

In the sound of her speech to the darkness the moan of her evil remorse is,

Haply, for strong ships gnawed by the dog-toothed sea-bank's fang

And trampled to death by the rage of the feet of her foam-lipped horses

Whose manes are yellow as plague, and as ensigns of pestilence hang,

That wave in the foul faint air of the breath of a death-stricken city ;

So menacing heaves she the manes of her rollers knotted with sand,

Discoloured, opaque, suspended in sign as of strength without pity,

That shake with flameless thunder the low long length of the strand.

Here, 'far off in the farther extreme of the shore as it lengthens

Northward, lonely for miles, ere ever a village
begin,
On the lapsing land that recedes as the growth of the strong sea strengthens Shoreward, thrusting further and further its outworks in,
Here in Shakespeare's vision, a flower of her kin forsaken,
Lay in her golden raiment alone on the wild wave's edge,
Surely by no shore else, but here on the bank storm-shaken,
Perdita, bright as a dew-drop engilt of the sun on the sedge.
Here on a shore unbeheld of his eyes in a dream he beheld her
Outcast, fair as a fairy, the child of a far-off
king :
And over the babe-flower gently the head of a pastoral elder Bowed, compassionate, hoar as the hawthorn-blossom in spring,
And kind as harvest in autumn : a shelter of shade on the lonely
Shelterless unknown shore scourged of implacable waves :
Here, where the wind walks royal, alone in his kingdom, and only Sounds to the sedges a wail as of triumph that conquers and craves.
All these waters and wastes are his empire of old,
and awaken
From barren and stagnant slumber at only the sound of his breath :

Yet the hunger is eased not that aches in his heart, nor the goal overtaken
That his wide wings yearn for and labour as hearts that yearn after death.
All the solitude sighs and expects with a blind expectation
Somewhat unknown of its own sad heart, grown heartsick of strife :
Till sometime its wild heart maddens, and moans, and the vast ululation Takes wing with the clouds on the waters, and wails to be quit of its life.
For the spirit and soul of the waste is the wind, and his wings with their waving Darken and lighten the darkness and light of it thickened or thinned ;
But the heart that impels them is even as a conqueror's insatiably craving
That victory can fill not, as power cannot satiate the want of the wind.
All these moorlands and marshes are full of his might,
and oppose not Aught of defence nor of barrier, of forest or precipice piled :
But the will of the wind works ever as his that desires what he knows not,
And the wail of his want unfulfilled is as one making moan for her child.
And the cry of his triumph is even as the crying of hunger that maddens
The heart of a strong man aching in vain as the wind's heart aches
And the sadness itself of the land for its infinite solitude saddens

More for the sound than the silence athirst for the sound that slakes.

And the sunset at last and the twilight are dead :
and the darkness is breathless

With fear of the wind's breath rising that seems and seems not to sleep :

But a sense of the sound of it alway, a spirit un-sleeping and deathless,

Ghost or God, evermore moves on the face of the deep.

THE EMPEROR'S PROGRESS

A STUDY IN THREE STAGES

(On the Busts of Nero in the Uffizj.)

I

A CHILD of brighter than the morning's birth
 And lovelier than all smiles that may be smiled
 Save only of little children undefiled,
 Sweet, perfect, witless of their own dear worth,
 Live rose of love, mute melody of mirth,
 Glad as a bird is when the woods are mild,
 Adorable as is nothing save a child,
 Hails with wide eyes and lips his life on earth,
 His lovely life with all its heaven to be.
 And whoso reads the name inscribed or hears Feels his own heart a frozen well of tears,
 Child, for deep dread and fearful pity of thee Whom God would not let rather die than see
 The incumbent horror of impending years.

II

Man, that wast godlike being a child, and now,
 No less than kinglike, art no more in sooth
 For all thy grace and lordliness of youth,
 The crown that bids men's branded foreheads bow

Much more has branded and bowed down thy brow
 And gnawn upon it as with fire or tooth
 Of steel or snake so sorely, that the truth Seems here to bear false witness. Is it thou,
 Child? and is all the summer of all thy spring
 This? are the smiles that drew men's kisses down
 All faded and transfigured to the frown
 That grieves thy face? Art thou this weary thing?
 Then is no slave's load heavier than a crown
 And such a thrall no bondman as a king.

III

Misery, beyond all men's most miserable,
 Absolute, whole, defiant of defence,
 Inevitable, inexplicable, intense,
 More vast than heaven is high, more deep than hell,
 Past cure or charm of solace or of spell,
 Possesses and pervades the spirit and sense Whereto the expanse of the earth pays tribute ;
 whence
 Breeds evil only, and broods on fumes that swell Rank from the blood of brother and mother and wife.
 " Misery of miseries, all is misery," saith
 The heavy fair-faced hateful head, at strife
 With its own lusts that burn with feverous breath Lips which the loathsome bitterness of life
 Leaves fearful of the bitterness of death.

THE RESURRECTION OF ALCILIA

(Gratefully inscribed to Dr. A. B. Grosart.)

SWEET song-flower of the Mayspring of our song,
 Be welcome to us, with loving thanks and praise
 To his good hand who travelling on strange ways Found thee forlorn and fragrant, lain along Beneath dead leaves that many a winter's wrong Had rained and heaped through nigh three centuries' maze
 Above thy Maybloom, hiding from our gaze
 The life that in thy leaves lay sweet and strong.
 For thine have life, while many above thine head
 Piled by the wind lie blossomless and dead.
 So now disburdened of such load above
 That lay as death's own dust upon thee shed
 By days too deaf to hear thee like a dove
 Murmuring, we hear thee. bird and flower of love.

THE FOURTEENTH OF JULY

(On the refusal by the French Senate of the plenary amnesty demanded by Victor Hugo, in his speech of July 3rd, for the surviving exiles of the Commune.)

THOU shouldst have risen as never dawn yet rose,
 Day of the sunrise of the soul of France, Dawn of the whole world's morning, when the trance
 Of all the world had end, and all its woes
 Respite, prophetic of their perfect close.
 Light of all tribes of men, all names and clans, Dawn of the whole world's morning and of man's,
 Flower of the heart of morning's mystic rose,
 Dawn of the very dawn of very day,
 When the sun brighter breaks night's ruinous prison,
 Thou shouldst have risen as yet no dawn has risen,
 Evoked of him whose word puts night away,
 Our father, at the music of whose word
 Exile had ended, and the world had heard.

THE LAUNCH OF THE LIVADIA

GOLD, and fair marbles, and again more gold,
 And space of halls afloat that glance and gleam Like the green heights of sunset heaven, or seem
 The golden steeps of sunrise red and cold
 On deserts where dark exile keeps the fold
 Fast of the flocks of torment, where no beam Falls of kind light or comfort save in dream,
 These we far off behold not, who behold
 The cordage woven of curses, and the decks
 With mortal hate and mortal peril paven ;
 From stem to stern the lines of doom engraven
 That mark for sure inevitable wrecks
 Those sails predestinate, though no storm vex,
 To miss on earth and find in hell their haven.

II

All curses be about her, and all ill
 Go with her ; heaven be dark above her way,
 The gulf beneath her glad and sure of prey,
 And, wheresoe'er her prow be pointed, still
 The winds of heaven have all one evil will Conspirant even as hearts of kings to slay
 With mouths of kings to lie and smile and pray,
 And chieftiest his whose wintrier breath makes chill

490 THE LAUNCH OF THE LIVADIA

With more than winter's and more poisonous cold
The horror of his kingdom toward the north,
The deserts of his kingdom toward the east.
And though death hide not in her direful hold
Be all stars adverse toward her that come forth Nightly, by day all hours till all have ceased :

III

Till all have ceased for ever, and the sum
Be summed of all the sumless curses told
Out on his head by all dark seasons rolled Over its cursed and crowned existence, dumb
And blind and stark as though the snows made numb
All sense within it, and all conscience cold,
That hangs round hearts of less imperial mould
Like a snake feeding till their doomsday come.
O heart fast bound of frozen poison, be
All nature's as all true men's hearts to thee,
A two-edged sword of judgment ; hope be far
And fear at hand for pilot oversea
With death for compass and despair for star,
And the white foam a shroud for the White Czar

SIX YEARS OLD

To H. W. M.

BETWEEN the springs of six and seven.

Two fresh years' fountains, clear
Of all but golden sand for leaven,
Child, midway passing here,
As earth for love's sake dares bless heaven,
So dare I bless you, dear.

Between two bright well-heads, that brighten

With every breath that blows
Too loud to lull, too low to frighten,
But fain to rock, the rose,
Your feet stand fast, your lit smiles lighten,
That might rear flowers from snows.

You came when winds unleashed were snarling

Behind the frost-bound hours,
A snow-bird sturdier than the starling,
A storm-bird fledged for showers,
That spring might smile to find you, darling,
First born of all the flowers.

Could love make worthy things of worthless,
My song were worth an ear :
Its note should make the days most mirthless
The merriest of the year,
And wake to birth all buds yet birthless
To keep your birthday, dear.

But where your birthday brightens heaven
No need has earth, God knows,
Of light or warmth to melt or leaven
The frost or fog that glows
With sevenfold heavenly lights of seven Sweet springs that cleave the snows.

Could love make worthy music of you,
And match my Master's powers,
Had even my love less heart to love you,
A better song were ours ;
With all the rhymes like stars above you,
And all the words like flowers.

A PARTING SONG

(To a friend leaving England for a year's residence in Australia.)

THESE winds and suns of spring
 That warm with breath and wing
 The trembling sleep of earth, till half awake
 She laughs and blushes ere her slumber break,
 For all good gifts they bring Require one better thing,
 For all the loans of joy they lend us, borrow
 One sharper dole of sorrow,
 To sunder soon by half a world of sea
 Her son from England and my friend from me.

Nor hope nor love nor fear
 May speed or stay one year,
 Nor song nor prayer may bid, as mine would fain,
 The seasons perish and be born again,
 Restoring all we lend,
 Reluctant, of a friend,
 The voice, the hand, the presence and the sight
 That lend their life and light
 To present gladness and heart-strengthening cheer,
 Now lent again for one reluctant year.

So much we lend indeed,
Perforce, by force of need,
So much we must ; even these things and no more
The far sea sundering and the sundered shore,
A world apart from ours,
So much the imperious hours,
Exact, and spare not ; but no more than these All earth and all her seas
From thought and faith of trust and truth can borrow,
Not memory from desire, nor hope from sorrow.

Through bright and dark and bright
Returns of day and night
I bid the swift year speed and change and give His breath of life to make the next year live
With sunnier suns for us
A life more prosperous,
And laugh with flowers more fragrant, that shall see
A merrier March for me,
A rosier-girdled race of night with day,
A goodlier April and a tenderer May.

For him the inverted year
Shall mark our seasons here
With alien alternation, and revive
This withered winter, slaying the spring alive
With darts more sharply drawn
As nearer draws the dawn
In heaven transfigured over earth transformed
And with our winters warmed
And wasted with our summers, till the beams
Rise on his face that rose on Dante's dreams.

Till fourfold morning rise
Of starshine on his eyes,
Dawn of the spheres that brand steep heaven across
At height of night with semblance of a cross
Whose grace and ghostly glory
Poured heaven on purgatory, Seeing with their flamelets risen all heaven grow glad
For love thereof it had
And lovely joy of loving ; so may these Make bright with welcome now their southern seas.

O happy stars, whose mirth
The saddest soul on earth
That ever soared and sang found strong to bless,
Lightening his life's harsh load of heaviness
With comfort sown like seed
In dream though not in deed
On sprinkled wastes of darkling thought divine, Let all your lights now shine
With all as glorious gladness on his eyes
For whom indeed and not in dream they rise.

As those great twins of air
Hailed once with oldworld prayer
Of all folk alway faring forth by sea,
So now may these for grace and guidance be,
To guard his sail and bring Again to brighten spring
The face we look for and the hand we lack Still, till they light him back,
As welcome as to first discovering eyes
Their light rose ever, soon on his to rise.

As parting now he goes
From snow-time back to snows,
So back to spring from summer may next year
Restore him, and our hearts receive him here
The best good gift that spring
Had ever grace to bring
At fortune's happiest hour of star-blest birth
Back to love's homebright earth,
To eyes with eyes that commune, hand with hand
And the old warm bosom of all our mother-land.

Earth and sea-wind and sea
And stars and sunlight be Alike all prosperous for him, and all hours
Have all one heart, and all that heart as ours.
All things as good as strange Crown all the seasons' change
With changing flower and compensating fruit
From one year's ripening root ;
Till next year bring us, roused at spring's recall,
A heartier flower and goodlier fruit than all.

BY THE NORTH SEA

TO WALTER THEODORE WATTS

“We are what suns and winds and waters make us.”—LANDOR.

*SEA, wind, and sun, with light and sound and breath
 The spirit of man fulfilling these create That joy wherewith man's life grown passionate Gains heart to hear and sense to read and faith
 To know the secret word our Mother saith
 In silence, and to see, though doubt wax great,
 Death as the shadow cast by life on fate,
 Passing, whose shade we call the shadow of death.*

*Brother, to whom our Mother as to me
 Is dearer than all dreams of days undone,
 This song I give you of the sovereign three
 That are as life and sleep and death are, one :
 A song the sea-wind gave me from the sea,
 Where nought of man's endures before the sun.*

BY THE NORTH SEA

I

I

A LAND that is lonelier than ruin ;
 A sea that is stranger than death :
 Far fields that a rose never blew in,
 Wan waste where the winds lack breath ;
 Waste endless and boundless and flowerless
 But of marsh-blossoms fruitless as free :
 Where earth lies exhausted, as powerless
 To strive with the sea.

2

Far flickers the flight of the swallows,
 Far flutters the weft of the grass
 Spun dense over desolate hollows
 More pale than the clouds as they pass :
 Thick woven as the weft of a witch is Round the heart of a thrall that hath sinned,
 Whose youth and the wrecks of its riches
 Are waifs on the wind.

3

The pastures are herdless and sheepless,
No pasture or shelter for herds :
The wind is relentless and sleepless,
And restless and songless the birds ;
Their cries from afar fall breathless,
Their wings are as lightnings that flee ;
For the land has two lords that are deathless Death's self, and the sea.

4

These twain, as a king with his fellow,
Hold converse of desolate speech :
And her waters are haggard and yellow
And crass with the scurf of the beach :
And his garments are grey as the hoary
Wan sky where the day lies dim ;
And his power is to her, and his glory,
As hers unto him.

5

In the pride of his power she rejoices,
In her glory he glows and is glad :
In her darkness the sound of his voice is,
With his breath she dilates and is mad :
“ If thou slay me, O death, and outlive me, Yet thy love hath fulfilled me of thee.”
“ Shall I give thee not back if thou give me, O sister, O sea ? ”

6

And year upon year dawns living,
And age upon age drops dead :
And his hand is not weary of giving,
And the thirst of her heart is not fed :
And the hunger that moans in her passion,
And the rage in her hunger that roars,
As a wolf's that the winter lays lash on,
Still calls and implores.

7

Her walls have no granite for girder,
No fortalice fronting her stands :
But reefs the bloodguiltiest of murder
Are less than the banks of her sands :
These number their slain by the thousand ;
For the ship hath no surety to be,
When the bank is abreast of her bows and Aflush with the sea.

8

No surety to stand, and no shelter
To dawn out of darkness but one,
Out of waters that hurtle and welter
No succour to dawn with the sun,
But a rest from the wind as it passes,
Where, hardly redeemed from the waves,
Lie thick as the blades of the grasses
The dead in their graves.

9

A multitude noteless of numbers,
As wild weeds cast on an heap :
And sounder than sleep are their slumbers,
And softer than song is their sleep ;
And sweeter than all things and stranger
The sense, if perchance it may be,
That the wind is divested of danger
And scatheless the sea.

10

That the roar of the banks they breasted
Is hurtless as bellowing of herds,
And the strength of his wings that invested
The wind, as the strength of a bird's ;
As the sea-mew's might or the swallow's
That cry to him back if he cries,
As over the graves and their hollows
Days darken and rise.

11

As the souls of the dead men disburdened
And clean of the sins that they sinned,
With a lovelier than man's life guerdoned
And delight as a wave's in the wind,
And delight as the wind's in the billow,
Birds pass, and deride with their glee
The flesh that has dust for its pillow
As wrecks have the sea.

12

When the ways of the sun wax dimmer,
Wings flash through the dusk like beams ;
As the clouds in the lit sky glimmer,
The bird in the graveyard gleams ;
As the cloud at its wing's edge whitens
When the clarions of sunrise are heard,
The graves that the bird's note brightens Grow bright for the bird.

13

As the waves of the numberless waters
That the wind cannot number who guides
Are the sons of the shore and the daughters
Here lulled by the chime of the tides :
And here in the press of them standing
We know not if these or if we Live truliest, or anchored to landing
Or drifted to sea.

14

In the valley he named of decision
No denser were multitudes met
When the soul of the seer in her vision
Saw nations for doom of them set ;
Saw darkness in dawn, and the splendour
Of judgment, the sword and the rod ;
But the doom here of death is more tender
And gentler the god.

15

And gentler the wind from the dreary
Sea-banks by the waves overlapped,
Being weary, speaks peace to the weary
From slopes that the tide-stream hath sapped ;
And sweeter than all that we call so
The seal of their slumber shall be Till the graves that embosom them also Be sapped of the sea.

II

I

For the heart of the waters is cruel,
And the kisses are dire of their lips,
And their waves are as fire is to fuel
To the strength of the sea-faring ships,
Though the sea's eye gleam as a jewel
To the sun's eye back as he dips.

2

Though the sun's eye flash to the sea's
Live light of delight and of laughter,
And her lips breathe back to the breeze
The kiss that the wind's lips waft her
From the sun that subsides, and sees No gleam of the storm's dawn after.

3

And the wastes of the wild sea-marches
Where the borderers are matched in their might-Bleak fens that the sun's weight parches,
Dense waves that reject his light—
Change under the change-coloured arches
Of changeless morning and night.

4

The waves are as ranks enrolled
Too close for the storm to sever :
The fens lie naked and cold,
But their heart fails utterly never :
The lists are set from of old,
And the warfare endureth for ever.

III

I

Miles, and miles, and miles of desolation !
Leagues on leagues on leagues without a change !
Sign or token of some eldest nation
Here would make the strange land not so strange.
Time-forgotten, yea since time's creation,
Seem these borders where the sea-birds range.

2

Slowly, gladly, full of peace and wonder
Grows his heart who journeys here alone.
Earth and all its thoughts of earth sink under Deep as deep in water sinks a stone.
Hardly knows it if the rollers thunder,
Hardly whence the lonely wind is blown.

3

Tall the plumage of the rush-flower tosses,
Sharp and soft in many a curve and line
Gleam and glow the sea-coloured marsh-mosses
Salt and splendid from the circling brine.
Streak on streak of glimmering seashine crosses
All the land sea-saturate as with wine.

4

Far, and far between, in divers orders,
Clear grey steeples cleave the low grey sky ;
Fast and firm as time-unshaken warders,
Hearts made sure by faith, by hope made high.
These alone in all the wild sea-borders
Fear no blast of days and nights that die.

5

All the land is like as one man's face is,
Pale and troubled still with change of cares.
Doubt and death pervade her clouded spaces :
Strength and length of life and peace are theirs ;
Theirs alone amid these weary places,
Seeing not how the wild world frets and fares.

6

Firm and fast where all is cloud that changes
Cloud-clogged sunlight, cloud by sunlight thinned, Stern and sweet, above the sand-hill ranges
Watch the towers and tombs of men that sinned Once, now calm as earth whose only change is Wind, and light, and wind, and cloud, and wind.

7

Out and in and out the sharp straits wander,
In and out and in the wild way strives,
Starred and paved and lined with flowers that squander
Gold as golden as the gold of hives,
Salt and moist and multiform : but yonder
See, what sign of life or death survives ?

8

Seen then only when the songs of olden Harps were young whose echoes yet endure, Hymned of Homer when his years were golden,
Known of only when the world was pure,
Here is Hades, manifest, beholden,
Surely, surely here, if aught be sure !

9

Where the border-line was crossed, that, sundering
Death from life, keeps weariness from rest,
None can tell, who fares here forward wondering ;
None may doubt but here might end his quest.
Here life's lightning joys and woes once thundering
Sea-like round him cease like storm suppressed.

10

Here the wise wave-wandering steadfast-hearted
Guest of many a lord of many a land
Saw the shape or shade of years departed,
Saw the semblance risen and hard at hand,
Saw the mother long from love's reach parted, Anticleia, like a statue stand.

11

Statue? nay, nor tissued image woven
Fair on hangings in his father's hall ;
Nay, too fast her faith of heart was proven,
Far too firm her loveliest love of all ;
Love wherethrough the loving heart was cloven,
Love that hears not when the loud Fates call.

12

Love that lives and stands up re-created
Then when life has ebb'd and anguish fled ;
Love more strong than death or all things fated, Child's and mother's, lit by love and led ;
Love that found what life so long awaited
Here, when life came down among the dead.

13

Here, where never came alive another,
Came her son across the sundering tide
Crossed before by many a warrior brother
Once that warred on Ilion at his side ;
Here spread forth vain hands to clasp the mother
Dead, that sorrowing for his love's sake died.

14

Parted, though by narrowest of divisions,
Clasp he might not, only might implore,
Sundered yet by bitterest of derisions,
Son, and mother from the son she bore—
Here ? But all dispeopled here of visions Lies, forlorn of shadows even, the shore.

15

All too sweet such men's Hellenic speech is,
All too fain they lived of light to see,
Once to see the darkness of these beaches,
Once to sing this Hades found of me
Ghostless, all its gulfs and creeks and reaches,
Sky, and shore, and cloud, and waste, and sea.

IV

I

But aloft and afront of me faring
Far forward as folk in a dream
That strive, between doubting and daring,
Right on till the goal for them gleam,
Full forth till their goal on them lighten,
The harbour where fain they would be,
What headlands there darken and brighten?
What change in the sea?

2

What houses and woodlands that nestle
Safe inland to lee of the hill
As it slopes from the headlands that wrestle
And succumb to the strong sea's will?
Truce is not, nor respite, nor pity,
For the battle is waged not of hands
Where over the grave of a city
The ghost of it stands.

3

Where the wings of the sea-wind slacken,
Green lawns to the landward thrive,
Fields brighten and pine-woods blacken,
And the heat in their heart is alive ;

They blossom and warble and murmur,
For the sense of their spirit is free :
But harder to shoreward and firmer
The grasp of the sea.

4

Like ashes the low cliffs crumble,
The banks drop down into dust,
The heights of the hills are made humble,
As a reed's is the strength of their trust :
As a city's that armies environ,
The strength of their stay is of sand :
But the grasp of the sea is as iron,
Laid hard on the land.

5

A land that is thirstier than ruin ;
A sea that is hungrier than death ;
Heaped hills that a tree never grew in ;
Wide sands where the wave draws breath :
All solace is here for the spirit
That ever for ever may be
For the soul of thy son to inherit,
My mother, my sea.

6

O delight of the headlands and beaches !
O desire of the wind on the wold,
More glad than a man's when it reaches
That end which it sought from of old

And the palm of possession is dreary
To the sense that in search of it sinned ;
But nor satisfied ever nor weary
Is ever the wind.

7

The delight that he takes but in living
Is more than of all things that live :
For the world that has all things for giving Has nothing so goodly to give :
But more than delight his desire is,
For the goal where his pinions would be
Is immortal as air or as fire is,
Immense as the sea.

8

Though hence come the moan that he borrows
From darkness and depth of the night,
Though hence be the spring of his sorrows, Hence too is the joy of his might ;
The delight that his doom is for ever
To seek and desire and rejoice,
And the sense that eternity never Shall silence his voice.

9

That satiety never may stifle
Nor weariness ever estrange
Nor time be so strong as to rifle
Nor change be so great as to change

His gift that renews in the giving,
The joy that exalts him to be Alone of all elements living
The lord of the sea.

10

What is fire, that its flame should consume her?
More fierce than all fires are her waves :
What is earth, that its gulfs should entomb her?
More deep are her own than their graves.
Life shrinks from his pinions that cover
The darkness by thunders bedinned :
But she knows him, her lord and her lover
The godhead of wind.

11

For a season his wings are about her,
His breath on her lips for a space ;
Such rapture he wins not without her
In the width of his worldwide race.
Though the forests bow down, and the mountains
Wax dark, and the tribes of them flee,
His delight is more deep in the fountains
And springs of the sea.

12

There are those too of mortals that love him,
There are souls that desire and require,
Be the glories of midnight above him
Or beneath him the daysprings of fire :
And their hearts are as harps that approve him
And praise him as chords of a lyre

That were fain with their music to move him
To meet their desire

13

To descend through the darkness to grace them,
Till darkness were lovelier than light :
To encompass and grasp and embrace them,
Till their weakness were one with his might :
With the strength of his wings to caress them,
With the blast of his breath to set free ;
With the mouths of his thunders to bless them
For sons of the sea.

14

For these have the toil and the guerdon
That the wind has eternally : these Have part in the boon and the burden
Of the sleepless unsatisfied breeze,
That finds not, but seeking rejoices
That possession can work him no wrong :
And the voice at the heart of their voice is The sense of his song.

15

For the wind's is their doom and their blessing ;
To desire, and have always above
A possession beyond their possessing,
A love beyond reach of their love.
Green earth has her sons and her daughters,
And these have their guerdons ; but we Are the wind's and the sun's and the water's, Elect of the sea.

I

For the sea too seeks and rejoices,
Gains and loses and gains,
And the joy of her heart's own choice is
As ours, and as ours are her pains :
As the thoughts of our hearts are her voices,
And as hers is the pulse of our veins.

2

Her fields that know not of dearth
Nor lie for their fruit's sake fallow
Laugh large in the depth of their mirth :
But inshore here in the shallow,
Embroidered with encumbrance of earth,
Their skirts are turbid and yellow.

3

The grime of her greed is upon her,
The sign of her deed is her soil ;
As the earth's is her own dishonour,
And corruption the crown of her toil :
She hath spoiled and devoured, and her honour
Is this, to be shamed by her spoil.

4

But afar where pollution is none,
Nor ensign of strife nor endeavour,
Where her heart and the sun's are one,
And the soil of her sin comes never,
She is pure as the wind and the sun,
And her sweetness endureth for ever.

VI

I

Death, and change, and darkness everlasting,
Deaf, that hears not what the daystar saith,
Blind, past all remembrance and forecasting,
Dead, past memory that it once drew breath ;
These, above the washing tides and wasting,
Reign, and rule this land of utter death.

2

Change of change, darkness of darkness, hidden,
Very death of very death, begun
When none knows,—the knowledge is forbidden—
Self-begotten, self-proceeding, one,
Born, not made—abhorred, unchained, unhidden,
Night stands here defiant of the sun.

3

Change of change, and death of death begotten, Darkness born of darkness, one and three,
Ghostly godhead of a world forgotten,
Crowned with heaven, enthroned on land and sea,
Here, where earth with dead men's bones is rotten,
God of Time, thy likeness worships thee.

4

Lo, thy likeness of thy desolation,
Shape and figure of thy might, O Lord,
Formless form, incarnate miscreation,
Served of all things living and abhorred ;
Earth herself is here thine incarnation,
Time, of all things born on earth adored.

5

All that worship thee are fearful of thee ;
No man may not worship thee for fear :
Prayers nor curses prove not nor disprove thee,
Move nor change thee with our change of cheer :
All at last, though all abhorred thee, love thee,
God, the sceptre of whose throne is here.

6

Here thy throne and sceptre of thy station,
Here the palace paven for thy feet ;
Here thy sign from nation unto nation
Passed as watchword for thy guards to greet,
Guards that go before thine exaltation,
Ages, clothed with bitter years and sweet.

7

Here, where sharp the sea-bird shrills his ditty, Flickering flame-wise through the clear live calm Rose triumphal, crowning all a city,
Roofs exalted once with prayer and psalm,
Built of holy hands for holy pity,
Frank and fruitful as a sheltering palm.

8

Church and hospice wrought in faultless fashion,
Hall and chancel bounteous and sublime,
Wide and sweet and glorious as compassion,
Filled and thrilled with force of choral chime,
Filled with spirit of prayer and thrilled with passion, Hailed a God more merciful than Time.

9

Ah, less mighty, less than Time prevailing,
Shrunk, expelled, made nothing at his nod,
Less than clouds across the sea-line sailing,
Lies he, stricken by his master's rod.
"Where is man?" the cloister murmurs wailing;
Back the mute shrine thunders—"Where is God?"

10

Here is all the end of all his glory—
Dust, and grass, and barren silent stones.
Dead, like him, one hollow tower and hoary
Naked in the sea-wind stands and moans,
Filled and thrilled with its perpetual story:
Here, where earth is dense with dead men's bones.

11

Low and loud and long, a voice for ever,
Sounds the wind's clear story like a song.
Tomb from tomb the waves devouring sever,
Dust from dust as years relapse along;
Graves where men made sure to rest, and never Lie dismantled by the seasons' wrong.

12

Now displaced, devoured and desecrated,
Now by Time's hands darkly disinterred,
These poor dead that sleeping here awaited
Long the archangel's re-creating word,
Closed about with roofs and walls high-gated
Till the blast of judgment should be heard,

13

Naked, shamed, cast out of consecration,
Corpse and coffin, yea the very graves,
Scoffed at, scattered, shaken from their station,
Spurned and scourged of wind and sea like slaves, Desolate beyond man's desolation,
Shrink and sink into the waste of waves.

14

Tombs, with bare white piteous bones protruded, Shroudless, down the loose collapsing banks,
Crumble, from their constant place detruded,
That the sea devours and gives not thanks.
Graves where hope and prayer and sorrow brooded
Gape and slide and perish, ranks on ranks.

15

Rows on rows and line by line they crumble,
They that thought for all time through to be.
Scarce a stone whereon a child might stumble Breaks the grim field paced alone of me.
Earth, and man, and all their gods wax humble
Here, where Time brings pasture to the sea.

VII

I

But afar on the headland exalted,
But beyond in the curl of the bay,
From the depth of his dome deep-vaulted
Our father is lord of the day.
Our father and lord that we follow,
For deathless and ageless is he ;
And his robe is the whole sky's hollow,
His sandal the sea.

2

Where the horn of the headland is sharper,
And her green floor glitters with fire,
The sea has the sun for a harper,
The sun has the sea for a lyre.
The waves are a pavement of amber,
By the feet of the sea-winds trod
To receive in a god's presence-chamber
Our father, the God.

3

Time, haggard and changeful and hoary,
Is master and God of the land :
But the air is fulfilled of the glory
That is shed from our lord's right hand.

O father of all of us ever,
All glory be only to thee
From heaven, that is void of thee never,
And earth, and the sea.

4

O Sun, whereof all is beholden,
Behold now the shadow of this death,
This place of the sepulchres, olden
And emptied and vain as a breath.
The bloom of the bountiful heather Laughs broadly beyond in thy light
As dawn, with her glories to gather,
At darkness and night.

5

Though the Gods of the night lie rotten
And their honour be taken away
And the noise of their names forgotten,
Thou, Lord, art God of the day.
Thou art father and saviour and spirit,
O Sun, of the soul that is free
And hath grace of thy grace to inherit Thine earth and thy sea.

6

The hills and the sands and the beaches,
The waters adrift and afar,
The banks and the creeks and the reaches,
How glad of thee all these are !

The flowers, overflowing, overcrowded,
Are drunk with the mad wind's mirth :
The delight of thy coming unclouded
Makes music of earth.

7

I, last least voice of her voices,
Give thanks that were mute in me long
To the soul in my soul that rejoices
For the song that is over my song.
Time gives what he gains for the giving
Or takes for his tribute of me ;
My dreams to the wind everliving,
My song to the sea.

A CENTURY OF ROUNDELS

TO
CHRISTINA G. ROSSETTI

SONGS light as these may sound, though deep and strong
The heart spake through them, scarce should hope to please Ears tuned to strains of loftier thoughts than throng Songs light as these.

Yet grace may set their sometime doubt at ease,
Nor need their too rash reverence fear to wrong
The shrine it serves at and the hope it sees.

For childlike loves and laughters thence prolong Notes that bid enter, fearless as the breeze,
Even to the shrine of holiest-hearted song,
Songs light as these.

IN HARBOUR

I

GOODNIGHT and goodbye to the life whose signs denote us
 As mourners clothed with regret for the life gone by ;
 To the waters of gloom whence winds of the day-spring float us
 Goodnight and goodbye.

A time is for mourning, a season for grief to sigh ;
 But were we not fools and blind, by day to devote us
 As thralls to the darkness, unseen of the sundawn's eye ?

We have drunken of Lethe at length, we have eaten of lotus ;
 What hurts it us here that sorrows are born and die ?
 We have said to the dream that caressed and the dread that smote us
 Goodnight and goodbye.

II

Outside of the port ye are moored in, lying Close from the wind and at ease from the tide,
 What sounds come swelling, what notes fall dying Outside ?

They will not cease, they will not abide :
Voices of presage in darkness crying
Pass and return and relapse aside.

Ye see not, but hear ye not wild wings flying
To the future that wakes from the past that died ?
Is grief still sleeping, is joy not sighing
Outside ?

THE WAY OF THE WIND

THE wind's way in the deep sky's hollow
None may measure, as none can say
How the heart in her shows the swallow
The wind's way.

Hope nor fear can avail to stay
Waves that whiten on wrecks that wallow,
Times and seasons that wane and slay.

Life and love, till the strong night swallow Thought and hope and the red last ray, Swim the waters of years that follow
The wind's way.

“HAD I WIST”

HAD I wist, when life was like a warm wind playing Light and loud through sundawn and the dew's bright mist,
How the time should come for hearts to sigh in saying
“Had I wist”—

Surely not the roses, laughing as they kissed,
Not the lovelier laugh of seas in sunshine swaying,
Should have lured my soul to look thereon and list.

Now the wind is like a soul cast out and praying Vainly, prayers that pierce not ears when hearts resist :
Now mine own soul sighs, adrift as wind and straying,
“Had I wist.”

RECOLLECTIONS

I

YEARS upon years, as a course of clouds that thicken, Thronging the ways of the wind that shifts and veers,
 Pass, and the flames of remembered fires requicken
 Years upon years.

Surely the thought in a man's heart hopes or fears
 Now that forgetfulness needs must here have stricken Anguish, and sweetened the sealed-up springs of tears.

Ah, but the strength of regrets that strain and sicken,
 Yearning for love that the veil of death endears, Slackens not wing for the wings of years that quicken—
 Years upon years.

II

Years upon years, and the flame of love's high altar
 Trembles and sinks, and the sense of listening ears Heeds not the sound that it heard of love's blithe psalter
 Years upon years.

Only the sense of a heart that hearkens hears, Louder than dreams that assail and doubts that palter,
Sorrow that slept and that wakes ere sundawn peers.

Wakes, that the heart may behold, and yet not falter,
Faces of children as stars unknown of, spheres
Seen but of love, that endures though all things alter,
 Years upon years.

III

Years upon years, as a watch by night that passes, Pass, and the light of their eyes is fire that sears Slowly the hopes of the fruit that life amasses
 Years upon years.

Pale as the glimmer of stars on moorland meres
Lighten the shadows reverberate from the glasses Held in their hands as they pass among their peers.

Lights that are shadows, as ghosts on graveyard grasses,
Moving on paths that the moon of memory cheers,
Show but as mists over cloudy mountain passes
 Years upon years.

TIME AND LIFE

I

TIME, thy name is sorrow, says the stricken Heart of life, laid waste with wasting flame
 Ere the change of things and thoughts requicken,
 Time, thy name.

Girt about with shadow, blind and lame,
 Ghosts of things that smite and thoughts that sicken
 Hunt and hound thee down to death and shame.

Eyes of hours whose paces halt or quicken
 Read in bloodred lines of loss and blame,
 Writ where cloud and darkness round it thicken,
 Time, thy name.

II

Nay, but rest is born of me for healing,
 —So might haply time, with voice repress,
 Speak : is grief the last gift of my dealing ?
 Nay, but rest.

All the world is wearied, east and west,
Tired with toil to watch the slow sun wheeling,
Twelve loud hours of life's laborious quest.

Eyes forspent with vigil, faint and reeling,
Find at last my comfort, and are blest,
Not with rapturous light of life's revealing—Nay, but rest.

A DIALOGUE

I

DEATH, if thou wilt, fain would I plead with thee :
 Canst thou not spare, of all our hopes have built,
 One shelter where our spirits fain would be,
 Death, if thou wilt ?

No dome with suns and dews impearled and gilt,
 Imperial : but some roof of wildwood tree,
 Too mean for sceptre's heft or swordblade's hilt.

Some low sweet roof where love might live, set free
 From change and fear and dreams of grief or guilt ;
 Canst thou not leave life even thus much to see,
 Death, if thou wilt ?

Man, what art thou to speak and plead with me ?
 What knowest thou of my workings, where and how What things I fashion ? Nay, behold and see,
 Man, what art thou ?

Thy fruits of life, and blossoms of thy bough,
 What are they but my seedlings ? Earth and sea Bear nought but when I breathe on it must bow.

Bow thou too down before me : though thou be Great, all the pride shall fade from off thy brow, When Time and strong Oblivion ask of thee.

Man, what art thou ?

III

Death, if thou be or be not, as was said, Immortal ; if thou make us nought, or we Survive : thy power is made but of our dread,
Death, if thou be.

Thy might is made out of our fear of thee :
Who fears thee not, hath plucked from off thine head
The crown of cloud that darkens earth and sea.

Earth, sea, and sky, as rain or vapour shed,
Shall vanish ; all the shows of them shall flee :
Then shall we know full surely, quick or dead,
Death, if thou be.

PLUS ULTRA

FAR beyond the sunrise and the sunset rises Heaven, with worlds on worlds that lighten and respond :
Thought can see not thence the goal of hope's surmises
 Far beyond.

Night and day have made an everlasting bond
Each with each to hide in yet more deep disguises Truth, till souls of men that thirst for truth despond.

All that man in pride of spirit slights or prizes,
All the dreams that make him fearful, fain, or fond,
Fade at forethought's touch of life's unknown surprises
 Far beyond.

A DEAD FRIEND

I

GONE, O gentle heart and true,
Friend of hopes foregone,
Hopes and hopeful days with you
Gone?

Days of old that shone
Saw what none shall see anew,
When we gazed thereon.

Soul as clear as sunlit dew,
Why so soon pass on,
Forth from all we loved and knew Gone?

II

Friend of many a season fled,
What may sorrow send Toward thee now from lips that said
"Friend"?

Sighs and songs to blend Praise with pain uncomforted
Though the praise ascend?

Darkness hides no dearer head :
Why should darkness end
Day so soon, O dear and dead
Friend ?

III

Dear in death, thou hast thy part
Yet in life, to cheer
Hearts that held thy gentle heart
Dear.

Time and chance may sear
Hope with grief, and death may part Hand from hand's clasp here :

Memory, blind with tears that start,
Sees through every tear
All that made thee, as thou art,
Dear.

IV

True and tender, single-souled,
What should memory do
Weeping o'er the trust we hold True ?

Known and loved of few,
But of these, though small their fold,
Loved how well were you !

Change, that makes of new things old,
Leaves one old thing new ;
Love which promised truth, and told True.

v

Kind as heaven, while earth's control
Still had leave to bind
Thee, thy heart was toward man's whole Kind.

Thee no shadows blind
Now : the change of hours that roll
Leaves thy sleep behind.

Love, that hears thy death-bell toll
Yet, may call to mind
Scarce a soul as thy sweet soul
Kind.

vi

How should life, O friend, forget
Death, whose guest art thou?
Faith responds to love's regret,
How ?

Still, for us that bow
Sorrowing, still, though life be set,
Shines thy bright mild brow.

Yea, though death and thou be met,
Love may find thee now
Still, albeit we know not yet How.

Past as music fades, that shone
While its life might last ;
As a song-bird's shadow flown Past !

Death's reverberate blast
Now for music's lord has blown Whom thy love held fast.

Dead thy king, and void his throne ;
Yet for grief at last Love makes music of his own Past.

PAST DAYS

I

DEAD and gone, the days we had together,
Shadow-stricken all the lights that shone
Round them, flown as flies the blown foam's feather,
Dead and gone.

Where we went, we twain, in time foregone, Forth by land and sea, and cared not whether,
If I go again, I go alone.

Bound am I with time as with a tether ;
Thee perchance death leads enfranchised on,
Far from deathlike life and changeful weather,
Dead and gone.

II

Above the sea and sea-washed town we dwelt,
We twain together, two brief summers, free
From heed of hours as light as clouds that melt
Above the sea.

Free from all heed of aught at all were we,
Save chance of change that clouds or sunbeams dealt
And gleam of heaven to windward or to lee.

The Norman downs with bright grey waves for belt Were more for us than inland ways might be ;
A clearer sense of nearer heaven was felt
Above the sea.

III

Cliffs and downs and headlands which the forward-hasting
Flight of dawn and eve empurples and embrowns, Wings of wild sea-winds and stormy seasons wasting Cliffs and downs,

These, or ever man was, were : the same sky frowns,
Laughs, and lightens, as before his soul, forecasting Times to be, conceived such hopes as time discrowns.

These we loved of old : but now for me the blasting Breath of death makes dull the bright small seaward towns,
Clothes with human change these all but everlasting Cliffs and downs.

AUTUMN AND WINTER

I

THREE months bade wane and wax the wintering
moon

Between two dates of death, while men were fain
Yet of the living light that all too soon
Three months bade wane.

Cold autumn, wan with wrath of wind and rain,
Saw pass a soul sweet as the sovereign tune
That death smote silent when he smote again.

First went my friend, in life's mid light of noon,
Who loved the lord of music : then the strain Whence earth was kindled like as heaven in June
Three months bade wane.

A herald soul before its master's flying
Touched by some few moons first the darkling goal
Where shades rose up to greet the shade, espying
A herald soul ;

Shades of dead lords of music, who control
Men living by the might of men undying,
With strength of strains that make delight of dole.

The deep dense dust on death's dim threshold lying Trembled with sense of kindling sound that stole Through darkness, and the night gave ear, descreying
A herald soul.

One went before, one after, but so fast
They seem gone hence together, from the shore
Whence we now gaze : yet ere the mightier passed
One went before ;

One whose whole heart of love, being set of yore
On that high joy which music lends us, cast
Light round him forth of music's radiant store.

Then went, while earth on winter glared aghast,
The mortal god he worshipped, through the door Wherethrough so late, his lover to the last,
One went before.

A star had set an hour before the sun Sank from the skies wherethrough his heart's pulse yet
Thrills audibly : but few took heed, or none,
A star had set.

All heaven rings back, sonorous with regret,
The deep dirge of the sunset : how should one Soft star be missed in all the concourse met ?

But, O sweet single heart whose work is done,
Whose songs are silent, how should I forget That ere the sunset's fiery goal was won
A star had set ?

THE DEATH OF RICHARD WAGNER

I

MOURNING on earth, as when dark hours descend, Wide-winged with plagues, from heaven ; when hope and mirth
 Wane, and no lips rebuke or reprehend
 Mourning on earth.

The soul wherein her songs of death and birth,
 Darkness and light, were wont to sound and blend,
 Now silent, leaves the whole world less in worth.

Winds that make moan and triumph, skies that bend,
 Thunders, and sound of tides in gulf and firth, Spake through his spirit of speech, whose death should send Mourning on earth.

II

The world's great heart, whence all things strange and rare
 Take form and sound, that each inseparate part
 May bear its burden in all tuned thoughts that share
 The world's great heart—

The fountain forces, whence like steeds that start Leap forth the powers of earth and fire and air, Seas that revolve and rivers that depart—

Spake, and were turned to song : yea, all they were,
With all their works, found in his mastering art Speech as of powers whose uttered word laid bare
The world's great heart.

From the depths of the sea, from the wellsprings of earth, from the wastes of the midmost night, From the fountains of darkness and tempest and thunder, from heights where the soul would be,
The spell of the mage of music evoked their sense, as an unknown light
From the depths of the sea.

As a vision of heaven from the hollows of ocean, that none but a god might see, Rose out of the silence of things unknown of a presence, a form, a might,
And we heard as a prophet that hears God's message against him, and may not flee.

Eye might not endure it, but ear and heart with a rapture of dark delight, With a terror and wonder whose core was joy, and a passion of thought set free, Felt inly the rising of doom divine as a sundawn risen to sight
From the depths of the sea.

TWO PRELUDES

LOHENGRIN

Love, out of the depth of things,
 As a dewfall felt from above,
 From the heaven whence only springs
 Love,

Love, heard from the heights thereof,
 The clouds and the watersprings,
 Draws close as the clouds remove.

And the soul in it speaks and sings,
 A swan sweet-souled as a dove,
 An echo that only rings
 Love.

II

TRISTAN UND ISOLDE

Fate, out of the deep sea's gloom,
 When a man's heart's pride grows great,
 And nought seems now to foredoom
 Fate.

Fate, laden with fears in wait,
Draws close through the clouds that loom,
Till the soul see, all too late,

More dark than a dead world's tomb,
More high than the sheer dawn's gate,
More deep than the wide sea's womb,
Fate,

THE LUTE AND THE LYRE

DEEP desire, that pierces heart and spirit to the root, Finds reluctant voice in verse that yearns like soaring
 fire,
 Takes exultant voice when music holds in high pursuit
 Deep desire.

Keen as burns the passion of the rose whose buds respire,
 Strong as grows the yearning of the blossom toward the fruit,
 Sounds the secret half unspoken ere the deep tones tire.

Slow subsides the rapture that possessed love's flower-soft lute,
 Slow the palpitation of the triumph of the lyre :
 Still the soul feels burn, a flame unslaked though these be mute,
 Deep desire.

PLUS INTRA

Soul within sense, immeasurable, obscure, Insepulchred and deathless, through the dense Deep elements may scarce be felt as pure
 Soul within sense.

From depth and height by measurers left immense, Through sound and shape and colour, comes the unsure
 Vague utterance, fitful with supreme suspense.

All that may pass, and all that must endure,
 Song speaks not, painting shows not : more intense
 And keen than these, art wakes with music's lure Soul within sense.

CHANGE

BUT now life's face beholden
Seemed bright as heaven's bare brow
With hope of gifts withholden
But now.

From time's full-flowering bough
Each bud spake bloom to embolden
Love's heart, and seal his vow.

Joy's eyes grew deep with olden Dreams, born he wist not now ;
Thought's meanest garb was golden ;
But now !

A BABY'S DEATH

A LITTLE soul scarce fledged for earth
 Takes wing with heaven again for goal
 Even while we hailed as fresh from birth
 A little soul.

Our thoughts ring sad as bells that toll,
 Not knowing beyond this blind world's girth
 What things are writ in heaven's full scroll.

Our fruitfulness is there but dearth,
 And all things held in time's control
 Seem there, perchance, ill dreams, not worth
 A little soul.

The little feet that never trod
 Earth, never strayed in field or street,
 What hand leads upward back to God
 The little feet ?

A rose in June's most honied heat,
 When life makes keen the kindling sod,
 Was not so soft and warm and sweet.

Their pilgrimage's period
A few swift moons have seen complete Since mother's hands first clasped and shod
The little feet.

III

The little hands that never sought
Earth's prizes, worthless all as sands, What gift has death, God's servant, brought
The little hands ?

We ask : but love's self silent stands,
Love, that lends eyes and wings to thought
To search where death's dim heaven expands.

Ere this, perchance, though love know nought,
Flowers fill them, grown in lovelier lands,
Where hands of guiding angels caught
The little hands.

IV

The little eyes that never knew
Light other than of dawning skies,
What new life now lights up anew
The little eyes ?

Who knows but on their sleep may rise
Such light as never heaven let through To lighten earth from Paradise ?

No storm, we know, may change the blue Soft heaven that haply death descries ;
No tears, like these in ours, bedew
The little eyes.

Was life so strange, so sad the sky,
So strait the wide world's range,
He would not stay to wonder why
Was life so strange ?

Was earth's fair house a joyless grange
Beside that house on high
Whence Time that bore him failed to estrange ?

That here at once his soul put by All gifts of time and change,
And left us heavier hearts to sigh
" Was life so strange ? "

VI

Angel by name love called him, seeing so fair
The sweet small frame ;
Meet to be called, if ever man's child were,
Angel by name.

Rose-bright and warm from heaven's own heart he came,
And might not bear
The cloud that covers earth's wan face with shame.

His little light of life was all too rare
And soft a flame :
Heaven yearned for him till angels hailed him there Angel by name.

The song that smiled upon his birthday here
Weeps on the grave that holds him undefiled Whose loss makes bitterer than a soundless tear
The song that smiled.

His name crowned once the mightiest ever styled Sovereign of arts, and angel : fate and fear
Knew then their master, and were reconciled.

But we saw born beneath some tenderer sphere
Michael, an angel and a little child,
Whose loss bows down to weep upon his bier
The song that smiled.

ONE OF TWAIN

I

ONE of twain, twin-born with flowers that waken,
 Now hath passed from sense of sun and rain :
 Wind from off the flower-crowned branch hath shaken
 One of twain.

One twin flower must pass, and one remain
 One, the word said soothly, shall be taken,
 And another left : can death refrain ?

Two years since was love's light song mistaken,
 Blessing then both blossoms, half in vain ?
 Night outspeeding light hath overtaken
 One of twain.

II

Night and light ? O thou of heart unwary,
 Love, what knowest thou here at all aright,
 Lured, abused, misled as men by fairy
 Night and light ?

Haply, where thine eyes behold but night,
Soft as o'er her babe the smile of Mary
Light breaks flowerwise into new-born sight.

What though night of light to thee be chary?
What though stars of hope like flowers take flight?
Seest thou all things here, where all see vary
Night and light?

DEATH AND BIRTH

DEATH and birth should dwell not near together : Wealth keeps house not, even for shame, with dearth :
 Fate doth ill to link in one brief tether
 Death and birth.

Harsh the yoke that binds them, strange the girth Seems that girds them each with each : yet whether Death be best, who knows, or life on earth ?

Ill the rose-red and the sable feather
 Blend in one crown's plume, as grief with mirth :
 Ill met still are warm and wintry weather,
 Death and birth.

BIRTH AND DEATH

BIRTH and death, twin-sister and twin-brother,
Night and day, on all things that draw breath, Reign, while time keeps friends with one another
 Birth and death.

Each brow-bound with flowers diverse of wreath,
Heaven they hail as father, earth as mother,
Faithful found above them and beneath.

Smiles may lighten tears, and tears may smother Smiles, for all that joy or sorrow saith :
Joy nor sorrow knows not from each other
 Birth and death.

BENEDICTION

BLEST in death and life beyond man's guessing
Little children live and die, possess Still of grace that keeps them past expressing Blest.

Each least chirp that rings from every nest,
Each least touch of flower-soft fingers pressing Aught that yearns and trembles to be prest,

Each least glance, gives gift of grace, redressing Grief's worst wrongs : each mother's nurturing breast Feeds a flower of bliss, beyond all blessing
 Blest

ETUDE RÉALISTE

A BABY'S feet, like sea-shells pink,
 Might tempt, should heaven see meet,
 An angel's lips to kiss, we think,
 A baby's feet.

Like rose-hued sea-flowers toward the heat
 They stretch and spread and wink
 Their ten soft buds that part and meet.

No flower-bells that expand and shrink
 Gleam half so heavenly sweet
 As shine on life's untrodden brink
 A baby's feet.

A baby's hands, like rosebuds furled
 Whence yet no leaf expands,
 Ope if you touch, though close upcurled,
 A baby's hands.

Then, fast as warriors grip their brands
 When battle's bolt is hurled,
 They close, clenched hard like tightening bands.

No rosebuds yet by dawn impearled
Match, even in loveliest lands,
The sweetest flowers in all the world—
A baby's hands.

A baby's eyes, ere speech begin,
Ere lips learn words or sighs,
Bless all things bright enough to win
A baby's eyes.

Love, while the sweet thing laughs and lies,
And sleep flows out and in,
Sees perfect in them Paradise.

Their glance might cast out pain and sin,
Their speech make dumb the wise,
By mute glad godhead felt within
A baby's eyes.

BABYHOOD

I

A BABY shines as bright
If winter or if May be
On eyes that keep in sight
A baby.

Though dark the skies or grey be
It fills our eyes with light,
If midnight or midday be.

Love hails it, day and night,
The sweetest thing that may be,
Yet cannot praise aright
A baby.

II

All heaven, in every baby born,
All absolute of earthly leaven,
Reveals itself, though man may scorn
All heaven.

Yet man might feel all sin forgiven,
All grief appeased, all pain outworn,
By this one revelation given.

Soul, now forget thy burdens borne :
Heart, be thy joys now seven times seven :
Love shows in light more bright than morn
All heaven.

III

What likeness may define, and stray not
From truth's exactest way,
A baby's beauty? Love can say not What likeness may.

The Mayflower loveliest held in May
Of all that shine and stay not Laughs not in rosier disarray.

Sleek satin, swansdown, buds that play not
As yet with winds that play,
Would fain be matched with this, and may not :
What likeness may?

IV

Rose, 'round whose bed
Dawn's cloudlets close,
Earth's brightest-bred
Rose !

No song, love knows,
May praise the head
Your curtain shows.

Ere sleep has fled,
The whole child glows
One sweet live red
Rose.

FIRST FOOTSTEPS

A LITTLE way, more soft and sweet
Than fields aflower with May,
A babe's feet, venturing, scarce complete
A little way.

Eyes full of dawning day
Look up for mother's eyes to meet,
Too blithe for song to say.

Glad as the golden spring to greet
Its first live leaflet's play,
Love, laughing, leads the little feet
A little way.

A NINTH BIRTHDAY

FEBRUARY 4, 1883.

I

THREE times thrice hath winter's rough white wing Crossed and curdled wells and streams with ice
 Since his birth whose praises love would sing
 Three times thrice.

Earth nor sea bears flower nor pearl of price
 Fit to crown the forehead of my king,
 Honey meet to please him, balm, nor spice.

Love can think of nought but love to bring Fit to serve or do him sacrifice
 Ere his eyes have looked upon the spring
 Three times thrice.

II

Three times thrice the world has fallen on slumber, Shone and waned and withered in a trice,
 Frost has fettered Thames and Tyne and Humber
 Three times thrice,

Fogs have swoln too thick for steel to slice,
Cloud and mud have soiled with grime and umber Earth and heaven, defaced as souls with vice,

Winds have risen to wreck, snows fallen to cumber,
Ships and chariots, trapped like rats or mice,
Since my king first smiled, whose years now number Three times thrice.

Three times thrice, in wine of song full-flowing,
Pledge, my heart, the child whose eyes suffice, Once beheld, to set thy joy-bells going
Three times thrice.

Not the lands of palm and date and rice
Glow more bright when summer leaves them glowing,
Laugh more light when suns and winds entice.

Noon and eve and midnight and cock-crowing,
Child whose love makes life as paradise,
Love should sound your praise with clarions blowing
Three times thrice.

NOT A CHILD

I

“Not a child : I call myself a boy,” Says my king, with accent stern yet mild,
 Now nine years have brought him change of joy ;
 “Not a child.”

How could reason be so far beguiled,
 Err so far from sense's safe employ,
 Stray so wide of truth, or run so wild ?

Seeing his face bent over book or toy,
 Child I called him, smiling : but he smiled Back, as one too high for vain annoy—
 Not a child.

II

Not a child ? alack the year !
 What should ail an undefiled
 Heart, that he would fain appear
 Not a child ?

Men, with years and memories piled Each on other, far and near,
 Fain again would so be styled :

Fain would cast off hope and fear,
Rest, forget, be reconciled :
Why would you so fain be, dear,
Not a child ?

III

Child or boy, my darling, which you will,
Still your praise finds heart and song employ,
Heart and song both yearning toward you still,
Child or boy.

All joys else might sooner pall or clov
Love than this which inly takes its fill,
Dear, of sight of your more perfect joy.

Nay, be aught you please, let all fulfil
All your pleasure ; be your world your toy :
Mild or wild we love you, loud or still,
Child or boy.

TO DORA DORIAN

CHILD of two strong nations, heir
Born of high-souled hope that smiled,
Seeing for each brought forth a fair
Child,

By thy gracious brows, and wild
Golden-clouded heaven of hair,
By thine eyes elate and mild,

Hope would fain take heart to swear
Men should yet be reconciled,
Seeing the sign she bids thee bear,
Child.

THE ROUNDEL

A ROUNDEL is wrought as a ring or a starbright sphere,
 With craft of delight and with cunning of sound unsought,
 That the heart of the hearer may smile if to pleasure his ear

A roundel is wrought.

Its jewel of music is carven of all or of aught—Love, laughter, or mourning—remembrance of rapture or fear—
 That fancy may fashion to hang in the ear of thought.

As a bird's quick song runs round, and the hearts in us hear
 Pause answer to pause, and again the same strain caught,
 So moves the device whence, round as a pearl or tear,

A roundel is wrought.

AT SEA

“FAREWELL and adieu ” was the burden prevailing Long since in the chant of a home-faring crew ;
And the heart in us echoes, with laughing or wailing,
Farewell and adieu.

Each year that we live shall we sing it anew,
With a water untravelled before us for sailing
And a water behind us that wrecks may bestrew.

The stars of the past and the beacons are paling,
The heavens and the waters are hoarier of hue :
But the heart in us chants not an all unavailing
Farewell and adieu.

WASTED LOVE

WHAT shall be done for sorrow
With love whose race is run ?
Where help is none to borrow,
What shall be done ?

In vain his hands have spun
The web, or drawn the furrow ·
No rest their toil háth won.

His task is all gone thorough
And fruit thereof is none :
And who dare say to-morrow
What shall be done ?

BEFORE SUNSET

LOVE's twilight wanes in heaven above,
On earth ere twilight reigns :
Ere fear may feel the chill thereof,
Love's twilight wanes.

Ere yet the insatiate heart complains
"Too much, and scarce enough,"
The lip so late athirst refrains.

Soft on the neck of either dove
Love's hands let slip the reins :
And while we look for light of love
Love's twilight wanes.

A SINGING LESSON

FAR-FETCHED and dear-bought, as the proverb rehearses,
Is good, or was held so, for ladies : but nought
In a song can be good if the turn of the verse is Far-fetched and dear-bought.

As the turn of a wave should it sound, and the thought Ring smooth, and as light as the spray that disperses
Be the gleam of the words for the garb thereof wrought.

Let the soul in it shine through the sound as it pierces
Men's hearts with possession of music unsought ;
For the bounties of song are no jealous god's mercies,
Far-fetched and dear-bought.

FLOWER-PIECES

LOVE LIES BLEEDING

LOVE lies bleeding in the bed whereover
 Roses lean with smiling mouths or pleading :
 Earth lies laughing where the sun's dart clove her :
 Love lies bleeding.

Stately shine his purple plumes, exceeding Pride of princes : nor shall maid or lover
 Find on earth a fairer sign worth heeding.

Yet may love, sore wounded, scarce recover
 Strength and spirit again, with life receding :
 Hope and joy, wind-winged, about him hover :
 Love lies bleeding.

LOVE IN A MIST

Light love in a mist, by the midsummer moon misguided,
 Scarce seen in the twilight garden if gloom insist, Seems vainly to seek for a star whose gleam has derided
 Light love in a mist.

All day in the sun, when the breezes do all they list,
His soft blue raiment of cloudlike blossom abided Unrent and unwithered of winds and of rays that kissed.

Blithe-hearted or sad, as the cloud or the sun subsided, Love smiled in the flower with a meaning whereof none wist
Save two that beheld, as a gleam that before them glided,
 Light love in a mist.

THREE FACES

VENTIMIGLIA

THE sky and sea glared hard and bright and blank :
 Down the one steep street, with slow steps firm and
 free,

A tall girl paced, with eyes too proud to thank
 The sky and sea.

One dead flat sapphire, void of wrath or glee,
 Through bay on bay shone blind from bank to bank
 The weary Mediterranean, drear to see.

More deep, more living, shone her eyes that drank
 The breathless light and shed again on me,
 Till pale before their splendour waned and shrank
 The sky and sea.

GENOA

Again the same strange might of eyes, that saw
 In heaven and earth nought fairer, overcame
 My sight with rapture of reiterate awe,
 Again the same.

The self-same pulse of wonder shook like flame
The spirit of sense within me : what strange law
Had bid this be, for blessing or for blame ?

To what veiled end that fate or chance foresaw Came forth this second sister face, that came Absolute, perfect, fair without a flaw,
 Again the same ?

VENICE

Out of the dark pure twilight, where the stream Flows glimmering, streaked by many a birdlike bark That skims the gloom whence towers and bridges gleam
 Out of the dark,

Once more a face no glance might choose but mark Shone pale and bright, with eyes whose deep slow beam
Made quick the twilight, lifeless else and stark.

The same it seemed, or mystery made it seem,
As those before beholden ; but St. Mark Ruled here the ways that showed it like a dream
 Out of the dark.

EROS

I

EROS, from rest in isles far-famed,
With rising Anthesterion rose,
And all Hellenic heights acclaimed
Eros.

The sea one pearl, the shore one rose,
All round him all the flower-month flamed
And lightened, laughing off repose.

Earth's heart, sublime and unashamed,
Knew, even perchance as man's heart knows,
The thirst of all men's nature named
Eros.

II

Eros, a fire of heart untamed,
A light of spirit in sense that glows,
Flamed heavenward still ere earth defamed
Eros.

Nor fear nor shame durst curb or close
His golden godhead, marred and maimed,
Fast round with bonds that burnt and froze.

Ere evil faith struck blind and lamed
Love, pure as fire or flowers or snows,
Earth hailed as blameless and unblamed
Eros.

III

Eros, with shafts by thousands aimed
At laughing lovers round in rows,
Fades from their sight whose tongues proclaimed
Eros.

But higher than transient shapes or shows
The light of love in life inflamed
Springs, toward no goal that these disclose.

Above those heavens which passion claimed Shines, veiled by change that ebbs and flows,
The soul in all things born or framed,
Eros.

SORROW

SORROW, on wing through the world for ever,
Here and there for awhile would borrow Rest, if rest might haply deliver Sorrow.

One thought lies close in her heart gnawn thorough
With pain, a weed in a dried-up river,
A rust-red share in an empty furrow.

Hearts that strain at her chain would sever
The link where yesterday frets to-morrow :
All things pass in the world, but never Sorrow.

SLEEP

SLEEP, when a soul that her own clouds cover Wails that sorrow should always keep Watch, nor see in the gloom above her
Sleep,

Down, through darkness naked and steep,
Sinks, and the gifts of his grace recover
Soon the soul, though her wound be deep.

God beloved of us, all men's lover,
All most weary that smile or weep
Feel thee afar or anear them hover, Sleep.

ON AN OLD ROUNDEL

Translated by D. G. Rossetti from the French of Villon.

I

DEATH, from thy rigour a voice appealed,
 And men still hear what the sweet cry saith,
 Crying aloud in thine ears fast sealed,
 Death.

As a voice in a vision that vanisheth,
 Through the grave's gate barred and the portal steeled
 The sound of the wail of it travelleth.

Wailing aloud from a heart unhealed,
 It woke response of melodious breath
 From lips now too by thy kiss congealed,
 Death.

II

Ages ago, from the lips of a sad glad poet
 Whose soul was a wild dove lost in the whirling snow,
 The soft keen plaint of his pain took voice to show it Ages ago.

So clear, so deep, the divine drear accents flow,
No soul that listens may choose but thrill to know it,
Pierced and wrung by the passionate music's throe.

For us there murmurs a nearer voice below it,
Known once of ears that never again shall know, Now mute as the mouth which felt death's wave o'erflow it
 Ages ago.

A LANDSCAPE BY COURBET

Low lies the mere beneath the moorside, still
And glad of silence : down the wood sweeps clear
To the utmost verge where fed with many a rill
 Low lies the mere.

The wind speaks only summer : eye nor ear
Sees aught at all of dark, hears aught of shrill,
From sound or shadow felt or fancied here.

Strange, as we praise the dead man's might and skill, Strange that harsh thoughts should make such heavy
 cheer,
While, clothed with peace by heaven's most gentle will,
 Low lies the mere.

A FLOWER-PIECE BY FANTIN

HEART'S EASE or pansy, pleasure or thought Which would the picture give us of these?
Surely the heart that conceived it sought Heart's ease.

Surely by glad and divine degrees
The heart impelling the hand that wrought Wrought comfort here for a soul's disease.

Deep flowers, with lustre and darkness fraught,
From glass that gleams as the chill still seas
Lean and lend for a heart distraught
Heart's ease.

A NIGHT-PIECE BY MILLET

WIND and sea and cloud and cloud-forsaking
Mirth of moonlight where the storm leaves free Heaven awhile, for all the wrath of waking Wind and sea.

Bright with glad mad rapture, fierce with glee, Laughs the moon, borne on past cloud's o'er-taking
Fast, it seems, as wind or sail can flee.

One blown sail beneath her, hardly making Forth, wild-winged for harbourage yet to be, Strives and leaps and pants beneath the breaking Wind and sea.

“MARZO PAZZO”

MAD March with the wind in his wings wide-spread,
 Leaps from heaven, and the deep dawn's arch
 Hails re-risen again from the dead
 Mad March.

Soft small flames on rowan and larch
 Break forth as laughter on lips that said Nought till the pulse in them beat love's march.

But the heartbeat now in the lips rose-red Speaks life to the world, and the winds that parch Bring April forth as a bride to wed Mad March.

DEAD LOVE

DEAD love, by treason slain, lies stark,
White as a dead stark-stricken dove :
None that pass by him pause to mark
 Dead love.

His heart, that strained and yearned and strove
As toward the sundawn strives the lark,
Is cold as all the old joy thereof.

Dead men, re-risen from dust, may hark
When rings the trumpet blown above :
It will not raise from out the dark
 Dead love.

DISCORD

UNRECONCILED by life's fleet years, that fled
 With changeful clang of pinions wide and wild, Though two great spirits had lived, and hence had sped

Unreconciled ;

Though time and change, harsh time's imperious
 child,
 That wed strange hands together, might not wed
 High hearts by hope's misprision once beguiled ;

Faith, by the light from either's memory shed,
 Sees, radiant as their ends were undefiled,
 One goal for each—not twain among the dead Unreconciled.

CONCORD

RECONCILED by death's mild hand, that giving Peace gives wisdom, not more strong than mild,
Love beholds them, each without misgiving Reconciled.

Each on earth alike of earth reviled,
Hated, feared, derided, and forgiving,
Each alike had heaven at heart, and smiled.

Both bright names, clothed round with man's thanksgiving,
Shine, twin stars above the storm-drifts piled,
Dead and deathless, whom we saw not living Reconciled.

MOURNING

ALAS my brother ! the cry of the mourners of old
 That cried on each other,
All crying aloud on the dead as the death-note rolled,
 Alas my brother !

As flashes of dawn that mists from an east wind smother

 With fold upon fold,
The past years gleam that linked us one with another.

Time sunders hearts as of brethren whose eyes behold

 No more their mother :
But a cry sounds yet from the shrine whose fires wax cold,

 Alas my brother !

APEROTOS EROS

STRONG as death, and cruel as the grave,
Clothed with cloud and tempest's blackening breath,
Known of death's dread self, whom none outbrave,
 Strong as death,

Love, brow-bound with anguish for a wreath,
Fierce with pain, a tyrant-hearted slave,
Burns above a world that groans beneath

Hath not pity power on thee to save,
Love? hath power no pity? Nought he saith, Answering : blind he walks as wind or wave,
 Strong as death.

TO CATULLUS

My brother, my Valerius, dearest head
Of all whose crowning bay-leaves crown their mother
Rome, in the notes first heard of thine I read
 My brother.

No dust that death or time can strew may smother
Love and the sense of kinship inly bred
From loves and hates at one with one another.

To thee was Cæsar's self nor dear nor dread,
Song and the sea were sweeter each than other :
How should I living fear to call thee dead,
 My brother ?

“INSULARUM OCELLE”

SARK, fairer than aught in the world that the lit skies cover,
 Laughs inly behind her cliffs, and the seafarers mark
 As a shrine where the sunlight serves, though the blown clouds hover, Sark.

We mourn, for love of a song that outsang the lark,
 That nought so lovely beholden of Sirmio's lover
 Made glad in Propontis the flight of his Pontic bark.

Here earth lies lordly, triumphal as heaven is above her,
 And splendid and strange as the sea that upbears as an ark,
 As a sign for the rapture of storm-spent eyes to discover,
 Sark.

IN SARK

ABREAST and ahead of the sea is a crag's front cloven asunder
 With strong sea-breach and with wasting of winds whence terror is shed
 As a shadow of death from the wings of the darkness on waters that thunder
 Abreast and ahead.

At its edge is a sepulchre hollowed and hewn for a lone man's bed,
 Propped open with rock and agape on the sky and the sea thereunder,
 But roofed and walled in well from the wrath of them slept its dead.

Here might not a man drink rapture of rest, or delight above wonder, Beholding, a soul disembodied, the days and the nights that fled,
 With splendour and sound of the tempest around and above him and under,
 Abreast and ahead ?

IN GUERNSEY

TO THEODORE WATTS

I

THE heavenly bay, ringed round with cliffs and moors, Storm-stained ravines, and crags that lawns inlay, Soothes as with love the rocks whose guard secures
 The heavenly bay.

O friend, shall time take ever this away,
 This blessing given of beauty that endures,
 This glory shown us, not to pass but stay ?

Though sight be changed for memory, love ensures What memory, changed by love to sight, would say—
 The word that seals for ever mine and yours
 The heavenly bay.

II

My mother sea, my fostress, what new strand,
 What new delight of waters, may this be,
 The fairest found since time's first breezes fanned
 My mother sea ?

Once more I give me body and soul to thee,
Who hast my soul for ever : cliff and sand Recede, and heart to heart once more are we.

My heart springs first and plunges, ere my hand
Strike out from shore : more close it brings to me,
More near and dear than seems my fatherland,
My mother sea.

III

Across and along, as the bay's breadth opens, and o'er us
Wild autumn exults in the wind, swift rapture and
strong
Impels us, and broader the wide waves brighten before us
Across and along.

The whole world's heart is uplifted, and knows not wrong ;
The whole world's life is a chant to the sea-tide's
chorus ;
Are we not as waves of the water, as notes of the song ?

Like children unworn of the passions and toils that wore us,
We breast for a season the breadth of the seas that throng,
Rejoicing as they, to be borne as of old they bore us
Across and along.

On Dante's track by some funereal spell Drawn down through desperate ways that lead not back
We seem to move, bound forth past flood and fell
 On Dante's track.

The grey path ends : the gaunt rocks gape : the black
Deep hollow tortuous night, a soundless shell, Glares darkness : are the fires of old grown slack ?

Nay, then, what flames are these that leap and swell
As 'twere to show, where earth's foundations crack,
The secrets of the sepulchres of hell
 On Dante's track ?

By mere men's hands the flame was lit, we know,
From heaps of dry waste whin and casual brands :
Yet, knowing, we scarce believe it kindled so
 By mere men's hands.

Above, around, high-vaulted hell expands,
Steep, dense, a labyrinth walled and roofed with woe,
Whose mysteries even itself not understands.

The scorn in Farinata's eyes aglow
Seems visible in this flame : there Geryon stands :
No stage of earth's is here, set forth to show,
 By mere men's hands.

VI

Night, in utmost noon forlorn and strong, with heart athirst and fasting, Hungers here, barred up for ever, whence as one whom dreams affright
Day recoils before the low-browed lintel threatening doom and casting Night.

All the reefs and islands, all the lawns and highlands, clothed with light,
Laugh for love's sake in their sleep outside : but here the night speaks, blasting Day with silent speech and scorn of all things known from depth to height.

Lower than dive the thoughts of spirit-stricken fear in souls forecasting
Hell, the deep void seems to yawn beyond fear's reach, and higher than sight Rise the walls and roofs that compass it about with everlasting Night.

The house accurst, with cursing sealed and signed,
Heeds not what storms about it burn and burst :
No fear more fearful than its own may find
The house accurst.

Barren as crime, anhungered and athirst,
Blank miles of moor sweep inland, sere and blind,
Where summer's best rebukes not winter's worst.

The low bleak tower with nought save wastes behind Stares down the abyss whereon chance reared and nursed

This type and likeness of the accurst man's mind,
The house accurst.

VIII

Beloved and blest, lit warm with love and fame,
The house that had the light of the earth for guest Hears for his name's sake all men hail its name
Beloved and blest.

This eyrie was the homeless eagle's nest
When storm laid waste his eyrie : hence he came Again, when storm smote sore his mother's breast.

Bow down men bade us, or be clothed with blame And mocked for madness : worst, they sware, was best :
But grief shone here, while joy was one with shame,
Beloved and blest.

ENVOI

FLY, white butterflies, out to sea,
Frail pale wings for the winds to try,
Small white wings that we scarce can see Fly.

Here and there may a chance-caught eye
Note in a score of you twain or three Brighter or darker of tinge or dye.

Some fly light as a laugh of glee,
Some fly soft as a low long sigh :
All to the haven where each would be Fly.

ATHENS: AN ODE

ATHENS

AN ODE

ERE from under earth again like fire the violet kindle, [Str. 1.
 Ere the holy buds and hoar on olive-branches bloom,
 Ere the crescent of the last pale month of winter dwindle,
 Shrink, and fall as falls a dead leaf on the dead month's tomb,
 Round the hills whose heights the first-born olive-blossom brightened,
 Round the city brow-bound once with violets like a bride,
 Up from under earth again a light that long since lightened
 Breaks, whence all the world took comfort as all time takes pride.
 Pride have all men in their fathers that were free before them,
 In the warriors that begat us free-born pride have
 we :
 But the fathers of their spirits, how may men adore them,
 With what rapture may we praise, who bade our souls be free ?

Sons of Athens born in spirit and truth are all born free men ;

Most of all, we, nurtured where the north wind holds his reign :

Children all we sea-folk of the Salaminian seamen, Sons of them that beat back Persia they that beat back Spain.

Since the songs of Greece fell silent, none like ours have risen ;

Since the sails of Greece fell slack, no ships have sailed like ours ;

How should we lament not, if her spirit sit in prison ?

How should we rejoice not, if her wreaths renew their flowers ?

All the world is sweeter, if the Athenian violet
quicken :

All the world is brighter, if the Athenian sun return :

All things foul on earth wax fainter, by that sun's light stricken :

All ill growths are withered, where those fragrant flower-lights burn.

All the wandering waves of seas with all their warring waters

Roll the record on for ever of the sea-fight there,
When the capes were battle's lists, and all the straits were slaughter's,

And the myriad Medes as foam-flakes on the scattering air.

Ours the lightning was that cleared the north and lit
the nations,

But the light that gave the whole world light of old was she :

Ours an age or twain, but hers are endless generations :

All the world is hers at heart, and most of all are we.

Ye that bear the name about you of her glory, [Ant. 1.

Men that wear the sign of Greeks upon you sealed,
Yours is yet the choice to write yourselves in story
Sons of them that fought the Marathonian field.

Slaves of no man were ye, said your warrior poet,
Neither subject unto man as underlings :

Yours is now the season here wherein to show it,
If the seed ye be of them that knew not kings.

If ye be not, swords nor words alike found brittle

From the dust of death to raise you shall prevail :

Subject swords and dead men's words may stead you little,

If their old king-hating heart within you fail.

If your spirit of old, and not your bonds, be broken,

If the kingless heart be molten in your breasts,

By what signs and wonders, by what word or token,

Shall ye drive the vultures from your eagles' nests ?

All the gains of tyrants Freedom counts for losses ;

Nought of all the work done holds she worth the work,

When the slaves whose faith is set on crowns and crosses

Drive the Cossack bear against the tiger Turk.

Neither cross nor crown nor crescent shall ye bow to,

Nought of Araby nor Jewry, priest nor king :

As your watchword was of old, so be it now too :

As from lips long stilled, from yours let healing spring.

Through the fights of old, your battle-cry was healing,
And the Saviour that ye called on was the Sun :
Dawn by dawn behold in heaven your God, revealing Light from darkness as when Marathon was won.
Gods were yours yet strange to Turk or Galilean,
Light and Wisdom only then as gods adored :
Pallas was your shield, your comforter was Pæan, From your bright world's navel spake the Sun your Lord.

Though the names be lost, and changed the signs of Light and Wisdom be, [Eph. i.
By these only shall men conquer, by these only be set
free :
When the whole world's eye was Athens, these were yours, and theirs were ye.
Light was given you of your wisdom, light ye gave the world again :
As the sun whose godhead lightened on her soul was Hellas then :
Yea, the least of all her children as the chosen of other men.
Change your hearts not with your garments, nor your faith with creeds that change :
Truth was yours, the truth which time and chance transform not nor estrange :
Purer truth nor higher abides not in the reach of time's whole range.
Gods are they in all men's memories and for all time's periods,
They that hurled the host back seaward which had scourged the sea with rods :
Gods for us are all your fathers, even the least of these as gods.

In the dark of days the thought of them is with us, strong to save,
They that had no lord, and made the Great King lesser than a slave ;
They that rolled all Asia back on Asia, broken like a wave.
No man's men were they, no master's and no God's but these their own :
Gods not loved in vain nor served amiss, nor all yet overthrown :
Love of country, Freedom, Wisdom, Light, and none save these alone.
King by king came up against them, sire and son,
and turned to flee :
Host on host roared westward, mightier each than each, if more might be :
Field to field made answer, clamorous like as wave to wave at sea.
Strife to strife responded, loud as rocks to clangorous rocks respond
Where the deep rings wreck to seamen held in tempest's thrall and bond, Till when war's bright work was perfect peace as radiant rose beyond :
Peace made bright with fruit of battle, stronger made for storm gone down,
With the flower of song held heavenward for the violet of her crown Woven about the fragrant forehead of the fostress maiden's town.
Gods arose alive on earth from under stroke of human hands :
As the hands that wrought them, these are dead, and mixed with time's dead sands :

But the godhead of supernal song, though these now stand not, stands.

Pallas is not, Phœbus breathes no more in breathing brass or gold :

Clytæmnestra towers, Cassandra wails, for ever :
Time is bold,

But nor heart nor hand hath he to unwrite the scriptures writ of old.

Dead the great chryselephantine God, as dew last evening shed :

Dust of earth or foam of ocean is the symbol of his
head :

Earth and ocean shall be shadows when Prometheus shall be dead.

Fame around her warriors living rang through Greece and lightened, [Str. 2.

Moving equal with their stature, stately with their strength :

Thebes and Lacedæmon at their breathing presence brightened,

Sense or sound of them filled all the live land's breadth and length.

All the lesser tribes put on the pure Athenian fashion, One Hellenic heart was from the mountains to the
sea :

Sparta's bitter self grew sweet with high half-human passion,

And her dry thorns flushed aflower in strait Ther-mopylæ.

Fruitless yet the flowers had fallen, and all the deeds died fruitless,

Save that tongues of after men, the children of her peace,

Took the tale up of her glories, transient else and rootless,
And in ears and hearts of all men left the praise of Greece.
Fair the war-time was when still, as beacon answering beacon,
Sea to land flashed fight, and thundered note of wrath or cheer ;
But the strength of noonday night hath power to waste and weaken,
Nor may light be passed from hand to hand of year to year
If the dying deed be saved not, ere it die for ever,
By the hands and lips of men more wise than years are strong ;
If the soul of man take heed not that the deed die never,
Clothed about with purple and gold of story, crowned with song.
Still the burning heart of boy and man alike re-joices,
Hearing words which made it seem of old for all who sang
That their heaven of heavens waxed happier when from free men's voices
Well-beloved Harmodius and Aristogeiton rang.
Never fell such fragrance from the flower-month's rose-red kirtle
As from chaplets on the bright friends' brows who slew their lord :
Greener grew the leaf and balmier blew the flower of myrtle
When its blossom sheathed the sheer tyrannicida' sword.

None so glorious garland crowned the feast Panathenæan

As this wreath too frail to fetter fast the Cyprian
dove :

None so fiery song sprang sunwards annual as the præan

Praising perfect love of friends and perfect country's love.

Higher than highest of all those heavens wherefrom the starry [Ant. 2.]

Song of Homer shone above the rolling fight, Gleams like spring's green bloom on boughs all gaunt and gnarry

Soft live splendour as of flowers of foam in flight, Glowa a glory of mild-winged maidens upward mounting

Sheer through air made shrill with strokes of smooth swift wings
Round the rocks beyond foot's reach, past eyesight's counting,

Up the cleft where iron wind of winter rings
Round a God fast clenched in iron jaws of fetters,
Him who culled for man the fruitful flower of fire,
Bared the darkling scriptures writ in dazzling letters,
Taught the truth of dreams deceiving men's desire,
Gave their water-wandering chariot-seats of ocean

Wings, and bade the rage of war-steeds champ the rein,
Showed the symbols of the wild birds' wheeling motion,

Waged for man's sake war with God and all his train.

Earth, whose name was also Righteousness, a mother

Many-named and single-natured, gave him breath Whence God's wrath could wring but this word and none other --

He may smite me, yet he shall not do to death.

Him the tongue that sang triumphant while tormented

Sang as loud the sevenfold storm that roared ere-while

Round the towers of Thebes till wrath might rest contented :

Sang the flight from smooth soft-sanded banks of Nile,

When like mateless doves that fly from snare or tether

Came the suppliants landwards trembling as they trod,

And the prayer took wing from all their tongues together---

KIng of kings, most holy of holies, blessed God.

But what mouth may chant again, what heart may know it,

All the rapture that all hearts of men put on

When of Salamis the time-transcending poet

Sang, whose hand had chased the Mede at Marathon ?

Darker dawned the song with stormier wings above the watch-fire spread [Ep. 2.

Whence from Ida toward the hill of Hermes leapt the light that said

Troy was fallen, a torch funereal for the king's triumphal head.
Dire indeed the birth of Leda's womb that had God's self to sire Bloomed, a flower of love that stung the soul with fangs that gnaw like fire :
But the twin-born human-fathered sister-flower bore fruit more dire.
Scarce the cry that called on airy heaven and all swift winds on wing, Wells of river-heads, and countless laugh of waves past reckoning,
Earth which brought forth all, and the orbèd sun that looks on everything, Scarce that cry fills yet men's hearts more full of heart-devouring dread
Than the murderous word said mocking, how the child whose blood he shed Might clasp fast and kiss her father where the dead salute the dead.
But the latter note of anguish from the lips that mocked her lord,
When her son's hand bared against the breast that suckled him his sword,
How might man endure, O Æschylus, to hear it and record ?
How might man endure, being mortal yet, O thou most highest, to hear ?
How record, being born of woman ? Surely not thy Furies near,
Surely this beheld, this only, blasted hearts to death with fear.
Not the hissing hair, nor flakes of blood that oozed from eyes of fire,

Nor the snort of savage sleep that snuffed the hungering heart's desire
Where the hunted prey found hardly space and harbour to respire ;
She whose likeness called them--"Sleep ye, ho ?
what need of you that sleep ?" (Ah, what need indeed, where she was, of all shapes that night may keep Hidden dark as death and deeper than men's dreams of hell are deep ?)
She the murderess of her husband, she the huntress of her son,
More than ye was she, the shadow that no God withstands but one,
Wisdom equal-eyed and stronger and more splendid than the sun.
Yea, no God may stand betwixt us and the shadows of our deeds,
Nor the light of dreams that lighten darkness, nor the prayer that pleads,
But the wisdom equal-souled with heaven, the light alone that leads.
Light whose law bids home those childless children of eternal night,
Soothed and reconciled and mastered and transmuted in men's sight
Who behold their own souls, clothed with darkness once, now clothed with light.
King of kings and father crowned of all our fathers crowned of yore,
Lord of all the lords of song, whose head all heads bow down before,
Glory be to thee from all thy sons in all tongues evermore.

Rose and vine and olive and deep ivy-bloom entwining
[Str. 3.]

Close the goodliest grave that e'er they closest might entwine

Keep the wind from wasting and the sun from too strong shining

Where the sound and light of sweetest songs still float and shine.

Here the music seems to illumine the shade, the light to whisper

Song, the flowers to put not odours only forth, but words

Sweeter far than fragrance: here the wandering wreaths twine crisper

Far, and louder far exults the note of all wild birds.

Thoughts that change us, joys that crown and sorrows that enthrone us,

Passions that enrobe us with a clearer air than ours,

Move and breathe as living things beheld round white Colonus,

Audibler than melodies and visibler than flowers.

Love, in fight unconquered, Love, with spoils of great men laden,

Never sang so sweet from throat of woman or of
dove:

Love, whose bed by night is in the soft cheeks of a maiden,

And his march is over seas, and low roofs lack not
Love;

Nor may one of all that live, ephemeral or eternal,

Fly nor hide from Love; but whoso clasps him fast goes mad.

Never since the first-born year with flowers first-born grew vernal

Such a song made listening hearts of lovers glad or sad.

Never sounded note so radiant at the rayless portal Opening wide on the all-concealing lowland of the dead

As the music mingling, when her doomsday marked her mortal,

From her own and old men's voices round the bride's way shed,

Round the grave her bride-house, hewn for endless habitation,

Where, shut out from sunshine, with no bridegroom by, she slept ;

But beloved of all her dark and fateful generation,

But with all time's tears and praise besprinkled and bewept :

Well-beloved of outcast father and self-slaughtered
mother,

Born, yet unpolluted, of their blind incestuous
bed ;

Best-beloved of him for whose dead sake she died,
her brother,

Hallowing by her own life's gift her own born brother's head ;

Not with wine or oil nor any less libation [Ant. 3.

Hallowed, nor made sweet with humbler perfume's
breath ;

Not with only these redeemed from desecration,

But with blood and spirit of life poured forth to
death ;

Blood unspotted, spirit unsullied, life devoted,
Sister too supreme to make the bride's hope
good,
Daughter too divine as woman to be noted,
Spouse of only death in mateless maidenhood.
Yea, in her was all the prayer fulfilled, the saying All accomplished—Would that fate would let me wear
*Hallowed innocence of words and all deeds, weighing Well the laws thereof, begot on holier air,
Far on high sublimely stablished, whereof only Heaven is father ; nor did birth of mortal mould
Bring them forth, nor shall oblivion hurl to lonely Slumber. Great in these is God, and grows not old.*
Therefore even that inner darkness where she perished
Surely seems as holy and lovely, seen aright,
As desirable and as dearly to be cherished,
As the haunt closed in with laurels from the light,
Deep inwound with olive and wild vine inwoven,
Where a godhead known and unknown makes men pale,
But the darkness of the twilight noon is cloven
Still with shrill sweet moan of many a nightingale.
Closer clustering there they make sweet noise together,
Where the fearful gods look gentler than our fear,
And the grove thronged through with birds of holiest feather
Grows nor pale nor dumb with sense of dark things near.
There her father, called upon with signs of wonder,
Passed with tenderest words away by ways unknown,

Not by sea-storm stricken down, nor touched of thunder,
To the dark benign deep underworld, alone.

Third of three that ruled in Athens, kings with sceptral song for staff, [Ep. 3.
Gladdest heart that God gave ever milk and wine of thought to quaff,
Clearest eye that lightened ever to the broad lip's lordliest laugh,
Praise be thine as theirs whose tragic brows the loftier leaf engirds
For the live and lyric lightning of thy honey-hearted
words,
Soft like sunny dewy wings of clouds and bright as crying of birds ;
Full of all sweet rays and notes that make of earth and air and sea
One great light and sound of laughter from one great God's heart, to be Sign and semblance of the gladness of man's life where men breathe free
With no Loxian sound obscure God uttered once, and all time heard,
All the soul of Athens, all the soul of England, in that word :
Rome arose the second child of freedom : northward rose the third.
Ere her Boreal dawn came kindling seas afoam and fields of snow,
Yet again, while Europe groaned and grovelled, shone like suns aglow Doria splendid over Genoa, Venice bright with Dandolo.

Dead was Hellas, but Ausonia by the light of dead men's deeds
Rose and walked awhile alive, though mocked as whom the fen-fire leads By the creed-wrought faith of faithless souls that mock their doubts with creeds.
Dead are these, and man is risen again : and haply now the three
Yet coequal and triune may stand in story, marked as free
By the token of the washing of the waters of the
sea.
Athens first of all earth's kindred many-tongued and many-kinned
Had the sea to friend and comfort, and for kinsman had the wind :
She that bare Columbus next : then she that made her spoil of Ind.
She that hears not what man's rage but only what the sea-wind saith :
She that turned Spain's ships to cloud-wrack at the blasting of her breath,
By her strengths of strong-souled children and of strong winds done to death.
North and south the Great King's galleons went in Persian wise : and here
She, with Æschylean music on her lips that laughed back fear,
In the face of Time's grey godhead shook the splen-dour of her spear.
Fair as Athens then with foot upon her foeman's front, and strong
Even as Athens for redemption of the world from sovereign wrong,

Like as Athens crowned she stood before the sun with crowning song.

All the world is theirs with whom is freedom : first of all the free,

Blest are they whom song has crowned and clothed with blessing : these as we,

These alone have part in spirit with the sun that crowns the sea.

April 1881.

THE STATUE OF VICTOR HUGO

I

SINCE in Athens God stood plain for adoration,
 Since the sun beheld his likeness reared in stone,
 Since the bronze or gold of human consecration Gave to Greece her guardian's form and feature shown,
 Never hand of sculptor, never heart of nation,
 Found so glorious aim in all these ages flown
 As is theirs who rear for all time's acclamation
 Here the likeness of our mightiest and their own.

2

Theirs and ours and all men's living who behold him
 Crowned with garlands multiform and manifold ;
 Praise and thanksgiving of all mankind enfold him
 Who for all men casts abroad his gifts of gold.
 With the gods of song have all men's tongues enrolled
 him,
 With the helpful gods have all men's hearts enrolled :
 Ours he is who love him, ours whose hearts' hearts hold him
 Fast as his the trust that hearts like his may hold.

3

He, the heart most high, the spirit on earth most blameless,

Takes in charge all spirits, holds all hearts in trust :

As the sea-wind's on the sea his ways are tameless,

As the laws that steer the world his works are just.

All most noble feel him nobler, all most shameless

Feel his wrath and scorn make pale their pride and lust :

All most poor and lowliest, all whose wrongs were nameless,

Feel his word of comfort raise them from the dust.

4

Pride of place and lust of empire bloody-fruited

Knew the blasting of his breath on leaf and fruit :

Now the hand that smote the death-tree now disrooted

Plants the refuge-tree that has man's hope for root.

Ah, but we by whom his darkness was saluted,

How shall now all we that see his day salute?

How should love not seem by love's own speech confuted,

Song before the sovereign singer not be mute?

5

With what worship, by what blessing, in what measure,

May we sing of him, salute him, or adore,

With what hymn for praise, what thanksgiving for pleasure,

Who had given us more than heaven, and gives us more?

Heaven's whole treasury, filled up full with night's whole treasure,
 Holds not so divine or deep a starry store
 As the soul supreme that deals forth worlds at leisure Clothed with light and darkness, dense with flower and ore.

6

Song had touched the bourn : fresh verses overflow it,
 Loud and radiant, waves on waves on waves that throng ;
 Still the tide grows, and the sea-mark still below it Sinks and shifts and rises, changed and swept along.
 Rose it like a rock ? the waters overthrow it,
 And another stands beyond them sheer and strong :
 Goal by goal pays down its prize, and yields its poet
 Tribute claimed of triumph, palm achieved of song.

7

Since his hand that holds the keys of fear and wonder Opened on the high priest's dreaming eyes a door Whence the lights of heaven and hell above and under Shone, and smote the face that men bow down before,
 Thrice again one singer's note had cloven in sunder Night, who blows again not one blast now but four,
 And the fourfold heaven is kindled with his thunder,
 And the stars about his forehead are fourscore.

8

From the deep soul's depths where alway love abounded

First had risen a song with healing on its wings
Whence the dews of mercy raining balms unbounded Shed their last compassion even on sceptred things.¹
Even on heads that like a curse the crown surrounded Fell his crowning pity, soft as cleansing springs ;
And the sweet last note his wrath relenting sounded Bade men's hearts be melted not for slaves but kings.

9

Next, that faith might strengthen fear and love embolden,

On the creeds of priests a scourge of sunbeams fell :
And its flash made bare the deeps of heaven, beholden Not of men that cry, Lord, Lord, from church or cell.²

Hope as young as dawn from night obscure and olden Rose again, such power abides in truth's one spell :
Night, if dawn it be that touches her, grows golden ;
Tears, if such as angels weep, extinguish hell.

10

Through the blind loud mills of barren blear-eyed learning

Where in dust and darkness children's foreheads bow,
While men's labour, vain as wind or water turning Wheels and sails of dreams, makes life a leafless bough,

² Religions et Religion. 1880.

Fell the light of scorn and pity touched with yearning, Next, from words that shone as heaven's own kind-ling brow.¹

Stars were these as watch-fires on the world's waste burning,
 Stars that fade not in the fourfold sunrise now.²

II

Now the voice that faints not till all wrongs be wroken

Sounds as might the sun's song from the morning's breast,

All the seals of silence sealed of night are broken,

All the winds that bear the fourfold word are blest.

All the keen fierce east flames forth one fiery token ;

All the north is loud with life that knows not rest,

All the south with song as though the stars had spoken ;

All the judgment-fire of sunset scathes the west.

12

Sound of pæan, roll of chanted panegyric,

Though by Pindar's mouth song's trumpet spake forth praise,

March of warrior songs in Pythian mood or Pyrrhic,

Though the blast were blown by lips of ancient days,

634 THE STATUE OF VICTOR HUGO

Ring not clearer than the clarion of satiric Song whose breath sweeps bare the plague-infected ways
Till the world be pure as heaven is for the lyric Sun to rise up clothed with radiant sounds as rays.

13

Clear across the cloud-rack fluctuant and erratic
As the strong star smiles that lets no mourner mourn,
Hymned alike from lips of Lesbian choirs or Attic
Once at evensong and morning newly born, Clear and sure above the changes of dramatic Tide and current, soft with love and keen with scorn,
Smiles the strong sweet soul of maidenhood, ecstatic
And inviolate as the red glad mouth of morn.

14

Pure and passionate as dawn, whose apparition Thrills with fire from heaven the wheels of hours that whirl,
Rose and passed her radiance in serene transition From his eyes who sought a grain and found a pearl.
But the food by cunning hope for vain fruition
Lightly stolen away from keeping of a churl
Left the bitterness of death and hope's perdition
On the lip that scorn was wont for shame to curl.¹

11. Esca, drame.

15

Over waves that darken round the wave-worn rover Rang his clarion higher than winds cried round the ship,
 Rose a pageant of set suns and storms blown over,
 Hands that held life's guerdons fast or let them slip.
 But no tongue may tell, no thanksgiving discover, Half the heaven of blessing, soft with clouds that drip,
 Keen with beams that kindle, dear as love to lover,
 Opening by the spell's strength on his lyric lip.

16

By that spell the soul transfigured and dilated Puts forth wings that widen, breathes a brightening air,
 Feeds on light and drinks of music, whence elated
 All her sense grows godlike, seeing all depths made bare,
 All the mists wherein before she sat belated Shrink, till now the sunlight knows not if they were ;
 All this earth transformed is Eden recreated,
 With the breath of heaven remurmuring in her hair.

17

Sweeter far than aught of sweet that April nurses
 Deep in dew-dropt woodland folded fast and furled Breathes the fragrant song whose burning dawn disperses
 Darkness, like the surge of armies backward hurled,

636 THE STATUE OF VICTOR HUGO

Even as though the touch of spring's own hand, that pierces
 Earth with life's delight, had hidden in the im-pearlyd
 Golden bells and buds and petals of his verses
 All the breath of all the flowers in all the world.

18

But the soul therein, the light that our souls follow, Fires and fills the song with more of prophet's
 pride,
 More of life than all the gulfs of death may swallow,
 More of flame than all the might of night may hide.
 Though the whole dark age were loud and void and hollow,
 Strength of trust were here, and help for all souls tried,
 And a token from the flight of that strange swallow¹
 Whose migration still is toward the wintry side

19

Never came such token for divine solution
 From the oraculous live darkness whence of yore Ancient faith sought word of help and retribution, Truth to lighten doubt, a sign to go before.
 Never so baptismal waters of ablution
 Bathed the brows of exile on so stern a shore,
 Where the lightnings of the sea of revolution Flashed across them ere its thunders yet might roar.

¹ Je suis une hirondelle étrange, car j'émigre Du côté de l'hiver.

20

By the lightning's light of present revelation
 Shown, with epic thunder as from skies that frown, Clothed in darkness as of darkling expiation,
 Rose a vision of dead stars and suns gone down, Whence of old fierce fire devoured the star-struck nation,
 Till its wrath and woe lit red the raging town,
 Now made glorious with his statue's crowning station,
 Where may never gleam again a viler crown.

21

King, with time for throne and all the years for pages,
 He shall reign though all thrones else be over-hurled,
 Served of souls that have his living words for wages, Crowned of heaven each dawn that leaves his brows impearled ;
 Girt about with robes unrent of storm that rages, Robes not wrought with hands, from no loom's weft unfurled ;
 All the praise of all earth's tongues in all earth's ages,
 All the love of all men's hearts in all the world.

22

Yet what hand shall carve the soul or cast the spirit,
 Mould the face of fame, bid glory's feature glow ?
 Who bequeath for eyes of ages hence to inherit Him, the Master, whom love knows not if it know ?
 Scarcely perfect praise of men man's work might merit,
 Scarcely bid such aim to perfect stature grow,
 Were his hand the hand of Phidias who shall rear it,
 And his soul the very soul of Angelo.

23

Michael, awful angel of the world's last session,
 Once on earth, like him, with fire of suffering tried,
 Thine it were, if man's it were, without transgression,
 Thine alone, to take this toil upon thy pride.
 Thine, whose heart was great against the world's oppression,
 Even as his whose word is lamp and staff and guide :
 Advocate for man, untired of intercession, Pleads his voice for slaves whose lords his voice defied.

24

Earth, with all the kings and thralls on earth, below it, Heaven alone, with all the worlds in heaven, above,
 Let his likeness rise for suns and stars to know it,
 High for men to worship, plain for men to love :
 Brow that braved the tides which fain would overflow it,
 Lip that gave the challenge, hand that flung the glove ;
 Comforter and prophet, Paraclete and poet,
 Soul whose emblems are an eagle and a dove.

25

Sun, that hast not seen a loftier head wax hoary, Earth, which hast not shown the sun a nobler birth,
 Time, that hast not on thy scroll defiled and gory
 One man's name writ brighter in its whole wide girth,
 Witness, till the final years fulfil their story,
 Till the stars break off the music of their mirth,
 What among the sons of men was this man's glory,
 What the vesture of his soul revealed on earth.

SONNETS

HOPE AND FEAR

BENEATH the shadow of dawn's aerial cope,
 With eyes enkindled as the sun's own sphere,
 Hope from the front of youth in godlike cheer Looks Godward, past the shades where blind men grope
 Round the dark door that prayers nor dreams can ope,
 And makes for joy the very darkness dear
 That gives her wide wings play ; nor dreams that fear
 At noon may rise and pierce the heart of hope.
 Then, when the soul leaves off to dream and yearn,
 May truth first purge her eyesight to discern What once being known leaves time no power to appal ;
 Till youth at last, ere yet youth be not, learn The kind wise word that falls from years that fall—
 “ Hope thou not much, and fear thou not at all.”

AFTER SUNSET

“Si quis piorum Manibus locus.”

I

STRAIGHT from the sun's grave in the deep clear
west

A sweet strong wind blows, glad of life : and I,
Under the soft keen stardawn whence the sky
Takes life renewed, and all night's godlike breast Palpitates, gradually revealed at rest

By growth and change of ardours felt on high,
Make onward, till the last flame fall and die
And all the world by night's broad hand lie blest.
Haply, meseems, as from that edge of death,
Whereon the day lies dark, a brightening breath
Blows more of benediction than the morn,
So from the graves whereon grief gazing saith
That half our heart of life there lies forlorn
May light or breath at least of hope be born.

II

The wind was soft before the sunset fled :
Now, while the cloud-enshrouded corpse of day
Is lowered along a red funereal way Down to the dark that knows not white from red,

A clear sheer breeze against the night makes head,
Serene, but sure of life as ere a ray Springs, or the dusk of dawn knows red from grey,
Being as a soul that knows not quick from dead.
From far beyond the sunset, far above,
Full toward the starry soundless east it blows
Bright as a child's breath breathing on a rose,
Smooth to the sense as plume of any dove ;
Till more and more as darkness grows and glows Silence and night seem likest life and love.

III

If light of life outlive the set of sun
That men call death and end of all things, then How should not that which life held best for men And proved most precious, though it seem undone
By force of death and woful victory won,
Be first and surest of revival, when Death shall bow down to life arisen again?
So shall the soul seen be the self-same one
That looked and spake with even such lips and eyes
As love shall doubt not then to recognise,
And all bright thoughts and smiles of all time past
Revive, transfigured, but in spirit and sense
None other than we knew, for evidence
That love's last mortal word was not his last.

A STUDY FROM MEMORY

If that be yet a living soul which here Seemed brighter for the growth of numbered springs
And clothed by Time and Pain with goodlier things
Each year it saw fulfilled a fresh fleet year, Death can have changed not aught that made it
dear ;
Half humorous goodness, grave-eyed mirth on wings
Bright-balanced, blither-voiced than quiring strings ;
Most radiant patience, crowned with conquering
cheer ;
A spirit inviolable that smiled and sang
By might of nature and heroic need More sweet and strong than loftiest dream or deed ;
A song that shone, a light whence music rang
High as the sunniest heights of kindest thought ;
All these must be, or all she was be nought.

TO DR. JOHN BROWN

BEYOND the north wind lay the land of old Where men dwelt blithe and blameless, clothed and fed
 With joy's bright raiment and with love's sweet bread,
 The whitest flock of earth's maternal fold.
 None there might wear about his brows enrolled
 A light of lovelier fame than rings your head,
 Whose lovesome love of children and the dead
 All men give thanks for : I far off behold
 A dear dead hand that links us, and a light
 The blithest and benignest of the night,
 The night of death's sweet sleep, wherein may be A star to show your spirit in present sight
 Some happier island in the Elysian sea
 Where Rab may lick the hand of Marjorie.

March 1882.

TO WILLIAM BELL SCOTT

THE larks are loud above our leagues of whin
Now the sun's perfume fills their glorious gold
With odour like the colour : all the wold
Is only light and song and wind wherein These twain are blent in one with shining din.
And now your gift, a giver's kingly-souled,
Dear old fast friend whose honours grow not old,
Bids memory's note as loud and sweet begin.
Though all but we from life be now gone forth
Of that bright household in our joyous north
Where I, scarce clear of boyhood just at end,
First met your hand ; yet under life's clear dome,
Now seventy strenuous years have crowned my friend, Shines no less bright his full-sheaved harvest-home.

A DEATH ON EASTER DAY

THE strong spring sun rejoicingly may rise,
 Rise and make revel, as of old men said,
 Like dancing hearts of lovers newly wed :
 A light more bright than ever bathed the skies
 Departs for all time out of all men's eyes.
 The crowns that girt last night a living head Shine only now, though deathless, on the dead :
 Art that mocks death, and Song that never dies.
 Albeit the bright sweet mothlike wings be furled,
 Hope sees, past all division and defection,
 And higher than swims the mist of human
 breath,
 The soul most radiant once in all the world
 Requicken'd to regenerate resurrection
 Out of the likeness of the shadow of death.

ON THE DEATHS OF THOMAS CARLYLE AND GEORGE ELIOT

Two souls diverse out of our human sight Pass, followed one with love and each with wonder :

The stormy sophist with his mouth of thunder, Clothed with loud words and mantled in the might
Of darkness and magnificence of night ;

And one whose eye could smite the night in sunder,

Searching if light or no light were thereunder,
And found in love of loving-kindness light.

Duty divine and Thought with eyes of fire Still following Righteousness with deep desire

Shone sole and stern before her and above,
Sure stars and sole to steer by ; but more sweet Shone lower the loveliest lamp for earthly feet,
The light of little children, and their love.

AFTER LOOKING INTO CARLYLE'S REMINISCENCES

I

THREE men lived yet when this dead man was young Whose names and words endure for ever : one Whose eyes grew dim with straining toward the sun,
 And his wings weakened, and his angel's tongue
 Lost half the sweetest song was ever sung,
 But like the strain half uttered earth hears none,
 Nor shall man hear till all men's songs are done :
 One whose clear spirit like an eagle hung
 Between the mountains hallowed by his love
 And the sky stainless as his soul above :
 And one the sweetest heart that ever spake
 'The brightest words wherein sweet wisdom smiled.
 These deathless names by this dead snake defiled Bid memory spit upon him for their sake.

II

Sweet heart, forgive me for thine own sweet sake, Whose kind blithe soul such seas of sorrow swam,
 And for my love's sake, powerless as I am
 For love to praise thee, or like thee to make

Music of mirth where hearts less pure would break, Less pure than thine, our life-unspotted Lamb.
Things hatefulest thou hadst not heart to damn,
Nor wouldst have set thine heel on this dead snake.
Let worms consume its memory with its tongue,
The fang that stabbed fair Truth, the lip that stung
Men's memories uncorroded with its breath.
Forgive me, that with bitter words like his I mix the gentlest English name that is,
The tenderest held of all that know not death.

A LAST LOOK

SICK of self-love, Malvolio, like an owl
That hoots the sun rerisen where starlight sank,
With German garters crossed athwart thy frank Stout Scottish legs, men watched thee snarl and scowl,
And boys responsive with reverberate howl
Shrilled, hearing how to thee the springtime stank
And as thine own soul all the world smelt rank
And as thine own thoughts Liberty seemed foul.
Now, for all ill thoughts nursed and ill words given
Not all condemned, not utterly forgiven,
Son of the storm and darkness, pass in peace.
Peace upon earth thou knewest not : now, being
dead,
Rest, with nor curse nor blessing on thine head,
Where high-strung hate and strenuous envy cease.

DICKENS

CHIEF in thy generation born of men
 Whom English praise acclaimed as English-born, With eyes that matched the worldwide eyes of morn
 For gleam of tears or laughter, tenderest then When thoughts of children warmed their light, or when Reverence of age with love and labour worn,
 Or godlike pity fired with godlike scorn, Shot through them flame that winged thy swift live pen :
 Where stars and suns that we behold not burn, Higher even than here, though highest was here thy place,
 Love sees thy spirit laugh and speak and shine
 With Shakespeare and the soft bright soul of Sterne And Fielding's kindest might and Goldsmith's
 grace ;
 Scarce one more loved or worthier love than thine.

ON LAMB'S SPECIMENS OF DRAMATIC POETS

I

IF all the flowers of all the fields on earth
 By wonder-working summer were made one,
 Its fragrance were not sweeter in the sun,
 Its treasure-house of leaves were not more worth
 Than those wherefrom thy light of musing mirth Shone, till each leaf whereon thy pen would run Breathed life, and all its breath was benison.
 Beloved beyond all names of English birth,
 More dear than mightier memories ; gentlest name
 That ever clothed itself with flower-sweet fame,
 Or linked itself with loftiest names of old
 By right and might of loving ; I, that am
 Less than the least of those within thy fold,
 Give only thanks for them to thee, Charles Lamb.

II

So many a year had borne its own bright bees
 And slain them since thy honey-bees were hived, John Day, in cells of flower-sweet verse contrived
 So well with craft of moulding melodies,

654 ON LAMB'S DRAMATIC POETS

Thy soul perchance in amaranth fields at ease
Thought not to hear the sound on earth revived
Of summer music from the spring derived
When thy song sucked the flower of flowering trees.
But thine was not the chance of every day :
Time, after many a darkling hour, grew sunny,
And light between the clouds ere sunset swam,
Laughing, and kissed their darkness all away,
When, touched and tasted and approved, thy honey Took subtler sweetness from the lips of Lamb.

TO JOHN NICHOL

I

FRIEND of the dead, and friend of all my days
 Even since they cast off boyhood, I salute
 The song saluting friends whose songs are mute
 With full burnt-offerings of clear-spirited praise.
 That since our old young years our several ways
 Have led through fields diverse of flower and fruit, Yet no cross wind has once relaxed the root
 We set long since beneath the sundawn's rays,
 The root of trust whence towered the trusty tree,
 Friendship—this only and duly might impel
 My song to salutation of your own ;
 More even than praise of one unseen of me
 And loved—the starry spirit of Dobell,
 To mine by light and music only known.

II

But more than this what moves me most of all
 To leave not all unworded and unsped
 The whole heart's greeting of my thanks unsaid Scarce needs this sign, that from my tongue should fall

His name whom sorrow and reverent love recall,
The sign to friends on earth of that dear head Alive, which now long since untimely dead
The wan grey waters covered for a pall.
Their trustless reaches dense with tangling stems Took never life more taintless of rebuke,
More pure and perfect, more serene and kind,
Than when those clear eyes closed beneath the Thames,
And made the now more hallowed name of Luke Memorial to us of morning left behind.

DYSTHANATOS

Ad generem Cereris sine cæde et vulnere pauci Descendunt reges, aut siccâ morte tyranni.

By no dry death another king goes down
The way of kings. Yet may no free man's voice,
For stern compassion and deep awe, rejoice
That one sign more is given against the crown,
That one more head those dark red waters drown
Which rise round thrones whose trembling equipoise
Is propped on sand and bloodshed and such toys
As human hearts that shrink at human frown.
The name writ red on Polish earth, the star
That was to outshine our England's in the far East heaven of empire—where is one that saith Proud words now, prophesying of this White Czar?
“In bloodless pangs few kings yield up their
breath,
Few tyrants perish by no violent death.”

EUONYMOS

εἰς μὴν ἢ τιμὴν ἐδίδου νικηφόρος ἀλκή ἐκ νίκης ὄνομ' ἔσχε φόβου κέαρ αἰὲν ἄθικτος.

A YEAR ago red wrath and keen despair
 Spake, and the sole word from their darkness sent Laid low the lord not all omnipotent
 Who stood most like a god of all that were
 As gods for pride of power, till fire and air Made earth of all his godhead. Lightning rent
 The heart of empire's lurid firmament,
 And laid the mortal core of manhood bare.
 But when the calm crowned head that all revere
 For valour higher than that which casts out fear, Since fear came near it never, comes near death,
 Blind murder cowers before it, knowing that here
 No braver soul drew bright and queenly breath
 Since England wept upon Elizabeth.

ON THE RUSSIAN PERSECUTION OF THE JEWS

O SON of man, by lying tongues adored,
By slaughterous hands of slaves with feet red-shod
In carnage deep as ever Christian trod
Profaned with prayer and sacrifice abhorred
And incense from the trembling tyrant's horde,
Brute worshippers or wielders of the rod,
Most murderous even of all that call thee God,
Most treacherous even that ever called thee Lord ;
Face loved of little children long ago,
Head hated of the priests and rulers then,
If thou see this, or hear these hounds of thine Run ravening as the Gadarean swine,
Say, was not this thy Passion, to foreknow
In death's worst hour the works of Christian men ?

BISMARCK AT CANOSSA

NOT all disgraced, in that Italian town,
The imperial German cowered beneath thine hand,
Alone indeed imperial Hildebrand,
And felt thy foot and Rome's, and felt her frown
And thine, more strong and sovereign than his crown, Though iron forged its blood-encrusted band.
But now the princely wielder of his land,
For hatred's sake toward freedom, so bows down,
No strength is in the foot to spurn : its tread
Can bruise not now the proud submitted head :
But how much more abased, much lower brought low,
And more intolerably humiliated,
The neck submissive of the prosperous foe,
Than his whom scorn saw shuddering in the snow !

QUIA NOMINOR LEO

WHAT part is left thee, lion? Ravenous beast,
 Which hadst the world for pasture, and for scope
 And compass of thine homicidal hope
 The kingdom of the spirit of man, the feast
 Of souls subdued from west to sunless east,
 From blackening north to bloodred south aslope,
 All servile ; earth for footcloth of the pope,
 And heaven for chancel-ceiling of the priest ;
 Thou that hadst earth by right of rack and rod,
 Thou that hadst Rome because thy name was God,
 And by thy creed's gift heaven wherein to dwell ;
 Heaven laughs with all his light and might above
 That earth has cast thee out of faith and love ;
 Thy part is but the hollow dream of hell.

II

The light of life has faded from thy cause,
 High priest of heaven and hell and purgatory :
 Thy lips are loud with strains of oldworld story,
 But the red prey was rent out of thy paws

Long since : and they that dying brake down thy laws
Have with the fires of death-enkindled glory
Put out the flame that faltered on thy hoary
High altars, waning with the world's applause.
This Italy was Dante's : Bruno died
Here : Campanella, too sublime for pride, Endured thy God's worst here, and hence went home.
And what art thou, that time's full tide should shrink
For thy sake downward? What art thou, to think Thy God shall give thee back for birthright Rome?

THE CHANNEL TUNNEL

Not for less love, all glorious France, to thee,
 " Sweet enemy " called in days long since at end,
 Now found and hailed of England sweeter friend,
Bright sister of our freedom now, being free ;
Not for less love or faith in friendship we Whose love burnt ever toward thee reprehend
 The vile vain greed whose pury dreams portend Between our shores suppression of the sea.
Not by dull toil of blind mechanic art
Shall these be linked for no man's force to part Nor length of years and changes to divide,
But union only of trust and loving heart
 And perfect faith in freedom strong to abide
 And spirit at one with spirit on either side.

SIR WILLIAM GOMM

I

At threescore years and five aroused anew
 To rule in India, forth a soldier went On whose bright-fronted youth fierce war had spent Its iron stress of storm, till glory grew Full as the red sun waned on Water!oo.

Landing, he met the word from England sent Which bade him yield up rule : and he, content, Resigned it, as a mightier warrior's due ;
 And wrote as one rejoicing to record
 That " from the first " his royal heart was lord
 Of its own pride or pain ; that thought was none
 Therein save this, that in her perilous strait England, whose womb brings forth her sons so great,
 Should choose to serve her first her mightiest son.

II

Glory beyond all flight of warlike fame
 Go with the warrior's memory who preferred
 To praise of men whereby men's hearts are stirred,
 And acclamation of his own proud name

With blare of trumpet-blasts and sound and flame
Of pageant honour, and the titular word
That only wins men worship of the herd,
His country's sovereign good ; who overcame
Pride, wrath, and hope of all high chance on earth,
For this land's love that gave his great heart birth.

O nursling of the sea-winds and the sea,
Immortal England, goddess ocean-born,
What shall thy children fear, what strengths not scorn,
While children of such mould are born to thee ?

EUTHANATOS

IN MEMORY OF MRS. THELLUSSON

FORTH of our ways and woes,
 Forth of the winds and snows,
 A white soul soaring goes,
 Winged like a dove :
 So sweet, so pure, so clear,
 So heavenly tempered here,
 Love need not hope or fear her changed above

Ere dawned her day to die,
 So heavenly, that on high Change could not glorify Nor death refine her :
 Pure gold of perfect love,
 On earth like heaven's own dove,
 She cannot wear, above, a smile diviner.

Her voice in heaven's own quire
 Can sound no heavenlier lyre
 Than here : no purer fire
 Her soul can soar :
 No sweeter stars her eyes
 In unimagined skies
 Beyond our sight can rise than here before.

Hardly long years had shed
Their shadows on her head :
Hardly we think her dead,
 Who hardly thought her Old : hardly can believe
The grief our hearts receive
And wonder while they grieve, as wrong were wrought
 her.

But though strong grief be strong
No word or thought of wrong
May stain the trembling song,
 Wring the bruised heart,
That sounds or sighs its faint
Low note of love, nor taint
Grief for so sweet a saint, when such depart.

A saint whose perfect soul,
With perfect love for goal,
Faith hardly might control,
 Creeds might not harden :
A flower more splendid far
Than the most radiant star
Seen here of all that are in God's own garden.

Surely the stars we see Rise and relapse as we.
And change and set, may be But shadows too :
But spirits that man's lot
Could neither mar nor spot
Like these false lights are not, being heavenly true.

Not like these dying lights
Of worlds whose glory smites
The passage of the nights
Through heaven's blind prison :
Not like their souls who see,
If thought fly far and free,
No heavenlier heaven to be for souls risen.

A soul wherein love shone
Even like the sun, alone,
With fervour of its own
And splendour fed,
Made by no creeds less kind
Toward souls by none confined, Could Death's self quench or blind, Love's self were dead.

FIRST AND LAST

UPON the borderlands of being,
 Where life draws hardly breath
 Between the lights and shadows fleeing Fast as a word one saith,
 Two flowers rejoice our eyesight, seeing
 The dawns of birth and death.

Behind the babe his dawn is lying Half risen with notes of mirth
 From all the winds about it flying
 Through new-born heaven and earth :
 Before bright age his day for dying
 Dawns equal-eyed with birth.

Equal the dews of even and dawn,
 Equal the sun's eye seen
 A hand's breadth risen and half withdrawn :
 But no bright hour between Brings aught so bright by stream or lawn
 To noonday growths of green.

Which flower of life may smell the sweeter
 To love's insensual sense,
 Which fragrance move with offering meeter
 His soothed omnipotence,
 Being chosen as fairer or as fleeter,
 Borne hither or borne hence,

Love's foiled omniscience knows not : this Were more than all he knows
With all his lore of bale and bliss,
The choice of rose and rose,
One red as lips that touch with his,
One white as moonlit snows.

No hope is half so sweet and good,
No dream of saint or sage
So fair as these are : no dark mood
But these might best assuage ;
The sweet red rose of babyhood,
The white sweet rose of age.

LINES ON THE DEATH OF EDWARD JOHN TRELAWNY

LAST high star of the years whose thunder
Still men's listening remembrance hears,
Last light left of our fathers' years,
Watched with honour and hailed with wonder Thee too then have the years borne under.
Thou too then hast regained thy peers.

Wings that warred with the winds of morning,
Storm-winds rocking the red great dawn,
Close at last, and a film is drawn
Over the eyes of the storm-bird, scorning
Now no longer the loud wind's warning,
Waves that threaten or waves that fawn.

Peers were none of thee left us living,
Peers of theirs we shall see no more.
Eight years over the full fourscore
Knew thee : now shalt thou sleep, forgiving
All griefs past of the wild world's giving,
Moored at last on the stormless shore.

Worldwide liberty's lifelong lover,
Lover no less of the strength of song,
Sea-king, swordsman, hater of wrong,
Over thy dust that the dust shall cover
Comes my song as a bird to hover,
Borne of its will as of wings along.

Cherished of thee were this brief song's brothers
Now that follows them, cherishing thee.
Over the tides and the tideless sea Soft as a smile of the earth our mother's Flies it faster than all those others,
First of the troop at thy tomb to be.

Memories of Greece and the mountain's hollow Guarded alone of thy loyal sword
Hold thy name for our hearts in ward :
Yet more fain are our hearts to follow
One way now with the southward swallow
Back to the grave of the man their lord.

Heart of hearts, art thou moved not, hearing
Surely, if hearts of the dead may hear,
Whose true heart it is now draws near ?
Surely the sense of it thrills thee, cheering Darkness and death with the news now nearing—Shelley, Trelawny rejoins thee here.

ADIEUX À MARIE STUART

I

QUEEN, for whose house my fathers fought,
 With hopes that rose and fell,
 Red star of boyhood's fiery thought,
 Farewell.

They gave their lives, and I, my queen,
 Have given you of my life,
 Seeing your brave star burn high between Men's strife.

The strife that lightened round their spears
 Long since fell still : so long Hardly may hope to last in years
 My song.

But still through strife of time and thought
 Your light on me too fell :
 Queen, in whose name we sang or fought,
 Farewell.

II

There beats no heart on either border
 Wherethrough the north blasts blow
 But keeps your memory as a warder
 His beacon-fire aglow.

Long since it fired with love and wonder
Mine, for whose April age Blithe midsummer made banquet under The shade of Hermitage.

Soft sang the burn's blithe notes, that gather Strength to ring true :
And air and trees and sun and heather Remembered you.

Old border ghosts of fight or fairy
Or love or teen,
These they forgot, remembering Mary
The Queen.

Queen once of Scots and ever of ours
Whose sires brought forth for you
Their lives to strew your way like flowers, Adieu.

Dead is full many a dead man's name
Who died for you this long Time past : shall this too fare the same.
My song ?

But surely, though it die or live,
Your face was worth
All that a man may think to give
On earth.

No darkness cast of years between
Can darken you :
Man's love will never bid my queen Adieu.

Love hangs like light about your name
As music round the shell :
No heart can take of you a tame
Farewell.

Yet, when your very face was seen,
Ill gifts were yours for giving :
Love gat strange guerdons of my queen
When living.

O diamond heart unflawed and clear,
The whole world's crowning jewel !
Was ever heart so deadly dear
So cruel ?

Yet none for you of all that bled
Grudged once one drop that fell :
Not one to life reluctant said Farewell.

V

Strange love they have given you, love disloyal,
Who mock with praise your name,
To leave a head so rare and royal Too low for praise or blame.

You could not love nor hate, they tell us,
You had nor sense nor sting :
In God's name, then, what plague befell us
To fight for such a thing ?

“Some faults the gods will give,” to fetter
Man’s highest intent :
But surely you were something better
Than innocent !

No maid that strays with steps unwary
Through snares unseen,
But one to live and die for ; Mary,
The Queen.

VI

Forgive them all their praise, who blot
Your fame with praise of you :
Then love may say, and falter not,
Adieu.

Yet some you hardly would forgive
Who did you much less wrong
Once : but resentment should not live Too long.

They never saw your lip’s bright bow,
Your swordbright eyes,
The bluest of heavenly things below
The skies.

Clear eyes that love’s self finds most like
A swordblade’s blue,
A swordblade’s ever keen to strike,
Adieu.

Though all things breathe or sound of fight
That yet make up your spell,
To bid you were to bid the light
Farewell.

Farewell the song says only, being
A star whose race is run :
Farewell the soul says never, seeing
The sun.

Yet, wellnigh as with flash of tears,
The song must say but so
That took your praise up twenty years Ago.

More bright than stars or moons that vary,
Sun kindling heaven and hell,
Here, after all these years, Queen Mary,
Farewell.

HERSE

WHEN grace is given us ever to behold
 A child some sweet months old,
 Love, laying across our lips his finger, saith,
 Smiling, with bated breath,
 Hush ! for the holiest thing that lives is here,
 And heaven's own heart how near !
 How dare we, that may gaze not on the sun,
 Gaze on this verier one ?
 Heart, hold thy peace ; eyes, be cast down for shame ;
 Lips, breathe not yet its name.
 In heaven they know what name to call it ; we,
 How should we know ? For, see !
 The adorable sweet living marvellous
 Strange light that lightens us
 Who gaze, desertless of such glorious grace,
 Full in a babe's warm face !
 All roses that the morning rears are nought,
 All stars not worth a thought,
 Set this one star against them, or suppose
 As rival this one rose.
 What price could pay with earth's whole weight of gold
 One least flushed roseleaf's fold
 Of all this dimpling store of smiles that shine
 From each warm curve and line,

Each charm of flower-sweet flesh, to reillumine
The dappled rose-red bloom
Of all its dainty body, honey-sweet
Clenched hands and curled-up feet,
That on the roses of the dawn have trod
As they came down from God,
And keep the flush and colour that the sky
Takes when the sun comes nigh,
And keep the likeness of the smile their grace
Evoked on God's own face
When, seeing this work of his most heavenly mood,
He saw that it was good?
For all its warm sweet body seems one smile,
And mere men's love too vile
To meet it, or with eyes that worship dims
Read o'er the little limbs,
Read all the book of all their beauties o'er,
Rejoice, revere, adore,
Bow down and worship each delight in turn,
Laugh, wonder, yield, and yearn.
But when our trembling kisses dare, yet dread,
Even to draw nigh its head,
And touch, and scarce with touch or breath surprise
Its mild miraculous eyes
Out of their viewless vision—O, what then,
What may be said of men?
What speech may name a new-born child? what word
Earth ever spake or heard?
The best men's tongue that ever glory knew Called that a drop of dew
Which from the breathing creature's kindly womb Came forth in blameless bloom.
We have no word, as had those men most high,
To call a baby by.

Rose, ruby, lily, pearl of stormless seas—
 A better word than these,
A better sign it was than flower or gem
 That love revealed to them :
They knew that whence comes light or quickening
 flame,
 Thence only this thing came,
And only might be likened of our love
 To somewhat born above,
Not even to sweetest things dropped else on earth,
 Only to dew's own birth.
Nor doubt we but their sense was heavenly true,
 Babe, when we gaze on you,
A dew-drop out of heaven whose colours are More bright than sun or star,
As now, ere watching love dare fear or hope,
 Lips, hands, and eyelids ope,
And all your life is mixed with earthly leaven.
 O child, what news from heaven ?

TWINS

AFFECTIONATELY INSCRIBED TO W. M. R. AND L. R.

APRIL, on whose wings
 Ride all gracious things,
 Like the star that brings
 All things good to man,
 Ere his light, that yet
 Makes the month shine, set,
 And fair May forget
 Whence her birth began,

Brings, as heart would choose,
 Sound of golden news,
 Bright as kindling dews
 When the dawn begins ;
 Tidings clear as mirth,
 Sweet as air and earth
 Now that hail the birth,
 Twice thus blest, of twins.

In the lovely land
 Where with hand in hand Lovers wedded stand
 Other joys before
 Made your mixed life sweet :
 Now, as Time sees meet,
 Three glad blossoms greet
 Two glad blossoms more.

Fed with sun and dew,
While your joys were new,
First arose and grew

 One bright olive-shoot :
Then a fair and fine
Slip of warm-haired pine
Felt the sweet sun shine
 On its leaf and fruit.

And it wore for mark
Graven on the dark
Beauty of its bark

 That the noblest name
Worn in song of old
By the king whose bold
Hand had fast in hold
 All the flower of fame.

Then, with southern skies
Flattered in her eyes,
Which, in lovelier wise
 Yet, reflect their blue Brightened more, being bright
Here with life's delight,
And with love's live light
 Glorified anew,

Came, as fair as came
One who bore her name
(She that broke as flame
 From the swan-shell white),
Crowned with tender hair
Only, but more fair
Than all queens that were Themes of oldworld fight,

Of your flowers the third
Bud, or new-fledged bird
In your hearts' nest heard Murmuring like a dove
Bright as those that drew
Over waves where blew
No loud wind the blue
 Heaven-hued car of love.'

Not the glorious grace
Even of that one face
Potent to displace
 All the towers of Troy
Surely shone more clear
Once with childlike cheer
Than this child's face here
 Now with living joy.

After these again
Here in April's train
Breaks the bloom of twain
 Blossoms in one birth
For a crown of May
On the front of day
When he takes his way
 Over heaven and earth.

Half a heavenly thing
Given from heaven to Spring
By the sun her king,
 Half a tender toy,
Seems a child of curl
Yet too soft to twirl ;
Seems the flower-sweet girl
 By the flower-bright boy.

TWINS

All the kind gods' grace,
All their love, embrace
Ever either face,
 Ever brood above them :
All soft wings of hours
Screen them as with flowers
From all beams and showers :
 All life's seasons love them.

When the dews of sleep
Falling lightliest keep Eyes too close to peep
 Forth and laugh off rest,
Joy from face to feet
Fill them, as is meet :
Life to them be sweet
 As their mother's breast.

When those dews are dry,
And in day's bright eye
Looking full they lie
 Bright as rose and pearl,
All returns of joy
Pure of time's alloy
Bless the rose-red boy,
 Guard the rose-white girl

POSTSCRIPT

Friends, if I could take Half a note from Blake
Or but one verse make
 Of the Conqueror's mine,

Better than my best Song above your nest
I would sing : the quest
Now seems too divine.

April 28, 1881.

THE SALT OF THE EARTH

If childhood were not in the world,
But only men and women grown ;
No baby-locks in tendrils curled,
No baby-blossoms blown ;

Though men were stronger, women fairer,
And nearer all delights in reach,
And verse and music uttered rarer
Tones of more godlike speech ;

Though the utmost life of life's best hours
Found, as it cannot now find, words ;
Though desert sands were sweet as flower:
And flowers could sing like birds,

But children never heard them, never
They felt a child's foot leap and run
This were a drearier star than ever
Yet looked upon the sun.

SEVEN YEARS OLD

I

SEVEN white roses on one tree,
 Seven white loaves of blameless leaven,
 Seven white sails on one soft sea,
 Seven white swans on one lake's lee,
 Seven white flowerlike stars in heaven,
 All are types unmeet to be
 For a birthday's crown of seven.

II

Not the radiance of the roses,
 Not the blessing of the bread,
 Not the breeze that ere day grows is Fresh for sails and swans, and closes Wings above the sun's grave spread,
 When the starshine on the snows is Sweet as sleep on sorrow shed,

III

Nothing sweetest, nothing best,
 Holds so good and sweet a treasure
 As the love wherewith once blest
 Joy grows holy, grief takes rest.
 Life, half tired with hours to measure,
 Fills his eyes and lips and breast
 With most light and breath of pleasure

As the rapture unpolluted,
As the passion undefiled,
By whose force all pains heart-rooted Are transfigured and transmuted, Recompensed and reconciled,
Through the imperial, undisputed,
Present godhead of a child.

Brown bright eyes and fair bright head,
Worth a worthier crown than this is,
Worth a worthier song instead,
Sweet grave wise round mouth, full fed
With the joy of love, whose bliss is More than mortal wine and bread,
Lips whose words are sweet as kisses,

VI

Little hands so glad of giving,
Little heart so glad of love,
Little soul so glad of living,
While the strong swift hours are weaving
Light with darkness woven above,
Time for mirth and time for grieving,
Plume of raven and plume of dove,

VII

I can give you but a word
Warm with love therein for leaven,
But a song that falls unheard
Yet on ears of sense unstirred
Yet by song so far from heaven,
Whence you came the brightest bird,
Seven years since, of seven times seven.

EIGHT YEARS OLD

SUN, whom the faltering snow-cloud fears,
 Rise, let the time of year be May,
 Speak now the word that April hears,
 Let March have all his royal way ;
 Bid all spring raise in winter's ears
 All tunes her children hear or play,
 Because the crown of eight glad years
 On one bright head is set to-day.

II

What matters cloud or sun to-day
 To him who wears the wreath of years
 So many, and all like flowers at play
 With wind and sunshine, while his ears
 Hear only song on every way ?
 More sweet than spring triumphant hears Ring through the revel-rout of May Are these, the notes that winter fears.

Strong-hearted winter knows and fears
 The music made of love at play,
 Or haply loves the tune he hears
 From hearts fulfilled with flowering May,

Whose molten music thaws his ears
Late frozen, deaf but yesterday
To sounds of dying and dawning years,
Now quickened on his deathward way.

For deathward now lies winter's way
Down the green vestibule of years
That each year brightens day by day
With flower and shower till hope scarce fears
And fear grows wholly hope of May.
But we—the music in our ears
Made of love's pulses as they play
The heart alone that makes it hears.

The heart it is that plays and hears
High salutation of to-day.
Tongue falters, hand shrinks back, song fears
Its own unworthiness to play
Fit music for those eight sweet years,
Or sing their blithe accomplished way.
No song quite worth a young child's ears
Broke ever even from birds in May.

VI

There beats not in the heart of May,
When summer hopes and springtide fears,
There falls not from the height of day,
When sunlight speaks and silence hears,

So sweet a psalm as children play
And sing, each hour of all their years,
Each moment of their lovely way,
And know not how it thrills our ears.

Ah child, what are we, that our ears
Should hear you singing on your way,
Should have this happiness? The years
Whose hurrying wings about us play
Are not like yours, whose flower-time fears Nought worse than sunlit showers in May,
Being sinless as the spring, that hears
Her own heart praise her every day.

VIII

Yet we too triumph in the day
That bare, to entrance our eyes and ears,
To lighten daylight, and to play
Such notes as darkness knows and fears,
The child whose face illumines our way,
Whose voice lifts up the heart that hears,
Whose hand is as the hand of May
To bring us flowers from eight full years.

February 4, 1882.

COMPARISONS

CHILD, when they say that others
Have been or are like you,
Babes fit to be your brothers,
Sweet human drops of dew,
Bright fruit of mortal mothers,
What should one say or do?

We know the thought is treason,
We feel the dream absurd ;
A claim rebuked of reason,
That withers at a word :
For never shone the season
That bore so blithe a bird.

Some smiles may seem as merry,
Some glances gleam as wise,
From lips as like a cherry
And scarce less gracious eyes ;
Eyes browner than a berry,
Lips red as morning's rise.

But never yet rang laughter
So sweet in gladdened ears
Through wall and floor and rafter
As all this household hears
And rings response thereafter
Till cloudiest weather clears.

When those your chosen of all men,
Whose honey never cloy,
Two lights whose smiles enthrall men,
Were called at your age boys,
Those mighty men, while small men,
Could make no merrier noise.

Our Shakespeare, surely, daffed not More lightly pain aside
From radiant lips that quaffed not
Of forethought's tragic tide :
Our Dickens, doubtless, laughed not More loud with life's first pride.

The dawn were not more cheerless
With neither light nor dew
Than we without the fearless
Clear laugh that thrills us through :
If ever child stood peerless,
Love knows that child is you.

WHAT IS DEATH?

LOOKING on a page where stood Graven of old on old-world wood
Death, and by the grave's edge grim,
Pale, the young man facing him,
Asked my well-beloved of me Once what strange thing this might be,
Gaunt and great of limb.

Death, I told him : and, surprise
Deepening more his wildwood eyes (Like some sweet fleet thing's whose breath Speaks all spring though nought it saith),
Up he turned his rosebright face
Glorious with its seven years' grace, Asking—What is death?

A CHILD'S PITY

No sweeter thing than children's ways and wiles, Surely, we say, can gladden eyes and ears :
Yet sometime sweeter than their words or smiles
Are even their tears.

To one for once a piteous tale was read,
How, when the murderous mother crocodile
Was slain, her fierce brood famished, and lay dead, Starved, by the Nile.

In vast green reed-beds on the vast grey slime
Those monsters motherless and helpless lay, Perishing only for the parent's crime
Whose seed were they.

Hours after, toward the dusk, our blithe small bird
Of Paradise, who has our hearts in keeping,
Was heard or seen, but hardly seen or heard,
For pity weeping.

He was so sorry, sitting still apart,
For the poor little crocodiles, he said.
Six years had given him, for an angel's heart,
A child's instead.

Feigned tears the false beasts shed for murderous ends,

We know from travellers' tales of crocodiles :
But these tears wept upon them of my friend's Outshine his smiles.

What heavenliest angels of what heavenly city
Could match the heavenly heart in children here ?
The heart that hallowing all things with its pity Casts out all fear ?

So lovely, so divine, so dear their laughter Seems to us, we know not what could be more
dear :
But lovelier yet we see the sign thereafter
Of such a tear.

With sense of love half laughing and half weeping
We met your tears, our small sweet-spirited
friend :
Let your love have us in its heavenly keeping
To life's last end.

A CHILD'S LAUGHTER

ALL the bells of heaven may ring,
 All the birds of heaven may sing,
 All the wells on earth may spring,
 All the winds on earth may bring All sweet sounds together ;
 Sweeter far than all things heard,
 Hand of harper, tone of bird,
 Sound of woods at sundawn stirred,
 Welling water's winsome word,
 Wind in warm wan weather,

One thing yet there is, that none
 Hearing ere its chime be done Knows not well the sweetest one Heard of man beneath the sun,
 Hoped in heaven hereafter ;
 Soft and strong and loud and light,
 Very sound of very light
 Heard from morning's rosiest height,
 When the soul of all delight
 Fills a child's clear laughter.

Golden bells of welcome rolled Never forth such notes, nor told Hours so blithe in tones so bold,
As the radiant mouth of gold
 Here that rings forth heaven.
If the golden-crested wren
Were a nightingale—why, then,
Something seen and heard of men Might be half as sweet as when Laughs a child of seven.

A CHILD'S THANKS

How low soe'er men rank us,
How high soe'er we win,
The children far above us
Dwell, and they deign to love us,
With lovelier love than ours,
And smiles more sweet than flowers ;
As though the sun should thank us
For letting light come in.

With too divine complaisance,
Whose grace misleads them thus,
Being gods, in heavenly blindness
They call our worship kindness,
Our pebble-gift a gem :
They think us good to them,
Whose glance, whose breath, whose presence,
Are gifts too good for us.

The poet high and hoary
Of meres that mountains bind
Felt his great heart more often Yearn, and its proud strength soften
From stern to tenderer mood,
At thought of gratitude
Shown than of song or story
He heard of hearts unkind.

A CHILD'S THANKS

But with what words for token
And what adoring tears
Of reverence risen to passion,
In what glad prostrate fashion
Of spirit and soul subdued,
May man show gratitude
For thanks of children spoken
That hover in his ears ?

The angels laugh, your brothers,
Child, hearing you thank me,
With eyes whence night grows sunny,
And touch of lips like honey,
And words like honey-dew :
But how shall I thank you ?
For gifts above all others
What guerdon-gift may be ?

What wealth of words caressing,
What choice of songs found best,
Would seem not as derision,
Found vain beside the vision
And glory from above
Shown in a child's heart's love ?
His part in life is blessing ;
Ours, only to be blest.

A CHILD'S BATTLES

πῦξ ἀρετὰν εὐρών. — PINDAR.

PRAISE of the knights of old
 May sleep : their tale is told,
 And no man cares :
 The praise which fires our lips is A knight's whose fame eclipses
 All of theirs.

The ruddiest light in heaven
 Blazed as his birth-star seven Long years ago :
 All glory crown that old year
 Which brought our stout small soldier
 With the snow !

Each baby born has one
 Star, for his friends a sun,
 The first of stars :
 And we, the more we scan it,
 The more grow sure your planet,
 Child, was Mars.

For each one flower, perchance,
 Blooms as his cognizance :
 The snowdrop chill,

A CHILD'S BATTLES

The violet un beholden,
For some : for you the golden Daffodil.

Erect, a fighting flower,
It breasts the breeziest hour
That ever blew.
And bent or broke things brittle
Or frail, unlike a little Knight like you.

Its flower is firm and fresh
And stout like sturdiest flesh
Of children : all
The strenuous blast that parches Spring hurts it not till March is Near his fall.

If winds that prate and fret
Remark, rebuke, regret,
Lament, or blame
The brave plant's martial passion,
It keeps its own free fashion
All the same.

We that would fain seem wise
Assume grave mouths and eyes
Whose looks reprove
Too much delight in battle :
But your great heart our prattle Cannot move.

We say, small children should Be placid, mildly good
And blandly meek :

Whereat the broad smile rushes
Full on your lips, and flushes
All your cheek.

If all the stars that are Laughed out, and every star
Could here be heard,
Such peals of golden laughter
We should not hear, as after Such a word.

For all the storm saith, still,
Stout stands the daffodil :
For all we say,
Howe'er he look demurely,
Our martialist will surely Have his way.

We may not bind with bands
Those large and liberal hands,
Nor stay from fight,
Nor hold them back from giving
No lean mean laws of living Bind a knight.

And always here of old
Such gentle hearts and bold
Our land has bred :
How durst her eye rest else on The glory shed from Nelson
Quick and dead ?

Shame were it, if but one
Such once were born her son,
That one to have borne,

A CHILD'S BATTLES

And brought him ne'er a brother :
His praise should bring his mother Shame and scorn.

A child high-souled as he Whose manhood shook the sea
Smiles haply here :
His face, where love lies basking,
With bright shut mouth seems asking,
What is fear ?

The sunshine-coloured fists
Beyond his dimpling wrists
Were never closed
For saving or for sparing—
For only deeds of daring Predisposed.

Unclenched, the gracious hands
Let slip their gifts like sands
Made rich with ore
That tongues of beggars ravish
From small stout hands so lavish
Of their store.

Sweet hardy kindly hands
Like these were his that stands
With heel on gorge
Seen trampling down the dragon
On sign or flask or flagon, Sweet Saint George.

Some tournament, perchance,
Of hands that couch no lance,
Might mark this spot

Your lists, if here some pleasant
Small Guenevere were present, Launcelot.

My brave bright flower, you need
No foolish song, nor heed
It more than spring
The sighs of winter stricken
Dead when your haunts requicken
Here, my king.

Yet O, how hardly may
The wheels of singing stay
That whirl along
Bright paths whence echo raises
The phantom of your praises,
Child, my song !

Beyond all other things
That give my words fleet wings,
Fleet wings and strong,
You set their jesses ringing
Till hardly can I, singing, Stint my song.

But all things better, friend,
And worse must find an end :
And, right or wrong,
'Tis time, lest rhyme should baffle,
I doubt, to put a snaffle
On my song.

And never may your ear
Aught harsher hear or fear,
Nor wolfish night

A CHILD'S BATTLES

Nor dog-toothed winter snarling
Behind your steps, my darling
My delight !

For all the gifts you give Me, dear, each day you live,
Of thanks above
All thanks that could be spoken
Take not my song in token,
Take my love.

A CHILD'S FUTURE

WHAT will it please you, my darling, hereafter to be ?
 Fame upon land will you look for, or glory by sea ?
 Gallant your life will be always, and all of it free.

Free as the wind when the heart of the twilight is stirred Eastward, and sounds from the springs of the sunrise are heard :
 Free—and we know not another as infinite word.

Darkness or twilight or sunlight may compass us round,
 Hate may arise up against us, or hope may confound ;
 Love may forsake us ; yet may not the spirit be bound.

Free in oppression of grief as in ardour of joy Still may the soul be, and each to her strength as a toy :
 Free in the glance of the man as the smile of the boy.

Freedom alone is the salt and the spirit that gives Life, and without her is nothing that verily lives :
 Death cannot slay her : she laughs upon death and forgives.

Brightest and hardiest of roses anear and afar
Glitters the blithe little face of you, round as a star :
Liberty bless you and keep you to be as you are.

England and liberty bless you and keep you to be Worthy the name of their child and the sight of their
sea :

Fear not at all ; for a slave, if he fears not, is free.

SONNETS
ON ENGLISH DRAMATIC POETS
(1590–1650)

CHRISTOPHER MARLOWE

CROWNED, girdled, garbed and shod with light and fire, Son first-born of the morning, sovereign star !
Soul nearest ours of all, that wert most far,
Most far off in the abysm of time, thy lyre
Hung highest above the dawn-enkindled quire Where all ye sang together, all that are,
And all the starry songs behind thy car
Rang sequence, all our souls acclaim thee sire.

“ If all the pens that ever poets held Had fed the feeling of their masters' thoughts,”
And as with rush of hurtling chariots
The flight of all their spirits were impelled Toward one great end, thy glory—nay, not then,
Not yet might'st thou be praised enough of men.

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

Not if men's tongues and angels' all in one
Spake, might the word be said that might speak
Thee.

Streams, winds, woods, flowers, fields, mountains,
yea, the sea,

What power is in them all to praise the sun ?

His praise is this,—he can be praised of none.

Man, woman, child, praise God for him ; but he Exults not to be worshipped, but to be.

He is ; and, being, beholds his work well done.

All joy, all glory, all sorrow, all strength, all mirth,

Are his : without him, day were night on earth.

Time knows not his from time's own period.

All lutes, all harps, all viols, all flutes, all lyres,

Fall dumb before him ere one string suspires.

All stars are angels ; but the sun is God.

BEN JONSON

BROAD-BASED, broad-fronted, bounteous, multiform,
 With many a valley impleached with ivy and vine,
 Wherein the springs of all the streams run wine,
 And many a crag full-faced against the storm,
 The mountain where thy Muse's feet made warm
 Those lawns that revelled with her dance divine Shines yet with fire as it was wont to shine
 From tossing torches round the dance aswarm.

Nor less, high-stationed on the grey grave heights, High-thoughted seers with heaven's heart-kindling lights

Hold converse : and the herd of meaner things Knows or by fiery scourge or fiery shaft When wrath on thy broad brows has risen, and laughed
 Darkening thy soul with shadow of thunderous wings.

BEAUMONT AND FLETCHER

AN hour ere sudden sunset fired the west,
Arose two stars upon the pale deep east.
The hall of heaven was clear for night's high feast,
Yet was not yet day's fiery heart at rest.
Love leapt up from his mother's burning breast
To see those warm twin lights, as day decreased, Wax wider, till when all the sun had ceased
As suns they shone from evening's kindled crest.
Across them and between, a quickening fire,
Flamed Venus, laughing with appeased desire.
Their dawn, scarce lovelier for the gleam of tears,
Filled half the hollow shell 'twixt heaven and earth
With sound like moonlight, mingling moan and mirth,
Which rings and glitters down the darkling years.

PHILIP MASSINGER

CLOUDS here and there arisen an hour past noon Chequered our English heaven with lengthening bars
And shadow and sound of wheel-winged thunder-cars
Assembling strength to put forth tempest soon,
When the clear still warm concord of thy tune
Rose under skies unscared by reddening Mars
Yet, like a sound of silver speech of stars,
With full mild flame as of the mellowing moon.
Grave and great-hearted Massinger, thy face
High melancholy lights with loftier grace
Than gilds the brows of revel : sad and wise,
The spirit of thought that moved thy deeper song,
Sorrow serene in soft calm scorn of wrong,
Speaks patience yet from thy majestic eyes.

JOHN FORD

HEW hard the marble from the mountain's heart
Where hardest night holds fast in iron gloom
Gems brighter than an April dawn in bloom,
That his Memnonian likeness thence may start Revealed, whose hand with high funereal art Carved night, and chiselled shadow : be the tomb
That speaks him famous graven with signs of doom Intrenched inevitably in lines athwart,
As on some thunder-blasted Titan's brow
His record of rebellion. Not the day Shall strike forth music from so stern a chord, Touching this marble : darkness, none knows how,
And stars impenetrable of midnight, may.
So looms the likeness of thy soul, John Ford.

JOHN WEBSTER

THUNDER : the flesh quails, and the soul bows down.

Night: east, west, south, and northward, very night.

Star upon struggling star strives into sight,

Star after shuddering star the deep storms drown.

The very throne of night, her very crown,

A man lays hand on, and usurps her right.

Song from the highest of heaven's imperious height
Shoots, as a fire to smite some towering town.

Rage, anguish, harrowing fear, heart-crazing crime,

Make monstrous all the murderous face of Time

Shown in the spherul orbit of a glass

Revolving. Earth cries out from all her graves.

Frail, on frail rafts, across wide-wallowing waves,

Shapes here and there of child and mother pass.

VIII

THOMAS DECKER

Out of the depths of darkling life where sin
Laughs piteously that sorrow should not know
Her own ill name, nor woe be counted woe ;
Where hate and craft and lust make drearier din Than sounds through dreams that grief holds revel in ;
What charm of joy-bells ringing, streams that flow,
Winds that blow healing in each note they blow,
Is this that the outer darkness hears begin ?

O sweetest heart of all thy time save one,
Star seen for love's sake nearest to the sun,
Hung lamplike o'er a dense and doleful city,
Not Shakespeare's very spirit, howe'er more great,
Than thine toward man was more compassionate, Nor gave Christ praise from lips more sweet with pity.

THOMAS MIDDLETON

A WILD moon riding high from cloud to cloud,
 That sees and sees not, glimmering far beneath,
 Hell's children revel along the shuddering heath
 With dirge-like mirth and raiment like a shroud :
 A worse fair face than witchcraft's, passion-proud,
 With brows blood-flecked behind their bridal wreath
 And lips that bade the assassin's sword find sheath Deep in the heart whereto love's heart was vowed :
 A game of close contentious crafts and creeds Played till white England bring black Spain to
 shame :
 A son's bright sword and brighter soul, whose deeds High conscience lights for mother's love and fame ·
 Pure gipsy flowers, and poisonous courtly weeds :
 Such tokens and such trophies crown thy name.

THOMAS HEYWOOD

Tom, if they loved thee best who called thee Tom,
 What else may all men call thee, seeing thus bright Even yet the laughing and the weeping light That still thy kind old eyes are kindled from ?
 Small care was thine to assail and overcome
 Time and his child Oblivion : yet of right Thy name has part with names of lordlier might For English love and homely sense of home, Whose fragrance keeps thy small sweet bayleaf young
 And gives it place aloft among thy peers Whence many a wreath once higher strong Time has hurled :
 And this thy praise is sweet on Shakespeare's tongue—
 “ O good old man, how well in thee appears The constant service of the antique world ! ”

XI

GEORGE CHAPMAN

HIGH priest of Homer, not elect in vain,
 Deep trumpets blow before thee, shawms behind
 Mix music with the rolling wheels that wind Slow through the labouring triumph of thy train :
 Fierce history, molten in thy forging brain,
 Takes form and fire and fashion from thy mind,
 Tormented and transmuted out of kind :
 But howsoe'er thou shift thy strenuous strain,
 Like Tailor¹ smooth, like Fisher² swollen, and now Grim Yarrington³ scarce bloodier marked than thou,
 Then bluff as Mayne's⁴ or broad-mouthed Barry's⁵
 glee ;
 Proud still with hoar predominance of brow
 And beard like foam swept off the broad blown sea, Where'er thou go, men's reverence goes with thee.

XII

JOHN MARSTON

THE bitterness of death and bitterer scorn Breathes from the broad-leafed aloe-plant whence thou
 Wast fain to gather for thy bended brow
 A chaplet by no gentler forehead worn.
 Grief deep as hell, wrath hardly to be borne,
 Ploughed up thy soul till round the furrowing plough
 The strange black soil foamed, as a black beaked prow
 Bids night-black waves foam where its track has torn.
 Too faint the phrase for thee that only saith Scorn bitterer than the bitterness of death
 Pervades the sullen splendour of thy soul,
 Where hate and pain make war on force and fraud
 And all the strengths of tyrants ; whence unflawed
 It keeps this noble heart of hatred whole.

JOHN DAY

DAY was a full-blown flower in heaven, alive
With murmuring joy of bees and birds aswarm,
When in the skies of song yet flushed and warm
With music where all passion seems to strive For utterance, all things bright and fierce to drive Struggling along the splendour of the storm,
Day for an hour put off his fiery form,
And golden murmurs from a golden hive
Across the strong bright summer wind were heard,
And laughter soft as smiles from girls at play
And loud from lips of boys brow-bound with May Our mightiest age let fall its gentlest word,
When Song, in semblance of a sweet small bird,
Lit fluttering on the light swift hand of Day.

XIV

JAMES SHIRLEY

THE dusk of day's decline was hard on dark
 When evening trembled round thy glowworm lamp
 That shone across her shades and dewy damp
 A small clear beacon whose benignant spark
 Was gracious yet for loiterers' eyes to mark, Though changed the watchword of our English camp
 Since the outposts rang round Marlowe's lion ramp,
 When thy steed's pace went ambling round Hyde Park.

And in the thickening twilight under thee Walks Davenant, pensive in the paths where he,
 The blithest throat that ever carolled love
 In music made of morning's merriest heart,
 Glad Suckling, stumbled from his seat above
 And reeled on slippery roads of alien art.

THE TRIBE OF BENJAMIN

Sons born of many a loyal Muse to Ben,
All true-begotten, warm with wine or ale,
Bright from the broad light of its presence, hail !
Prince Randolph, nighest his throne of all his men, Being highest in spirit and heart who hailed him
then
King, nor might other spread so blithe a sail :
Cartwright, a soul pent in with narrower pale,
Praised of thy sire for manful might of pen :
Marmion, whose verse keeps alway keen and fine
The perfume of their Apollonian wine
Who shared with that stout sire of all and thee
The exuberant chalice of his echoing shrine :
Is not your praise writ broad in gold which he Inscribed, that all who praise his name should see ?

ANONYMOUS PLAYS :

“ARDEN OF FEVERSHAM”

MOTHER whose womb brought forth our man of men,
Mother of Shakespeare, whom all time acclaims
Queen therefore, sovereign queen of English dames, Throned higher than sat thy sonless empress then,
Was it thy son's young passion-guided pen
Which drew, reflected from encircling flames,
A figure marked by the earlier of thy names
Wife, and from all her wedded kinswomen Marked by the sign of murderess? Pale and great, Great in her grief and sin, but in her death
And anguish of her penitential breath
Greater than all her sin or sin-born fate,
She stands, the holocaust of dark desire,
Clothed round with song for ever as with fire.

YE too, dim watchfires of some darkling hour,
 Whose fame forlorn time saves not nor proclaims
 For ever, but forgetfulness defames
 And darkness and the shadow of death devour,
 Lift up ye too your light, put forth your power,
 Let the far twilight feel your soft small flames
 And smile, albeit night name not even their names, Ghost by ghost passing, flower blown down on flower:
 That sweet-tongued shadow, like a star's that passed Singing, and light was from its darkness cast
 To paint the face of Painting fair with praise :¹
 And that wherein forefigured smiles the pure Fraternal face of Wordsworth's Elidure
 Between two child-faced masks of merrier days.²

MORE yet and more, and yet we mark not all :
 The Warning fain to bid fair women heed
 Its hard brief note of deadly doom and deed ; ¹

 See, bruised and marred between two babes that

THE MANY

1

GREENE, garlanded with February's few flowers,
 Ere March came in with Marlowe's rapturous rage:
 Peele, from whose hand the sweet white locks of age
 Took the mild chaplet woven of honoured hours : Nash, laughing hard : Lodge, flushed from lyric bowers :
 And Lilly, a goldfinch in a twisted cage
 Fed by some gay great lady's pettish page Till short sweet songs gush clear like short spring
 showers :
 Kid, whose grim sport still gambolled over graves :
 And Chettle, in whose fresh funereal verse
 Weeps Marian yet on Robin's wildwood hearse :
 Cooke, whose light boat of song one soft breath saves,
 Sighed from a maiden's amorous mouth averse :
 Live likewise ye : Time takes not you for slaves.

XX

THE MANY

II

HAUGHTON, whose mirth gave woman all her will :
 Field, bright and loud, with laughing flower and bird
 And keen alternate notes of laud and gird :
 BARNES, darkening once with Borgia's deeds the quill
 Which tuned the passion of Parthenophil :
 Blithe burly Porter, broad and bold of word :
 Wilkins, a voice with strenuous pity stirred :
 TURK MASON : BREWER, whose tongue drops honey still :
 ROUGH ROWLEY, handling song with Esau's hand :
 Light Nabbes : lean Sharpham, rank and raw by turns,
 But fragrant with a forethought once of Burns :
 SOFT DAVENPORT, sad-robed, but blithe and bland :
 Brome, gipsy-led across the woodland ferns :
 Praise be with all, and place among our band.

EPILOGUE

OUR mother, which wast twice, as history saith, Found first among the nations : once, when she Who bore thine ensign saw the God in thee Smite Spain, and bring forth Shakespeare : once, when death
 Shrank, and Rome's bloodhounds cowered, at Milton's breath :
 More than thy place, then first among the free
 More than that sovereign lordship of the sea
 Bequeathed to Cromwell from Elizabeth,
 More than thy fiery guiding-star, which Drake Hailed, and the deep saw lit again for Blake,
 More than all deeds wrought of thy strong right
 hand,
 This praise keeps most thy fame's memorial strong
 That thou wast head of all these streams of song,
 And time bows down to thee as Shakespeare's land.

A DARK MONTH

2

"La maison sans enfants!"—VICTOR HUGO.

I

A MONTH without sight of the sun
 Rising or reigning or setting
 Through days without use of the day,
 Who calls it the month of May?
 The sense of the name is undone
 And the sound of it fit for forgetting.

We shall not feel if the sun rise,
 We shall not care when it sets :
 If a nightingale make night's air
 As noontide, why should we care?
 Till a light of delight that is done rise,
 Extinguishing grey regrets ;

Till a child's face lighten again
 On the twilight of older faces ;
 Till a child's voice fall as the dew
 On furrows with heat parched through
 And all but hopeless of grain, Refreshing the desolate places—

Fall clear on the ears of us hearkening
 And hungering for food of the sound
 And thirsting for joy of his voice :
 Till the hearts in us hear and rejoice,
 And the thoughts of them doubting and darkening
 Rejoice with a glad thing found.

A DARK MONTH

When the heart of our gladness is gone,
What comfort is left with us after ?
When the light of our eyes is away,
What glory remains upon May,
What blessing of song is thereon
If we drink not the light of his laughter ?

No small sweet face with the daytime
To welcome, warmer than noon !
No sweet small voice as a bird's
To bring us the day's first words !
Mid May for us here is not Maytime :
No summer begins with June.

A whole dead month in the dark,
A dawn in the mists that o'ercome her Stifed and smothered and sad—
Swift speed to it, barren and bad !
And return to us, voice of the lark,
And remain with us, sunlight of summer,

II

ALAS, what right has the dawn to glimmer, What right has the wind to do aught but moan ?

All the day should be dimmer
Because we are left alone.

Yestermorn like a sunbeam present
Hither and thither a light step smiled,
And made each place for us pleasant
With the sense or the sight of a child.

But the leaves persist as before, and after Our parting the dull day still bears flowers ;
And songs less bright than his laughter
Deride us from birds in the bowers.

Birds, and blossoms, and sunlight only,
As though such folly sufficed for spring !
As though the house were not lonely
For want of the child its king !

III

ASLEEP and afar to-night my darling
Lies, and heeds not the night,
If winds be stirring or storms be snarling.
For his sleep is its own sweet light.

I sit where he sat beside me quaffing
The wine of story and song
Poured forth of immortal cups, and laughing
When mirth in the draught grew strong.

I broke the gold of the words, to melt it
For hands but seven years old,
And they caught the tale as a bird, and felt it
More bright than visible gold.

And he drank down deep, with his eyes broad beaming,
Here in this room where I am,
The golden vintage of Shakespeare, gleaming
In the silver vessels of Lamb.

Here by my hearth where he was I listen
For the shade of the sound of a word,
Athirst for the birdlike eyes to glisten,
For the tongue to chirp like a bird.

At the blast of battle, how broad they brightened,
Like fire in the spheres of stars,
And clung to the pictured page, and lightened
As keen as the heart of Mars !

At the touch of laughter, how swift it twittered
The shrillest music on earth ;
How the lithe limbs laughed and the whole child glittered
With radiant riot of mirth !

Our Shakespeare now, as a man dumb-stricken,
Stands silent there on the shelf :
And my thoughts, that had song in the heart of them, sicken,
And relish not Shakespeare's self.

And my mood grows moodier than Hamlet's even,
And man delights not me,
But only the face that morn and even My heart leapt only to see.

That my heart made merry within me seeing,
.And sang as his laugh kept time :
But song finds now no pleasure in being,
And love no reason in rhyme.

MILD May-blossom and proud sweet bay-flower,
What, for shame, would you have with us here?
It is not the month of the May-flower
This, but the fall of the year.

Flowers open only their lips in derision,
Leaves are as fingers that point in scorn.
The shows we see are a vision;
Spring is not verily born.

Yet boughs turn supple and buds grow sappy,
As though the sun were indeed the sun:
And all our woods are happy
With all their birds save one.

But spring is over, but summer is over,
But autumn is over, and winter stands
With his feet sunk deep in the clover
And cowslips cold in his hands.

His hoar grim head has a hawthorn bonnet,
His gnarled gaunt hand has a gay green staff
With new-blown rose-blossom on it:
But his laugh is a dead man's laugh.

The laugh of spring that the heart seeks after,
The hand that the whole world yearns to kiss,
It rings not here in his laughter,
The sign of it is not this.

There is not strength in it left to splinter
Tall oaks, nor frost in his breath to sting :
Yet it is but a breath as of winter,
And it is not the hand of spring.

THIRTY-ONE pale maidens, clad
All in mourning dresses,
Pass, with lips and eyes more sad
That it seems they should be glad,
Heads discrowned of crowns they had,
Grey for golden tresses.

Grey their girdles too for green,
And their veils dishevelled :
None would say, to see their mien,
That the least of these had been Born no baser than a queen,
Reared where flower-fays revelled.

Dreams that strive to seem awake,
Ghosts that walk by daytime,
Weary winds the way they take,
Since, for one child's absent sake,
May knows well, whate'er things make Sport, it is not Maytime.

VI

A HAND at the door taps light
As the hand of my heart's delight :

It is but a full-grown hand,
Yet the stroke of it seems to start
Hope like a bird in my heart,
Too feeble to soar or to stand.

To start light hope from her cover
Is to raise but a kite for a plover
If her wings be not fledged to soar.
Desire, but in dreams, cannot ope
The door that was shut upon hope
When love went out at the door.

Well were it if vision could keep
The lids of desire as in sleep
Fast locked, and over his eyes
A dream with the dark soft key
In her hand might hover, and be Their keeper till morning rise ;

The morning that brings after many Days fled with no light upon any
The small face back which is gone ;
When the loved little hands once more Shall struggle and strain at the door
They beat their summons upon.

IF a soul for but seven days were cast out of heaven and its mirth,
They would seem to her fears like as seventy years upon earth.

Even and morrow should seem to her sorrow as long As the passage of numberless ages in slumberless
song.

Dawn, roused by the lark, would be surely as dark in her sight
As her measureless measure of shadowless pleasure was bright.

Noon, gilt but with glory of gold, would be hoary and grey
In her eyes that had gazed on the depths, unamazed with the day.

Night hardly would seem to make darker her dream never done,
When it could but withhold what a man may behold of the sun.

For dreams would perplex, were the days that should vex her but seven,
The sight of her vision, made dark with division from heaven.

Till the light on my lonely way lighten that only now gleams,
I too am divided from heaven and derided of dreams.

VIII

A TWILIGHT fire-fly may suggest How flames the fire that feeds the sun :
“ A crooked figure may attest
In little space a million.”

But this faint-figured verse, that dresses
With flowers the bones of one bare month,
Of all it would say scarce expresses
In crooked ways a millionth.

A fire-fly tenders to the father
Of fires a tribute something worth :
My verse, a shard-borne beetle rather,
Drones over scarce-illumined earth.

Some inches round me though it brighten
With light of music-making thought,
The dark indeed it may not lighten,
The silence moves not, hearing nought.

Only my heart is eased with hearing,
Only mine eyes are soothed with seeing,
A face brought nigh, a footfall nearing,
Till hopes take form and dreams have being.

IX

As a poor man hungering stands with insatiate eyes and hands

Void of bread

Right in sight of men that feast while his famine with no least

Crumb is fed,

Here across the garden-wall can I hear strange children call,

Watch them play,

From the windowed seat above, whence the goodlier child I love

Is away.

Here the sights we saw together moved his fancy like a feather

To and fro,

Now to wonder, and thereafter to the sunny storm of laughter

Loud and low—

Sights engraven on storied pages where man's tale of seven swift ages

All was told—

Seen of eyes yet bright from heaven—for the lips that laughed were seven

Sweet years old.

X

WHY should May remember
March, if March forget
The days that began with December
The nights that a frost could tret ?

All their griefs are done with Now the bright months bless Fit souls to rejoice in the sun with,
Fit heads for the wind's caress ;

Souls of children quickening
With the whole world's mirth,
Heads closelier than field-flowers thickening
That crowd and illuminate earth,

Now that May's call musters
Files of baby bands
To marshal in joyfuller clusters
Than the flowers that encumber their hands.

Yet morose November
Found them no less gay,
With nought to forget or remember
Less bright than a branch of may.

All the seasons moving
Move their minds alike
Applauding, acclaiming, approving
All hours of the year that strike.

So my heart may fret not,
Wondering if my friend
Remember me not or forget not
Or ever the month find end.

Not that love sows lighter
Seed in children sown,
But that life being lit in them brighter
Moves fleeter than even our own.

May nor yet September
Binds their hearts, that yet
Remember, forget, and remember,
Forget, and recall, and forget.

XI

As light on a lake's face moving
Between a cloud and a cloud
Till night reclaim it, reproving
The heart that exults too loud,

The heart that watching rejoices
When soft it swims into sight
Applauded of all the voices
And stars of the windy night,

So brief and unsure, but sweeter
Than ever a moondawn smiled,
Moves, measured of no tune's metre,
The song in the soul of a child ;

The song that the sweet soul singing
Half listens, and hardly hears,
Though sweeter than joy-bells ringing
And brighter than joy's own tears ;

The song that remembrance of pleasure
Begins, and forgetfulness ends
With a soft swift change in the measure
That rings in remembrance of friends

As the moon on the lake's face flashes,
So haply may gleam at whiles
A dream through the dear deep lashes
Whereunder a child's eye smiles,

And the least of us all that love him
May take for a moment part
With angels around and above him,
And I find place in his heart.

XII

CHILD, were you kinless and lonely—
Dear, were you kin to me—
My love were compassionate only Or such as it needs would be.

But eyes of father and mother
Like sunlight shed on you shine :
What need you have heed of another
Such new strange love as is mine ?

It is not meet if unruly
Hands take of the children's bread
And cast it to dogs ; but truly
The dogs after all would be fed.

On crumbs from the children's table
That crumble, dropped from above,
My heart feeds, fed with unstable
Loose waifs of a child's light love.

Though love in your heart were brittle
As glass that breaks with a touch,
You haply would lend him a little
Who surely would give you much.

XIII

HERE is a rough
Rude sketch of my friend,
Faint-coloured enough
And unworthily penned.

Fearlessly fair
And triumphant he stands,
And holds unaware Friends' hearts in his hands ;

Stalwart and straight
As an oak that should bring Forth gallant and great Fresh roses in spring.

On the paths of his pleasure
All graces that wait
What metre shall measure
What rhyme shall relate

Each action, each motion,
Each feature, each limb,
Demands a devotion
In honour of him :

Head that the hand
Of a god might have blest,
Laid lustrous and bland
On the curve of its crest :

Mouth sweeter than cherries,
Keen eyes as of Mars,
Browner than berries
And brighter than stars.

Nor colour nor wordy
Weak song can declare
The stature how sturdy,
How stalwart his air.

As a king in his bright Presence-chamber may be,
So seems he in height—
Twice higher than your knee.

As a warrior sedate
With reserve of his power,
So seems he in state—
As tall as a flower :

As a rose overtowering
The ranks of the rest
That beneath it lie cowering,
Less bright than their best.

And his hands are as sunny
As ruddy ripe corn
Or the browner-hued honey
From heather-bells borne.

When summer sits proudest,
Fulfilled with its mirth,
And rapture is loudest
In air and on earth,

The suns of all hours
That have ripened the roots
Bring forth not such flowers
And beget not such fruits.

And well though I know it,
As fain would I write,
Child, never a poet
Could praise you aright.

I bless you? the blessing
Were less than a jest Too poor for expressing ;
I come to be blest,

With humble and dutiful Heart, from above :
Bless me, O my beautiful Innocent love !

This rhyme in your praise
With a smile was begun ;
But the goal of his ways
Is uncovered to none,

Nor pervious till after The limit impend ;
It is not in laughter
These rhymes of you end.

XIV

SPRING, and fall, and summer, and winter,
Which may Earth love least of them all,
Whose arms embrace as their signs imprint her,
Summer, or winter, or spring, or fall ?

The clear-eyed spring with the wood-birds mating,
The rose-red summer with eyes aglow,
The yellow fall with serene eyes waiting,
The wild-eyed winter with hair all snow ?

Spring's eyes are soft, but if frosts benumb her
As winter's own will her shrewd breath sting :
Storms may rend the raiment of summer,
And fall grow bitter as harsh-lipped spring.

One sign for summer and winter guides me,
One for spring, and the like for fall :
Whichever from sight of my friend divides me,
That is the worst ill season of all.

WORSE than winter is spring
If I come not to sight of my king :
But then what a spring will it be When my king takes homage of me !

I send his grace from afar
Homage, as though to a star ;
As a shepherd whose flock takes flight
May worship a star by night.

As a flock that a wolf is upon My songs take flight and are gone :
No heart is in any to sing
Aught but the praise of my king.

Fain would I once and again
Sing deeds and passions of men :
But ever a child's head gleams
Between my work and my dreams.

Between my hand and my eyes
The lines of a small face rise,
And the lines I trace and retrace
Are none but those of the face.

XVI

TILL the tale of all this flock of days alike
 All be done,
Weary days of waiting till the month's hand strike Thirty-one,
Till the clock's hand of the month break off, and end
 With the clock,
Till the last and whitest sheep at last be penned
 Of the flock,
I their shepherd keep the count of night and day
 With my song,
Though my song be, like this month which once was
 May,
 All too long.

XVII

THE incarnate sun, a tall strong youth,
On old Greek eyes in sculpture smiled :
But trulier had it given the truth
To shape him like a child.

No face full-grown of all our dearest
So lightens all our darkness, none
Most loved of all our hearts hold nearest To far outshines the sun.

As when with sly shy smiles that feign
Doubt if the hour be clear, the time
Fit to break off my work again
Or sport of prose or rhyme,

My friend peers in on me with merry
Wise face, and though the sky stay dim
The very light of day, the very Sun's self comes in with him.

XVIII

Out of sight,
Out of mind !
Could the light
Prove unkind ?

Can the sun
Quite forget
What was done
Ere he set ?

Does the moon
When she wanes
Leave no tune
That remains

In the void
Shell of night
Overcloyed
With her light ?

Must the shore
At low tide Feel no more Hope or pride,

No intense
Joy to be,
In the sense
Of the sea—

In the pulses
Of her shocks
It repulses,
When its rocks

Thrill and ring
As with glee?
Has my king
Cast off me,

Whom no bird
Flying south
Brings one word
From his mouth?

Not the ghost
Of a word
Riding post
Have I heard,

Since the day
When my king
Took away
With him spring,

And the cup
Of each flower
Shrivelled up
That same hour,

With no light
Left behind.
Out of sight,
Out of mind!

XIX

BECAUSE I adore you
And fall
On the knees of my spirit before you—
After all,

You need not insult,
My king,
With neglect, though your spirit exult
In the spring,

Even me, though not worth,
God knows,
One word of you sent me in mirth,
Or one rose

Out of all in your garden
That grow
Where the frost and the wind never harden
Flakes of snow,

Nor ever is rain
At all,
But the roses rejoice to remain
Fair and tall—

The roses of love,
More sweet
Than blossoms that rain from above
Round our feet,

When under' high bowers
We pass,
Where the west wind freckles with flowers
All the grass.

But a child's thoughts bear
More bright
Sweet visions by day, and more fair
Dreams by night,

Than summer's whole treasure
Can be :
What am I that his thought should take pleasure,
Then, in me ?

I am only my love's
True lover,
With a nestful of songs, like doves
Under cover,

That I bring in my cap
Fresh caught,
To be laid on my small king's lap—
Worth just nought.

Yet it haply may hap
That he,
When the mirth in his veins is as sap
In a tree.

Will remember me too
Some day
Ere the transit be thoroughly through
Of this May—

Or perchance, if such grace
May be,
Some night when I dream of his face,
Dream of me.

Or if this be too high
A hope
For me to prefigure in my Horoscope,

He may dream of the place Where we Basked once in the light of his face,
Who now see

Nought brighter, not one Thing bright,
Than the stars and the moon and the sun.
Day nor night.

XX

DAY by darkling day,
Overpassing, bears away
Somewhat of the burden of this weary May.

Night by numbered night,
Waning, brings more near in sight
Hope that grows to vision of my heart's delight.

Nearer seems to burn
In the dawn's rekindling urn
Flame of fragrant incense, hailing his return.

Louder seems each bird
In the brightening branches heard
Still to speak some ever more delightful word.

All the mists that swim
Round the dawns that grow less dim
Still wax brighter and more bright with hope of him.

All the suns that rise
Bring that day more near our eyes
When the sight of him shall clear our clouded skies.

All the winds that roam
Fruitful fields or fruitless foam Blow the bright hour near that brings his bright face home.

XXI

I HEAR of two far hence
In a garden met,
And the fragrance blown from thence Fades not yet.

The one is seven years old,
And my friend is he :
But the years of the other have told Eighty-three.

To hear these twain converse
Or to see them greet
Were sweeter than softest verse
May be sweet.

The hoar old gardener there
With an eye more mild
Perchance than his mild white hair
Meets the child.

I had rather hear the words
That the twain exchange
Than the songs of all the birds
There that range,

Call, chirp, and twitter there
Through the garden-beds
Where the sun alike sees fair
Those two heads,

And which may holier be Held in heaven of those
Or more worth heart's thanks to see No man knows.

XXII

OF such is the kingdom of heaven,
No glory that ever was shed
From the crowning star of the seven
That crown the north world's head,

No word that ever was spoken
Of human or godlike tongue,
Gave ever such godlike token
Since human harps were strung.

No sign that ever was given To faithful or faithless eyes
Showed ever beyond clouds riven
So clear a Paradise.

Earth's creeds may be seventy times seven
And blood have defiled each creed :
If of such be the kingdom of heaven,
It must be heaven indeed.

XXIII

THE wind on the downs is bright
As though from the sea :
And morning and night
Take comfort again with me.

He is nearer to-day,
Each night to each morning saith,
Whose return shall revive dead May
With the balm of his breath.

The sunset says to the moon,
He is nearer to-night
Whose coming in June
Is looked for more than the light.

Bird answers to bird,
Hour passes the sign on to hour,
And for joy of the bright news heard
Flower murmurs to flower.

The ways that w^ere glad of his feet
In the woods that he knew Grow softer to meet
The sense of his footfall anew.

• He is near now as day,
Says hope to the new-born light :
He is near now as June is to May,
Says love to the night.

XXIV

Good things I keep to console me
For lack of the best of all,
A child to command and control me,
Bid come and remain at his call.

Sun, wind, and woodland and highland,
Give all that ever they gave :
But my world is a cultureless island,
My spirit a masterless slave.

And friends are about me, and better
At summons of no man stand :
But I pine for the touch of a fetter,
The curb of a strong king's hand.

Each hour of the day in her season
Is mine to be served as I will :
And for no more exquisite reason
Are all served idly and ill.

By slavery my sense is corrupted,
My soul not fit to be free :
I would fain be controlled, interrupted,
Compelled as a thrall may be.

For fault of spur and of bridle
I tire of my stall to death :
My sail flaps joyless and idle
For want of a small child's breath.

XXV

WHITER and whiter
The dark lines grow,
And broader opens and brighter
The sense of the text below.

Nightfall and morrow
Bring nigher the boy
Whom wanting we want not sorrow,
Whom having we want no joy.

Clearer and clearer
The sweet sense grows
Of the word which hath summer for hearer,
The word on the lips of the rose.

Duskily dwindles
Each deathlike day,
Till June rearising rekindles
The depth of the darkness of May.

XXVI

"In his bright radiance and collateral light Must I be comforted, not in his sphere."

STARS in heaven are many,
Suns in heaven but one :
Nor for man may any Star supplant the sun.

Many a child as joyous
As our far-off king
Meets as though to annoy us
In the paths of spring.

Sure as spring gives warning,
All things dance in tune :
Sun on Easter morning,
Cloud and windy moon,

Stars between the tossing
Boughs of tuneful trees,
Sails of ships recrossing
Leagues of dancing seas ;

Best, in all this playtime,
Best of all in tune,
Girls more glad than Maytime,
Boys more bright than June ;

Mixed with all those dances,
Far through field and street
Sing their silent glances,
Ring their radiant feet.

Flowers wherewith May crowned us
Fall ere June be crowned :
Children blossom round us
All the whole year round.

Is the garland worthless
For one rose the less,
And the feast made mirthless ?
Love, at least, says yes.

Strange it were, with many Stars enkindling air,
Should but one find any Welcome : strange it were,

Had one star alone won Praise for light from far :
Nay, love needs his own one Bright particular star.

Hope and recollection
Only lead him right
In its bright reflection
And collateral light.

Find as yet we may not Comfort in its sphere :
Yet these days will weigh not
When it warms us here :

A DARK MONTH

When full-orbed it rises,
Now divined afar :
None in all the skies is Half so good a star ;

None that seers importune
Till a sign be won :
Star of our good fortune,
Rise and reign, our sun !

XXVII

I PASS by the small room now forlorn
Where once each night as I passed I knew
A child's bright sleep from even to morn
Made sweet the whole night through.

As a soundless shell, as a songless nest,
Seems now the room that was radiant then
And fragrant with his happier rest
Than that of slumbering men.

The day therein is less than the day,
The night is indeed night now therein :
Heavier the dark seems there to weigh,
And slower the dawns begin.

As a nest fulfilled with birds, as a shell
Fulfilled with breath of a god's own hymn,
Again shall be this bare blank cell,
Made sweet again with him.

XXVIII

SPRING darkens before us,
A flame going down,
With chant from the chorus
Of days without crown —
Cloud, rain, and sonorous
Soft wind on the down.

She is wearier not of us
Than we of the dream
That spring was to love us
And joy was to gleam
Through the shadows above us
That shift as they stream.

Half dark and half hoary,
Float far on the loud
Mild wind, as a glory
Half pale and half proud
From the twilight of story,
Her tresses of cloud ;

Like phantoms that glimmer
Of glories of old
With ever yet dimmer
Pale circlets of gold
As darkness grows grimmer
And memory more cold.

Like hope growing clearer
With wane of the moon,
Shines toward us the nearer
Gold frontlet of June,
And a face with it dearer
Than midsummer moon.

XXIX

You send me your love in a letter,
I send you my love in a song :
Ah child, your gift is the better,
Mine does you but wrong.

No fame, were the best less brittle,
No praise, were it wide as earth,
Is worth so much as a little Child's love may be worth.

We see the children above us
As they might angels above :
Come back to us, child, if you love us,
And bring us your love.

XXX

No time for books or for letters :
What time should there be ?
No room for tasks and their fetters :
Full room to be free.

The wind and the sun and the Maytime
Had never a guest
More worthy the most that his playtime
Could give of its best.

If rain should come on, peradventure,
(But sunshine forbid !)
Vain hope in us haply might venture
To dream, as it did.

But never may come, of all comers
Least welcome, the rain,
To mix with his servant the summer's Rose-garlanded train !

He would write, but his hours are as busy
As bees in the sun,
And the jubilant whirl of their dizzy
Dance never is done.

The message is more than a letter,
Let love understand,
And the thought of his joys even better Than sight of his hand.

XXXI

WIND, high-souled, full-hearted
South-west wind of the spring !
Ere April and earth had parted,
Skies, bright with thy forward wing, Grew dark in an hour with the shadow behind it, that bade not a bird dare sing.

Wind whose feet are sunny,
Wind whose wings are cloud,
With lips more sweet than honey
Still, speak they low or loud, Rejoice now again in the strength of thine heart: let the depth of thy soul wax proud.

We hear thee singing or sighing,
Just not given to sight,
All but visibly flying
Between the clouds and the light,
And the light in our hearts is enkindled, the shadow therein of the clouds put to flight.

From the gift of thine hands we gather
The core of the flowers therein,
Keen glad heart of heather,
Hot sweet heart of whin, Twin breaths in thy godlike breath close blended of wild spring's wildest of kin.

All but visibly beating
We feel thy wings in the far
Clear waste, and the plumes of them fleeting, Soft as swan's plumes are,
And strong as a wild swan's pinions, and swift as the flash of the flight of a star.

As the flight of a planet enkindled
Seems thy far soft flight
Now May's reign has dwindled
And the crescent of June takes light And the presence of summer is here, and the hope of a welcomer presence in sight.

Wind, sweet-souled, great-hearted
Southwest wind on the wold !
From us is a glory departed
That now shall return as of old, Borne back on thy wings as an eagle's expanding, and crowned with the sundawn's gold.

There is not a flower but rejoices,
There is not a leaf but has heard :
All the fields find voices,
All the woods are stirred :
There is not a nest but is brighter because of the coming of one bright bird.

Out of dawn and morning,
Noon and afternoon,
The sun to the world gives warning
Of news that brightens the moon ;
And the stars all night exult with us, hearing of joy that shall come with June.

SUNRISE

If the wind and the sunlight of April and August had mingled the past and hereafter In a single adorable season whose life were a rapture of love and of laughter,
And the blithest of singers were back with a song ; if again from his tomb as from prison, If again from the night or the twilight of ages Aristophanes had arisen,
With the gold-feathered wings of a bird that were also a god upon earth at his shoulders,
And the gold-flowing laugh of the manhood of old at his lips, for a joy to beholders, He alone unrebuked of presumption were able to set to some adequate measure
The delight of our eyes in the dawn that restores them the sun of their sense and the pleasure.
For the days of the darkness of spirit are over for all of us here, and the season When desire was a longing, and absence a thorn, and rejoicing a word without reason.
For the roof overhead of the pines is astir with delight as of jubilant voices,
And the floor underfoot of the bracken and heather alive as a heart that rejoices.

For the house that was childless awhile, and the light of it darkened, the pulse of it dwindled, Rings radiant again with a child's bright feet, with the light of his face is rekindled.
And the ways of the meadows that knew him, the sweep of the down that the sky's belt closes, Grow gladder at heart than the soft wind made them whose feet were but fragrant with roses, Though the fall of the year be upon us, who trusted in June and by June were defrauded, And the summer that brought us not back the desire of our eyes be gone hence unapplauded.
For July came joyless among us, and August went out from us arid and sterile,
And the hope of our hearts, as it seemed, was no more than a flower that the seasons imperil,
And the joy of our hearts, as it seemed, than a thought which regret had not heart to remember, Till four dark months overpast were atoned for, and summer began in September.
Hark, April again as a bird in the house with a child's voice hither and thither :
See, May in the garden again with a child's face cheering the woods ere they wither.
June laughs in the light of his eyes, and July on the sunbright cheeks of him slumbers, And August glows in a smile more sweet than the cadence of gold-mouthed numbers.
In the morning the sight of him brightens the sun, and the noon with delight in him flushes,
And the silence of nightfall is music about him as soft as the sleep that it hushes.
We awake with a sense of a sunrise that is not a gift of the sundawn's giving,

And a voice that salutes us is sweeter than all sounds else in the world of the living,
And a presence that warms us is brighter than all in the world of our visions beholden, Though the dreams of our sleep were as those that the light of a world without grief makes golden.
For the best that the best of us ever devised as a likeness of heaven and its glory,
What was it of old, or what is it and will be for ever,
in song or in story,
Or in shape or in colour of carven or painted resemblance, adored of all ages,
But a vision recorded of children alive in the pictures of old or the pages ?
Where children are not, heaven is not, and heaven if they come not again shall be never :
But the face and the voice of a child are assurance of heaven and its promise for ever.

SPECIMENS OF MODERN POETS

THE HEPTALOGIA

OR

THE SEVEN AGAINST SENSE

A CAP WITH SEVEN BELLS

THE HIGHER PANTHEISM IN A NUTSHELL

ONE, who is not, we see : but one, whom we see not, is :

Surely this is not that : but that is assuredly this.

What, and wherefore, and whence ? for under is over and under :

If thunder could be without lightning, lightning could be without thunder.

Doubt is faith in the main : but faith, on the whole,
is doubt :

We cannot believe by proof : but could we believe without ?

Why, and whither, and how ? for barley and rye are not clover :

Neither are straight lines curves : yet over is under and over.

Two and two may be four : but four and four are not eight :

Fate and God may be twain : but God is the same thing as fate.

Ask a man what he thinks, and get from a man what he feels :

God, once caught in the fact, shows you a fair pair of heels.

Body and spirit are twins : God only knows which is which :

The soul squats down in the flesh, like a tinker drunk in a ditch.

More is the whole than a part : but half is more than the whole :

Clearly, the soul is the body : but is not the body the soul ?

One and two are not one : but one and nothing is two :

Truth can hardly be false, if falsehood cannot be true.

Once the mastodon was : pterodactyls were common as cocks :

Then the mammoth was God : now is He a prize ox.

Parallels all things are : yet many of these are askew
You are certainly I : but certainly I am not you.

Springs the rock from the plain, shoots the stream from the rock :

Cocks exist for the hen : but hens exist for the cock.

God, whom we see not, is : and God, who is not, we
see :

Fiddle, we know, is diddle : and diddle, we take it, is dee.

JOHN JONES'S WIFE

AT THE PIANO

I

LOVE me and leave me ; what love bids retrieve me ?
 can June's fist grasp May ?
 Leave me and love me ; hopes eyed once above me like spring's sprouts decay ; Fall as the snow falls, when summer leaves grow false—cards packed for storm's play !

II

Nay, say Decay's self be but last May's elf, wing shifted, eye sheathed—Changeling in April's crib rocked, who lets 'scape rills locked fast since frost breathed—Skin cast (think !) adder-like, now bloom bursts bladder-like,—bloom frost bequeathed ?

Ah, how can fear sit and hear as love hears it grief's heart's cracked grate's screech ?
 Chance lets the gate sway that opens on hate's way and shews on shame's beach Crouched like an imp sly change watch sweet love's shrimps lie, a toothful in each.

Time feels his tooth slip on husks wet from Truth's lip, which drops them and grins—Shells where no throb stirs of life left in lobsters since joy thrilled their fins—Hues of the prawn's tail or comb that makes dawn stale, so red for our sins !

Years blind and deaf use the soul's joys as refuse, heart's peace as manure, Reared whence, next June's rose shall bloom where our moons rose last year, just as pure :
Moons' ends match roses' ends : men by beasts' noses' ends mete sin's stink's cure.

VI

Leaves love last year smelt now feel dead love's tears melt—flies caught in time's mesh !
Salt are the dews in which new time breeds new sin, brews blood and stews flesh ;
Next year may see dead more germs than this weeded and reared them afresh.

Old times left perish, there's new time to cherish ;
life just shifts its tune ;
As, when the day dies, earth, half afraid, eyes the growth of the moon ;
Love me and save me, take me or waive me ; death takes one so soon !

BY THE CLIFF

I

Is it daytime (guess),
You that feed my soul
To excess
With that light in those eyes
And those curls drawn like a scroll
In that round grave guise?
No or yes?

II

Oh, the end, I'd say!
Such a foolish thing
(Pure girls' play!)
As a mere mute heart,
Was it worth a kiss, a ring,
This? for two must part—
Not to-day.

III

Look, the whole sand crawls,
Hums, a heaving hive,
Scrapes and scrawls—

JOHN JONES'S WIFE

Such a buzz and burst !
Here just one thing's not alive,
One that was at first—
But life palls.

IV

Yes, my heart, I know,
Just my heart's stone dead—
Yes, just so.
Sick with heat, those worms
Drop down scorched and overfed—
No more need of germs !
Let them go.

Yes, but you now, look,
You, the rouged stage female
With a crook,
Chalked Arcadian sham,
You that made my soul's sleep's dream ail—
Your soul fit to damn?
Shut the book.

ON THE SANDS

I

THERE was nothing at all in the case (conceive)
But love ; being love, it was not (understand)
Such a thing as the years let fall (believe)
Like the rope's coil dropt from a fisherman's hand
When the boat's hauled up—" by your leave !"

II

So—well ! How that crab writhes-- leg after leg Drawn, as a worm draws ring upon ring
Gradually, not gladly ! Chicken or egg,
Is it more than the ransom (say) of a king (Take my meaning at least) that I beg ?

III

Not so ! You were ready to learn, I think,
What the world said ! " He loves you too well (suppose)
For such leanings ! These poets, their love's mere ink—
Like a flower, their flame flashes—a rosebud, blows—
Then it all drops down at a wink !

" Ah, the instance ! A curl of a blossomless vine
The vinedresser passing it sickens to see
And mutters ' Much hope (under God) of His wine
From the branch and the bark of a barren tree
Spring reared not, and winter lets pine—

" ' His wine that should glorify (saith He) the cup
That a man beholding (not tasting) might say
" Pour out life at a draught, drain it dry, drink it up, Give this one thing, and huddle the rest away—Save the bitch, and be hanged to the pup ! "

VI

" ' Let it rot then ! ' which saying, he leaves it—we'll guess,
Feels (if the sap move at all) thus much—Yearns, and would blossom, would quicken no less,
Bud at an eye's glance, flower at a touch—
' Die, perhaps, would you not, for her ? '—' Yes ! '

" Note the hitch there ! That's piteous—so much being done,
(He'll think some day, your lover) so little to do !
Such infinite days to wear out, once begun !
Since the hand its glove holds, and the footsole its shoe—
Overhead too there's always the sun ! "

VIII

Oh, no doubt they had said so, your friends—been profuse
Of good counsel, wise hints—"where the trap lurks, walk warily—
Squeeze the fruit to the core ere you count on the juice !
For the graft may fail, shift, wax, change colour, wane, vary, lie—"
You were cautious, God knows—to what use ?

IX

This crab's wiser, it strikes me—no twist but implies
life—
Not a curl but's so fit you could find none fitter—
For the brute from its brutehood looks up thus and eyes life—
Stoop your soul down and listen, you'll hear it twitter,
Laughing lightly,—my crab's life's the wise life !

Those who've read S. T. Coleridge remember how Sammy sighs
To his pensive (I think he says) Sara—"most soothing-sweet"— Crab's bulk's less (look !) than man's—yet (quoth Cancer) I am my size,
And my bulk's girth contents me ! Man's maw (see ?) craves two things—wheat And flesh likewise—man's gluttonous—damn his eyes !

XI

Crab's content with crab's provender : crab's love, if soothing,
Is no sweeter than pincers are soft—and a new sickle
Cuts no sharper than crab's claws nip, keen as boar's toothings !
Yet crab's love's no less fervent than bard's, if less musical—
'Tis a new thing I'd lilt—but a true thing.

XII

Old songs tell us, of all drinks for Englishmen fighting, ale's
Out and out best : salt water contents crab, it seems to me,
Though pugnacious as sailors, and skilled to steer right in gales
That craze pilots, if slow to sing—" Sleep'st thou ?
thou dream'st o' me !"
In such love-strains as mine—or a nightingale's.

Ah, now, look you—tail foremost, the beast sets seaward—
The sea draws it, sand sucks it—he's wise, my crab !
From the napkin out jumps his one talent—good steward,
Just judge ! So a man shirks the smile or the stab,
And sets his sail duly to leeward !

XIV

Trust me? Hardly! I bid you not lean (remark)
On my spirit, your spirit—my flesh, your flesh—Hold my hand, and tread safe through the horrible dark—Quench my soul as with sprinklings of snow, then refresh
With some blast of new bellows the spark!

By no means! This were easy (men tell me) to say—“Give her all, throw your chance up, fall back on her heart!”
(Say my friends) “she must change! after night follows day—”
No such fool! I am safe set in hell, for my part—
So let heaven do the worst now he may!

XVI

What they bid me? Well, this, nothing more—“Tell her this—
‘You are mine, I yours, though the whole world fail—
Though things are not, I know there is one thing which is—
Though the oars break, there’s hope for us yet—hoist the sail!
Oh, your heart! what’s the heart? but your kiss!’

XVII

"Then she breaks, she drops down, she lies flat at your feet—

Take her then!" Well, I knew it—what fools are men!

Take the bee by her horns, will your honey prove sweet?

Sweet is grass—will you pasture your cows in a fen?

Oh, if contraries could but once meet!

XVIII

Love you call it? Some twitch in the moon's face (observe),

Wet blink of her eyelid, tear dropt about dewfall, Cheek flushed or obscured—does it make the sky swerve?

Fetch the test, work the question to rags, bring to proof all—

Find what souls want and bodies deserve!

XIX

Ah, we know you! Your soul works to infinite ends,

Frets, uses life up for death's sake, takes pains, Flings down love's self—"but you, bear me witness, my friends!

Have I lost spring? count up (see) the winter's fresh gains!

Is the shrub spoilt? the pine's hair impends!"

XX

What, you'd say—" Mark how God works ! Years crowd, time wears thin, Earth keeps good yet, the sun goes on, stars hold their own,
And you'll change, climb past sight of the world, shift your skin,
Never heeding how life moans—' more flesh now, less bone !'
For that cheek's worn waste outline (death's grin)

XXI

" Pleads with time still—' what good if I lose this?
but see—' "
(There's the crab gone !) " " I said, " Though earth sinks, " " " (you perceive ?
Ah, true, back there !) your soul now—" " " yet some vein might be (Could one find it alive in the heart's core's pulse, cleave
Through the life-springs where "you" melts in "me")—

" " " Some true vein of the absolute soul, which survives
All that flesh runs to waste through "—and lo, this fails !
Here's death close on us ! One life ? a million of lives !
Why choose one sail to watch of these infinite sails ?
Time's a tennis-play ? thank you, no, fives !

XXIII

“ ‘Stop life’s ball then!’ Such folly! melt earth down for that,
Till the pure ore eludes you and leaves you raw scoriæ?
Pish, the vein’s wrong!” But you, friends—come, what were you at
When God spat you out suddenly? what was the story He Cut short thus, the growth He laid flat? .

XXIV

Wait! the crab’s twice alive, mark! Oh, worthy, your soul,
Of strange ends, great results, novel labours!
Take note,
I reject this for one! (ay, now, straight to the hole!
Safe in sand there—your skirts smooth out all as they float!)

I, shirk drinking through flaws in the bowl?

Or suppose now that rock’s cleft—grim, scored to the quick,
As a man’s face kept fighting all life through gets scored,
Mossed and marked with grey purulent leprosies, sick, Flat and foul as man’s life here (be swift with your sword—
Cut the soul out, stuck fast where thorns prick!)

—Say it let the rock's heart out, its meaning, the thing

All was made for, devised, ruled out gradually, planned—

Ah, that sea-shell, perhaps—since it lies, such a ring

Of pure colour, a cup full of sunbeams, to stand (Say, in Lent) at the priest's hand—(no king !)

Blame the cleft then? Praise rather! So—just a chance gone!

Had you said—“Save the seed and secure souls in flower”—

Ah, how time laughs, years palpitate, pro grapples con,

Till one day you shrug shoulders—“Well, gone, the good hour!”

Till one night—“Is God off now? or on?”

UP THE SPOUT

I

Hi ! Just you drop that ! Stop, I say !

Shirk work, think slink off, twist friend's wrist ?
Where that spined sand's lined band's the bay—

Lined blind with true sea's blue, as due—Promising—not to pay ?

II

For the sea's debt leaves wet the sand ;

Burst worst fate's weights in one burst gun ?
A man's own yacht, blown—What ? off land ?

Tack back, or veer round here, then—queer !
Reef points, though—understand ?

I'm blest if I do. Sigh ? be blowed !

Love's doves make break life's ropes, eh ? Tropes !
Faith's brig, baulked, sides caulked, rides at road ;

Hope's gropes befogged, storm-dogged and bogged—
Clogged, water-logged, her load !

Stowed, by Jove, right and tight, away !
No show now how best plough sea's brow,
Wrinkling—breeze quick, tease thick, ere day,
Clear sheer wave's sheen of green, I mean,
With twinkling wrinkles—eh ?

Sea sprinkles winkles, tinkles light
Shells' bells—boy's joys that hap to snap !
It's just sea's fun, breeze done, to spite God's rods that scourge her surge, I'd urge—Not proper, is it—quite ?

See, fore and aft, life's craft undone !
Crank plank, split spritsail—mark, sea's lark !
That grey cold sea's old sprees, begun
When men lay dark i' the ark, no spark,
All water—just God's fun !

Not bright, at best, his jest to these Seemed—screamed, shrieked, wreaked on kin for sin !
When for mirth's yell earth's knell seemed please
Some dumb new grim great whim in him
Made Jews take chalk for cheese.

VIII

Could God's rods bruise God's Jews? Their jowls Bobbed, sobbed, gaped, aped the plaice in face :
None heard, 'tis odds, his—God's—folk's howls.
Now, how must I apply, to try
This hookiest-beaked of owls ?

IX

Well, I suppose God knows--I don't.
Time's crimes mark dark men's types, in stripes
Broad as fen's lands men's hands were wont Leave grieve unploughed, though proud and loud
With birds' words—No ! he won't !

One never should think good impossible.
Eh ? say I'd hide this Jew's oil's cruse—
His shop might hold bright gold, engrossible
By spy—spring's air takes there no care
To wave the heath-flower's glossy bell !

XI

But gold bells chime in time there, coined—Gold ! Old Sphinx winks there—"Read my screed !"
Doctrine Jews learn, use, burn for, joined (Through new craft's stealth) with health and wealth—
At once all three purloined !

XII

I rose with dawn, to pawn, no doubt,
 (Miss this chance, glance untried aside?)
John's shirt, my—no! Ay, so—the lout!
 Let yet the door gape, store on floor
And not a soul about?

XIII

Such men lay traps, perhaps—and I'm Weak—meek—mild—child of woe, you know!
But theft, I doubt, my lout calls crime.
 Shrink? Think! Love's dawn in pawn—you spawn
Of Jewry! Just in time'

OFF THE PIER

I

ONE last glance at these sands and stones !

Time goes past men, and lives to his liking,
Steals, and ruins, and sometimes atones.

Why should he be king, though, and why not I king ?

There now, that wind, like a swarm of sick drones !

II

Is it heaven or mere earth (come !) that moves so and moans ?

Oh, I knew, when you loved me, my soul was in flowerage—

Now the frost comes ; from prime, though, I watched through to nones,

Read love's litanies over—his age was not our age !

No more flutes in this world for me now, dear !
trombones.

III

All that youth once denied and made mouths at, age owns.

Facts put fangs out and bite us ; life stings and grows viperous ;

And time's fugues are a hubbub of meaningless tones.

Once we followed the piper ; now why not the piper us ?

Love, grown grey, plays mere solos ; we want anti-phones.

And we sharpen our wits up with passions for hones, Melt down loadstars for magnets, use women for whetstones,

Learn to bear with dead calms by remembering cyclones,

Snap strings short with sharp thumbnails, till silence begets tones,

Burn our souls out, shift spirits, turn skins and change zones ;

Then the heart, when all's done with, wakes, whimpers, intones

Some lost fragment of tune it thought sweet ere it grew sick ;

(Is it life that disclaims this, or death that disowns ?)

Mere dead metal, scrawled bars—ah, one touch, you make music !

Love's worth saving, youth doubts, but experience depones.

VI

In the darkness (right Dickens) of Tom-All-Alone's Or the Morgue out in Paris, where tragedy centuples
 Life's effects by Death's algebra, Shakespeare (Malone's) Might have said sleep was murdered—new scholiasts have sent you pills To purge text of him ! Bread ? give me—Scotticè — scones !

Think, what use, when youth's saddle galls bay's back or roan's,
 To seek chords on love's keys to strike, other than his chords ?
 There's an error joy winks at and grief half condones, Or life's counterpoint grates the C major of discords—
 'Tis man's choice 'twixt sluts rose-crowned and queens age dethrones.

VIII

I for instance might groan as a bag-pipe groans, Give the flesh of my heart for sharp sorrows to flagellate,
 Grief might grind my cheeks down, age make sticks of my bones, (Though a queen drowned in tears must be worth more than Madge elate)¹
 Rose might turn burdock, and pine-apples cones ;

¹ First edition :—

And my face bear his brand—mine, that once bore Love's badge elate !

IX

My skin might change to a pitiful crone's,

My lips to a lizard's, my hair to weed,

My features, in fact, to a series of loans ;

Thus much is conceded ; now, you, concede

You would hardly salute me by choice, John Jones ?

THE POET AND THE WOODLOUSE

SAID a poet to a woodlouse—"Thou art certainly my brother ;

I discern in thee the markings of the fingers of the Whole ;

And I recognize, in spite of all the terrene smut and smother,

In the colours shaded off thee, the suggestions of a soul.

"Yea," the poet said, "I smell thee by some passive divination,

I am satisfied with insight of the measure of thine house ;

What had happened I conjecture, in a blank and rhythmic passion,

Had the æons thought of making thee a man, and me a louse.

"The broad lives of upper planets, their absorption and digestion,

Food and famine, health and sickness, I can scrutinize and test ;

Through a shiver of the senses comes a resonance of question,

And by proof of balanced answer I decide that I am best.

“ Man, the fleshly marvel, alway feels a certain kind of awe stick
To the skirts of contemplation, cramped with nympholeptic weight :
Feels his faint sense charred and branded by the touch of solar caustic,
On the forehead of his spirit feels the footprint of a Fate.”

“ Notwithstanding which, O poet,” spake the woodlouse, very blandly, “ I am likewise the created,—I the equipoise of
thee ;
I the particle, the atom, I behold on either hand lie
The inane of measured ages that were embryos of me.

“ I am fed with intimations, I am clothed with consequences,
And the air I breathe is coloured with apocalyptic blush :
Ripest-budded odours blossom out of dim chaotic stenches,
And the Soul plants spirit-lilies in sick leagues of human slush.

“ I am thrilled half cosmically through by cryptophantic surgings,
Till the rhythmic hills roar silent through a spongy kind of blee :
And earth's soul yawns disembowelled of her pancreatic organs,
Like a madrepora if mesmerized, in rapt catalepsy.

812 THE POET AND THE WOODLOUSE

“ And I sacrifice, a Levite—and I palpitate, a poet ;—
Can I close dead ears against the rush and resonance of things ?

Symbols in me breathe and flicker up the heights of the heroic ;

Earth's worst spawn, you said, and cursed me ?
look ! approve me ! I have wings.

“ Ah, men's poets ! men's conventions crust you round and swathe you mist-like,
And the world's wheels grind your spirits down the dust ye overtrod :

We stand sinlessly stark-naked in effulgence of the Christlight,

And our polecat chokes not cherubs ; and our skunk smells sweet to God.

“ For He grasps the pale Created by some thousand vital handles,

Till a Godshine, bluely winnowed through the sieve of thunderstorms,

Shimmers up the non-existent round the churning feet of angels ;

And the atoms of that glory may be seraphs, being worms.

“ Friends, your nature underlies us and your pulses overlay us ;

Ye, with social sores unbandaged, can ye sing right and steer wrong ?

For the transient cosmic, rooted in imperishable chaos, Must be kneaded into drastics as material for a song.

“ Eyes once purged from homebred vapours through humanitarian passion

See that monochrome a despot through a democratic prism ;

Hands that rip the soul up, reeking from divine evisceration,

Not with priestlike oil anoint him, but a stronger-smelling chrism.

“ Pass, O poet, retransfigured ! God, the psychometric rhapsode,

Fills with fiery rhythms the silence, stings the dark with stars that blink ;

All eternities hang round him like an old man's clothes collapsèd,

While he makes his mundane music—AND HE WILL NOT STOP, I THINK ’

THE KID

1. THE MONTHLY NURSE

THE sickly airs had died of damp ;
 Through huddling leaves the holy chime
 Flagged ; I, expecting Mrs. Gamp, Thought — “ Will the woman come in time ? ”
 Upstairs I knew the matron bed
 Held her whose name confirms all joy
 To me ; and tremblingly I said, “ Ah ! will it be a girl or boy ? ”
 And, soothed, my fluttering doubts began
 To sift the pleasantness of things ;
 Developing the unshapen man,
 An eagle baffled of his wings ;
 Considering, next, how fair the state
 And large the license that sublimes
 A nineteenth-century female fate—
 Sweet cause that thralls my liberal rhymes !

And Chastities and colder Shames, Decorums mute and marvellous,
 And fair Behaviour that reclaims
 All fancies grown erroneous,
 Moved round me musing, till my choice
 Faltered. A female in a wig Stood by me, and a drouthy voice Announced her Mrs. Betsy Prig.

2. THE CAUDLE

Sweet Love that sways the reeling years,
 The crown and chief of certitudes,
 For whose calm eyes and modest ears
 Time writes the rule and text of prudes—
 That, surpliced, stoops a nuptial head,
 Nor chooses to live blindly free,
 But, with all pulses quieted,
 Plays tunes of domesticity—
 That Love I sing of and have sung
 And mean to sing till Death yawn sheer,
 He rules the music of my tongue,
 Stills it or quickens, there or here.
 I say but this : as we went up
 I heard the Monthly give a sniff
 And “ if the big dog makes the pup—”
 She murmured—then repeated “ if ! ”
 The caudle on a slab was placed ;
 She snuffed it, snorting loud and long ;
 I fled—I would not stop to taste—
 And dreamed all night of things gone wrong.

3. THE SENTENCES

I

Abortive Love is half a sin ;
But Love's abortions dearer far
Than wheels without an axle-pin
Or life without a married star.

II

My rules are hard to understand
For him whom sensual rules depress ;
A bandbox in a midwife's hand
May hold a costlier bridal dress.

" I like her not ; in fact I loathe ; Bugs hath she brought from London beds."
Friend ! wouldst thou rather bear their growth
Or have a baby with two heads ?

IDYL CCCLXVI

THE KID

My spirit, in the doorway's pause,
 Fluttered with fancies in my breast ;
 Obsequious to all decent laws,
 I felt exceedingly distressed.
 I knew it rude to enter there
 With Mrs. V. in such a state ;
 And, 'neath a magisterial air,
 Felt actually indelicate.
 I knew the nurse began to grin ;
 I turned to greet my Love. Said she—
 " Confound your modesty, come in !
 —What shall we call the darling, V. ? " (There are so many charming names !
 Girls'—Peg, Moll, Doll, Fan, Kate, Blanche, Bab :
 Boys'—Mahershahal-hashbaz, James, Luke, Nick, Dick, Mark, Aminadab.)

Lo, as the acorn to the oak,
 As well-heads to the river's height,
 As to the chicken the moist yolk,
 As to high noon the day's first white—
 Such is the baby to the man.
 There, straddling one red arm and leg,
 • Lay my last work, in length a span,
 Half hatched, and conscious of the egg.

A creditable child, I hoped ;
 And half a score of joys to be Through sunny lengths of prospect sloped
 Smooth to the bland futurity.
 O, fate surpassing other dooms,
 O, hope above all wrecks of time !
 O, light that fills all vanquished glooms,
 O, silent song o'ermastering rhyme !
 I covered either little foot,
 I drew the strings about its waist ;
 Pink as the unshell'd inner fruit,
 But barely decent, hardly chaste,
 Its nudity had startled me ;
 But when the petticoats were on,
 " I know," I said ; " its name shall be Paul Cyril Athanasius John."
 " Why," said my wife, " the child's a girl."
 My brain swooned, sick with failing sense ;
 With all perception in a whirl,
 How could I tell the difference ?
 " Nay," smiled the nurse, " the child's a boy."
 And all my soul was soothed to hear
 That so it was : then startled Joy Mocked Sorrow with a doubtful tear.
 And I was glad as one who sees
 For sensual optics things unmeet :
 As purity makes passion freeze,
 So faith warns science off her beat.
 Blessed are they that have not seen,
 And yet, not seeing, have believed :
 To walk by faith, as preached the Dean,
 And not by sight, have I achieved.
 Let love, that does not look, believe ; ♣
 Let knowledge, that believes not, look :

Truth pins her trust on falsehood's sleeve,

While reason blunders by the book.

Then Mrs. Prig addressed me thus ;

“ Sir, if you'll be advised by me,

You'll leave the blessed babe to us ;

It's my belief he wants his tea.”

LAST WORDS OF A SEVENTH- RATE POET

BILL, I feel far from quite right—if not further :
 already the pill
 Seems, if I may say so, to bubble inside me. A poet's heart, Bill,
 Is a sort of a thing that is made of the tenderest young bloom on a fruit.
 You may pass me the mixture at once, if you please—and I'll thank you to boot For that poem—and then for the julep. This really is damnable stuff !
 (Not the poem, of course.) Do you snivel, old friend ? well, it's nasty enough, But I think I can stand it—I think so—ay, Bill, and I could were it worse.
 But I'll tell you a thing that I can't and I won't.
 'Tis the old, old curse—
 The gall of the gold-fruited Eden, the lure of the angels that fell.
 'Tis the core of the fruit snake-spotted in the hush of the shadows of hell,
 Where a lost man sits with his head drawn down,
 and a weight on his eyes.
 You know what I mean, Bill—the tender and delicate mother of lies,

LAST WORDS OF A SEVENTH-RATE POET 821

Woman, the devil's first cousin—no doubt by the female side.

The breath of her mouth still moves in my hair, and I know that she lied,

And I feel her, Bill, sir, inside me—she operates there like a drug.

Were it better to live like a beetle, to wear the cast clothes of a slug,

Be the louse in the locks of the hangman, the mote in the eye of the bat,

Than to live and believe in a woman, who must one day grow aged and fat?

You must see it's preposterous, Bill, sir. And yet, how the thought of it clings!

I have lived out my time—I have priggled lots of verse—I have kissed (ah, that stings!)

Lips that swore I had cribbed every line that I wrote on them—cribbed—honour bright!

Then I loathed her; but now I forgive her; perhaps after all she was right.

Yet I swear it was shameful—unwomanly, Bill, sir—to say that I fibbed.

Why, the poems were mine, for I bought them in print. Cribbed? of course they were cribbed.

Yet I wouldn't say, cribbed from the French—Lady Bathsheba thought it was vulgar—

But picked up on the banks of the Don, from the lips of a highly intelligent Bulgar.

I'm aware, Bill, that's out of all metre—I can't help it—I'm none of your sort

Who set metres, by Jove, above morals—not exactly. They don't go to Court—

As I mentioned one night to that cowslip-faced pet, Lady Rahab Redrabbit

(Whom the Marquis calls Drabby for short). Well,
I say, if you want a thing, grab it—That's what I did, at least, when I took that danseuse to a swell cabaret, Where expense was no consideration. A poet, you see, now and then must be gay.
(I declined to give more, I remember, than fifty centeems to the waiter ;
For I asked him if that was enough ; and the jackanapes answered—Peut-être.
Ah, it isn't in you to draw up a menu such as ours was, though humble :
When I told Lady Shoreditch, she thought it a regular grand tout ensemble.)
She danced the heart out of my body—I can see in the glare of the lights,
I can see her again as I saw her that evening, in spangles and tights.
When I spoke to her first, her eye flashed so,
I heard—as I fancied—the spark whiz
From her eyelid—I said so next day to that jealous old fool of a Marquis.
She reminded me, Bill, of a lovely volcano, whose entrails are lava—
Or (you know my penchant for original types) of the upas in Java.
In the curve of her sensitive nose was a singular species of dimple,
Where the flush was the mark of an angel's creased kiss—if it wasn't a pimple.
Now I'm none of your bashful John Bulls who don't know a pilau from a puggaree Nor a chili, by George, from a chopstick. So, sir,
I marched into her snuggerly,

And proposed a light supper by way of a finish.
 I treated her, Bill,
 To six entrées of ortolans, sprats, maraschino, and oysters. It made her quite ill.
 Of which moment of sickness I took some advantage.
 I held her like this,
 And availed myself, sir, of her sneezing, to shut up her lips with a kiss.
 The waiters, I saw, were quite struck ; and I felt,
 I may say, entre nous,
 Like Don Juan, Lauzun, Almaviva, Lord Byron, and old Richelieu.
 (You'll observe, Bill, that rhyme's quite Parisian ; a Londoner, sir, would have cited old Q.
 People tell me the French in my verses recalls that of Jeames or John Thomas : I Must maintain it's as good as the average accent of British diplomacy.)
 These are moments that thrill the whole spirit with spasms that excite and exalt.
 I stood more than the peer of the great Casanova—you know—de Seingalt.
 She was worth, sir, I say it without hesitation, two brace of her sisters.
 Ah, why should all honey turn rhubarb—all cherries grow onions—all kisses leave blisters ?
 Oh, and why should I ask myself questions ? I've heard such before—once or twice.
 Ah, I can't understand it—but, O, I imagine it strikes me as nice.
 There's a deity shapes us our ends, sir, rough-hew them, my boy, how we will—
 As I stated myself in a poem I published last year, you know, Bill—

Where I mentioned that that was the question—to be, or, by Jove, not to be.

Ah, it's something—you'll think so hereafter—to wait on a poet like me.

Had I written no more than those verses on that Countess I used to call Pussy—

Yes, Minette or Manon—and—you'll hardly believe it—she said they were all out of Musset.

Now I don't say they weren't—but what then? and I don't say they were—I'll bet pounds against pennies on

The subject—I wish I may never die Laureate, if some of them weren't out of Tennyson.

And I think—I don't like to be certain, with Death, so to speak, by me, frowning—

But I think there were some—say a dozen, perhaps, or a score—out of Browning.

And—though God knows his poems are not (as all mine are, sir) perfumed with orris—

Or at least with patchouli—I wouldn't be sworn there were none out of Morris.

And it's possible—only the legend of Circe is quite an old yarn—old

As the hills—that I might have been thinking, perhaps, of a poem by Arnold

When I sang how Ulysses—Odysseus I mean—would have yearned to dishevel her

Bright hair with his kisses, and painted myself at her feet—a Strayed Reveller.

As for poets who go on a contrary tack to what I go and you go—

You remember my lyrics translated—like “sweet bully Bottom”—from Hugo?

Though I will say it's curious that simply on just that account there should be

Men so bold as to say that not one of my poems was written by me.

It would stir the political bile or the physical spleen of a drab or a Tory

To hear critics disputing my claim to Empedocles, Maud, and the Laboratory.

Yes, it's singular—nay, I can't think of a parallel (ain't it a high lark ?

As that Countess would say)—there are few men believe it was I wrote the Ode to a Skylark.

And it often has given myself and Lord Albert no end of diversion

To hear fellows maintain to my face it was Wordsworth who wrote the Excursion,

When they know that whole reams of the verses recur in my authorized works

Here and there, up and down ! Why, such readers are infidels—heretics—Turks.

And the pitiful critics who think in their paltry presumption to pay me a

Pretty compliment, pairing me off, sir, with Keats—as if he could write Lamia !

While I never produced a more characteristic and exquisite book,

One that gave me more real satisfaction, than did, on the whole, Lalla Rookh.

Was it there that I called on all debtors, being pestered myself by a creditor, (he Isn't paid yet) to rise, by the proud appellation of bondsmen—hereditary ?

Yes—I think so. And yet, on my word, I can't think why I think it was so.

It more probably was in the poem I made a few seasons ago
On that Duchess—her name now? ah, thus one outlives a whole cycle of joys!
Fair supplants black and brown succeeds golden.
The poem made rather a noise.
And indeed I have seen worse verses; but as for the woman, my friend—
Though his neck had been never so stiff, she'd have made a philosopher bend.
As the broken heart of a sunset that bleeds pure purple and gold
In the shudder and swoon of the sickness of colour, the agonies old
That engirdle the brows of the day when he sinks with a spasm into rest
And the splash of his kingly blood is dashed on the skirts of the west, Even such was my own, when I felt how much sharper than any snake's tooth Was the passion that made me mistake Lady Eve for her niece Lady Ruth.
The whole world, colourless, lapsed. Earth fled from my feet like a dream,
And the whirl of the walls of Space was about me,
and moved as a stream Flowing and ebbing and flowing all night to a weary tune
("Such as that of my verses"? Get out!) in the face of a sick-souled moon.
The keen stars kindled and faded and fled, and the wind in my ears
Was the wail of a poet for failure—you needn't come snivelling tears

And spoiling the mixture, confound you, with dropping your tears into that !
 I know I'm pathetic—I must be—and you soft-hearted and fat,
 And I'm grateful of course for your kindness—there, don't come hugging me, now—
 But because a fellow's pathetic, you needn't low like a cow.

I should like—on my soul, I should like—to remember—but somehow I can't—If the lady whose love has reduced me to this was the niece or the aunt.
 But whichever it was, I feel sure, when I published my lays of last year (You remember their title—The Tramp—only seven-and-sixpence—not dear),
 I sent her a copy (perhaps her tears fell on the title-page—yes—
 I should like to imagine she wept)—and the Bride of Bulgaria (MS.)
 I forwarded with it. The lyrics, no doubt, she found bitter—and sweet ;
 But the Bride she rejected, you know, with expressions
 I will not repeat.
 Well—she did no more than all publishers did.
 Though my prospects were marred,
 I can pity and pardon them. Blindness, mere blindness ! And yet it was hard.
 For a poet, Bill, is a blossom—a bird—a billow—a breeze—
 A kind of creature that moves among men as a wind among trees.

And a bard who is also the pet of patricians and dowagers doubly can Express his contempt for canaille in his fables where beasts are republican.
Yet with all my disdainful forgiveness for men so deficient in ton
I cannot but feel it was cruel—I cannot but think it was wrong.
I with the heat of my heart still burning against all bars
As the fire of the dawn, so to speak, in the blanched blank brows of the stars—
I with my tremulous lips made pale by musical
breath—
I with the shade in my eyes that was left by the kisses of Death—(For Death came near me in youth, and touched my face with his face,
And put in my lips the songs that belong to a desolate place—
Desolate truly, my heart and my lips, till her kiss filled them up !)
I with my soul like wine poured out with my flesh for the cup—
It was hard for me—it was hard—Bill, Bill, you great owl, was it not ?
For the day creeps in like a Fate : and I think my grand passion is rot :
And I dreamily seem to perceive, by the light of a life's dream done,
The lotion at six, and the mixture at ten, and the draught before one.

Yes—I feel rather better. Man's life is a mull, at the best ;
And the patent perturbator pills are like bullets of lead in my chest.
When a man's whole spirit is like the lost Pleiad, a blown-out star,
Is there comfort in Holloway, Bill ? is there hope of salvation in Parr ?
True, most things work to their end—and an end that the shroud overlaps.
Under lace, under silk, under gold, sir, the skirt of a winding-sheet flaps—
Which explains, if you think of it, Bill, why I can't, though my soul thereon broodeth, Quite make out if I loved Lady Tamar as much as I loved Lady Judith.
Yet her dress was of violet velvet, her hair was hyacinth-hued,
And her ankles—no matter. A face where the music of every mood
Was touched by the tremulous fingers of passionate feeling, and made Strange melodies, scornful, but sweeter than strings whereon sorrow has played To enrapture the hearing of mirth when his garland of blossom and green Turns to lead on the anguished forehead—"you don't understand what I mean" ?
Well, of course I knew you were stupid—you always were stupid at school—
Now don't say you weren't—but I'm hanged if I thought you were quite such a fool !
You don't see the point of all this ? I was talking of sickness and death—

In that poem I made years ago, I said this—" Love, the flower-time whose breath Smells sweet through a summer of kisses and perfumes an autumn of tears
Is sadder at root than a winter—its hopes heavy-hearted like fears.
Though I love your Grace more than I love little Letty, the maid of the mill, Yet the heat of your lips when I kiss them " (you see we were intimate, Bill)
" And the beat of the delicate blood in your eyelids of azure and white Leave the taste of the grave in my mouth and the shadow of death on my sight.
Fill the cup—twine the chaplet—come into the garden
—get out of the house—
Drink to me with your eyes—there's a banquet behind, where worms only carouse !
As I said to sweet Katie, who lived by the brook on the land Philip farmed—Worms shall graze where my kisses found pasture ! "
The Duchess, I may say, was charmed.
It was read to the Duke, and he cried like a child.
If you'll give me a pill, I'll go on till past midnight. That poem was said to be—Somebody's, Bill.
But you see you can always be sure of my hand as the mother that bore me
By the fact that I never write verse which has never been written before me.
Other poets—I blush for them, Bill—may adore and repudiate in turn a Libitina, perhaps, or Pandemos ; my Venus, you know, is Laverna.

Nay, that epic of mine which begins from foundations the Bible is built on—

“Of man’s first disobedience”—I’ve heard it attributed, dammy, to Milton.

Well, it’s lucky for them that it’s not worth my while,
as I may say, to break spears

With the hirelings, forsooth, of the press who assert that Othello was Shakespeare’s.

When he that can run, sir, may read—if he borrows the book, or goes on tick—

In my poems the bit that describes how the Hellespont joins the Propontic.

There are men, I believe, who will tell you that Gray wrote the whole of The Bard—

Or that I didn’t write half the Elegy, Bill, in a Country Churchyard.

When you know that my poem, ‘The Poet, begins—“Ruin seize thee !” and ends

With recapitulations of horrors the poet invokes on his friends.

And I’ll swear, if you look at the dirge on my relatives under the turf, you

Will perceive it winds up with some lines on myself—and begins with the curfew.

Now you’ll grant it’s more probable, Bill—as a man of the world, if you please—

That all these should have prigged from myself than that I should have prigged from all these.

I could cry when I think of it, friend, if such tears would comport with my dignity,

That the author of Christabel ever should smart from such vulgar malignity.

(You remember perhaps that was one of the first little things that I carolled

After finishing Marmion, the Princess, the Song of the Shirt, and Childe Harold.)

Oh, doubtless it always has been so—Ah, doubtless it always will be—

There are men who would say that myself is a different person from me.

Better the porridge of patience a poor man snuffs in his plate

Than the water of poisonous laurels distilled by the fingers of hate.

'Tis a dark-purple sort of a moonlighted kind of a midnight, I know ;

You remember those verses I wrote on Irene, from Edgar A. Poe?

It was Lady Aholibah Levison, daughter of old Lord St. Giles,

Who inspired those delectable strains, and rewarded her bard with her smiles.

There are tasters who've sipped of Castalia, who don't look on my brew as the brew :

There are fools who can't think why the names of my heroines of title should always be Hebrew.

'Twas my comrade, Sir Alister Knox, said, "Noo, dinna ye fash wi' Apollo, mon ;

Gang to Jewry for wives and for concubines, lad—look at David and Solomon.

And it gives an erotico-scriptural twang," said that high-born young man, "—tickles

The lug" (he meant ear) "of the reader—to throw in a touch of the Canticles."

So I versified half of The Preacher—it took me a week, working slowly. Bah !

You don't half know the sex, Bill— they like it. And what if her name was Aholibah?
 I recited her charms, in conjunction with those of a girl at the café,
 In a poem I published in collaboration with Templeton (Taffy).
 There are prudes in a world full of envy—and some of them thought it too strong To compare an earl's daughter by name with a girl at a French restaurant.
 I regarded her, though, with the chivalrous eyes of a knight-errant on quest;
 I may say I don't know that I ever felt prouder, old friend, of a conquest.
 And when I've been made happy, I never have cared a brass farthing who knew it; I Thank my stars I'm as free from mock-modesty, friend, as from vulgar fatuity.
 I can't say if my spirit retains—for the subject appears to me misty—any tie
 To such associations as Poesy weaves round the records of Christianity.
 There are bards—I may be one myself—who delight in their skill to unlock a lip's Rosy secrets by kisses and whispers of texts from the charming Apocalypse.
 It was thus that I won, by such biblical pills of poetical manna,
 From two elders—Sir Seth and Lord Isaac—the liking of Lady Susanna.
 But I left her—a woman to me is no more than a match, sir, at tennis is—
 When I heard she'd gone off with my valet, and burnt my rhymed version of Genesis.

834 LAST WORDS OF A SEVENTH-RATE POET

You may see by my shortness of speech that my time's almost up : I perceive That my new-fangled brevity strikes you : but don't —though the public will—grieve.
As it's sometimes my whim to be vulgar, it's sometimes my whim to be brief ;
As when once I observed, after Heine, that “ she was a harlot, and I ” (which is true) “ was a thief.” (Though you hardly should cite this particular line, by the way, as an instance of absolute brevity :
I'm aware, man, of that ; so you needn't disgrace yourself, sir, by such grossly mistimed and impertinent levity.)
I don't like to break off, any more than you wish me to stop : but my fate is Not to vent half a million such rhymes without block-heads exclaiming—

JAM SATIS.

Specimen from the speaker's original poems.

Come into the orchard, Anne,
For the dark owl, Night, has fled,
And Phosphor slumbers, as well as he can
With a daffodil sky for a bed :
And the musk of the roses perplexes a man,
And the pimpernel muddles his head.

THAT nose is out of drawing. With a gasp,
 She pants upon the passionate lips that ache
 With the red drain of her own mouth, and make A monochord of colour. Like an asp,
 One lithe lock wriggles in his rutilant grasp.
 Her bosom is an oven of myrrh, to bake Love's white warm shewbread to a browner cake.
 The lock his fingers clench has burst its hasp.
 The legs are absolutely abominable.
 Ah ! what keen overgust of wild-eyed woes
 Flags in that bosom, flushes in that nose ?
 Nay ! Death sets riddles for desire to spell, Responsive. What red hem earth's passion sews,
 But may be ravenously unripped in hell ?

NEPHELIDIA

FROM the depth of the dreamy decline of the dawn through a notable nimbus of nebulous noonshine, Pallid and pink as the palm of the flag-flower that flickers with fear of the flies as they float, Are they looks of our lovers that lustroously lean from a marvel of mystic miraculous moonshine,
 These that we feel in the blood of our blushes that thicken and threaten with throbs through the throat ?
 Thicken and thrill as a theatre thronged at appeal of an actor's appalled agitation, Fainter with fear of the fires of the future than pale with the promise of pride in the past ; Flushed with the famishing fullness of fever that reddens with radiance of rathe recreation, Gaunt as the ghastliest of glimpses that gleam through the gloom of the gloaming when ghosts go aghast ?
 Nay, for the nick of the tick of the time is a tremulous touch on the temples of terror, Strained as the sinews yet strenuous with strife of the dead who is dumb as the dust-heaps of death :
 Surely no soul is it, sweet as the spasm of erotic emotional exquisite error,
 Bathed in the balms of beatified bliss, beatific itself by beatitude's breath.

Surely no spirit or sense of a soul that was soft to the spirit and soul of our senses

Sweetens the stress of suspiring suspicion that sobs in the semblance and sound of a sigh ;

Only this oracle opens Olympian, in mystical moods and triangular tenses—

“ Life is the lust of a lamp for the light that is dark till the dawn of the day when we die.”

Mild is the mirk and monotonous music of memory, melodiously mute as it may be,

While the hope in the heart of a hero is bruised by the breach of men's rapiers, resigned to the rod ; Made meek as a mother whose bosom-beats bound with the bliss-bringing bulk of a balm-breathing baby,

As they grope through the grave-yard of creeds, under skies growing green at a groan for the grimness of God.

Blank is the book of his bounty beholden of old, and its binding is blacker than bluer :

Out of blue into black is the scheme of the skies, and their dewes are the wine of the bloodshed of things ;

Till the darkling desire of delight shall be free as a fawn that is freed from the fangs that pursue her, Till the heart-beats of hell shall be hushed by a hymn from the hunt that has harried the kennel of kings.

AND OTHER POEMS

A MIDSUMMER HOLIDAY

1

THE SEABOARD

THE sea is at ebb, and the sound of her utmost word
Is soft as the least wave's lapse in a still small reach.
From bay into bay, on quest of a goal deferred, From headland ever to headland and breach to breach

Where earth gives ear to the message that all days preach

With changes of gladness and sadness that cheer and chide,

The lone way lures me along by a chance untried
That haply, if hope dissolve not and faith be whole, Not all for nought shall I seek, with a dream for guide.

The goal that is not, and ever again the goal.

The trackless ways are untravelled of sail or bird ,
The hoar wave hardly recedes from the soundless beach.

The silence of instant noon goes nigh to be heard,
The viewless void to be visible : all and each,
A closure of calm no clamour of storm can breach Concludes and confines and absorbs them on either side,

All forces of light and of life and the live world's pride.

Sands hardly ruffled of ripples that hardly roll Seem ever to show as in reach of a swift brief stride
The goal that is not, and ever again the goal.

The waves are a joy to the seamew, the meads to the herd,
And a joy to the heart is a goal that it may not reach.
No sense that for ever the limits of sense engird,
No hearing or sight that is vassal to form or speech,
Learns ever the secret that shadow and silence teach,
Hears ever the notes that or ever they swell subside, Sees ever the light that lights not the loud world's tide,
Clasps ever the cause of the lifelong scheme's control Wherethrough we pursue, till the waters of life be dried,
The goal that is not, and ever again the goal.

Friend, what have we sought or seek we, whate'er
 betide,
Though the seaboard shift its mark from afar
 descried,
But aims whence ever anew shall arise the soul?
Love, thought, song, life, but show for a glimpse and hide
The goal that is not, and ever again the goal.

A HAVEN

EAST and north a waste of waters, south and west Lonelier lands than dreams in sleep would feign to be,

When the soul goes forth on travel, and is prest Round and compassed in with clouds that flash and flee.

Dells without a streamlet, downs without a tree,
Cirques of hollow cliff that crumble, give their guest Little hope, till hard at hand he pause, to see Where the small town smiles, a warm still sea-side nest.

Many a lone long mile, by many a headland's crest,
Down by many a garden dear to bird and bee,
Up by many a sea-down's bare and breezy breast, Winds the sandy strait of road where flowers run
free.

Here along the deep steep lanes by field and lea Knights have carolled, pilgrims chanted, on their quest,

Haply, ere a roof rose toward the bleak strand's lee,
Where the small town smiles, a warm still sea-side
nest.

Are the wild lands cursed perchance of time, or blest,
Sad with fear or glad with comfort of the sea?

Are the ruinous towers of churches fallen on rest Watched of wanderers woful now, glad once as we,
When the night has all men's eyes and hearts in fee,
When the soul bows down dethroned and dispossessed?
Yet must peace keep guard, by day's and night's decree,

Where the small town smiles, a warm still sea-side
nest.

Friend, the lonely land is bright for you and me
All its wild ways through : but this methinks is best,
Here to watch how kindly time and change agree
Where the small town smiles, a warm still sea-side nest.

ON A COUNTRY ROAD

ALONG these low pleached lanes, on such a day,
So soft a day as this, through shade and sun,
With glad grave eyes that scanned the glad wild way,

And heart still hovering o'er a song begun,
And smile that warmed the world with benison,
Our father, lord long since of lordly rhyme,
Long since hath haply ridden, when the lime
Bloomed broad above him, flowering where he came.
Because thy passage once made warm this clime,
Our father Chaucer, here we praise thy name.

Each year that England clothes herself with May,
She takes thy likeness on her. Time hath spun Fresh raiment all in vain and strange array
For earth and man's new spirit, fain to shun Things past for dreams of better to be won,
Through many a century since thy funeral chime Rang, and men deemed it death's most direful crime
To have spared not thee for very love or shame ;
And yet, while mists round last year's memories climb,
Our father Chaucer, here we praise thy name.

Each turn of the old wild road whereon we stray, Meseems, might bring us face to face with one Whom seeing we could not but give thanks, and pray
For England's love our father and her son
To speak with us as once in days long done
With all men, sage and churl and monk and mime,
Who knew not as we know the soul sublime
That sang for song's love more than lust of fame.
Yet, though this be not, yet, in happy time,
Our father Chaucer, here we praise thy name.

Friend, even as bees about the flowering thyme,
Years crowd on years, till hoar decay begrime
Names once beloved ; but, seeing the sun the same,
As birds of autumn fain to praise the prime,
Our father Chaucer, here we praise thy name.

THE MILL GARDEN

STATELY stand the sunflowers, glowing down the garden-side,
Ranged in royal rank arow along the warm grey wall,
Whence their deep disks burn at rich midnight afire with pride,
Even as though their beams indeed were sunbeams, and the tall
Sceptral stems bore stars whose reign endures, not flowers that fall.
Lowlier laughs and basks the kindlier flower of homelier fame,
Held by love the sweeter that it blooms in Shakespeare's name,
Fragrant yet as though his hand had touched and made it thrill,
Like the whole world's heart, with warm new life and gladdening flame.
Fair befall the fair green close that lies below the mill !

Softlier here the flower-soft feet of refluxent seasons glide,
Lightlier breathes the long low note of change's gentler call.

Wind and storm and landslip feed the lone sea's gulf outside,

Half a seamew's first flight hence ; but scarce may these appal

Peace, whose perfect seal is set for signet here on all.
Steep and deep and sterile, under fields no plough can tame,

Dip the cliffs full-fledged with poppies red as love or
shame,

Wide wan daisies bleak and bold, or herbage harsh and chill ;

Here the full clove pinks and wallflowers crown the love they claim.

Fair befall the fair green close that lies below the
mill !

All the place breathes low, but not for fear lest ill
betide,

Soft as roses answering roses, or a dove's recall.

Little heeds it how the seaward banks may stoop and slide,

How the winds and years may hold all outer things in thrall,

How their wrath may work on hoar church tower and boundary wall.

Far and wide the waste and ravin of their rule proclaim

Change alone the changeless lord of things, alone the same :

Here a flower is stronger than the winds that work their will,

Or the years that wing their way through darkness toward their aim.

Fair befall the fair green close that lies below the mill !

Friend, the home that smiled us welcome hither when we came,
When we pass again with summer, surely should reclaim Somewhat given of heart's thanksgiving more than words fulfil—
More than song, were song more sweet than all but love, might frame.
Fair befall the fair green close that lies below the mill !

A SEA-MARK

RAINS have left the sea-banks ill to climb :
Waveward sinks the loosening seaboard's floor :
Half the sliding cliffs are mire and slime.
Earth, a fruit rain-rotted to the core,
Drops dissolving down in flakes, that pour Dense as gouts from eaves grown foul with grime.
One sole rock which years that scathe not score
Stands a sea-mark in the tides of time.

Time were even as even the rainiest clime,
Life were even as even this lapsing shore,
Might not aught outlive their trustless prime :
Vainly fear would wail or hope implore,
Vainly grief revile or love adore
Seasons clothed in sunshine, rain, or rime.
Now for me one comfort held in store
Stands a sea-mark in the tides of time.

Once, by fate's default or chance's crime,
Each apart, our burdens each we bore ;
Heard, in monotones like bells that chime,
Chime the sounds of sorrows, float and soar

Joy's full carols, near or far before ;
Heard not yet across the alternate rhyme
Time's tongue tell what sign set fast of yore
Stands a sea-mark in the tides of time.

Friend, the sign we knew not heretofore
Towers in sight here present and sublime.
Faith in faith established evermore
Stands a sea-mark in the tides of time.

THE CLIFFSIDE PATH

SEAWARD goes the sun, and homeward by the down
We, before the night upon his grave be sealed.
Low behind us lies the bright steep murmuring town,

High before us heaves the steep rough silent field.
Breach by ghistlier breach, the cliffs collapsing yield :

Half the path is broken, half the banks divide ; Flawed and crumbled, riven and rent, they cleave and slide

Toward the ridged and wrinkled waste of girdling sand

Deep beneath, whose furrows tell how far and wide
Wind is lord and change is sovereign of the strand.

Star by star on the unsunned waters twirling down.
Golden spear-points glance against a silver shield.
Over banks and bents, across the headland's crown,
As by pulse of gradual plumes through twilight wheeled,

Soft as sleep, the waking wind awakes the weald.
Moor and copse and fallow, near or far descried, Feel the mild wings move, and gladden where they glide :

Silence, uttering love that all things understand, Bids the quiet fields forget that hard beside Wind is lord and change is sovereign of the strand.

Yet may sight, ere all the hoar soft shade grow brown,
Hardly reckon half the rifts and rents unhealed Where the scarred cliffs downward sundering drive and drown,
Hewn as if with stroke of swords in tempest steeled, Wielded as the night's will and the wind's may wield.
Crowned and zoned in vain with flowers of autumn-
tide,
Soon the blasts shall break them, soon the waters
hide ;
Soon, where late we stood, shall no man ever stand.
Life and love seek harbourage on the landward side :
Wind is lord and change is sovereign of the strand.

Friend, though man be less than these, for all his
pride,
Yet, for all his weakness, shall not hope abide ?
Wind and change can wreck but life and waste but
land :
Truth and trust are sure, though here till all subside
Wind is lord and change is sovereign of the strand.

IN THE WATER

THE sea is awake, and the sound of the song of the joy of her waking is rolled From afar to the star that recedes, from anear to the wastes of the wild wide shore.
Her call is a trumpet compelling us homeward : if dawn in her east be acold,
From the sea shall we crave not her grace to rekindle the life that it kindled before, Her breath to requicken, her bosom to rock us, her kisses to bless as of yore ?
For the wind, with his wings half open, at pause in the sky, neither fettered nor free, Leans waveward and flutters the ripple to laughter :
and fain would the twain of us be Where lightly the wave yearns forward from under the curve of the deep dawn's dome,
And, full of the morning and fired with the pride of the glory thereof and the glee,
Strike out from the shore as the heart in us bids and beseeches, athirst for the foam.

Life holds not an hour that is better to live in : the past is a tale that is told,
The future a sun-flecked shadow, alive and asleep, with a blessing in store.

As we give us again to the waters, the rapture of limbs that the waters enfold
Is less than the rapture of spirit whereby, though the burden it quits were sore, Our souls and the bodies they wield at their will are absorbed in the life they adore—
In the life that endures no burden, and bows not the forehead, and bends not the knee—In the life everlasting of earth and of heaven, in the laws that atone and agree,
In the measureless music of things, in the fervour of forces that rest or that roam, That cross and return and reissue, as I after you and as you after me
Strike out from the shore as the heart in us bids and beseeches, athirst for the foam.

For, albeit he were less than the least of them, haply the heart of a man may be bold To rejoice in the word of the sea as a mother's that saith to the son she bore, Child, was not the life in thee mine, and my spirit the breath in thy lips from of old?
Have I let not thy weakness exult in my strength, and thy foolishness learn of my lore?
Have I helped not or healed not thine anguish, or made not the might of thy gladness more?
And surely his heart should answer, The light of the love of my life is in thee.
She is fairer than earth, and the sun is not fairer, the wind is not blither than she :
From my youth hath she shown me the joy of her bays that I crossed, of her cliffs that I clomb,

Till now that the twain of us here, in desire of the dawn and in trust of the sea,
Strike out from the shore as the heart in us bids and
beseeches, athirst for the foam.

Friend, earth is a harbour of refuge for winter, a covert whereunder to flee
When day is the vassal of night, and the strength of the hosts of her mightier than he ;
But here is the presence adored of me, here my desire is at rest and at home.
There are cliffs to be climbed upon land, there are ways to be trodden and ridden : but we Strike out from the shore as the heart in us bids and beseeches, athirst for the foam.

THE SUNBOWS

SPRAY of song that springs in April, light of love that laughs through May,
Live and die and live for ever : nought of all things far less fair
Keeps a surer life than these that seem to pass like fire away.
In the souls they live which are but all the brighter that they were ;
In the hearts that kindle, thinking what delight of old was there.
Wind that shapes and lifts and shifts them bids perpetual memory play
Over dreams and in and out of deeds and thoughts which seem to wear
Light that leaps and runs and revels through the springing flames of spray.

Dawn is wild upon the waters where we drink of dawn to-day :
Wide, from wave to wave rekindling in rebound through radiant air, Flash the fires unwoven and woven again of wind that works in play,
Working wonders more than heart may note or sight may wellnigh dare,

Wefts of rarer light than colours rain from heaven, though this be rare.

Arch on arch unbuilt in building, reared and ruined ray by ray,

Breaks and brightens, laughs and lessens, even till eyes may hardly bear

Light that leaps and runs and revels through the springing flames of spray.

Year on year sheds light and music rolled and flashed from bay to bay

Round the summer capes of time and winter head lands keen and bare

Whence the soul keeps watch, and bids her vassal memory watch and pray,

If perchance the dawn may quicken, or perchance the midnight spare.

Silence quells not music, darkness takes not sunlight in her snare ;

Shall not joys endure that perish ? Yea, saith dawn, though night say nay :

Life on life goes out, but very life enkindles everywhere

Light that leaps and runs and revels through the springing flames of spray.

Friend, were life no more than this is, well would yet the living fare.

All aflower and all afire and all flung heavenward, who shall say

Such a flash of life were worthless ? This is worth a world of care—

Light that leaps and runs and revels through the springing flames of spray.

ON THE VERGE

HERE begins the sea that ends not till the world's end. Where we stand, Could we know the next high sea-mark set beyond these waves that gleam,
We should know what never man hath known, nor eye of man hath scanned.
Nought beyond these coiling clouds that melt like fume of shrines that steam Breaks or stays the strength of waters till they pass our bounds of dream.
Where the waste Land's End leans westward, all the seas it watches roll
Find their border fixed beyond them, and a worldwide shore's control :
These whereby we stand no shore beyond us limits :
these are free.
Gazing hence, we see the water that grows iron round the Pole,
From the shore that hath no shore beyond it set in all the sea.

Sail on sail along the sea-line fades and flashes ; here on land
Flash and fade the wheeling wings on wings of mews that plunge and scream.

Hour on hour along the line of life and time's evasive strand

Shines and darkens, wanes and waxes, slays and dies : and scarce they seem

More than motes that thronged and trembled in the brief noon's breath and beam.

Some with crying and wailing, some with notes like sound of bells that toll,

Some with sighing and laughing, some with words that blessed and made us whole,

Passed, and left us, and we know not what they were, nor what were we.

Would we know, being mortal? Never breath of answering whisper stole

From the shore that hath no shore beyond it set in
all the sea.

Shadows, would we question darkness? Ere our eyes and brows be fanned

Round with airs of twilight, washed with dew from sleep's eternal stream,

Would we know sleep's guarded secret? Ere the fire consume the brand,

Would it know if yet its ashes may requicken? yet we deem

Surely man may know, or ever night unyoke her starry team,

What the dawn shall be, or if the dawn shall be not :
yea, the scroll

Would we read of sleep's dark scripture, pledge of peace or doom of dole.

Ah, but here man's heart leaps, yearning toward the gloom with venturous glee,

Though his pilot eye behold nor bay nor harbour, rock nor shoal,
From the shore that hath no shore beyond it set in all the sea.

Friend, who knows if death indeed have life or life have death for goal?
Day nor night can tell us, nor may seas declare nor skies unroll
What has been from everlasting, or if aught shall always be.
Silence answering only strikes response reverberate on the soul
From the shore that hath no shore beyond it set in all the sea.

A NEW-YEAR ODE

TO VICTOR HUGO

I

TWICE twelve times have the springs of years refilled
 Their fountains from the river-head of time Since by the green sea's marge, ere autumn chilled Waters and woods with sense of changing clime,
 A great light rose upon my soul, and thrilled
 My spirit of sense with sense of spheres in chime, Sound as of song wherewith a God would build Towers that no force of conquering war might climb.
 Wind shook the glimmering sea
 Even as my soul in me
 Was stirred with breath of mastery more sublime, Uplift and borne along
 More thunderous tides of song,
 Where wave rang back to wave more rapturous rhyme
 And world on world flashed lordlier light
 Than ever lit the wandering ways of ships by night.

II

The spirit of God, whose breath of life is song, Moved, though his word was human, on the face
 Of those deep waters of the soul, too long Dumb, dark, and cold, that waited for the grace Wherewith day kindles heaven : and as some throng
 Of quiring wings fills full some lone chill place
 With sudden rush of life and joy, more strong Than death or sorrow or all night's darkling race,

So was my heart, that heard
All heaven in each deep word,
Filled full with light of thought, and waxed apace Itself more wide and deep,
To take that gift and keep
And cherish while my days fulfilled their space
A record wide as earth and sea,
The Legend writ of Ages past and yet to be.

III

As high the chant of Paradise and Hell
Rose, when the soul of Milton gave it wings ;
As wide the sweep of Shakespeare's empire fell,
When life had bared for him her secret springs ;
But not his various soul might range and dwell
Amid the mysteries of the founts of things ;
Nor Milton's range of rule so far might swell
Across the kingdoms of forgotten kings.
Men, centuries, nations, time,
Life, death, love, trust, and crime,
Rang record through the change of smitten strings
That felt an exile's hand
Sound hope for every land
More loud than storm's cloud-sundering trumpet rings,
And bid strong death for judgment rise,
And life bow down for judgment of his awless eyes

And death, soul-stricken in his strength, resigned
The keeping of the sepulchres to song ;
And life was humbled, and his height of mind
Brought lower than lies a grave-stone fallen along ;

And like a ghost and like a God mankind Rose clad with light and darkness ; weak and
strong,
Clean and unclean, with eyes afire and blind, Wounded and whole, fast bound with cord and thong,
Free ; fair and foul, sin-stained,
And sinless ; crowned and chained ;
Fleet-limbed, and halting all his lifetime long ;
Glad of deep shame, and sad
For shame's sake ; wise, and mad ;
Girt round with love and hate of right and wrong ;
Armed and disarmed for sleep and strife ;
Proud, and sore fear made havoc of his pride of life.

v

Shadows and shapes of fable and storied sooth
Rose glorious as with gleam of gold unpriced ;
Eve, clothed with heavenly nakedness and youth
That matched the morning's ; Cain, self-sacrificed
On crime's first altar : legends wise as truth,
And truth in legends deep embalmed and spiced ;
The stars that saw the starlike eyes of Ruth,
The grave that heard the clarion call of Christ.
And higher than sorrow and mirth
The heavenly song of earth
Sprang, in such notes as might have well sufficed
To still the storms of time
And sin's contentious clime
With peace renewed of life reparadised :
Earth, scarred not yet with temporal scars ; Goddess of gods, our mother, chosen among the stars.

VI

Earth fair as heaven, ere change and time set odds Between them, light and darkness know not when,
And fear, grown strong through panic periods,
Crouched, a crowned worm, in faith's Lernean fen,
And love lay bound, and hope was scourged with rods,
And death cried out from desert and from den,
Seeing all the heaven above him dark with gods
And all the world about him marred of men.
Cities that nought might purge
Save the sea's whelming surge
From all the pent pollutions in their pen
Deep death drank down, and wrought,
With wreck of all things, nought,
That none might live of all their names again,
Nor aught of all whose life is breath
Serve any God whose likeness was not like to death.

Till by the lips and eyes of one live nation
The blind mute world found grace to see and speak,
And light watched rise a more divine creation
At that more godlike utterance of the Greek,
Let there be freedom. Kings whose orient station Made pale the morn, and all her presage bleak, Girt each with strengths of all his generation,
Dim tribes of shamefaced soul and sun-swart cheek,
Twice, urged with one desire,
Son following hard on sire,
With all the wrath of all a world to wreak,

And all the rage of night
Afire against the light
Whose weakness makes her strong-winged empire weak,
Stood up to unsay that saying, and fell
Too far for song, though song were thousand-tongued, to tell.

VIII

From those deep echoes of the loud Ægean
That rolled response whereat false fear was chid
By songs of joy sublime and Sophoclean,
Fresh notes reverberate westward rose to bid
All wearier times take comfort from the pæan
That tells the night what deeds the sunrise did,
Even till the lawns and torrents Pyrenean Ring answer from the records of the Cid.
But never force of fountains
From sunniest hearts of mountains
Wherein the soul of hidden June was hid Poured forth so pure and strong Springs of reiterate song,
Loud as the streams his fame was reared amid,
More sweet than flowers they feed, and fair
With grace of lordlier sunshine and more lambent air.

IX

A star more prosperous than the storm-clothed east's Clothed all the warm south-west with light like spring's,
When hands of strong men spread the wolves their feasts
And from snake-spirited princes plucked the stings ;

Ere earth, grown all one den of hurtling beasts,
Had for her sunshine and her watersprings
The fire of hell that warmed the hearts of priests,
The wells of blood that slaked the lips of kings.
The shadow of night made stone
Stood populous and alone,
Dense with its dead and loathed of living things
That draw not life from death,
And as with hell's own breath
And clangour of immitigable wings
Vexed the fair face of Paris, made Foul in its murderous imminence of sound and shade.

And all these things were parcels of the vision
That moved a cloud before his eyes, or stood
A tower half shattered by the strong collision
Of spirit and spirit, of evil gods with good ;
A ruinous wall rent through with grim division,
Where time had marked his every monstrous mood
Of scorn and strength and pride and self-derision :
The Tower of Things, that felt upon it brood Night, and about it cast
The storm of all the past
Now mute and forceless as a fire subdued :
Yet through the rifted years
And centuries veiled with tears
And ages as with very death imbrued
Freedom, whence hope and faith grow strong,
Smiles, and firm love sustains the indissoluble song.

Above the cloudy coil of days deceased,
Its might of flight, with mists and storms beset,
Burns heavenward, as with heart and hope increased,
For all the change of tempests, all the fret
Of frost or fire, keen fraud or force released, Wherewith the world once wasted knows not yet
If evil or good lit all the darkling east
From the ardent moon of sovereign Mahomet.
Sublime in work and will
The song sublimer still Salutes him, ere the splendour shrink and set ;
Then with imperious eye
And wing that sounds the sky
Soars and sees risen as ghosts in concourse met
The old world's seven elder wonders, firm
As dust and fixed as shadows, weaker than the worm.

High witness borne of knights high-souled and hoary
Before death's face and empire's rings and glows
Even from the dust their life poured forth left gory,
As the eagle's cry rings after from the snows
Supreme rebuke of shame clothed round with glory
And hosts whose track the false crowned eagle shows ;
More loud than sounds through stormiest song and story
The laugh of slayers whose names the sea-wind knows ;
More loud than peals on land
In many a red wet hand
The clash of gold and cymbals as they clòse ;

Loud as the blast that meets
The might of marshalled fleets
And sheds it into shipwreck, like a rose Blown from a child's light grasp in sign That earth's high lords are lords not over breeze and brine.

Above the dust and mire of man's dejection
The wide-winged spirit of song resurgent sees His wingless and long-labouring resurrection
Up the arduous heaven, by sore and strange degrees, Mount, and with splendour of the soul's reflection Strike heaven's dark sovereign down upon his knees,
Pale in the light of orient insurrection,
And dumb before the almighty lord's decrees
Who bade him be of yore,
Who bids him be no more :
And all earth's heart is quickened as the sea's,
Even as when sunrise burns
The very sea's heart yearns
That heard not on the midnight-walking breeze
The wail that woke with evensong
From hearts of poor folk watching all the darkness long.

XIV

Dawn and the beams of sunbright song illumine
Love, with strange children at her piteous breast,
By grace of weakness from the grave-mouthed gloom Plucked, and by mercy lulled to living rest,
Soft as the nursling's nigh the grandsire's tomb
That fell on sleep, a bird of rifled nest ;

Soft as the lips whose smile unsaid the doom
That gave their sire to violent death's arrest.
Even for such love's sake strong,
Wrath fires the inveterate song
That bids hell gape for one whose bland mouth
blest
All slayers and liars that sighed
Prayer as they slew and lied
Till blood had clothed his priesthood as a vest,
And hears, though darkness yet be dumb,
The silence of the trumpet of the wrath to come.

XV

Nor lacked these lights of constellated age
A star among them fed with life more dire,
Lit with his bloodred fame, whose withering rage
Made earth for heaven's sake one funereal pyre
And life in faith's name one appointed stage
For death to purge the souls of men with fire.
Heaven, earth, and hell on one thrice tragic page
Mixed all their light and darkness : one man's lyre Gave all their echoes voice ;
Bade rose-cheeked love rejoice,
And cold-lipped craft with ravenous fear conspire,
And fire-eyed faith smite hope
Dead, seeing enthroned as Pope
And crowned of heaven on earth at hell's desire Sin, called by death's incestuous name Borgia : the world that heard it flushed and quailed with shame.

XVI

Another year, and hope triumphant heard
The consummating sound of song that spake
Conclusion to the multitudinous word
Whose expectation held her spirit awake
Till full delight for twice twelve years deferred Bade all souls entering eat and drink, and take A third time comfort given them, that the third Might heap the measure up of twain, and make The sinking year sublime
Among all sons of time
And fair in all men's memories for his sake.
Each thought of ours became Fire, kindling from his flame,
And music widening in his wide song's wake.
Yea, and the world bore witness here
How great a light was risen upon this darkening year.

XVII

It was the dawn of winter : sword in sheath,
Change, veiled and mild, came down the gradual air
With cold slow smiles that hid the doom beneath.
Five days to die in yet were autumn's, ere
The last leaf withered from his flowerless wreath.
South, east, and north, our skies were all blown bare,
But westward over glimmeringholt and heath Cloud, wind, and light had made a heaven more fair
Than ever dream or truth
Showed earth in time's keen youth
When men with angels communed unaware.

Above the sun's head, now Veiled even to the ardent brow,
Rose two sheer wings of sundering cloud, that were
As a bird's poised for vehement flight, Full-fledged with plumes of tawny fire and hoar grey light.

XVIII

As midnight black, as twilight brown, they spread, But feathered thick with flame that streaked and lined
Their living darkness, ominous else of dread,
From south to northmost verge of heaven inclined Most like some giant angel's, whose bent head Bowed earthward, as with message for mankind
Of doom or benediction to be shed
From passage of his presence. Far behind, Even while they seemed to close,
Stoop, and take flight, arose Above them, higher than heavenliest thought may find
In light or night supreme
Of vision or of dream,
Immeasurable of men's eyes or mounting mind,
Heaven, manifest in manifold
Light of pure pallid amber, cheered with fire of gold.

XIX

And where the fine gold faded all the sky
Shone green as the outer sea when April glows, Inlaid with flakes and feathers fledged to fly
Of clouds suspense in rapture and repose,
With large live petals, broad as love bids lie
Full open when the sun salutes the rose,

And small rent sprays wherewith the heavens most high
Were strewn as autumn strews the garden-close With ruinous roseleaves whirled
About their wan chill world, Through wind-worn bowers that now no music
knows,
Spoil of the dim dusk year
Whose utter night is near,
And near the flower of dawn beyond it blows ;
Till east and west were fire and light,
As though the dawn to come had flushed the coming night.

XX

The highways paced of men that toil or play,
The byways known of none but lonely feet,
Were paven of purple woven of night and day With hands that met as hands of friends might meet—
As though night's were not lifted up to slay
And day's had waxed not weaker. Peace more sweet
Than music, light more soft than shadow, lay
On downs and moorlands wan with day's defeat,
That watched afar above
Life's very rose of love
Let all its lustrous leaves fall, fade, and fleet,
And fill all heaven and earth
Full as with fires of birth Whence time should feed his years with light and
heat :
Nay, not life's, but a flower more strong
Than life or time or death, love's very rose of song.

XXI

Song visible, whence all men's eyes were lit
With love and loving wonder : song that glowed
Through cloud and change on souls that knew not it And hearts that wist not whence their comfort flowed,
Whence fear was lightened of her fever-fit,
Whence anguish of her life-compelling load.
Yea, no man's head whereon the fire alit,
Of all that passed along that sunset road
Westward, no brow so drear,
No eye so dull of cheer,
No face so mean whereon that light abode,
But as with alien pride
Strange godhead glorified Each feature flushed from heaven with fire that showed
The likeness of its own life wrought
By strong transfiguration as of living thought.

XXII

Nor only clouds of the everlasting sky,
Nor only men that paced that sunward way
To the utter bourne of evening, passed not by Unblest or unillumined : none might say,
Of all things visible in the wide world's eye,
That all too low for all that grace it lay ;
The lowliest lakelets of the moorland nigh,
The narrowest pools where shallowest wavelets play,
Were filled from heaven above
With light like fire of love,

With flames and colours like a dawn in May,
As hearts that lowlier live
With light of thoughts that give Light from the depth of souls more deep than they Through song's or story's kindling scroll,
The splendour of the shadow that reveals the soul.

XXIII

For, when such light is in the world, we share,
All of us, all the rays thereof that shine :
Its presence is alive in the unseen air,
Its fire within our veins as quickening wine ;
A spirit is shed on all men everywhere,
Known or not known of all men for divine.
Yea, as the sun makes heaven, that light makes fair
All souls of ours, all lesser souls than thine, Priest, prophet, seer and sage,
Lord of a subject age
That bears thy seal upon it for a sign ;
Whose name shall be thy name,
Whose light thy light of fame,
The light of love that makes thy soul a shrine Whose record through all years to be Shall bear this witness written—that its womb bare thee.

XXIV

O mystery, whence to one man's hand was given Power upon all things of the spirit, and might Whereby the veil of all the years was riven
And naked stood the secret soul of night !
O marvel, hailed of eyes whence cloud is driven,
That shows at last wrong reconciled with right

By death divine of evil and sin forgiven !
O light of song, whose fire is perfect light .
 No speech, no voice, no thought,
 No love, avails us aught
For service of thanksgiving in his sight
 Who hath given us all for ever Such gifts that man gave never So many and great since first Time's wings took flight.
Man may not praise a spirit above Man's : life and death shall praise him : we can only love.

XXV

Life, everlasting while the worlds endure,
 Death, self-abased before a power more high,
Shall bear one witness, and their word stand sure,
 That not till time be dead shall this man die.
Love, like a bird, comes loyal to his lure ;
 Fame flies before him, wingless else to fly.
A child's heart toward his kind is not more pure,
 An eagle's toward the sun no lordlier eye.
 Awe sweet as love and proud
 As fame, though hushed and bowed, Yearns toward him silent as his face goes by :
 All crowns before his crown
 Triumphantly bow down,
For pride that one more great than all draws nigh
 All souls applaud, all hearts acclaim,
One heart benign, one soul supreme, one conquering
 name.

LINES ON THE MONUMENT OF GIUSEPPE MAZZINI.

ITALIA, mother of the souls of men,
 Mother divine,
 Of all that served thee best with sword or pen,
 All sons of thine,

Thou knowest that here the likeness of the best
 Before thee stands ;
 The head most high, the heart found faithfullest,
 The purest hands.

Above the fume and foam of time that flits,
 The soul, we know,
 Now sits on high where Alighieri sits
 With Angelo.

Not his own heavenly tongue hath heavenly speech
 Enough to say
 What this man was, whose praise no thought may reach,
 No words can weigh.

Since man's first mother brought to mortal birth
 Her first-born son,
 Such grace befell not ever man on earth
 As crowns this one.

Of God nor man was ever this thing said,
That he could give Life back to her who gave him, whence his dead
Mother might live.

But this man found his mother dead and slain,
With fast sealed eyes,
And bade the dead rise up and live again,
And she did rise.

And all the world was bright with her through him :
But dark with strife,
Like heaven's own sun that storming clouds bedim,
Was all his life.

Life and the clouds are vanished : hate and fear
Have had their span
Of time to hurt, and are not : he is here,
The sunlike man.

City superb that hadst Columbus first
For sovereign son,
Be prouder that thy breast hath later nurst
This mightier one.

Glory be his for ever, while his land
Lives and is free,
As with controlling breath and sovereign hand
He bade her be.

Earth shows to heaven the names by thousands told
That crown her fame,
But highest of all that heaven and earth behold
Mazzini's name.

LES CASQUETS.

FROM the depths of the waters that lighten and darken
 With change everlasting of life and of death,
 Where hardly by noon if the lulled ear hearken
 It hears the sea's as a tired child's breath,
 Where hardly by night if an eye dare scan it
 The storm lets shipwreck be seen or heard,
 As the reefs to the waves and the foam to the granite Respond one merciless word,

Sheer seen and far, in the sea's live heaven,
 A seamew's flight from the wild sweet land,
 White-plumed with foam if the wind wake, seven Black helms as of warriors that stir not stand.
 From the depths that abide and the waves that environ
 Seven rocks rear heads that the midnight masks ;
 And the strokes of the swords of the storm are as iron
 On the steel of the wave-worn casques.

Be night's dark word as the word of a wizard,
 Be the word of dawn as a god's glad word,
 Like heads of the spirits of darkness visored
 That see not for ever, nor ever have heard,
 These basnets, plumed as for fight or plumeless,
 Crowned of the storm and by storm discrowned,
 Keep ward of the lists where the dead lie tombless
 And the tale of them is not found.

Nor eye may number nor hand may reckon
The tithes that are taken of life by the dark,
Or the ways of the path, if doom's hand beckon,
For the soul to fare as a helmless bark—
Fare forth on a way that no sign showeth, Nor aught of its goal or of aught between A path for her flight which no fowl knoweth,
Which the vulture's eye hath not seen.

Here still, though the wave and the wind seem lovers
Lulled half asleep by their own soft words,
A dream as of death in the sun's light hovers,
And a sign in the motions and cries of the birds.
Dark auguries and keen from the sweet sea-swallows Strike noon with a sense as of midnight's breath,
And the wing that flees and the wing that follows
Are as types of the wings of death.

For here, when the night roars round, and under The white sea lightens and leaps like fire,
Acclaimed of storm and applauded in thunder,
Sits death on the throne of his crowned desire.
Yea, hardly the hand of the god might fashion
A seat more strong for his strength to take,
For the might of his heart and the pride of his passion
To rejoice in the wars they make.

When the heart in him brightens with blitheness of battle
And the depth of its thirst is fulfilled with strife,
And his ear with the ravage of bolts that rattle,
And the soul of death with the pride of life,

Till the darkness is loud with his dark thanksgiving
And wind and cloud are as chords of his hymn,
There is nought save death in the deep night living,
And the whole night worships him.

Heaven's height bows down to him, signed with his token,
And the sea's depth, moved as a heart that yearns,
Heaves up to him, strong as a heart half broken,
A heart that breaks in a prayer that burns.
Of cloud is the shrine of his worship moulded,
But the altar therein is of sea-shaped stone,
Whereon, with the strength of his wide wings folded,
Sits death in the dark, alone.

He hears the word of his servant spoken,
The word that the wind his servant saith ;
Storm writes on the front of the night his token,
That the skies may seem to bow down to death.
But the clouds that stoop and the storms that minister Serve but as thralls that fulfil their tasks ;
And his seal is not set save here on the sinister Crests reared of the crownless casques.

Nor flame nor plume of the storm that crowned them
Gilds or quickens their stark black strength.
Life lightens and murmurs and laughs right round
them,
At peace with the noon's whole breadth and length,
At one with the heart of the soft-souled heaven,
At one with the life of the kind wild land :
But its touch may unbrace not the strengths of the seven Casques hewn of the storm-wind's hand.

No touch may loosen the black braced helmlets
For the wild elves' heads of the wild waves
wrought.

As flowers on the sea are her small green realmlets,
Like heavens made out of a child's heart's thought ;
But these as thorns of her desolate places,
Strong fangs that fasten and hold lives fast :
And the vizors are framed as for formless faces
That a dark dream sees go past.

Of fear and of fate are the frontlets fashioned,
And the heads behind them are dire and dumb.
When the heart of the darkness is scarce impassioned, Thrilled scarce with sense of the wrath to come,
They bear the sign from of old engraven,
Though peace be round them and strife seem far,
That here is none but the night-wind's haven,
With death for the harbour bar.

Of the iron of doom are the casquets carved,
That never the rivets thereof should burst.
When the heart of the darkness is hunger-starved,
And the throats of the gulfs are agape for thirst,
And stars are as flowers that the wind bids wither,
And dawn is as hope struck dead by fear,
The rage of the ravenous night sets hither,
And the crown of her work is here.

All shores about and afar lie lonely,
But lonelier are these than the heart of grief,
These loose-linked rivets of rock, whence only Strange life scarce gleams from the sheer main reef,

With a blind wan face in the wild wan morning,
With a live lit flame on its brows by night,
That the lost may lose not its word's mute warning
And the blind by its grace have sight.

Here, walled in with the wide waste water,
Grew the grace of a girl's lone life,
The sea's and the sea-wind's foster-daughter,
And peace was hers in the main mid strife.
For her were the rocks clothed round with thunder,
And the crests of them carved by the storm-smith's craft :
For her was the mid storm rent in sunder
As with passion that wailed and laughed.

For her the sunrise kindled and scattered
The red rose-leaflets of countless cloud :
For her the blasts of the springtide shattered
The strengths reluctant of waves back-bowed.
For her would winds in the mid sky levy
Bright wars that hardly the night bade cease :
At noon, when sleep on the sea lies heavy,
For her would the sun make peace.

Peace rose crowned with the dawn on golden Lit leagues of triumph that flamed and smiled :
Peace lay lulled in the moon-beholden
Warm darkness making the world's heart mild
For all the wide waves' troubles and treasons,
One word only her soul's ear heard
Speak from stormless and storm-rent seasons,
And nought save peace was the word.

All her life waxed large with the light of it,
All her heart fed full on the sound :
Spirit and sense were exalted in sight of it,
Compassed and girdled and clothed with it round Sense was none but a strong still rapture,
' Spirit was none but a joy sublime,
Of strength to curb and of craft to capture
The craft and the strength of Time.

Time lay bound as in painless prison
There, closed in with a strait small space.
Never thereon as a strange light risen
Change had unveiled for her grief's far face.
Three white walls flung out from the basement
Girt the width of the world whereon
Gazing at night from her flame-lit casement
She saw where the dark sea shone.

Hardly the breadth of a few brief paces,
Hardly the length of a strong man's stride,
The small court flower-lit with children's faces Scarce held scope for a bird to hide.
Yet here was a man's brood reared and hidden
Between the rocks and the towers and the foam,
Where peril and pity and peace were bidden
As guests to the same sure home.

Here would pity keep watch for peril,
And surety comfort his heart with peace.
No flower save one, where the reefs lie sterile,
Gave of the seed of its heart's increase.

Pity and surety and peace most lowly Were the root and the stem and the bloom of the flower :
And the light and the breath of the buds kept holy That maid's else blossomless bower.

With never a leaf but the seaweed's tangle,
Never a bird's but the seamew's note,
It heard all round it the strong storms wrangle,
Watched far past it the waste wrecks float.
But her soul was stilled by the sky's endurance,
And her heart made glad with the sea's content ;
And he faith waxed more in the sun's assurance
For the winds that came and went.

Sweetness was brought for her forth of the bitter Sea's strength, and light of the deep sea's dark,
From where green lawns on Alderney glitter
To the bastioned crags of the steeps of Sark.
These she knew from afar beholden,
And marvelled haply what life would be
On moors that sunset and dawn leave golden,
In dells that smile on the sea.

And forth she fared as a stout-souled rover,
For a brief blithe raid on the bounding brine :
And light winds ferried her light bark over
To the lone soft island of fair-limbed kine.
But the league-long length of its wild green border,
And the small bright streets of serene St. Anne, Perplexed her sense with a strange disorder
At sight of the works of man.

The world was here, and the world's confusion,
And the dust of the wheels of revolving life,
Pain, labour, change, and the fierce illusion
Of strife more vain than the sea's old strife.
And her heart within her was vexed, and dizzy
The sense of her soul as a wheel that whirled :
She might not endure for a space that busy Loud coil of the troublous world.

Too full, she said, was the world of trouble,
Too dense with noise of contentious things,
And shows less bright than the blithe foam's bubble
As home she fared on the smooth wind's wings.
For joy grows loftier in air more lonely,
Where only the sea's brood fain would be ;
Where only the heart may receive in it only
The love of the heart of the sea.

A BALLAD OF SARK.

HIGH beyond the granite portal arched across Like the gateway of some godlike giant's hold Sweep and swell the billowy breasts of moor and moss
 East and westward, and the dell their slopes enfold
 Basks in purple, glows in green, exults in gold.
 Glens that know the dove and fells that hear the lark
 Fill with joy the rapturous island, as an ark Full of spicery wrought from herb and flower and tree.

None would dream that grief even here may disembark
 On the wrathful woful marge of earth and sea.

Rocks emblazoned like the mid shield's royal boss Take the sun with all their blossom broad and bold.

None would dream that all this moorland's glow and gloss

Could be dark as tombs that strike the spirit acold
 Even in eyes that opened here, and here behold
 Now no sun relume from hope's belated spark Any comfort, nor may ears of mourners hark Though the ripe woods ring with golden-throated glee,

While the soul lies shattered, like a stranded bark
 On the wrathful woful marge of earth and sea.

Death and doom are they whose crested triumphs toss

On the proud plumed waves whence mourning notes are tolled.

Wail of perfect woe and moan for utter loss

Raise the bride-song through the graveyard on the wold

Where the bride-bed keeps the bridegroom fast in mould,

Where the bride, with death for priest and doom for clerk,

Hears for choir the throats of waves like wolves that bark,

Sore anhungered, off the drear Eperquerie.

Fain to spoil the strongholds of the strength of Sark

On the wrathful woful marge of earth and sea.

Prince of storm and tempest, lord whose ways are dark,

Wind whose wings are spread for flight that none may mark,

Lightly dies the joy that lives by grace of thee.

Love through thee lies bleeding, hope lies cold and stark,

On the wrathful woful marge of earth and sea.

NINE YEARS OLD

FEBRUARY 4, 1883

I

LORD of light, whose shrine no hands destroy,
 God of song, whose hymn no tongue refuses,
 Now, though spring far hence be cold and coy,
 Bid the golden mouths of all the Muses
 Ring forth gold of strains without alloy,
 Till the ninefold rapture that suffuses
 Heaven with song bid earth exult for joy, Since the child whose head this dawn bedews is Sweet as once thy violet-cradled boy.

II

Even as he lay lapped about with flowers,
 Lies the life now nine years old before us
 Lapped about with love in all its hours ;
 Hailed of many loves that chant in chorus
 Loud or low from lush or leafless bowers,
 Some from hearts exultant born sonorous,
 Some scarce louder-voiced than soft-tongued
 showers
 Two months hence, when spring's light wings poised o'er us
 High shall hover, and her heart be ours.

Even as he, though man-forsaken, smiled
On the soft kind snakes divinely bidden
There to feed him in the green mid wild Full with hurtless honey, till the hidden Birth should prosper, finding fate more mild,
So full-fed with pleasures unforbidden,
So by love's lures blamelessly beguiled,
Laughs the nursling of our hearts unhidden
Yet by change that mars not yet the child.

IV

Ah, not yet ! Thou, lord of night and day,
Time, sweet father of such blameless pleasure,
Time, false friend who tak'st thy gifts away,
Spare us yet some scantlings of the treasure,
Leave us yet some rapture of delay,
Yet some bliss of blind and fearless leisure Unprophetic of delight's decay,
Yet some nights and days wherein to measure
All the joys that bless us while they may.

Not the waste Arcadian woodland, wet
Still with dawn and vocal with Alpheus,
Reared a nursling worthier love's regret,
Lord, than this, whose eyes beholden free us
Straight from bonds the soul would fain forget, Fain cast off, that night and day might see us
Clear once more of life's vain fume and fret :
Leave us, then, whate'er thy doom decree us,
Yet some days wherein to love him yet.

VI

Yet some days wherein the child is ours,
Ours, not thine, O lord whose hand is o'er us Always, as the sky with suns and showers
Dense and radiant, soundless or sonorous ;
Yet some days for love's sake, ere the bowers
Fade wherein his fair first years kept chorus
Night and day with Graces robed like hours,
Ere this worshipped childhood wane before us,
Change, and bring forth fruit—but no more flowers.

Love we may the thing that is to be,
Love we must : but how forego this olden Joy, this flower of childish love, that we Held more dear than aught of Time is holden—
Time, whose laugh is like as Death's to see—
Time, who heeds not aught of all beholden,
Heard, or touched in passing—flower or tree,
Tares or grain of leaden days or golden—
More than wind has heed of ships at sea ?

VIII

First the babe, a very rose of joy,
Sweet as hope's first note of jubilation,
Passes : then must growth and change destroy Next the child, and mar the consecration
Hallowing yet, ere thought or sense annoy, Childhood's yet half heavenlike habitation,
Bright as truth and frailer than a toy ;
Whence its guest with eager gratulation
Springs, and life grows larger round the boy.

IX

Yet, ere sunrise wholly cease to shine,
Ere change come to chide our hearts, and scatter Memories marked for love's sake with a sign,
Let the light of dawn beholden flatter
Yet some while our eyes that feed on thine,
Child, with love that change nor time can shatter,
Love, whose silent song says more than mine
Now, though charged with elder loves and latter Here it hails a lord whose years are nine.

AFTER A READING

FOR the seven times seventh time love would renew the delight without end or alloy
 That it takes in the praise as it takes in the presence of eyes that fulfil it with joy ;
 But how shall it praise them and rest unrebuked by the presence and pride of the boy ?

Praise meet for a child is unmeet for an elder whose winters and springs are nine :
 What song may have strength in its wings to expand them, or light in its eyes to shine, That shall seem not as weakness and darkness if matched with the theme I would fain make mine ?

The round little flower of a face that exults in the sunshine of shadowless days Defies the delight it enkindles to sing of it aught not unfit for the praise
 Of the sweetest of all things that eyes may rejoice in and tremble with love as they gaze.

Such tricks and such meanings abound on the lips and the brows that are brighter than light, The demure little chin, the sedate little nose, and the forehead of sun-stained white, That love overflows into laughter and laughter subsides into love at the sight.

Each limb and each feature has action in tune with the meaning that smiles as it speaks
From the fervour of eyes and the fluttering of hands in a foretaste of fancies and freaks, When the thought of them deepens the dimples that laugh in the corners and curves of his cheeks.

As a bird when the music within her is yet too intense to be spoken in song,
That pauses a little for pleasure to feel how the notes from withinwards throng,
So pauses the laugh at his lips for a little, and waxes within more strong.

As the music elate and triumphal that bids all things of the dawn bear part With the tune that prevails when her passion has risen into rapture of passionate art, So lightens the laughter made perfect that leaps from its nest in the heaven of his heart.

Deep, grave and sedate is the gaze of expectant intensity bent for awhile
And absorbed on its aim as the tale that enthralls him uncovers the web of its wile, Till the goal of attention is touched, and expectancy kisses delight in a smile.

And it seems to us here that in Paradise hardly the spirit of Lamb or of Blake May hear or behold aught sweeter than lightens and rings when his bright thoughts break In laughter that well might lure them to look, and to smile as of old for his sake.

O singers that best loved children, and best for their sakes are beloved of us here, In the world of your life everlasting, where love has no thorn and desire has no fear,
All else may be sweeter than aught is on earth, nought dearer than these are dear.

MAYTIME IN MIDWINTER

A NEW year gleams on us, tearful
 And troubled and smiling dim
 As the smile on a lip still fearful,
 As glances of eyes that swim :
 But the bird of my heart makes cheerful
 The days that are bright for him.

Child, how may a man's love merit
 The grace you shed as you stand,
 The gift that is yours to inherit ?
 Through you are the bleak days bland ;
 Your voice is a light to my spirit ;
 You bring the sun in your hand.

The year's wing shows not a feather
 As yet of the plumes to be ;
 Yet here in the shrill grey weather
 The spring's self stands at my knee,
 And laughs as we commune together,
 And lightens the world we see.

The rains are as dews for the christening
 Of dawns that the nights benumb :
 The spring's voice answers me listening
 For speech of a child to come,
 While promise of music is glistening
 On lips that delight keeps dumb.

The mists and the storms receding
At sight of you smile and die :
Your eyes held wide on me reading
Shed summer across the sky :
Your heart shines clear for me, heeding
No more of the world than I.

The world, what is it to you, dear,
And me, if its face be grey,
And the new-born year be a shrewd year
For flowers that the fierce winds fray ?
You smile, and the sky seems blue, dear ;
You laugh, and the month turns May.

Love cares not for care, he has daffed her Aside as a mate for guile :
The sight that my soul yearns after Feeds full my sense for awhile ;
Your sweet little sun-faced laughter,
Your good little glad grave smile.

Your hands through the bookshelves flutter ;
Scott, Shakespeare, Dickens, are caught ;
Blake's visions, that lighten and mutter ;
Molière—and his smile has nought Left on it of sorrow, to utter
The secret things of his thought.

No grim thing written or graven
But grows, if you gaze on it, bright ;
A lark's note rings from the raven,
And tragedy's robe turns white ;
And shipwrecks drift into haven ;
And darkness laughs, and is light.

Grief seems but a vision of madness ;
Life's key-note peals from above
With nought in it more of sadness
Than broods on the heart of a dove :
At sight of you, thought grows gladness,
And life, through love of you, love.

A DOUBLE BALLAD OF AUGUST

(1884)

ALL Afric, winged with death and fire,
 Pants in our pleasant English air.
 Each blade of grass is tense as wire,
 And all the wood's loose trembling hair
 Stark in the broad and breathless glare
 Of hours whose touch wastes herb and tree.
 This bright sharp death shines everywhere ;
 Life yearns for solace toward the sea.

Earth seems a corpse upon the pyre ;
 The sun, a scourge for slaves to bear.
 All power to fear, all keen desire,
 Lies dead as dreams of days that were Before the new-born world lay bare In heaven's wide eye, whereunder we Lie breathless till the season spare :
 Life yearns for solace toward the sea.

Fierce hours, with ravening fangs that tire
 On spirit and sense, divide and share
 The throbs of thoughts that scarce respire,
 The throes of dreams that scarce forbear

One mute immitigable prayer
For cold perpetual sleep to be Shed snowlike on the sense of care.
Life yearns for solace toward the sea.

The dust of ways where men suspire
Seems even the dust of death's dim lair.
But though the feverish days be dire
The sea-wind rears and cheers its fair
Blithe broods of babes that here and there
Make the sands laugh and glow for glee
With gladder flowers than gardens wear.
Life yearns for solace toward the sea.

The music dies not off the lyre
That lets no soul alive despair.
Sleep strikes not dumb the breathless choir
Of waves whose note bids sorrow spare.
As glad they sound, as fast they fare,
As when fate's word first set them free
And gave them light and night to wear.
Life yearns for solace toward the sea.

For there, though night and day conspire
To compass round with toil and snare
And changeless whirl of change, whose gyre Draws all things deathwards unaware,
The spirit of life they scourge and scare,
Wild waves that follow on waves that flee
Laugh, knowing that yet, though earth despair,
Life yearns for solace toward the sea.

HEARTSEASE COUNTRY

TO ISABEL SWINBURNE

THE far green westward heavens are bland,
 The far green Wiltshire downs are clear
 As these deep meadows hard at hand :
 The sight knows hardly far from near,
 Nor morning joy from evening cheer.
 In cottage garden-plots their bees Find many a fervent flower to seize
 And strain and drain the heart away
 From ripe sweet-williams and sweet-peas
 At every turn on every way.

But gladliest seems one flower to expand Its whole sweet heart all round us here ;
 'Tis Heartsease Country, Pansy Land.
 Nor sounds nor savours harsh and drear
 Where engines yell and halt and veer
 Can vex the sense of him who sees
 One flower-plot midway, that for trees
 Has poles, and sheds all grimed or grey
 For bowers like those that take the breeze
 At every turn on every way.

Content even there they smile and stand,
Sweet thought's heart-easing flowers, nor fear,
With reek and roaring steam though fanned,
Nor shrink nor perish as they peer.
The heart's eye holds not those more dear
That glow between the lanes and leas Where'er the homeliest hand may please
To bid them blossom as they may Where light approves and wind agrees
At every turn on every way.

Sister, the word of winds and seas Endures not as the word of these Your wayside flowers whose breath would say How hearts that love may find heart's ease
At every turn on every way.

A BALLAD OF APPEAL

TO CHRISTINA G. ROSSETTI

SONG wakes with every wakening year
From hearts of birds that only feel Brief spring's deciduous flower-time near :
And song more strong to help or heal
Shall silence worse than winter seal ?
From love-lit thought's remurmuring cave
The notes that rippled, wave on wave,
Were clear as love, as faith were strong ;
And all souls blessed the soul that gave Sweet water from the well of song.

All hearts bore fruit of joy to hear,
All eyes felt mist upon them steal
For joy's sake, trembling toward a tear,
When, loud as marriage-bells that peal,
Or flutelike soft, or keen like steel,
Sprang the sheer music ; sharp or grave,
We heard the drift of winds that drave,
And saw, swept round by ghosts in throng,
Dark rocks, that yielded, where they clave,
Sweet water from the well of song.

Blithe verse made all the dim sense clear
That smiles of babbling babes conceal :
Prayer's perfect heart spake here : and here
Rose notes of blameless woe and weal,
More soft than this poor song's appeal.
Where orchards bask, where cornfields wave,
They dropped like rains that cleanse and lave,
And scattered all the year along,
Like dewfall on an April grave,
Sweet water from the well of song.

Ballad, go bear our prayer, and crave
Pardon, because thy lowlier stave
Can do this plea no right, but wrong.
Ask nought beside thy pardon, save •
Sweet water from the well of song.

CRADLE SONGS

(TO A TUNE OF BLAKE'S)

I

BABY, baby bright,
Sleep can steal from sight
Little of your light :

Soft as fire in dew,
Still the life in you Lights your slumber through

Four white eyelids keep Fast the seal of sleep
Deep as love is deep :

Yet, though closed it lies,
Love behind them spies
Heaven in two blue eyes.

II

Baby, baby dear,
Earth and heaven are near
Now, for heaven is here.

Heaven is every place
Where your flower-sweet face
Fills our eyes with grace.

Till your own eyes deign
Earth a glance again,
Earth and heaven are twain.

Now your sleep is done,
Shine, and show the sun
Earth and heaven are one.

Baby, baby sweet,
Love's own lips are meet
Scarce to kiss your feet.

Hardly love's own ear,
When your laugh crows clear,
Quite deserves to hear.

Hardly love's own wile,
Though it please awhile,
Quite deserves your smile.

Baby full of grace,
Bless us yet a space :
Sleep will come apace.

IV

Baby, baby true,
Man, whate'er he do,
May deceive not you.

Smiles whose love is guile,
Worn a flattering while,
Win from you no smile.

One, the smile alone
Out of love's heart grown,
Ever wins your own.

Man, a dunce uncouth,
Errs in age and youth :
Babies know the truth.

v

Baby, baby fair,
Love is fain to dare
Bless your haughtiest air.

Baby blithe and bland,
Reach but forth a hand
None may dare withstand ;

Love, though wellnigh cowed,
Yet would praise aloud
Pride so sweetly proud.

No ! the fitting word
Even from breeze or bird
Never yet was heard.

vi

Baby, baby kind,
Though no word we find,
Bear us yet in mind.

Half a little hour,
Baby bright in bower,
Keep this thought aflower—

Love it is, I see,
Here with heart and knee
Bows and worships me.

What can baby do,
Then, for love so true?—
Let it worship you.

Baby, baby wise,
Love's divine surmise
Lights your constant eyes.

Day and night and day
One mute word would they,
As the soul saith, say.

Trouble comes and goes ;
Wonder ebbs and flows ;
Love remains and glows.

As the fledgeling dove
Feels the breast above,
So your heart feels love.

PELAGIUS

I

THE sea shall praise him and the shores bear part That reared him when the bright south world was black
 With fume of creeds more foul than hell's own rack,
 Still darkening more love's face with loveless art
 Since Paul, faith's fervent Antichrist, of heart Heroic, haled the world vehemently back
 From Christ's pure path on dire Jehovah's track,
 And said to dark Elisha's Lord, "Thou art."
 But one whose soul had put the raiment on
 Of love that Jesus left with James and John Withstood that Lord whose seals of love were lies,
 Seeing what we see—how, touched by Truth's bright
 rod,
 The fiend whom Jews and Africans called God
 Feels his own hell take hold on him, and dies.

II

The world has no such flower in any land,
 And no such pearl in any gulf the sea,
 As any babe on any mother's knee.
 But all things blessed of men by saints are banned :

God gives them grace to read and understand
The palimpsest of evil, writ where we,
'Poor fools and lovers but of love, can see Nought save a blessing signed by Love's own hand.
The smile that opens heaven on us for them
Hath sin's transmitted birthmark hid therein :
The kiss it craves calls down from heaven a rod.
It innocence be sin that Gods condemn,
Praise we the men who so being born in sin
First dared the doom and broke the bonds of God.

III

Man's heel is on the Almighty's neck who said,
Let there be hell, and there was hell—on earth.
But not for that may men forget their worth—Nay, but much more remember them—who led
The living first from dwellings of the dead,
And rent the cerecloths that were wont to engirth Souls wrapped and swathed and swaddled from their birth
With lies that bound them fast from heel to head.
Among the tombs when wise men all their lives Dwelt, and cried out, and cut themselves with knives,
These men, being foolish, and of saints abhorred
Beheld in heaven the sun by saints reviled,
Love, and on earth one everlasting Lord
In every likeness of a little child.

LOUIS BLANC

THREE SONNETS TO HIS MEMORY

I

THE stainless soul that smiled through glorious eyes ;
 The bright grave brow whereon dark fortune's blast

Might blow, but might not bend it, nor o'ercast, Save for one fierce fleet hour of shame, the skies Thrilled with warm dreams of worthier days to rise
 And end the whole world's winter ; here at last,
 If death be death, have passed into the past ;
 If death be life, live, though their semblance dies.
 Hope and high faith inviolate of distrust
 Shone strong as life inviolate of the grave
 Through each bright word and lineament serene.
 Most loving righteousness and love most just Crowned, as day crowns the dawn-enkindled wave,
 With visible aureole thine unfaltering mien.

II

Strong time and fire-swift change, with lightnings clad

And shod with thunders of reverberate years,
 Have filled with light and sound of hopes and fears
 The space of many a season, since I had

Grace of good hap to make my spirit glad,
Once communing with thine : and memory hears
The bright voice yet that then rejoiced mine ears, Sees yet the light of eyes that spake, and bade Fear not, but hope, though then time's heart were weak

And heaven by hell shade-stricken, and the range
Of high-born hope made questionable and strange
As twilight trembling till the sunlight speak.
Thou sawest the sunrise and the storm in one Break : seest thou now the storm-compelling sun ?

III

Surely thou seest, O spirit of light and fire, Surely thou canst not choose, O soul, but see
The days whose dayspring was beheld of thee
Ere eyes less pure might have their hope's desire, Beholding life in heaven again respire
Where men saw nought that was or was to be, Save only death imperial. Thou and he Who has the heart of all men's hearts for lyre, Ye twain, being great of spirit as time is great,
And sure of sight as truth's own heavenward eye, Beheld the forms of forces passing by
And certitude of equal-balanced fate,
Whose breath forefelt makes darkness palpitate,
And knew that light should live and darkness die.

VOS DEOS LAUDAMUS :

THE CONSERVATIVE JOURNALIST'S ANTHEM

"As a matter of fact, no man living, or who ever lived—not CÆSAR or PERICLES, not SHAKESPEARE or MICHAEL ANGELO—could confer honour more than he took on entering the House of Lords."—Saturday Review, December 15, 1883.

"Clumsy and shallow snobbery-- can do no hurt."—Ibid.

I

O LORDS our Gods, beneficent, sublime,
 In the evening, and before the morning flames,
 We praise, we bless, we magnify your names.
 The slave is he that serves not ; his the crime
 And shame, who hails not as the crown of Time
 That House wherein the all-envious world acclaims
 Such glory that the reflex of it shames
 All crowns bestowed of men for prose or rhyme.
 The serf, the cur, the sycophant is he Who feels no cringing motion twitch his knee
 When from a height too high for Shakespeare nods
 The wearer of a higher than Milton's crown.
 Stoop, Chaucer, stoop : Keats, Shelley, Burns, bow
 down :
 These have no part with you, O Lords our Gods.

II

O Lords our Gods, it is not that ye sit Serene above the thunder, and exempt
From strife of tongues and casualties that tempt Men merely found by proof of manhood fit
For service of their fellows : this is it Which sets you past the reach of Time's attempt.
Which gives us right of justified contempt
For commonwealths built up by mere men's wit :
That gold unlocks not, nor may flatteries ope,
The portals of your heaven ; that none may hope
With you to watch how life beneath you plods,
Save for high service given, high duty done ;
That never was your rank ignobly won :
For this we give you praise, O Lords our Gods.

III

O Lords our Gods, the times are evil : you Redeem the time, because of evil days.
While abject souls in servitude of praise
Bow down to heads untitled, and the crew
Whose honour dwells but in the deeds they do,
From loftier hearts your nobler servants raise More manful salutation : yours are bays
That not the dawn's plebeian pearls bedew ;
Yours, laurels plucked not of such hands as wove Old age its chaplet in Colonos' grove.
Our time, with heaven and with itself at odds,
Makes all lands else as seas that seethe and boil ;
But yours are yet the corn and wine and oil,
And yours our worship yet, O Lords our Gods.

ON THE BICENTENARY OF CORNEILLE

CELEBRATED UNDER THE PRESIDENCY OF VICTOR HUGO

SCARCE two hundred years are gone, and the world is past away

As a noise of brawling wind, as a flash of breaking foam,

That beheld the singer born who raised up the dead of Rome ;

And a mightier now than he bids him too rise up to-day.

All the dim great age is dust, and its king is tombless clay,

But its loftier laurel green as in living eyes it clomb,

And his memory whom it crowned hath his people's heart for home,

And the shade across it falls of a lordlier-flowering bay.

Stately shapes about the tomb of their mighty maker pace,

Heads of high-plumed Spaniards shine, souls revive of Roman race,

Sound of arms and words of wail through the glowing darkness rise,

Speech of hearts heroic rings forth of lips that know not breath,

And the light of thoughts august fills the pride of kindling eyes

Whence of yore the spell of song drove the shadow of darkling death.

IN SEPULCRETIS

“Vidistis ipso rapere de rogo cenam.”—CATULIUS, LIX. 3.

“To publish even one line of an author which he himself has not intended for the public at large—especially letters which are addressed to private persons—is to commit a despicable act of felony.”—HEINE.

I

It is not then enough that men who give
 The best gifts given of man to man should feel,
 Alive, a snake's head ever at their heel :
 Small hurt the worms may do them while they live—
 Such hurt as scorn for scorn's sake may forgive.
 But now, when death and fame have set one seal
 On tombs whereat Love, Grief, and Glory kneel, Men sift all secrets, in their critic sieve,
 Of graves wherein the dust of death might shrink
 To know what tongues defile the dead man's name With loathsome love, and praise that stings like
 shame.
 Rest once was theirs, who had crossed the mortal brink :
 No rest, no reverence now : dull fools undress
 Death's holiest shrine, life's veriest nakedness.

II

A man was born, sang, suffered, loved, and died.
Men scorned him living : let us praise him dead.
His life was brief and bitter, gently led
And proudly, but with pure and blameless pride.
He wrought no wrong toward any ; satisfied
With love and labour, whence our souls are fed
With largesse yet of living wine and bread.
Come, let us praise him : here is nought to hide.
Make bare the poor dead secrets of his heart,
Strip the stark-naked soul, that all may peer, Spy, smirk, sniff, snap, snort, snivel, snarl, and sneer :
Let none so sad, let none so sacred part
Lie still for pity, rest unstirred for shame,
But all be scanned of all men. This is fame.

III

“ Now, what a thing it is to be an ass ! ” ¹
If one, that strutted up the brawling streets
As foreman of the flock whose concourse greets
Men’s ears with bray more dissonant than brass,
Would change from blame to praise as coarse and crass
His natural note, and learn the fawning feats
Of lapdogs, who but knows what luck he meets ?
But all in vain old fable holds her glass.

Mocked and reviled by men of poisonous breath,
A great man dies : but one thing worst was spared ;
Not all his heart by their base hands lay bared.

One comes to crown with praise the dust of death ;
And lo, through him this worst is brought to pass.
Now, what a thing it is to be an ass !

IV

Shame, such as never yet dealt heavier stroke
On heads more shameful, fall on theirs through whom
Dead men may keep inviolate not their tomb,
But all its depths these ravenous grave-worms choke.
And yet what waste of wrath were this, to invoke Shame on the shameless? Even their twin-born
doom,
Their native air of life, a carrion fume,
Their natural breath of love, a noisome smoke,
The bread they break, the cup whereof they drink,
The record whose remembrance damns their name,
Smells, tastes, and sounds of nothing but of shame.
If thankfulness nor pity bids them think What work is this of theirs, and pause betimes, Not Shakespeare's grave would scare them off with rhymes.

LOVE AND SCORN

I

Love, loyallest and lordliest born of things,
 Immortal that shouldst be, though all else end,
 In plighted hearts of fearless friend with friend, Whose hand may curb or clip thy plume-plucked wings?

Not grief's nor time's: though these be lords and kings Crowned, and their yoke bid vassal passions bend,
 They may not pierce the spirit of sense, or blend Quick poison with the soul's live watersprings.
 The true clear heart whose core is manful trust Fears not that very death may turn to dust
 Love lit therein as toward a brother born,
 If one touch make not all its fine gold rust,
 If one breath blight not all its glad ripe corn,
 And all its fire be turned to fire of scorn.

II

Scorn only, scorn begot of bitter proof
 By keen experience of a trustless heart,
 Bears burning in her new-born hand the dart
 Wherewith love dies heart-stricken, and the roof

Falls of his palace, and the storied woof
Long woven of many a year with life's whole art
Is rent like any rotten weed apart,
And hardly with reluctant eyes aloof
Cold memory guards one relic scarce exempt
Yet from the fierce corrosion of contempt,
And hardly saved by pity. Woe are we
That once we loved, and love not ; but we know
The ghost of love, surviving yet in show, Where scorn has passed, is vain as grief must be.

O sacred, just, inevitable scorn, Strong child of righteous judgment, whom with grief
The rent heart bears, and wins not yet relief,
Seeing of its pain so dire a portent born,
Must thou not spare one sheaf of all the corn,
One doit of all the treasure ? not one sheaf,
Not one poor doit of all ? not one dead leaf
Of all that fell and left behind a thorn ?
Is man so strong that one should scorn another ?
Is any as God, not made of mortal mother,
That love should turn in him to gall and flame ?
Nay : but the true is not the false heart's brother :
Love cannot love disloyalty : the name
That else it wears is love no more, but shame.

ON THE DEATH OF RICHARD DOYLE

A LIGHT of blameless laughter, fancy-bred,
Soft-souled and glad and kind as love or sleep,
Fades, and sweet mirth's own eyes are fain to weep
Because her blithe and gentlest bird is dead.
Weep, elves and fairies all, that never shed Tear yet for mortal mourning : you that keep The doors of dreams whence nought of ill may creep.
Mourn once for one whose lips your honey fed.
Let waters of the Golden River steep
The rose-roots whence his grave blooms rosy red,
And murmuring of Hyblæan hives be deep
About the summer silence of its bed,
And nought less gracious than a violet peep
Between the grass grown greener round his head.

IN MEMORY OF HENRY A. BRIGHT

YET again another, ere his crowning year, Gone from friends that here may look for him no more.

Never now for him shall hope set wide the door,
 Hope that hailed him hither, fain to greet him here.
 All the gracious garden-flowers he held so dear, Oldworld English blossoms, all his homestead store,

Oldworld grief had strewn them round his bier of yore,
 Bidding each drop leaf by leaf as tear by tear ;
 Rarer lutes than mine had borne more tuneful token, Touched by subtler hands than echoing time can
 wrong,

Sweet as flowers had strewn his graveward path
 along.
 Now may no such old sweet dirges more be spoken, Now the flowers whose breath was very song are broken,
 Nor may sorrow find again so sweet a song.

A SOLITUDE

SEA beyond sea, sand after sweep of sand,
Here ivory smooth, here cloven and ridged with flow
Of channelled waters soft as rain or snow,
Stretch their lone length at ease beneath the bland
Grey gleam of skies whose smile on wave and strand Shines weary like a man's who smiles to know
That now no dream can mock his faith with show, Nor cloud for him seem living sea or land.

Is there an end at all of all this waste,
These crumbling cliffs defeatured and defaced,
These ruinous heights of sea-sapped walls that slide Seaward with all their banks of bleak blown flowers
Glad yet of life, ere yet their hope subside
Beneath the coil of dull dense waves and hours :

VICTOR HUGO :
L'ARCHIPEL DE LA MANCHE

SEA and land are fairer now, nor aught is all the same, Since a mightier hand than Time's hath woven their votive wreath.

Rocks as swords half drawn from out the smooth wave's jewelled sheath, Fields whose flowers a tongue divine hath numbered name by name,
Shores whereby the midnight or the noon clothed round with flame

Hears the clamour jar and grind which utters from beneath
Cries of hungering waves like beasts fast bound that gnash their teeth,
All of these the sun that lights them lights not like his fame ;

None of these is but the thing it was before he came.
Where the darkling overfalls like dens of torment seethe,

High on tameless moorlands, down in meadows bland and tame,
Where the garden hides, and where the wind uproots the heath,

Glory now henceforth for ever, while the world shall
be,

Shines, a star that keeps not time with change on earth and sea.

THE TWILIGHT OF THE LORDS

I

Is the sound a trumpet blown, or a bell for burial tollèd,

Whence the whole air vibrates now to the clash of words like swords—

“ Let us break their bonds in sunder, and cast away their cords ;

Long enough the world has mocked us, and marvelled to behold

How the grown man bears the curb whence his boy-hood was controlled ” ?

Nay, but hearken : surer counsel more sober speech affords :

“ Is the past not all inscribed with the praises of our Lords ?

Is the memory dead of deeds done of yore, the love grown cold

That should bind our hearts to trust in their counsels wise and bold ?

These that stand against you now, senseless crowds and heartless hordes,

Are not these the sons of men that withstood your kings of old ?

“ Theirs it is to bind and loose ; theirs the key that knows the wards,

Theirs the staff to lead or smite ; yours, the spades and ploughs and hods :

Theirs to hear and yours to cry, Power is yours, O Lords our Gods."

II

Hear, O England : these are they that would counsel thee aright.

Wouldst thou fain have all thy sons sons of thine indeed, and free ?

Nay, but then no more at all as thou hast been shalt thou be :

Needs must many dwell in darkness, that some may look on light ;

Needs must poor men brook the wrong that ensures the rich man's right.

How shall kings and lords be worshipped, if no man bow the knee ?

How, if no man worship these, may thy praise endure with thee ?

How, except thou trust in these, shall thy name not lose its might ?

These have had their will of thee since the Norman came to smite :

Sires on grandsires, even as wave after wave along the sea,

Sons on sires have followed, steadfast as clouds or hours in flight.

Time alone hath power to say, time alone hath eyes to see,

If your walls of rule be built but of clay-compacted sods,

If your place of old shall know you no more, O Lords our Gods.

Through the stalls wherein ye sit sounds a sentence while we wait,

Set your house in order : is it not builded on the sand ?

Set your house in order, seeing the night is hard at hand.

As the twilight of the Gods in the northern dream of fate

Is this hour that comes against you, albeit this hour come late.

Ye whom Time and Truth bade heed, and ye would not understand,

Now an axe draws nigh the tree overshadowing all the land,

And its edge of doom is set to the root of all your state.

Light is more than darkness now, faith than fear and hope than hate ;

And what morning wills, behold, all the night shall not withstand.

Rods of office, helms of rule, staffs of wise men, crowns of great,

While the people willed, ye bare ; now their hopes and hearts expand,

Time with silent foot makes dust of your broken crowns and rods,

And the lordship of your godhead is gone, O Lords
our Gods.

CLEAR THE WAY !

CLEAR the way, my lords and lackeys ! you have had your day.

Here you have your answer—England's yea against your nay :

Long enough your house has held you : up, and clear the way !

Lust and falsehood, craft and traffic, precedent and
gold,

Tongue of courtier, kiss of harlot, promise bought and sold,

Gave you heritage of empire over thralls of old.

Now that all these things are rotten, all their gold is rust,

Quenched the pride they lived by, dead the faith and cold the lust,

Shall their heritage not also turn again to dust ?

By the grace of these they reigned, who left their sons their sway :

By the grace of these, what England says her lords unsay :

Till at last her cry go forth against them—Clear the way !

By the grace of trust in treason knaves have lived and lied :•

By the force of fear and folly fools have fed their pride :
By the strength of sloth and custom reason stands defied.

Lest perchance your reckoning on some latter day be worse,

Halt and hearken, lords of land and princes of the purse,

Ere the tide be full that comes with blessing and with curse.

Where we stand, as where you sit, scarce falls a sprinkling spray ;

But the wind that swells, the wave that follows, none shall stay :

Spread no more of sail for shipwreck : out, and clear
the way !

A WORD FOR THE COUNTRY

MEN, born of the land that for ages
 Has been honoured where freedom was dear,
 Till your labour wax fat on its wages
 You shall never be peers of a peer.
 Where might is, the right is :
 Long purses make strong swords.
 Let weakness learn meekness :
 God save the House of Lords !

You are free to consume in stagnation :
 You are equal in right to obey :
 You are brothers in bonds, and the nation
 Is your mother—whose sons are her prey.
 Those others your brothers,
 Who toil not, weave, nor till,
 Refuse you and use you
 As waiters on their will.

But your fathers bowed down to their masters
 And obeyed them and served and adored.
 Shall the sheep not give thanks to their pastors ?
 • Shall the serf not give praise to his lord ?
 Time, waning and gaining,
 Grown other now than then,
 Needs pastors and masters
 For sheep, and not for men.

If his grandsire did service in battle,
 If his grandam was kissed by a king,
 Must men to my lord be as cattle
 Or as apes that he leads in a string?
 To deem so, to dream so,
 Would bid the world proclaim
 The dastards for bastards,
 Not heirs of England's fame.

Not in spite but in right of dishonour,
 There are actors who trample your boards
 Till the earth that endures you upon her Grows weary to bear you, my lords.
 Your token is broken,
 It will not pass for gold ·
 Your glory looks hoary,
 Your sun in heaven turns cold.

They are worthy to reign on their brothers,
 To condemn them as clods and as carles,
 Who are Graces by grace of such mothers
 As brightened the bed of King Charles.
 What manner of banner,
 What fame is this they flaunt,
 That Britain, soul-smitten,
 Should shrink before their vaunt?

Bright sons of sublime prostitution,
 You are made of the mire of the street
 Where your grandmothers walked in pollution
 Till a coronet shone at their feet.
 Your Graces, whose faces Bear high the bastard's brand,
 Seem stronger no longer
 Than all this honest land.

But the sons of her soldiers and seamen,
 They are worthy forsooth of their hire.
 If the father won praise from all free men,
 Shall the sons not exult in their sire ?
 Let money make sunny
 And power make proud their lives,
 And feed them and breed them
 Like drones in drowsiest hives.

But if haply the name be a burden
 And the souls be no kindred of theirs,
 Should wise men rejoice in such guerdon
 Or brave men exult in such heirs ?
 Or rather the father
 Frown, shamefaced, on the son,
 And no men but foemen, Deriding, cry " Well done " ?

Let the gold and the land they inherit Pass ever from hand into hand :
 In right of the forefather's merit
 Let the gold be the son's, and the land.
 Soft raiment, rich payment,
 High place, the state affords ;
 Full measure of pleasure ;
 But now no more, my lords.

Is the future beleaguered with dangers
 If the poor be far other than slaves ?
 Shall the sons of the land be as strangers
 In the land of their forefathers' graves ?
 Shame were it to bear it,
 And shame it were to see :
 If free men you be, men,
 Let proof proclaim you free.

" But democracy means dissolution :
 See, laden with clamour and crime,
 How the darkness of dim revolution
 Comes deepening the twilight of time !
 Ah, better the fetter
 That holds the poor man's hand
 Than peril of sterile
 Blind change that wastes the land.

" Gaze forward through clouds that environ ;
 It shall be as it was in the past :
 Not with dreams, but with blood and with iron, Shall a nation be moulded to last."
 So teach they, so preach they,
 Who dream themselves the dream
 That hallows the gallows
 And bids the scaffold stream.

" With a hero at head, and a nation
 Well gagged and well drilled and well cowed,
 And a gospel of war and damnation,
 Has not empire a right to be proud ?
 Fools prattle and tattle
 Of freedom, reason, right,
 The beauty of duty,
 The loveliness of light.

" But we know, we believe it, we see it, Force only has power upon earth."
 So be it ! and ever so be it
 For souls that are bestial by birth !
 Let Prussian with Russian Exchange the kiss of slaves :
 But sea-folk are free folk
 By grace of winds and waves.

Has the past from the sepulchres beckoned ?

Let answer from Englishmen be—

No man shall be lord of us reckoned

Who is baser, not better, than we.

No coward, empowered

To soil a brave man's name :

For shame's sake and fame's sake,

Enough of fame and shame.

Fame needs not the golden addition ;

Shame bears it abroad as a brand.

Let the deed, and no more the tradition,

Speak out and be heard through the land.

Pride, rootless and fruitless,

No longer takes and gives .

But surer and purer

The soul of England lives.

He is master and lord of his brothers

Who is worthier and wiser than they.

Him only, him surely, shall others,

Else equal, observe and obey.

Truth, flawless and awless,

Do falsehood what it can,

Makes royal the loyal

And simple heart of man.

Who are these, then, that England should hearken,

Who rage and wax wroth and grow pale

If she turn from the sunsets that darken

And her ship for the morning set sail ?

Let strangers fear dangers :

All know, that hold her dear,

Dishonour upon her

Can only fall through fear.

Men, born of the landsmen and seamen
Who served her with souls and with swords,
She bids you be brothers, and free men,
And lordless, and fearless of lords.
She cares not, she dares not Care now for gold or steel :
Light lead her, truth speed her,
God save the Commonweal !

A WORD FOR THE NATION

A WORD across the water
 Against our ears is borne,
 Of threatenings and of slaughter,
 Of rage and spite and scorn :
 We have not, alack, an ally to befriend us,
 And the season is ripe to extirpate and end us :
 Let the German touch hands with the Gaul,
 And the fortress of England must fall ;
 And the sea shall be swept of her seamen,
 And the waters they ruled be their graves,
 And Dutchmen and Frenchmen be free men,
 And Englishmen slaves.

II

Our time once more is over,
 Once more our end is near :
 A bull without a drover,
 The Briton reels to rear,
 And the van of the nations is held by his betters,
 And the seas of the world shall be loosed from his fetters,
 And his glory shall pass as a breath,
 And the life that is in him be death ;

And the sepulchre sealed on his glory
 For a sign to the nations shall be
 As of Tyre and of Carthage in story,
 Once lords of the sea.

The lips are wise and loyal,
 The hearts are brave and true,
 Imperial thoughts and royal
 Make strong the clamorous crew,
 Whence louder and prouder the noise of defiance Rings rage from the grave of a trustless alliance,
 And bids us beware and be warned,
 As abhorred of all nations and scorned,
 As a swordless and spiritless nation,
 A wreck on the waste of the waves.
 So foams the released indignation
 Of masterless slaves.

Brute throats that miss the collar,
 Bowed backs that ask the whip,
 Stretched hands that lack the dollar,
 And many a lie-seared lip,
 Forefeel and foreshow for us signs as funereal
 As the signs that were regal of yore and imperial;
 We shall pass as the princes they served,
 We shall reap what our fathers deserved,
 And the place that was England's be taken By one that is worthier than she,
 And the yoke of her empire be shaken
 Like spray from the sea.

French hounds, whose necks are aching
Still from the chain they crave,
In dog-day madness breaking
The dog-leash, thus may rave :
But the seas that for ages have fostered and fenced
her
Laugh, echoing the yell of their kennel against her
And their moan if destruction draw near them
And the roar of her laughter to hear them ;
For she knows that if Englishmen be men
Their England has all that she craves ;
All love and all honour from free men,
All hatred from slaves.

vi

All love that rests upon her
Like sunshine and sweet air,
All light of perfect honour
And praise that ends in prayer,
She wins not more surely, she wears not more proudly,
Than the token of tribute that clatters thus loudly,
The tribute of foes when they meet
That rattles and rings at her feet,
The tribute of rage and of rancour,
The tribute of slaves to the free,
To the people whose hope hath its anchor
Made fast in the sea.

No fool that bows the back he Feels fit for scourge or brand,
No scurril scribes that lackey
The lords of Lackeyland,
No penman that yearns, as he turns on his pallet,
For the place or the pence of a peer or a valet,
No whelp of as currish a pack
As the litter whose yelp it gives back,
Though he answer the cry of his brother
As echoes might answer from caves,
Shall be witness as though for a mother
Whose children were slaves.

VIII

But those found fit to love her,
Whose love has root in faith,
Who hear, though darkness cover
Time's face, what memory saith,
Who seek not the service of great men or small men
But the weal that is common for comfort of all men,
Those yet that in trust have beholden Truth's dawn over England grow golden
And quicken the darkness that stagnates
And scatter the shadows that flee,
Shall reply for her meanest as magnates
And masters by sea.

IX

And all shall mark her station,
Her message all shall hear,
When, equal-eyed, the nation
Bids all her sons draw near,

And freedom be more than tradition or faction,
And thought be no swifter to serve her than action,
And justice alone be above her,
That love may be prouder to love her,
And time on the crest of her story

Inscribe, as remembrance engraves,
The sign that subdues with its glory
Kings, princes, and slaves.

A WORD FROM THE PSALMIST

Ps. xciv. 8

I

“TAKE heed, ye unwise among the people :
 O ye fools, when will ye understand ?”
 From pulpit or choir beneath the steeple, Though the words be fierce, the tones are bland.

But a louder than the Church's echo thunders
 In the ears of men who may not choose but hear ;
 And the heart in him that hears it leaps and wonders,
 With triumphant hope astonished, or with fear.
 For the names whose sound was power awaken
 Neither love nor reverence now nor dread ; Their strongholds and shrines are stormed and taken, .
 Their kingdom and all its works are dead.

II

Take heed : for the tide of time is risen :
 It is full not yet, though now so high
 That spirits and hopes long pent in prison
 Feel round them a sense of freedom nigh,

And a savour keen and sweet of brine and billow,
And a murmur deep and strong of deepening strength.
Though the watchman dream, with sloth or pride for pillow,
And the night be long, not endless is its length.
From the springs of dawn, from clouds that sever,
From the equal heavens and the eastward sea,
The witness comes that endures for ever,
Till men be brethren and thralls be free.

III

But the wind of the wings of dawn expanding Strikes chill on your hearts as change and
death.
Ye are old, but ye have not understanding ;
And proud, but your pride is a dead man's
breath.
And your wise men, toward whose words and signs ye hearken,
And your strong men, in whose hands ye put your trust,
Strain eyes to behold but clouds and dreams that darken,
Stretch hands that can find but weapons red with rust.
Their watchword rings, and the night rejoices,
But the lark's note laughs at the night-bird's notes—
“Is virtue verily found in voices ?
Or is wisdom won when all win votes ?

"Take heed, ye unwise indeed, who listen When the wind's wings beat and shift and
 change ;
 Whose hearts are uplift, whose eyeballs glisten,
 With desire of new things great and strange.
 Let not dreams misguide nor any visions wrong you :
 That which has been, it is now as it was then.
 Is not Compromise of old a god among you ?
 Is not Precedent indeed a king of men ?
 But the windy hopes that lead mislead you,
 And the sounds ye hear are void and vain,
 Is a vote a coat ? will franchise feed you,
 Or words be a roof against the rain ?

"Eight ages are gone since kingship entered,
 With knights and peers at its harnessed back,
 And the land, no more in its own strength centred,
 Was cast for a prey to the princely pack.
 But we pared the fangs and clipped the ravening claws of it,
 And good was in time brought forth of an evil thing,
 And the land's high name waxed lordlier in war because of it,
 When chartered Right had bridled and curbed the king.
 And what so fair has the world beholden,
 And what so firm has withstood the years,
 As Monarchy bound in chains all golden,
 And Freedom guarded about with peers ?

VI

“ How think ye ? know not your lords and masters
What collars are meet for brawling throats ?
Is change not mother of strange disasters ?
Shall plague or peril be stayed by votes ?
Out of precedent and privilege and order Have we plucked the flower of compromise, whose root
Bears blossoms that shine from border again to border,
And the mouths of many are fed with its temperate fruit.
Your masters are wiser than ye, their henchmen :
Your lords know surely whereof ye have need.
Equality ? Fools, would you fain be Frenchmen ?
Is equity more than a word indeed ?

“ Your voices, forsooth, your most sweet voices,
Your worthy voices, your love, your hate,
Your choice, who know not whereof your choice is,
What stays are these for a stable state ?
Inconstancy, blind and deaf with its own fierce babble, Swells ever your throats with storm of uncertain cheers :
He leans on straws who leans on a light-souled rabble ;
His trust is frail who puts not his trust in peers.”
So shrills the message whose word convinces
Of righteousness knaves, of wisdom fools ;
That serfs may boast them because of princes,
And the weak rejoice that the strong man rules.

True friends, ye people, are these, the faction
 Full-mouthed that flatters and snarls and bays,
 That fawns and foams with alternate action,
 And mocks the names that it soils with praise.
 As from fraud and force their power had first beginning,
 So by righteousness and peace it may not stand,
 But by craft of state and nets of secret spinning, Words that weave and unweave wiles like ropes of sand,
 Form, custom, and gold, and laws grown hoary,
 And strong tradition that guards the gate :
 To these, O people, to these give glory,
 That your name among nations may be great.

IX

How long—for haply not now much longer—
 Shall fear put faith in a faithless creed,
 And shapes and shadows of truths be stronger
 In strong men's eyes than the truth indeed ?
 If freedom be not a word that dies when spoken,
 If justice be not a dream whence men must wake, How shall not the bonds of the thraldom of old be broken,
 And right put might in the hands of them that break ?
 For clear as a tocsin from the steeple
 Is the cry gone forth along the land,
 Take heed, ye unwise among the people :
 O ye fools, when will ye understand ?

A BALLAD AT PARTING

SEA to sea that clasps and fosters England, uttering evermore

Song eterne and praise immortal of the indomitable shore,

Lifts aloud her constant heart up, south to north and east to west,

Here in speech that shames all music, there in thunder-throated roar,

Chiming concord out of discord, waking rapture out of rest.

All her ways are lovely, all her works and symbols are divine,

Yet shall man love best what first bade leap his heart and bend his knee ;

Yet where first his whole soul worshipped shall his soul set up her shrine :

Nor may love not know the lovelier, fair as both beheld may be,

Here the limitless north-eastern, there the strait
 south-western sea.

Though their chant bear all one burden, as ere man was born it bore ;

Though the burden be diviner than the songs all souls adore ;

Yet may love not choose but choose between them which to love the best.
Me the sea my nursing-mother, me the Channel green and hoar,
Holds at heart more fast than all things, bares for me the goodlier breast, Lifts for me the lordlier love-song, bids for me more sunlight shine,
Sounds for me the stormier trumpet of the sweeter strain to me.
So the broad pale Thames is loved not like the tawny springs of Tyne :
Choice is clear between them for the soul whose vision holds in fee
Here the limitless north-eastern, there the strait
south-western sea.

Choice is clear, but dear is either ; nor has either not in store
Many a likeness, many a written sign of spirit-searching lore,
Whence the soul takes fire of sweet remembrance, magnified and blest.
Thought of songs whose flame-winged feet have trod
the unfooted water-floor
When the lord of all the living lords of souls bade speed their quest ;
Soft live sound like children's babble down the rippling sand's incline,
Or the lovely song that loves them, hailed with thankful prayer and plea ;
These are parcels of the harvest here whose gathered sheaves are mine,

Garnered now, but sown and reaped where winds make wild with wrath or glee Here the limitless north-eastern, there the strait
south-western sea.

Song, thy name is freedom, seeing thy strength was born of breeze and brine.

Fare now forth and fear no fortune : such a seal is set on thee.

Joy begat and memory bare thee, seeing in spirit a twofold sign,

Even the sign of those thy fosters, each as thou from all time free,

Here the limitless north-eastern, there the strait
south-western sea.

ASTROPHEL

TO WILLIAM MORRIS

AFTER READING SIR PHILIP SIDNEY'S ARCADIA IN THE GARDEN OF AN OLD ENGLISH MANOR HOUSE.

A STAR in the silence that follows
The song of the death of the sun
Speaks music in heaven, and the hollows
And heights of the world are as one ;
One lyre that outsings and outlightens
The rapture of sunset, and thrills
Mute night till the sense of it brightens
The soul that it fills.

The flowers of the sun that is sunken
Hang heavy of heart as of head ;
The bees that have eaten and drunken
The soul of their sweetness are fled ;
But a sunflower of song, on whose honey
My spirit has fed as a bee,
Makes sunnier than morning was sunny
The twilight for me.

The letters and lines on the pages
That sundered mine eyes and the flowers

Wax faint as the shadows of ages
That sunder their season and ours ;
As the ghosts of the centuries that sever
A season of colourless time
From the days whose remembrance is ever,
As they were, sublime.

The season that bred and that cherished
The soul that I commune with yet,
Had it utterly withered and perished
To rise not again as it set,
Shame were it that Englishmen living
Should read as their forefathers read
The books of the praise and thanksgiving
Of Englishmen dead

O light of the land that adored thee
And kindled thy soul with her breath,
Whose life, such as fate would afford thee,
Was lovelier than aught but thy death,
By what name, could thy lovers but know it,
Might love of thee hail thee afar, Philisides, Astrophel, poet
Whose love was thy star ?

A star in the moondawn of Maytime,
A star in the cloudland of change ;
Too splendid and sad for the daytime
To cheer or eclipse or estrange ;
Too sweet for tradition or vision
To see but through shadows of tears
Rise deathless across the division
Of measureless years.

The twilight may deepen and harden
As nightward the stream of it runs
Till starshine transfigure a garden Whose radiance responds to the sun's :
The light of the love of thee darkens
The lights that arise and that set :
The love that forgets thee not hearkens
If England forget.

II

Bright and brief in the sight of grief and love the light of thy lifetime shone,
Seen and felt by the gifts it dealt, the grace it gave,
and again was gone :
Ay, but now it is death, not thou, whom time has conquered as years pass on.

Ay, not yet may the land forget that bore and loved thee and praised and wept, Sidney, lord of the stainless sword, the name of names that her heart's love kept Fast as thine did her own, a sign to light thy life till it sank and slept.

Bright as then for the souls of men thy brave Arcadia resounds and shines,
Lit with love that beholds above all joys and sorrows
the steadfast signs,
Faith, a splendour that hope makes tender, and truth, whose presage the soul divines.

All the glory that girds the story of all thy life as with sunlight round,

All the spell that on all souls fell who saw thy spirit, and held them bound,
Lives for all that have heard the call and cadence yet of its music sound.

Music bright as the soul of light, for wings an eagle, for notes a dove,
Leaps and shines from the lustrous lines where-through thy soul from afar above Shone and sang till the darkness rang with light whose fire is the fount of love.

Love that led thee alive, and fed thy soul with sorrows and joys and fears, Love that sped thee, alive and dead, to fame's fair goal with thy peerless peers, Feeds the flame of thy quenchless name with light that lightens the rayless years.

Dark as sorrow though night and morrow may lower with presage of clouded fame,
How may she that of old bare thee, may Sidney's England, be brought to shame?
How should this be, while England is? What need of answer beyond thy name?

III

From the love that transfigures thy glory,
From the light of the dawn of thy death,
The life of thy song and thy story
Took subtler and fierier breath.

And we, though the day and the morrow
Set fear and thanksgiving at strife, Hail yet in the star of thy sorrow
The sun of thy life.

Shame and fear may beset men here, and bid thanksgiving and pride be dumb :
Faith, discrowned of her praise, and wound about with toils till her life wax numb, Scarce may see if the sundawn be, if darkness die not and dayrise come.

But England, enmeshed and benetted
With spiritless villainies round,
With counsels of cowardice fretted,
With trammels of treason enwound,
Is yet, though the season be other Than wept and rejoiced over thee,
Thine England, thy lover, thy mother,
Sublime as the sea.

Hers wast thou : if her face be now less bright, or seem for an hour less brave, Let but thine on her darkness shine, thy saviour spirit revive and save,
Time shall see, as the shadows flee, her shame entombed in a shameful grave.

If death and not life were the portal
That opens on life at the last,
If the spirit of Sidney were mortal
And the past of it utterly past,

Fear stronger than honour was ever,
Forgetfulness mightier than fame,
Faith knows not if England should never Subside into shame.

Yea, but yet is thy sun not set, thy sunbright spirit of trust withdrawn :
England's love of thee burns above all hopes that darken or fears that fawn :
Hers thou art : and the faithful heart that hopes begets upon darkness dawn.

The sunset that sunrise will follow
Is less than the dream of a dream :
The starshine on height and on hollow
Sheds promise that dawn shall redeem :
The night, if the daytime would hide it,
Shows lovelier, aflame and afar,
Thy soul and thy Stella's beside it,
A star by a star.

A NYMPHOLEPT

SUMMER, and noon, and a splendour of silence, felt,
 Seen, and heard of the spirit within the sense.
 Soft through the frondage the shades of the sunbeams melt,
 Sharp through the foliage the shafts of them, keen and dense,
 Cleave, as discharged from the string of the God's bow, tense
 As a war-steed's girth, and bright as a warrior's belt.
 Ah, why should an hour that is heaven for an hour pass hence ?

I dare not sleep for delight of the perfect hour, Lest God be wroth that his gift should be scorned of man.
 The face of the warm bright world is the face of a flower,
 The word of the wind and the leaves that the light winds fan
 As the word that quickened at first into flame, and ran,
 Creative and subtle and fierce with invasive power, Through darkness and cloud, from the breath of the one God, Pan.

The perfume of earth possessed by the sun pervades
The chaster air that he soothes but with sense of sleep.

Soft, imminent, strong as desire that prevails and fades,

The passing noon that beholds not a cloudlet weep Imbues and impregnates life with delight more deep

Than dawn or sunset or moonrise on lawns or glades
Can shed from the skies that receive it and may not keep.

The skies may hold not the splendour of sundown
fast ;

It wanes into twilight as dawn dies down into
day.

And the moon, triumphant when twilight is overpast, Takes pride but awhile in the hours of her stately sway.

But the might of the noon, though the light of it pass away,

Leaves earth fulfilled of desires and of dreams that last ;

But if any there be that hath sense of them none can say.

For if any there be that hath sight of them, sense, or trust

Made strong by the might of a vision, the strength of a dream,

His lips shall straiten and close as a dead man's must,

His heart shall be sealed as the voice of a frost-bound stream.

For the deep mid mystery of light and of heat that seem
To clasp and pierce dark earth, and enkindle dust, Shall a man's faith say what it is? or a man's guess deem?

Sleep lies not heavier on eyes that have watched all
night
Than hangs the heat of the noon on the hills and trees.
Why now should the haze not open, and yield to sight
A fairer secret than hope or than slumber sees?
I seek not heaven with submission of lips and knees,
With worship and prayer for a sign till it leap to
light :
I gaze on the gods about me, and call on these.

I call on the gods hard by, the divine dim powers Whose likeness is here at hand, in the breathless
air,
In the pulseless peace of the fervid and silent flowers,
In the faint sweet speech of the waters that whisper there.
Ah, what should darkness do in a world so fair?
The bent-grass heaves not, the couch-grass quails not or cowers ;
The wind's kiss frets not the rowan's or aspen's
hair:

But the silence trembles with passion of sound suppressed,
And the twilight quivers and yearns to the sun-ward, wrung

With love as with pain ; and the wide wood's motionless breast

Is thrilled with a dumb desire that would fain find tongue

And palpitates, tongueless as she whom a man-snake stung,

Whose heart now heaves in the nightingale, never at rest

Nor satiated ever with song till her last be sung.

Is it rapture or terror that circles me round, and invades

Each vein of my life with hope—if it be not fear ?

Each pulse that awakens my blood into rapture fades,

Each pulse that subsides into dread of a strange thing near Requickness with sense of a terror less dread than dear.

Is peace not one with light in the deep green glades

Where summer at noondays slumbers ? Is peace not here ?

The tall thin stems of the firs, and the roof sublime

That screens from the sun the floor of the steep still wood,

Deep, silent, splendid, and perfect and calm as time,

Stand fast as ever in sight of the night they stood,

When night gave all that moonlight and dewfall could.

The dense ferns deepen, the moss glows warm as the thyme :

The wild heath quivers about me : the world is good.

Is it Pan's breath, fierce in the tremulous maidenhair, That bids fear creep as a snake through the woodlands, felt

In the leaves that it stirs not yet, in the mute bright air, In the stress of the sun? For here has the great God dwelt :

For hence were the shafts of his love or his anger dealt.

For here has his wrath been fierce as his love was fair, When each was as fire to the darkness its breath bade melt.

Is it love, is it dread, that enkindles the trembling noon,

That yearns, reluctant in rapture that fear has fed,
As man for woman, as woman for man? Full soon,
If I live, and the life that may look on him drop not dead,

Shall the ear that hears not a leaf quake hear his tread,

The sense that knows not the sound of the deep day's tune

Receive the God, be it love that he brings or dread.

The naked noon is upon me : the fierce dumb spell,
The fearful charm of the strong sun's imminent
might,

Unmerciful, steadfast, deeper than seas that swell,
Pervades, invades, appals me with loveless light,
With harsher awe than breathes in the breath of
night.

Have mercy, God who art all ! For I know thee well, How sharp is thine eye to lighten, thine hand to smite.

The whole wood feels thee, the whole air fears thee :
but fear

So deep, so dim, so sacred, is wellnigh sweet.
For the light that hangs and broods on the woodlands here,

Intense, invasive, intolerant, imperious, and meet
To lighten the works of thine hands and the ways of thy feet,
Is hot with the fire of the breath of thy life, and dear As hope that shrivels or shrinks not for frost or heat.

Thee, thee the supreme dim godhead, approved afar, Perceived of the soul and conceived of the sense of man,

We scarce dare love, and we dare not fear : the star
We call the sun, that lit us when life began To brood on the world that is thine by his grace for a span,

Conceals and reveals in the semblance of things that are

Thine immanent presence, the pulse of thy heart's life, Pan.

The fierce mid noon that wakens and warms the snake

Conceals thy mercy, reveals thy wrath : and again
The dew-bright hour that assuages the twilight
brake

Conceals thy wrath and reveals thy mercy : then Thou art fearful only for evil souls of men
That feel with nightfall the serpent within them wake,

And hate the holy darkness on glade and glen.

Yea, then we know not and dream not if ill things be,
Or if aught of the work of the wrong of the world be thine.

We hear not the footfall of terror that treads the
sea,

We hear not the moan of winds that assail the pine :

We see not if shipwreck reign in the storm's dim shrine ;

If death do service and doom bear witness to thee

We see not,—know not if blood for thy lips be wine.

But in all things evil and fearful that fear may scan,

As in all things good, as in all things fair that fall,

We know thee present and latent, the lord of man ;

In the murmuring of doves, in the clamouring of winds that call

And wolves that howl for their prey ; in the midnight's pall,

In the naked and nymph-like feet of the dawn, O Pan,

And in each life living, O thou the God who art all.

Smiling and singing, wailing and wringing of hands,

Laughing and weeping, watching and sleeping, still

Proclaim but and prove but thee, as the shifted sands

Speak forth and show but the strength of the sea's wild will

That sifts and grinds them as grain in the stormwind's mill.

In thee is the doom that falls and the doom that stands :

The tempests utter thy word, and the stars fulfil.

Where Etna shudders with passion and pain volcanic That rend her heart as with anguish that rends a man's,
Where Typho labours, and finds not his thews Titanic, In breathless torment that ever the flame's breath fans,
Men felt and feared thee of old, whose pastoral clans
Were given to the charge of thy keeping ; and soundless panic
Held fast the woodland whose depths and whose heights were Pan's.

And here, though fear be less than delight, and awe Be one with desire and with worship of earth and
thee,
So mild seems now thy secret and speechless law,
So fair and fearless and faithful and godlike she,
So soft the spell of thy whisper on stream and sea, Yet man should fear lest he see what of old men saw
And withered : yet shall I quail if thy breath smite
me.

Lord God of life and of light and of all things fair,
Lord God of ravin and ruin and all things dim,
Death seals up life, and darkness the sunbright air,
And the stars that watch blind earth in the deep night swim
Laugh, saying, " What God is your God, that ye call on him ?
What is man, that the God who is guide of our way should care
If day for a man be golden, or night be grim ? "

But thou, dost thou hear? Stars too but abide for a span,
Gods too but endure for a season; but thou, if thou be
God, more than shadows conceived and adored of man, Kind Gods and fierce, that bound him or made him
free,
The skies that scorn us are less in thy sight than
we,
Whose souls have strength to conceive and perceive thee, Pan,
With sense more subtle than senses that hear and see.

Yet may not it say, though it seek thee and think to find
One soul of sense in the fire and the frost-bound clod,
What heart is this, what spirit alive or blind,
That moves thee : only we know that the ways we trod
We tread, with hands unguided, with feet unshod,
With eyes unlightened ; and yet, if with steadfast
mind,
Perchance may we find thee and know thee at last for God.

Yet then should God be dark as the dawn is bright,
And bright as the night is dark on the world—no more.
Light slays not darkness, and darkness absorbs not
light ;
And the labour of evil and good from the years of yore

Is even as the labour of waves on a sunless shore.
And he who is first and last, who is depth and height, Keeps silence now, as the sun when the woods wax hoar.

The dark dumb godhead innate in the fair world's life Imbues the rapture of dawn and of noon with dread,
Infects the peace of the star-shod night with strife, Informs with terror the sorrow that guards the dead.

No service of bended knee or of humbled head May soothe or subdue the God who has change to wife :

And life with death is as morning with evening wed.

And yet, if the light and the life in the light that here Seem soft and splendid and fervid as sleep may seem

Be more than the shine of a smile or the flash of a tear, Sleep, change, and death are less than a spell-struck dream,

And fear than the fall of a leaf on a starlit stream.
And yet, if the hope that hath said it absorb not fear, What helps it man that the stars and the waters gleam?

What helps it man, that the noon be indeed intense,
The night be indeed worth worship? Fear and pain

Were lords and masters yet of the secret sense, Which now dares deem not that light is as darkness, fain

Though dark dreams be to declare it, crying in vain.

For whence, thou God of the light and the darkness,
whence

Dawns now this vision that bids not the sunbeams wane?

What light, what shadow, diviner than dawn or
night,

Draws near, makes pause, and again—or I dream—draws near?

More soft than shadow, more strong than the strong sun's light,

More pure than moonbeams—yea, but the rays run sheer

As fire from the sun through the dusk of the pine-wood, clear

And constant ; yea, but the shadow itself is bright

That the light clothes round with love that is one with fear.

Above and behind it the noon and the woodland lie,

Terrible, radiant with mystery, superb and subdued,

Triumphant in silence ; and hardly the sacred sky

Seems free from the tyrannous weight of the dumb fierce mood

Which rules as with fire and invasion of beams that brood

The breathless rapture of earth till its hour pass by

And leave her spirit released and her peace renewed.

I sleep not : never in sleep has a man beholden

This. From the shadow that trembles and yearns with light

Suppressed and elate and reluctant—obscure and golden

As water kindled with presage of dawn or night—
A form, a face, a wonder to sense and sight, Grows great as the moon through the month ; and her eyes embolden
Fear, till it change to desire, and desire to delight.

I sleep not : sleep would die of a dream so strange ;
A dream so sweet would die as a rainbow dies,
As a sunbow laughs and is lost on the waves that range
And reck not of light that flickers or spray that flies.
But the sun withdraws not; the woodland shrinks not or sighs,
No sweet thing sickens with sense or with fear of change ;
Light wounds not, darkness blinds not, my steadfast eyes.

Only the soul in my sense that receives the soul Whence now my spirit is kindled with breathless
bliss
Knows well if the light that wounds it with love makes whole,
If hopes that carol be louder than fears that hiss,
If truth be spoken of flowers and of waves that kiss,
Of clouds and stars that contend for a sunbright goal.
And yet may I dream that I dream not indeed of this ?

An earth-born dreamer, constrained by the bonds of birth,
Held fast by the flesh, compelled by his veins that beat
And kindle to rapture or wrath, to desire or to mirth,

May hear not surely the fall of immortal feet,
May feel not surely if heaven upon earth be sweet ;
And here is my sense fulfilled of the joys of earth, Light, silence, bloom, shade, murmur of leaves that meet.

Bloom, fervour, and perfume of grasses and flowers aglow,
Breathe and brighten about me : the darkness
gleams,
The sweet light shivers and laughs on the slopes below,
Made soft by leaves that lighten and change like
dreams ;
The silence thrills with the whisper of secret streams That well from the heart of the woodland : these I know :
Earth bore them, heaven sustained them with showers and beams.

I lean my face to the heather, and drink the sun Whose flame-lit odour satiates the flowers : mine
eyes
Close, and the goal of delight and of life is one :
No more I crave of earth or her kindred skies.
No more? But the joy that springs from them smiles and flies .
The sweet work wrought of them surely, the good work done,
If the mind and the face of the season be loveless,
dies.
Thee, therefore, thee would I come to, cleave to,
cling,
If haply thy heart be kind and thy gifts be good,

Unknown sweet spirit, whose vesture is soft in spring,
In summer splendid, in autumn pale as the wood That shudders and wanes and shrinks as a shamed thing should,
In winter bright as the mail of a war-worn king Who stands where foes fled far from the face of him stood.

My spirit or thine is it, breath of thy life or of mine,
Which fills my sense with a rapture that casts out fear?
Pan's dim frown wanes, and his wild eyes brighten as thine,
Transformed as night or as day by the kindling year.
Earth-born, or mine eye were withered that sees,
mine ear
That hears were stricken to death by the sense divine, Earth-born I know thee : but heaven is about me here.

The terror that whispers in darkness and flames in
light,
The doubt that speaks in the silence of earth and
sea,
The sense, more fearful at noon than in midmost
night,
Of wrath scarce hushed and of imminent ill to be, Where are they? Heaven is as earth, and as heaven to me
Earth : for the shadows that sundered them here take flight ;
And nought is all, as am I, but a dream of thee.

ON THE SOUTH COAST

HILLS and valleys where April rallies his radiant squadron of flowers and birds, Steep strange beaches and lustrous reaches of fluctuant sea that the land engirds, Fields and downs that the sunrise crowns with life diviner than lives in words,

Day by day of resurgent May salute the sun with sublime acclaim,
Change and brighten with hours that lighten and darken, girdled with cloud or flame ;
Earth's fair face in alternate grace beams, blooms, and lowers, and is yet the same.

Twice each day the divine sea's play makes glad with glory that comes and goes Field and street that her waves keep sweet, when past the bounds of their old repose, Fast and fierce in renewed reverse, the foam-flecked estuary ebbs and flows.

Broad and bold through the stays of old staked fast with trunks of the wildwood tree, Up from shoreward, impelled far forward, by marsh and meadow, by lawn and lea, Inland still at her own wild will swells, rolls, and revels the surging sea.

Strong as time, and as faith sublime,—clothed round with shadows of hopes and fears, Nights and morrows, and joys and sorrows, alive with passion of prayers and tears,— Stands the shrine that has seen decline eight hundred waxing and waning years.

Tower set square to the storms of air and change of season that glooms and glows, Wall and roof of it tempest-proof, and equal ever to suns and snows,
Bright with riches of radiant niches and pillars smooth as a straight stem grows.

Aisle and nave that the whelming wave of time has whelmed not or touched or neared, Arch and vault without stain or fault, by hands of craftsmen we know not reared, Time beheld them, and time was quelled ; and change passed by them as one that feared.

Time that flies as a dream, and dies as dreams that die with the sleep they feed, Here alone in a garb of stone incarnate stands as a god indeed,
Stern and fair, and of strength to bear all burdens mortal to man's frail seed.

Men and years are as leaves or tears that storm or sorrow is fain to shed :

These go by as the winds that sigh, and none takes note of them quick or dead :

Time, whose breath is their birth and death, folds here his pinions, and bows his head.

. Still the sun that beheld begun the work wrought here of unwearied hands

Sees, as then, though the Red King's men held ruthless rule over lawless lands,

Stand their massive design, impassive, pure and proud as a virgin stands.

Statelier still as the years fulfil their count, subserving her sacred state,

Grows the hoary grey church whose story silence utters and age makes great :

Statelier seems it than shines in dreams the face unveiled of unvanquished fate.

Fate, more high than the star-shown sky, more deep than waters unsounded, shines

Keen and far as the final star on souls that seek not for charms or signs ;

Yet more bright is the love-shown light of men's hands lighted in songs or shrines.

Love and trust that the grave's deep dust can soil not, neither may fear put out,

Witness yet that their record set stands fast, though years be as hosts in rout,

Spent and slain ; but the signs remain that beat back darkness and cast forth doubt.

Men that wrought by the grace of thought and toil things goodlier than praise dare trace, Fair as all that the world may call most fair, save only the sea's own face, Shrines or songs that the world's change wrongs not, live by grace of their own gift's grace.

Dead, their names that the night reclaims—alive, their works that the day relumes—Sink and stand, as in stone and sand engraven ; none may behold their tombs :
Nights and days shall record their praise while here this flower of their grafting blooms.

Flower more fair than the sun-thrilled air bids laugh and lighten and wax and rise, Fruit more bright than the fervent light sustains with strength from the kindled skies, Flower and fruit that the deathless root of man's love rears though the man's name dies.

Stately stands it, the work of hands unknown of :
statelier, afar and near,
Rise around it the heights that bound our landward gaze from the seaboard here ;
Downs that swerve and aspire, in curve and change of heights that the dawn holds dear.

Dawn falls fair on the grey walls there confronting dawn, on the low green lea, Lone and sweet as for fairies' feet held sacred, silent and strange and free, Wild and wet with its rills ; but yet more fair falls dawn on the fairer sea.

Eastward, round by the high green bound of hills that fold the remote fields in,
Strive and shine on the low sea-line fleet waves and beams when the days begin ;
Westward glow, when the days burn low, the sun that yields and the stars that win.

Rose-red eve on the seas that heave sinks fair as dawn when the first ray peers ;
Winds are glancing from sunbright Lancing to Shoreham, crowned with the grace of years ; Shoreham, clad with the sunset, glad and grave with glory that death reveres.

Death, more proud than the kings' heads bowed before him, stronger than all things, bows Here his head : as if death were dead, and kingship plucked from his crownless brows, Life hath here such a face of cheer as change appals not and time avows.

Skies fulfilled with the sundown, stilled and splendid, spread as a flower that spreads, Pave with rarer device and fairer than heaven's the luminous oyster-beds,
Grass-embanked, and in square plots ranked, inlaid with gems that the sundown sheds.

Squares more bright and with lovelier light than heaven that kindled it shines with shine Warm and soft as the dome aloft, but heavenlier yet than the sun's own shrine :
Heaven is high, but the water-sky lit here seems deeper and more divine.

Flowers on flowers, that the whole world's bowers may show not, here may the sunset show, Lightly graven in the waters paven with ghostly gold by the clouds aglow :
Bright as love is the vault above, but lovelier lightens the wave below.

Rosy grey, or as fiery spray full-plumed, or greener than emerald, gleams
Plot by plot as the skies allot for each its glory, divine as dreams
Lit with fire of appeased desire which sounds the secret of all that seems ;

Dreams that show what we fain would know, and know not save by the grace of sleep, Sleep whose hands have removed the bands that eyes long waking and fain to weep Feel fast bound on them—light around them strange, and darkness above them steep.

Yet no vision that heals division of love from love, and renews awhile
Life and breath in the lips where death has quenched the spirit of speech and smile, Shows on earth, or in heaven's mid mirth, where no fears enter or doubts defile,

Aught more fair than the radiant air and water here by the twilight wed,
Here made one by the waning sun whose last love quickenens to rosebright red Half the crown of the soft high down that rears to northward its wood-girt head.

There, when day is at height of sway, men's eyes who stand, as we oft have stood, High where towers with its world of flowers the golden spinny that flanks the wood, See before and around them shore and seaboard glad as their gifts are good.

Higher and higher to the north aspire the green smooth-swelling unending downs ;
East and west on the brave earth's breast glow girdle-jewels of gleaming towns ; Southward shining, the lands declining subside in peace that the sea's light crowns.

Westward wide in its fruitful pride the plain lies lordly with plenteous grace ;
Fair as dawn's when the fields and lawns desire her glitters the glad land's face :
Eastward yet is the sole sign set of elder days and a lordlier race.

Down beneath us afar, where seethe in wilder weather the tides aflow,
Hurled up hither and drawn down thither in quest of rest that they may not know, Still as dew on a flower the blue broad stream now sleeps in the fields below.

Mild and bland in the fair green land it smiles, and takes to its heart the sky ;
Scarce the meads and the fens, the reeds and grasses, still as they stand or lie, Wear the palm of a statelier calm than rests on waters that pass them by.

Yet shall these, when the winds and seas of equal days and coequal nights

Rage, rejoice, and uplift a voice whose sound is even as a sword that smites,

Felt and heard as a doomsman's word from seaward reaches to landward heights,

Lift their heart up, and take their part of triumph, swollen and strong with rage,

Rage elate with desire and great with pride that tempest and storm assuage ;

So their chime in the ear of time has rung from age to rekindled age.

Fair and dear is the land's face here, and fair man's work as a man's may be :

Dear and fair as the sunbright air is here the record that speaks him free ;

Free by birth of a sacred earth, and regent ever of all the sea.

AN AUTUMN VISION

OCTOBER 31, 1889

Ζεφύρου γίγαντος αἶρα

I

Is it Midsummer here in the heavens that illumine
 October on earth ?
 Can the year, when his heart is fulfilled with desire of the days of his mirth,
 Redeem them, recall, or remember ?
 For a memory recalling the rapture of earth, and redeeming the sky,
 Shines down from the heights to the depths : will the watchword of dawn be July
 When to-morrow acclaims November ?
 The stern salutation of sorrow to death or repentance to shame
 Was all that the season was wont to accord her of grace or acclaim ;
 No lightnings of love and of laughter.
 But here, in the laugh of the loud west wind from around and above,
 In the flash of the waters beneath him, what sound or what light but of love Rings round him or leaps forth after ?

II

Wind beloved of earth and sky and sea beyond all winds that blow,

Wind whose might in fight was England's on her mightiest warrior day,

South-west wind, whose breath for her was life, and fire to scourge her foe,

Steel to smite and death to drive him down an unreturning way,

Well-beloved and welcome, sounding all the clarions of the sky,

Rolling all the marshalled waters toward the charge that storms the shore,

We receive, acclaim, salute thee, we who live and dream and die,

As the mightiest mouth of song that ever spake acclaimed of yore.

We that live as they that per'sh praise thee, lord of cloud and wave,

Wind of winds, clothed on with darkness whence as lightning light comes forth,

We that know thee strong to guard and smite, to scatter and to save,

We to whom the south-west wind is dear as Athens held the north.

He for her waged war as thou for us against all powers defiant,

Fleets full-fraught with storm from Persia, laden deep with death from Spain:

Thee the giant god of song and battle hailed as god and giant,

Yet not his but ours the land is whence thy praise should ring and rain ;

Rain as rapture shed from song, and ring as trumpets blown for battle,
Sound and sing before thee, loud and glad as leaps and sinks the sea :
Yea, the sea's white steeds are curbed and spurred of thee, and pent as cattle, Yet they laugh with love and pride to live, subdued not save of thee.
Ears that hear thee hear in heaven the sound of widening wings gigantic, Eyes that see the cloud-lift westward see thy darkening brows divine ;
Wings whose measure is the limit of the limitless Atlantic,
Brows that bend, and bid the sovereign sea submit her soul to thine.

III

Twelve days since is it---twelve days gone,
Lord of storm, that a storm-bow shone
Higher than sweeps thy sublime dark wing,
Fair as dawn is and sweet like spring ?

Never dawn in the deep wide east
Spread so splendid and strange a feast,
Whence the soul as it drank and fed Felt such rapture of wonder shed.

Never spring in the wild wood's heart
Felt such flowers at her footfall start,
Born of earth, as arose on sight
Born of heaven and of storm and light.

Stern and sullen, the grey grim sea
Swelled and strove as in toils, though free,
Free as heaven, and as heaven sublime,
Clear as heaven of the toils of time.

Suddenly, sheer from the heights to the depths of the sky and the sea,
Sprang from the darkness alive as a vision of life
to be
Glory triune and transcendent of colour afar and afire, Arching and darkening the darkness with light as of dream or desire.
Heaven, in the depth of its height, shone wistful and wan from above :
Earth from beneath, and the sea, shone stricken and breathless with love.
As a shadow may shine, so shone they ; as ghosts of the viewless blest,
That sleep hath sight of alive in a rapture of sun-bright rest,
The green earth glowed and the grey sky gleamed for a wondrous while ;
And the storm's full frown was crossed by the light of its own deep smile.
As the darkness of thought and of passion is touched by the light that gives Life deathless as love from the depth of a spirit that sees and lives,
From the soul of a seer and a singer, wherein as a scroll unfurled
Lies open the scripture of light and of darkness, the word of the world,

So, shapeless and measureless, lurid as anguish and haggard as crime,
Pale as the front of oblivion and dark as the heart of
time,
The wild wan heaven at its height was assailed and subdued and made More fair than the skies that know not of storm and endure not shade.
The grim sea-swell, grey, sleepless, and sad as a soul estranged,
Shone, smiled, took heart, and was glad of its wrath :
and the world's face changed.

v

Up from moorlands northward gleaming
Even to heaven's transcendent height,
Clothed with massive cloud, and seeming
All one fortress reared of night,
Down to where the deep sea, dreaming
Angry dreams, lay dark and white,
White as death and dark as fate,
Heaving with the strong wind's weight,
Sad with stormy pride of state,
One full rainbow shone elate.

Up from inmost memory's dwelling
Where the light of life abides,
Where the past finds tongue, foretelling
Time that comes and grace that guides,
Power that saves and sways, compelling
Souls that ebb and flow like tides,
Shone or seemed to shine and swim
Through the cloud-surf great and grim,
Thought's live surge, the soul of him
By whose light the sun looks dim.

In what synod were they sitting,
All the gods and lords of time,
Whence they watched as fen-fires flitting
Years and names of men sublime,
When their counsels found it fitting
One should stand where none might climb—
None of man begotten, none
Born of men beneath the sun
Till the race of time be run,
Save this heaven-enfranchised one ?

With what rapture of creation
Was the soul supernal thrilled,
With what pride of adoration
Was the world's heart fired and filled,
Heaved in heavenward exaltation
Higher than hopes or dreams might build,
Grave with awe not known while he Was not, mad with glorious glee
As the sun-saluted sea,
When his hour bade Shakespeare be ?

VI

There, clear as night beholds her crowning seven,
The sea beheld his likeness set in heaven.
The shadow of his spirit full in sight
Shone : for the shadow of that soul is light.
Nor heaven alone bore witness : earth avowed Him present, and acclaimed of storm aloud.
From the arching sky to the ageless hills and sea
The whole world, visible, audible, was he :
Each part of all that wove that wondrous whole
The raiment of the presence of his soul.
The sun that smote and kissed the dark to death Spake, smiled, and strove, like song's triumphant
breath ;

The soundless cloud whose thunderous heart was dumb

Swelled, lowered, and shrank to feel its conqueror come.

Yet high from heaven its empire vast and vain
Frowned, and renounced not night's reluctant reign.

The serpentine swift sounds and shapes wherein
The stainless sea mocks earth and death and sin,

Crawls dark as craft, or flashes keen as hate,

Subdued and insubmissive, strong like fate

And weak like man, bore wrathful witness yet

That storms and sins are more than suns that set ;

That evil everlasting, girt for strife

Eternal, wars with hope as death with life.

The dark sharp shifting wind that bade the waves

Falter, lose heart, bow down like foes made slaves,

And waxed within more bitter as they bowed,

Baffling the sea, swallowing the sun with cloud,

Devouring fast as fire on earth devours

And hungering hard as frost that feeds on flowers,

Clothed round with fog that reeked as fume from hell,

And darkening with its miscreative spell

Light, glad and keen and splendid as the sword

Whose heft had known Othello's hand its lord,

Spake all the soul that hell drew back to greet

And felt its fire shrink shuddering from his feet.

Far off the darkness darkened, and recoiled,

And neared again, and triumphed : and the coiled

Colourless cloud and sea discoloured grew

Conscious of horror huge as heaven, and knew

Where Goneril's soul made chill and foul the mist,

And all the leprous life in Regan hissed.

Fierce homeless ghosts, rejected of the pit,

From hell to hell of storm fear watched them flit.

About them and before, the dull grey gloom
Shuddered, and heaven seemed hateful as the tomb
That shrinks from resurrection ; and from out That sullen hell which girt their shades about The nether soul that lurks and lowers within Man, made of dust and fire and shame and sin,
Breathed : all the cloud that felt it breathe and blight
Was blue as plague or black as thunderous night.
Elect of hell, the children of his hate Thronged, as to storm sweet heaven's triumphal gate.

The terror of his giving rose and shone Imminent : life had put its likeness on.
But higher than all its horrent height of shade Shone sovereign, seen by light itself had made,
Above the woes of all the world, above
Life, sin, and death, his myriad-minded love.
From landward heights whereon the radiance leant
Full-fraught from heaven, intense and imminent,
To depths wherein the seething strengths of cloud Scarce matched the wrath of waves whereon they bowed,

From homeborn pride and kindling love of home
To the outer skies and seas of fire and foam,
From splendour soft as dew that sundawn thrills
To gloom that shudders round the world it fills,
From midnights murmuring round Titania's ear
To midnights maddening round the rage of Lear,
The wonder woven of storm and sun became One with the light that lightens from his name.
The music moving on the sea that felt
The storm-wind even as snows of springtide melt Was blithe as Ariel's hand or voice might make And bid all grief die gladly for its sake.

And there the soul alive in ear and eye
That watched the wonders of an hour pass by Saw brighter than all stars that heaven inspheres
The silent splendour of Cordelia's tears,
Felt in the whispers of the quickening wind
The radiance of the laugh of Rosalind,
And heard, in sounds that melt the souls of men
With love of love, the tune of Imogen.

For the strong north-east is not strong to subdue and to slay the divine south-west,
And the darkness is less than the light that it darkens, and dies in reluctant rest.
It hovers and hangs on the labouring and trembling ascent of the dawn from the deep,
Till the sun's eye quicken the world and the waters, and smite it again into sleep.
Night, holy and starry, the fostress of souls, with the fragrance of heaven in her breath, Subdues with the sense of her godhead the forces and mysteries of sorrow and death.
Eternal as dawn's is the comfort she gives : but the mist that beleaguers and slays Comes, passes, and is not : the strength of it withers, appalled or assuaged by the day's.
Faith, haggard as Fear that had borne her, and dark as the sire that begat her, Despair, Held rule on the soul of the world and the song of it saddening through ages that were ;
Dim centuries that darkened and brightened and darkened again, and the soul of their song Was great as their grief, and sublime as their suffering, and strong as their sorrows were strong.

It knew not, it saw not, but shadows triune, and evoked by the strength of their spell Dark hell, and the mountain of anguish, and heaven that was hollower and harder than hell.
These are not : the womb of the darkness that bare them rejects them, and knows them no more : Thought, fettered in misery and iron, revives in the light that it lived in of yore.
For the soul that is wisdom and freedom, the spirit of England redeemed from her past, Speaks life through the lips of the master and lord of her children, the first and the last.
Thought, touched by his hand and redeemed by his breath, sees, hears, and accepts from above The limitless lightnings of vision and passion, the measureless music of love.

A SWIMMER'S DREAM

Somno mollior unda

I

DAWN is dim on the dark soft water,
 Soft and passionate, dark and sweet.
 Love's own self was the deep sea's daughter,
 Fair and flawless from face to feet,
 Hailed of all when the world was golden,
 Loved of lovers whose names beholden Thrill men's eyes as with light of olden Days more glad than their flight was fleet.

So they sang : but for men that love her,
 Souls that hear not her word in vain,
 Earth beside her and heaven above her Seem but shadows that wax and wane.
 Softer than sleep's are the sea's caresses,
 Kinder than love's that betrays and blesses,
 Blither than spring's when her flowerful tresses
 Shake forth sunlight and shine with rain.

All the strength of the waves that perish
 Swells beneath me and laughs and sighs,
Sighs for love of the life they cherish,
 Laughs to know that it lives and dies,
Dies for joy of its life, and lives Thrilled with joy that its brief death gives—Death whose laugh or whose breath forgives
 Change that bids it subside and rise.

II

Hard and heavy, remote but nearing,
 Sunless hangs the severe sky's weight,
Cloud on cloud, though the wind be veering
 Heaped on high to the sundawn's gate.
Dawn and even and noon are one,
Veiled with vapour and void of sun ;
Nought in sight or in fancied hearing
 Now less mighty than time or fate.

The grey sky gleams and the grey seas glimmer,
 Pale and sweet as a dream's delight,
As a dream's where darkness and light seem dimmer,
 Touched by dawn or subdued by night.
The dark wind, stern and sublime and sad,
Swings the rollers to westward, clad
With lustrous shadow that lures the swimmer,
 Lures and lulls him with dreams of light.

Light, and sleep, and delight, and wonder,
 Change, and rest, and a charm of cloud,
Fill the world of the skies whereunder
 Heaves and quivers and pants aloud

All the world of the waters, hoary
Now, but clothed with its own live glory,
That mates the lightning and mocks the thunder
With light more living and word more proud.

Far off westward, whither sets the sounding strife, Strife more sweet than peace, of shoreless waves whose glee
Scorns the shore and loves the wind that leaves them free,
Strange as sleep and pale as death and fair as life,
Shifts the moonlight-coloured sunshine on the sea.

Toward the sunset's goal the sunless waters crowd, Fast as autumn days toward winter : yet it seems Here that autumn wanes not, here that woods and streams
Lose not heart and change not likeness, chilled and bowed,
Warped and wrinkled : here the days are fair as dreams.

O russet-robed November,
What ails thee so to smile ?
Chill August, pale September, Endured a woful while,
And fell as falls an ember
From forth a flameless pile :
But golden-girt November
Bids all she looks on smile.

A SWIMMER'S DREAM

The lustrous foliage, waning
As wanes the morning moon,
Here falling, here refraining,
Outbraves the pride of June
With statelier semblance, feigning
No fear lest death be soon :
As though the woods thus waning
Should wax to meet the moon.

As though, when fields lie stricken
By grey December's breath,
These lordlier growths that sicken
And die for fear of death
Should feel the sense requicken
That hears what springtide saith
And thrills for love, spring-stricken
And pierced with April's breath.

The keen white-winged north-easter
That stings and spurs thy sea
Doth yet but feed and feast her
With glowing sense of glee :
Calm chained her, storm released her,
And storm's glad voice was he :
South-wester or north-easter,
Thy winds rejoice the sea.

v

A dream, a dream is it all—the season,
The sky, the water, the wind, the shore ?
A day-born dream of divine unreason,
A marvel moulded of sleep —no more ?

For the cloudlike wave that my limbs while cleaving
Feel as in slumber beneath them heaving
Soothes the sense as to slumber, leaving
Sense of nought that was known of yore.

A purer passion, a lordlier leisure,
A peace more happy than lives on land,
Fulfil with pulse of diviner pleasure
The dreaming head and the steering hand.
I lean my cheek to the cold grey pillow,
The deep soft swell of the full broad billow,
And close mine eyes for delight past measure,
And wish the wheel of the world would stand.

The wild-winged hour that we fain would capture Falls as from heaven that its light feet clomb,
So brief, so soft, and so full the rapture
Was felt that soothed me with sense of home.
To sleep, to swim, and to dream, for ever—Such joy the vision of man saw never ;
For here too soon will a dark day sever
The sea-bird's wing from the sea-wave's foam.

A dream, and more than a dream, and dimmer
At once and brighter than dreams that flee,
The moment's joy of the seaward swimmer
Abides, remembered as truth may be.
Not all the joy and not all the glory
Must fade as leaves when the woods wax hoary ;
For there the downs and the sea-banks glimmer,
And here to south of them swells the sea.

GRACE DARLING

TAKE, O star of all our seas, from not an alien
hand,
Homage paid of song bowed down before thy glory's face,
Thou the living light of all our lovely stormy strand, Thou the brave north-country's very glory of glories, Grace.

Loud and dark about the lighthouse rings and glares
the night ;
Glares with foam-lit gloom and darkling fire of storm and spray,
Rings with roar of winds in chase and rage of waves in flight,
Howls and hisses as with mouths of snakes and wolves at bay.
Scarce the cliffs of the islets, scarce the walls of Joyous Gard,
Flash to sight between the deadlier lightnings of the sea :
Storm is lord and master of a midnight evil-starred,
Nor may sight or fear discern what evil stars may be.

Dark as death and white as snow the sea-swell scowls and shines,

Heaves and yearns and pants for prey, from raven-ing lip to lip,

Strong in rage of rapturous anguish, lines on hurtling lines,

Ranks on charging ranks, that break and rend the battling ship.

All the night is mad and murderous : who shall front
the night ?

Not the prow that labours, helpless as a storm-blown leaf,

Where the rocks and waters, darkling depth and beetling height,

Rage with wave on shattering wave and thundering reef on reef.

Death is fallen upon the prisoners there of darkness, bound

Like as thralls with links of iron fast in bonds of
doom ;

How shall any way to break the bands of death be found,

Any hand avail to pluck them from that raging tomb ?

All the night is great with child of death : no stars
above

Show them hope in heaven, no lights from shores ward help on earth.

Is there help or hope to seaward, is there help in
love,

Hope in pity, where the ravening hounds of storm make mirth ?

Where the light but shows the naked eyeless face of
Death

Nearer, laughing dumb and grim across the loud live storm ?
Not in human heart or hand or speech of human
breath,
Surely, nor in saviours found of mortal face or form.
Yet below the light, between the reefs, a skiff shot
out
Seems a sea-bird fain to breast and brave the strait fierce pass
Whence the channelled roar of waters driven in raging rout,
Pent and pressed and maddened, speaks their monstrous might and mass.
Thunder heaves and howls about them, lightning leaps and flashes,
Hard at hand, not high in heaven, but close between the walls
Heaped and hollowed of the storms of old, whence reels and crashes
All the rage of all the unbaffled wave that breaks and falls.
Who shall thwart the madness and the gladness of it, laden
Full with heavy fate, and joyous as the birds that whirl ?
Nought in heaven or earth, if not one mortal-moulded
maiden,
Nought if not the soul that glorifies a northland girl.
Not the rocks that break may baffle, not the reefs that thwart Stay the ravenous rapture of the waves that crowd and leap ;

Scarce their flashing laughter shows the hunger of their heart,
Scarce their lion-throated roar the wrath at heart they keep.
Child and man and woman in the grasp of death clenched fast
Tremble, clothed with darkness round about, and scarce draw breath,
Scarce lift eyes up toward the light that saves not, scarce may cast
Thought or prayer up, caught and trammelled in the snare of death.
Not as sea-mews cling and laugh or sun their plumes and sleep
Cling and cower the wild night's waifs of shipwreck, blind with fear,
Where the fierce reef scarce yields foothold that a bird might keep,
And the clamorous darkness deadens eye and deafens ear.
Yet beyond their helpless hearing, out of hopeless
sight,
Saviours, armed and girt upon with strength of heart, fare forth,
Sire and daughter, hand on oar and face against the
night,
Maid and man whose names are beacons ever to the North.
Nearer now ; but all the madness of the storming surf
Hounds and roars them back ; but roars and hounds them back in vain :
As a pleasure-skiff may graze the lake-embanking turf,

So the boat that bears them grates the rock where-toward they strain.
Dawn as fierce and haggard as the face of night scarce guides
Toward the cries that rent and clove the darkness, crying for aid,
Hours on hours, across the engorged reluctance of the tides,
Sire and daughter, high-souled man and mightierhearted maid.
Not the bravest land that ever breasted war's grim
sea,
Hurled her foes back harried on the lowlands whence they came,
Held her own and smote her smiters down, while such durst be,
Shining northward, shining southward, as the aurean flame,
Not our mother, not Northumberland, brought ever forth,
Though no southern shore may match the sons that kiss her mouth,
Children worthier all the birthright given of the ardent north Where the fire of hearts outburns the suns that fire the south.
Even such fire was this that lit them, not from lowering skies
Where the darkling dawn flagged, stricken in the sun's own shrine,
Down the gulf of storm subsiding, till their earnest
eyes
Find the relics of the ravening night that spared but nine.

Life by life the man redeems them, head by storm-worn head,
While the girl's hand stays the boat whereof the waves are fain :
Ah, but woe for one, the mother clasping fast her
dead !
Happier, had the surges slain her with her children slain.
Back they bear, and bring between them safe the woful nine,
Where above the ravenous Hawkers fixed at watch for prey
Storm and calm behold the Longstone's towering signal shine
Now as when that labouring night brought forth a shuddering day.
Now as then, though like the hounds of storm against her snarling
All the clamorous years between us storm down many a fame,
As our sires beheld before us we behold Grace
Darling
Crowned and throned our queen, and as they hailed we hail her name.
Nay, not ours alone, her kinsfolk born, though chiefliest ours,
East and west and south acclaim her queen of England's maids,
Star more sweet than all their stars and flower than all their flowers,
Higher in heaven and earth than star than sets or flower that fades.
How should land or sea that nurtured her forget, or
love

Hold not fast her fame for us while aught is borne in mind ?
Land and sea beneath us, sun and moon and stars
above,
Bear the bright soul witness, seen of all but souls born blind.
Stars and moon and sun may wax and wane, subside and rise,
Age on age as flake on flake of showering snows be shed :
Not till earth be sunless, not till death strike blind
the skies,
May the deathless love that waits on deathless deeds be dead.

Years on years have withered since beside the hearth once thine
I, too young to have seen thee, touched thy father's hallowed hand :
Thee and him shall all men see for ever, stars that shine
While the sea that spared thee girds and glorifies
the land.

LOCH TORRIDON

To E. H.

THE dawn of night more fair than morning rose,
 Stars hurrying forth on stars, as snows on snows
 Haste when the wind and winter bid them speed.
 Vague miles of moorland road behind us lay Scarce traversed ere the day
 Sank, and the sun forsook us at our need, Belated. Where we thought to have rested, rest
 Was none ; for soft Maree's dim quivering breast, Bound round with gracious inland girth of green
 And fearless of the wild wave-wandering West, Shone shelterless for strangers ; and unseen
 The goal before us lay
 Of all our blithe and strange and strenuous day.

For when the northering road faced westward—when The dark sharp sudden gorge dropped seaward—
 then,
 Beneath the stars, between the steeps, the track
 We followed, lighted not of moon or sun,
 And plunging whither none

Might guess, while heaven and earth were hoar and
black,

Seemed even the dim still pass whence none turns back :

And through the twilight leftward of the way,
And down the dark, with many a laugh and leap,
The light blithe hill-streams shone from scaur to steep

In glittering pride of play ;

And ever while the night grew great and deep

We felt but saw not what the hills would keep

Sacred awhile from sense of moon or star ;

And full and far

Beneath us, sweet and strange as heaven may be,

The sea.

The very sea : no mountain-moulded lake
Whose fluctuant shapeliness is fain to take Shape from the steadfast shore that rules it round,
And only from the storms a casual sound :
The sea, that harbours in her heart sublime
The supreme heart of music deep as time,
And in her spirit strong
The spirit of all imaginable song.

Not a whisper or lisp from the waters : the skies were not silenter. Peace

Was between them ; a passionless rapture of respite as soft as release.

Not a sound, but a sense that possessed and pervaded with patient delight

The soul and the body, clothed round with the comfort of limitless night.

Night infinite, living, adorable, loved of the land and
the sea :
Night, mother of mercies, who saith to the spirits in prison, Be free.
And softer than dewfall, and kindlier than starlight,
and keener than wine,
Came round us the fragrance of waters, the life of the breath of the brine.
We saw not, we heard not, the face or the voice of the waters : we knew
By the darkling delight of the wind as the sense of the sea in it grew,
By the pulse of the darkness about us enkindled and quickened, that here,
Unseen and unheard of us, surely the goal we had faith in was near.
A silence diviner than music, a darkness diviner than
light,
Fulfilled as from heaven with a measureless comfort the measure of night.

But never a roof for shelter
And never a sign for guide
Rose doubtful or visible : only
And hardly and gladly we heard
The soft waves whisper and welter,
Subdued, and allured to subside,
By the mild night's magic : the lonely
Sweet silence was soothed, not stirred,
By the noiseless noise of the gleaming
Glad ripples, that played and sighed,
Kissed, laughed, recoiled, and relented,
Whispered, flickered, and fled.

No season was this for dreaming
How oft, with a stormier tide,
Had the wrath of the winds been vented
On sons of the tribes long dead :
The tribes whom time, and the changes
Of things, and the stress of doom,
Have erased and effaced ; forgotten
As wrecks or weeds of the shore
In sight of the stern hill-ranges
That hardly may change their gloom
When the fruits of the years wax rotten
And the seed of them springs no more.
For the dim strait footway dividing
The waters that breathed below
Led safe to the kindest of shelters
That ever awoke into light :
And still in remembrance abiding Broods over the stars that glow
And the water that eddies and welters
The passionate peace of the night.

All night long; in the world of sleep,
Skies and waters were soft and deep :
Shadow clothed them, and silence made Soundless music of dream and shade :
All above us, the livelong night,
Shadow, kindled with sense of light ;
All around us, the brief night long,
Silence, laden with sense of song.
Stars and mountains without, we knew,
Watched and waited, the soft night through All unseen, but divined and dear, Thrilled the touch of the sea's breath near :

All unheard, but alive like sound,
Throbb'd the sense of the sea's life round :
Round us, near us, in depth and height,
Soft as darkness and keen as light.

And the dawn leapt in at my casement : and there, as I rose, at my feet
No waves of the landlocked waters, no lake submissive and sweet,
Soft slave of the lordly seasons, whose breath may loose it or freeze ;
But to left and to right and ahead was the ripple whose pulse is the sea's.
From the gorge we had travelled by starlight the sunrise, winged and aflame, Shone large on the live wide wavelets that shuddered with joy as it came ;
As it came and caressed and possessed them, till panting and laughing with light From mountain to mountain the water was kindled and stung to delight.
And the grey gaunt heights that embraced and constrained and compelled it were glad,
And the rampart of rock, stark naked, that thwarted and barred it, was clad With a stern grey splendour of sunrise : and scarce had I sprung to the sea
When the dawn and the water were wedded, the hills and the sky set free.
The chain of the night was broken : the waves that embraced me and smiled
And flickered and fawned in the sunlight, alive, unafraid, undefiled,

Were sweeter to swim in than air, though fulfilled with the mounting morn,
Could be for the birds whose triumph rejoiced that a day was born.

And a day was arisen indeed for us. Years and the changes of years
Clothed round with their joys and their sorrows, and dead as their hopes and their fears, Lie noteless and nameless, unlit by remembrance or record of days
Worth wonder or memory, or cursing or blessing, or passion or praise,
Between us who live and forget not, but yearn with delight in it yet,
And the day we forget not, and never may live and may think to forget.
And the years that were kindlier and fairer, and kindled with pleasures as keen,
Have eclipsed not with lights or with shadows the light on the face of it seen.
For softly and surely, as nearer the boat that we gazed from drew,
The face of the precipice opened and bade us as birds pass through,
And the bark shot sheer to the sea through the strait of the sharp steep cleft,
The portal that opens with imminent rampires to right and to left,
Sublime as the sky they darken and strange as a spell-struck dream,
On the world unconfined of the mountains, the reign of the sea supreme,

The kingdom of westward waters, wherein when we swam we knew
The waves that we clove were boundless, the wind on our brows that blew Had swept no land and no lake, and had warred not on tower or on tree, But came on us hard out of heaven, and alive with the soul of the sea.

THE PALACE OF PAN

INSCRIBED TO MY MOTHER

SEPTEMBER, all glorious with gold, as a king
 In the radiance of triumph attired, Outlightening the summer, outsweetening the spring,
 Broods wide on the woodlands with limitless wing,
 A presence of all men desired.

Far eastward and westward the sun-coloured lands Smile warm as the light on them smiles ;
 And statelier than temples upbuilt with hands,
 Tall column by column, the sanctuary stands
 Of the pine-forest's infinite aisles.

Mute worship, too fervent for praise or for prayer,
 Possesses the spirit with peace,
 Fulfilled with the breath of the luminous air,
 The fragrance, the silence, the shadows as fair
 As the rays that recede or increase.

Ridged pillars that redden aloft and aloof,
 With never a branch for a nest,
 Sustain the sublime indivisible roof,
 To the storm and the sun in his majesty proof,
 And awful as waters at rest.

Man's hand hath not measured the height of them ;
thought

May measure not, awe may not know ;
In its shadow the woofs of the woodland are
wrought ;

As a bird is the sun in the toils of them caught,
And the flakes of it scattered as snow.

As the shreds of a plumage of gold on the ground
The sun-flakes by multitudes lie,
Shed loose as the petals of roses discrowned
On the floors of the forest engilt and embrowned
And reddened afar and anigh.

Dim centuries with darkling inscrutable hands
Have reared and secluded the shrine
For gods that we know not, and kindled as brands
On the altar the years that are dust, and their sands
Time's glass has forgotten for sign.

A temple whose transepts are measured by miles,
Whose chancel has morning for priest,
Whose floor-work the foot of no spoiler defiles,
Whose musical silence no music beguiles,
No festivals limit its feast.

The noon's ministration, the night's and the dawn's,
Conceals not, reveals not for man,
On the slopes of the herbless and blossomless lawns,
Some track of a nymph's or some trail of a faun's
To the place of the slumber of Pan.

Thought, kindled and quickened by worship and wonder
To rapture too sacred for fear

On the ways that unite or divide them in sunder, Alone may discern if about them or under
Be token or trace of him here.

With passionate awe that is deeper than panic
The spirit subdued and unshaken
Takes heed of the godhead terrene and Titanic Whose footfall is felt on the breach of volcanic Sharp steeps that their fire has forsaken.

By a spell more serene than the dim necromantic Dead charms of the past and the night,
Or the terror that lurked in the noon to make frantic Where Etna takes shape from the limbs of gigantic Dead gods disanointed of might,

The spirit made one with the spirit whose breath
Makes noon in the woodland sublime
Abides as entranced in a presence that saith Things loftier than life and serener than death, Triumphant and silent as time.

PINE RIDGE : September 1893

A YEAR'S CAROLS

JANUARY

HAIL, January, that bearest here
 On snowbright breasts the babe-faced year
 That weeps and trembles to be born.
 Hail, maid and mother, strong and bright,
 Hooded and cloaked and shod with white,
 Whose eyes are stars that match the morn.
 Thy forehead braves the storm's bent bow,
 Thy feet enkindle stars of snow.

Wan February with weeping cheer,
 Whose cold hand guides the youngling year
 Down misty roads of mire and rime,
 Before thy pale and fitful face
 The shrill wind shifts the clouds apace
 Through skies the morning scarce may climb.
 Thine eyes are thick with heavy tears,
 But lit with hopes that light the year's

MARCH

Hail, happy March, whose foot on earth
Rings as the blast of martial mirth
When trumpets fire men's hearts for fray.
No race of wild things winged or finned
May match the might that wings thy wind
Through air and sea, through scud and spray.
Strong joy and thou were powers twin-born
Of tempest and the towering morn.

APRIL

Crowned April, king whose kiss bade earth
Bring forth to time her lordliest birth
When Shakespeare from thy lips drew breath
And laughed to hold in one soft hand
A spell that bade the world's wheel stand,
And power on life, and power on death,
With quiring suns and sunbright showers
Praise him, the flower of all thy flowers.

MAY

Hail, May, whose bark puts forth full-sailed
For summer ; May, whom Chaucer hailed
With all his happy might of heart,
And gave thy rosebright daisy-tips
Strange fragrance from his amorous lips
That still thine own breath seems to part
And sweeten till each word they say Is even a flower of flowering May.

JUNE

Strong June, superb, serene, elate
With conscience of thy sovereign state
Untouched of thunder, though the storm
Scathe here and there thy shuddering skies
And bid its lightning cross thine eyes
With fire, thy golden hours inform Earth and the souls of men with life
That brings forth peace from shining strife.

JULY

Hail, proud July, whose fervent mouth
Bids even be morn and north be south
By grace and gospel of thy word,
Whence all the splendour of the sea
Lies breathless with delight in thee
And marvel at the music heard
From the ardent silent lips of noon
And midnight's rapturous plenilune.

AUGUST

Great August, lord of golden lands,
Whose lordly joy through seas and strands
And all the red-ripe heart of earth
Strikes passion deep as life, and stills
The folded vales and folding hills
With gladness too divine for mirth,
The gracious glories of thine eyes
Make night a noon where darkness dies.

SEPTEMBER

Hail, kind September, friend whose grace
Renews the bland year's bounteous face
With largess given of corn and wine
Through many a land that laughs with love
Of thee and all the heaven above,
More fruitful found than all save thine
Whose skies fulfil with strenuous cheer
The fervent fields that knew thee near.

OCTOBER

October of the tawny crown,
Whose heavy-laden hands drop down
Blessing, the bounties of thy breath
And mildness of thy mellowing might Fill earth and heaven with love and light
Too sweet for fear to dream of death
Or memory, while thy joy lives yet,
To know what joy would fain forget.

NOVEMBER

Hail, soft November, though thy pale Sad smile rebuke the words that hail Thy sorrow with no sorrowing words
Or gratulate thy grief with song
Less bitter than the winds that wrong
Thy withering woodlands, where the birds
Keep hardly heart to sing or see How fair thy faint wan face may be.

DECEMBER

December, thou whose hallowing hands
On shuddering seas and hardening lands
Set as a sacramental sign
The seal of Christmas felt on earth
As witness toward a new year's birth
Whose promise makes thy death divine,
The crowning joy that comes of thee
Makes glad all grief on land or sea.

ENGLAND : AN ODE

SEA and strand, and a lordlier land than sea-tides rolling and rising sun Clasp and lighten in climes that brighten with day when day that was here is done, Call aloud on their children, proud with trust that future and past are one.

Far and near from the swan's nest here the storm-birds bred of her fair white breast, Sons whose home was the sea-wave's foam, have borne the fame of her east and west ;
 North and south has the storm-wind's mouth rung praise of England and England's quest.

Fame, wherever her flag flew, never forbore to fly with an equal wing :
 France and Spain with their warrior train bowed down before her as thrall to king ; India knelt at her feet, and felt her sway more fruitful of life than spring.

Darkness round them as iron bound fell off from races of elder name.

Slain at sight of her eyes, whose light bids freedom lighten and burn as flame ;
Night endures not the touch that cures of kingship tyrants, and slaves of shame.

All the terror of time, where error and fear were lords of a world of slaves,
Age on age in resurgent rage and anguish darkening as waves on waves,
Fell or fled from a face that shed such grace as quicken the dust of graves.

Things of night at her glance took flight : the strengths of darkness recoiled and sank :
Sank the fires of the murderous pyres whereon wild agony writhed and shrank :
Rose the light of the reign of right from gulfs of years that the darkness drank.

Yet the might of her wings in flight, whence glory lightens and music rings, Loud and bright as the dawn's, shall smite and still the discord of evil things, Yet not slain by her radiant reign, but darkened now by her sail-stretched wings.

II

Music made of change and conquest, glory born of evil slain,
Stilled the discord, slew the darkness, bade the lights of tempest wane,
Where the deathless dawn of England rose in sign that right should reign.

Mercy, where the tiger wallowed mad and blind with blood and lust,
Justice, where the jackal yelped and fed, and slaves allowed it just,
Rose as England's light on Asia rose, and smote them down to dust.

Justice bright as mercy, mercy girt by justice with her sword,
Smote and saved and raised and ruined, till the tyrant-ridden horde
Saw the lightning fade from heaven and knew the sun for God and lord.

Where the footfall sounds of England, where the smile of England shines, Rings the tread and laughs the face of freedom, fair as hope divines
Days to be, more brave than ours and lit by lordlier stars for signs.

All our past acclaims our future : Shakespeare's voice and Nelson's hand, Milton's faith and Wordsworth's trust in this our chosen and chainless land,
Bear us witness : come the world against her,
England yet shall stand.

Earth and sea bear England witness if he lied who said it ; he
Whom the winds that ward her, waves that clasp, and herb and flower and tree Fed with English dews and sunbeams, hail as more than man may be.

No man ever spake as he that bade our England be but true,
Keep but faith with England fast and firm, and none should bid her rue ;
None may speak as he : but all may know the sign that Shakespeare knew.

From the springs of the dawn, from the depths of the noon, from the heights of the night that shine, Hope, faith, and remembrance of glory that found but in England her throne and her shrine, Speak louder than song may proclaim them, that here is the seal of them set for a sign.

And loud as the sea's voice thunders applause of the land that is one with the sea Speaks Time in the ear of the people that never at heart was not inly free
The word of command that assures us of life, if we will but that life shall be ;

If the race that is first of the races of men who behold unashamed the sun Stand fast and forget not the sign that is given of the years and the wars that are done,
The token that all who are born of its blood should in heart as in blood be one.

The word of remembrance that lightens as fire from the steepes of the storm-lit past

Bids only the faith of our fathers endure in us, firm as they held it fast :

That the glory which was from the first upon England alone may endure to the last.

That the love and the hate may change not, the faith may not fade, nor the wrath nor scorn,

That shines for her sons and that burns for her foe-men as fire of the night or the morn :

That the births of her womb may forget not the sign of the glory wherein they were born.

A light that is more than the sunlight, an air that is brighter than morning's breath,

Clothes England about as the strong sea clasps her,
and answers the word that it saith ;

The word that assures her of life if she change not,
and choose not the ways of death.

Change darkens and lightens around her, alternate in hope and in fear to be :

Hope knows not if fear speak truth, nor fear whether hope be not blind as she :

But the sun is in heaven that beholds her immortal, and girdled with life by the sea.

ETON : AN ODE

FOR THE FOUR HUNDRED AND FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE FOUNDATION OF THE COLLEGE

FOUR hundred summers and fifty have shone on the meadows of Thames and died Since Eton arose in an age that was darkness, and shone by his radiant side
As a star that the spell of a wise man's word bade live and ascend and abide.

And ever as time's flow brightened, a river more dark than the storm-clothed sea,
And age upon age rose fairer and larger in promise of hope set free,
With England Eton her child kept pace as a fostress of men to be.

And ever as earth waxed wiser, and softer the beating of time's wide wings, Since fate fell dark on her father, most hapless and gentlest of star-crossed kings, Her praise has increased as the chant of the dawn that the choir of the noon outsings.

II

Storm and cloud in the skies were loud, and lightning mocked at the blind sun's light ;
War and woe on the land below shed heavier shadow than falls from night ;
Dark was earth at her dawn of birth as here her record of praise is bright.

Clear and fair through her morning air the light first laugh of the sunlit stage
Rose and rang as a fount that sprang from depths yet dark with a spent storm's rage, Loud and glad as a boy's, and bade the sunrise open on Shakespeare's age.

Lords of state and of war, whom fate found strong in battle, in counsel strong,
Here, ere fate had approved them great, abode their season, and thought not long :
Here too first was the lark's note nursed that filled and flooded the skies with song.

III

Shelley, lyric lord of England's lordliest singers, here first heard Ring from lips of poets crowned and dead the Promethean word Whence his soul took fire, and power to outsoar the sunward-soaring bird.

Still the reaches of the river, still the light on field and hill,
Still the memories held aloft as lamps for hope's young fire to fill, Shine, and while the light of England lives shall shine for England still.

When four hundred more and fifty years have risen and shone and set,
Bright with names that men remember, loud with names that men forget, Haply here shall Eton's record be what England finds it yet.

THE UNION

I

THREE in one, but one in three,
 God, who girt her with the sea,
 Bade our Commonweal to be :
 Nought, if now not one.
 Though fraud and fear would sever
 The bond assured for ever,
 Their shameful strength shall never Undo what heaven has done.

II

South and North and West and East
 Watch the ravens flock to feast,
 Dense as round some death-struck beast.
 Black as night is black.
 Stand fast as faith together
 In stress of treacherous weather
 When hounds and wolves break tether
 And Treason guides the pack.

Lovelier than thy seas are strong,
 Glorious Ireland, sword and song
 Gird and crown thee : none may wrong,
 Save thy sons alone.

The sea that laughs around us
Hath sundered not but bound us :
The sun's first rising found us
 Throned on its equal throne.

IV

North and South and East and West
All true hearts that wish thee best Beat one tune and own one quest,
 Staunch and sure as steel.
God guard from dark disunion
Our threefold State's communion,
God save the loyal Union,
 The royal Commonweal !

EAST TO WEST

SUNSET smiles on sunrise : east and west are one,
 Face to face in heaven before the sovereign sun.
 From the springs of the dawn everlasting a glory renews and transfigures the west,
 From the depths of the sunset a light as of morning enkindles the broad sea's breast,
 And the lands and the skies and the waters are glad of the day's and the night's work done.

Child of dawn, and regent on the world-wide sea,
 England smiles on Europe, fair as dawn and free.
 Not the waters that gird her are purer, nor mightier the winds that her waters know.
 But America, daughter and sister of England, is praised of them, far as they flow :
 Atlantic responds to Pacific the praise of her days that have been and shall be.

So from England westward let the watchword fly,
 So for England eastward let the seas reply ; Praise, honour, and love everlasting be sent on the wind's wings, westward and east,
 That the pride of the past and the pride of the future may mingle as friends at feast,
 And the sons of the lords of the world-wide seas be one till the world's life die.

INSCRIPTIONS

FOR THE FOUR SIDES OF A PEDESTAL

I

MARLOWE, the father of the sons of song
 Whose praise is England's crowning praise, above
 All glories else that crown her, sweet and strong
 As England, clothed with light and fire of love,
 And girt with might of passion, thought, and trust,
 Stands here in spirit, sleeps not here in dust.

II

Marlowe, a star too sovereign, too superb,
 To fade when heaven took fire from Shakespeare's
 light,
 A soul that knew but song's triumphal curb
 And love's triumphant bondage, holds of right
 His pride of place, who first in place and time
 Made England's voice as England's heart sublime.

Marlowe bade England live in living song :
 The light he lifted up lit Shakespeare's way :
 He spake, and life sprang forth in music, strong
 As fire or lightning, sweet as dawn of day.
 Song was a dream where day took night to wife :
 " Let there be life," he said : and there was life.

IV .

Marlowe of all our fathers first beheld
Beyond the tidal ebb and flow of things
The tideless depth and height of souls, impelled
By thought or passion, borne on waves or wings, Beyond all flight or sight but song's : and he First gave our song a sound that matched our sea.

ON THE DEATH OF RICHARD BURTON

NIGHT or light is it now, wherein Sleeps, shut out from the wild world's din, Wakes, alive with a life more clear,
 One who found not on earth his kin?

Sleep were sweet for awhile, were dear
 Surely to souls that were heartless here,
 Souls that faltered and flagged and fell,
 Soft of spirit and faint of cheer.

A living soul that had strength to quell
 Hope the spectre and fear the spell,
 Clear-eyed, content with a scorn sublime
 And a faith superb, can it fare not well?

Life, the shadow of wide-winged time,
 Cast from the wings that change as they climb, Life may vanish in death, and seem Less than the promise of last year's prime.

But not for us is the past a dream
 Wherefrom, as light from a clouded stream,
 Faith fades and shivers and ebbs away,
 Faint as the moon if the sundawn gleam.

Faith, whose eyes in the low last ray
Watch the fire that renews the day,
 Faith which lives in the living past,
Rock-rooted, swerves not as weeds that sway.

As trees that stand in the storm-wind fast
She stands, unsmitten of death's keen blast,
 With strong remembrance of sunbright spring
Alive at heart to the lifeless last.

Night, she knows, may in no wise cling
To a soul that sinks not and droops not wing,
 A sun that sets not in death's false night
Whose kingdom finds him not thrall but king.

Souls there are that for soul's affright
Bow down and cower in the sun's glad sight,
 Clothed round with faith that is one with fear,
And dark with doubt of the live world's light.

But him we hailed from afar or near
As boldest born of the bravest here
 And loved as brightest of souls that eyed Life, time, and death with unchangeful cheer,

A wider soul than the world was wide,
Whose praise made love of him one with pride,
 What part has death or has time in him,
Who rode life's lists as a god might ride?

While England sees not her old praise dim,
While still her stars through the world's night swim,
 A fame outshining her Raleigh's fame,
A light that lightens her loud sea's rim,

ON THE DEATH OF RICHARD BURTON 1039

Shall shine and sound as her sons proclaim
The pride that kindles at Burton's name.

And joy shall exalt their pride to be
The same in birth if in soul the same.

But we that yearn for a friend's face—we Who lack the light that on earth was he—

Mourn, though the light be a quenchless flame
That shines as dawn on a tideless sea.

ELEGY

1869-1891

AUVERGNE, Auvergne, O wild and woful land,
 O glorious land and gracious, white as gleam
 The stairs of heaven, black as a flameless brand, Strange even as life, and stranger than a dream,

Could earth remember man, whose eyes made bright
 The splendour of her beauty, lit by day
 Or soothed and softened and redeemed by night, Wouldst thou not know what light has passed away?

Wouldst thou not know whom England, whom the world,
 Mourns? For the world whose wildest ways he trod,
 And smiled their dangers down that coiled and curled Against him, knows him now less man than god.

Our demigod of daring, keenest-eyed
 To read and deepest read in earth's dim things,
 A spirit now whose body of death has died
 And left it mightier yet in eyes and wings,

The sovereign seeker of the world, who now Hath sought what world the light of death may show,

Hailed once with me the crowns that load thy brow,
Crag dark as midnight, columns bright as snow.

Thy steep small Siena, splendid and content
As shines the mightier city's Tuscan pride
Which here its face reflects in radiance, pent
By narrower bounds from towering side to side,

Set fast between the ridged and foamless waves
Of earth more fierce and fluctuant than the sea,
The fearless town of towers that hails and braves
The heights that gird, the sun that brands Le Puy ;

The huddled churches clinging on the cliffs
As birds alighting might for storm's sake cling,
Moored to the rocks as tempest-harried skiffs
To perilous refuge from the loud wind's wing ;

The stairs on stairs that wind and change and climb
Even up to the utmost crag's edge curved and curled,
More bright than vision, more than faith sublime,
Strange as the light and darkness of the world ;

Strange as are night and morning, stars and sun,
And washed from west and east by day's deep tide Shine yet less fair, when all their heights are won,
Than sundawn shows thy pillared mountain-side.

Even so the dawn of death, whose light makes dim
The starry fires that life sees rise and set,
Shows higher than here he shone before us him
Whom faith forgets not, nor shall fame forget.

Even so those else unfooted heights we clomb
Through scudding mist and eddying whirls of cloud, Blind as a pilot beaten blind with foam,
And shrouded as a corpse with storm's grey shroud,

Foot following foot along the sheer strait ledge
Where space was none to bear the wild goat's feet
Till blind we sat on the outer footless edge Where darkling death seemed fain to share the seat,

The abyss before us, viewless even as time's,
The abyss to left of us, the abyss to right, Bid thought now dream how high the freed soul climbs
That death sets free from change of day and night.

The might of raging mist and wind whose wrath Shut from our eyes the narrowing rock we trod,
The wondrous world it darkened, made our path
Like theirs who take the shadow of death for God.

Yet eastward, veiled in vapour white as snow,
The grim black herbless heights that scorn the sun
And mock the face of morning rose to show
The work of earth-born fire and earthquake done.

And half the world was haggard night, wherein
We strove our blind way through : but far above Was light that watched the wild mists whirl and spin,
And far beneath a land worth light and love.

Deep down the Valley of the Curse, undaunted By shadow and whisper of winds with sins for
wings
And ghosts of crime wherethrough the heights live haunted
By present sense of past and monstrous things,

The glimmering water holds its gracious way Full forth, and keeps one happier hand's-breadth green
Of all that storm-scathed world whereon the sway
Sits dark as death of deadlier things unseen.

But on the soundless and the viewless river
That bears through night perchance again to day
The dead whom death and twin-born fame deliver
From life that dies, and time's inveterate sway,

No shadow save of falsehood and of fear
That brands the future with the past, and bids
The spirit wither and the soul grow sere, Hovers or hangs to cloud life's opening lids,

If life have eyes to lift again and see,
Beyond the bounds of sensual sight or breath,
What life incognisable of ours may be
That turns our light to darkness deep as death.

Priests and the soulless serfs of priests may swarm
With vulturous acclamation, loud in lies,
About his dust while yet his dust is warm
Who mocked as sunlight mocks their base blind
eyes,

Their godless ghost of godhead, false and foul
As fear his dam or hell his throne : but we,
Scarce hearing, heed no carrion church-wolf's howl :
The corpse be theirs to mock ; the soul is free.

Free as ere yet its earthly day was done
It lived above the coil about us curled :
A soul whose eyes were keener than the sun,
A soul whose wings were wider than the world.

We, sons of east and west, ringed round with
dreams,
Bound fast with visions, girt about with fears, Live, trust, and think by chance, while shadow seems
Light, and the wind that wrecks a hand that steers.

He, whose full soul held east and west in poise, Weighed man with man, and creed of man's with creed,
And age with age, their triumphs and their toys,
And found what faith may read not and may read.

Scorn deep and strong as death and life, that lit
With fire the smile at lies and dreams outworn
Wherewith he smote them, showed sublime in it
The splendour and the steadfastness of scorn.

What loftier heaven, what lordlier air, what space Illimitable, insuperable, infinite,
Now to that strong-winged soul yields ampler place
Than passing darkness yields to passing light,

No dream, no faith can tell us : hope and fear,
Whose tongues were loud of old as children's, now
From babbling fall to silence : change is here,
And death ; dark furrows drawn by time's dark plough.

Still sunward here on earth its flight was bent,
Even since the man within the child began
To yearn and kindle with superb intent
And trust in time to magnify the man.

Still toward the old garden of the Sun, whose fruit
The honey-heavy lips of Sophocles
Desired and sang, wherein the unwithering root Sprang of all growths that thought brings forth and sees

Incarnate, bright with bloom or dense with leaf
Far-shadowing, deep as depth of dawn or night :
And all were parcel of the garnered sheaf
His strenuous spirit bound and stored aright.

And eastward now, and ever toward the dawn,
If death's deep veil by life's bright hand be rent,
We see, as through the shadow of death withdrawn,
The imperious soul's indomitable ascent.

But not the soul whose labour knew not end—
But not the swordsman's hand, the crested head—
The royal heart we mourn, the faultless friend, Burton—a name that lives till fame be dead.

A SEQUENCE OF SONNETS ON THE DEATH OF ROBERT BROWNING

I

THE clearest eyes in all the world they read With sense more keen and spirit of sight more true
 Than burns and thrills in sunrise, when the dew
 Flames, and absorbs the glory round it shed,
 As they the light of ages quick and dead,
 Closed now, forsake us : yet the shaft that slew
 Can slay not one of all the works we knew,
 Nor death discrown that many-laurelled head.

The works of words whose life seems lightning
 wrought,
 And moulded of unconquerable thought,
 And quickened with imperishable flame,
 Stand fast and shine and smile, assured that nought
 May fade of all their myriad-moulded fame, Nor England's memory clasp not Browning's
 name.

December 13, 1889.

II

Death, what hast thou to do with one for whom Time is not lord, but servant? What least part Of all the fire that fed his living heart,
 Of all the light more keen than sundawn's bloom
 That lit and led his spirit, strong as doom
 And bright as hope, can aught thy breath may dart Quench? Nay, thou knowest he knew thee what thou art,
 A shadow born of terror's barren womb,
 That brings not forth save shadows. What art thou,
 To dream, albeit thou breathe upon his brow,
 That power on him is given thee,—that thy breath
 Can make him less than love acclaims him now,
 And hears all time sound back the word it saith?
 What part hast thou then in his glory, Death?

III

A graceless doom it seems that bids us grieve :
 Venice and winter, hand in deadly hand,
 Have slain the lover of her sunbright strand
 And singer of a stormbright Christmas Eve.
 A graceless guerdon we that loved receive
 For all our love, from that the dearest land Love worshipped ever. Blithe and soft and bland, Too fair for storm to scathe or fire to cleave,
 Shone on our dreams and memories evermore
 The domes, the towers, the mountains and the shore
 That gird or guard thee, Venice : cold and black Seems now the face we loved as he of yore.
 We have given thee love—no stint, no stay, no lack :
 What gift, what gift is this thou hast given us back ?

IV

But he—to him, who knows what gift is thine, Death? Hardly may we think or hope, when we Pass likewise thither where to-night is he,
 Beyond the irremeable outer seas that shine
 And darken round such dreams as half divine
 Some sunlit harbour in that starless sea
 Where gleams no ship to windward or to lee,
 To read with him the secret of thy shrine.

There too, as here, may song, delight, and love,
 The nightingale, the sea-bird, and the dove,
 Fulfil with joy the splendour of the sky
 Till all beneath wax bright as all above :
 But none of all that search the heavens, and try
 The sun, may match the sovereign eagle's eye.

December 14.

Among the wondrous ways of men and time
 He went as one that ever found and sought
 And bore in hand the lamplike spirit of thought
 To illumine with instance of its fire sublime
 The dusk of many a cloudlike age and clime.
 No spirit in shape of light and darkness wrought,
 No faith, no fear, no dream, no rapture, nought
 That blooms in wisdom, nought that burns in crime,
 No virtue girt and armed and helmed with light,
 No love more lovely than the snows are white,
 No serpent sleeping in some dead soul's tomb,
 No song-bird singing from some live soul's height,
 But he might hear, interpret, or illumine
 With sense invasive as the dawn of doom.

What secret thing of splendour or of shade Surmised in all those wandering ways wherein Man, led of love and life and death and sin,
 Strays, climbs, or cowers, allured, absorbed, afraid,
 Might not the strong and sunlike sense invade
 Of that full soul that had for aim to win
 Light, silent over time's dark toil and din,
 Life, at whose touch death fades as dead things fade?
 O spirit of man, what mystery moves in thee
 That he might know not of in spirit, and see
 The heart within the heart that seems to strive,
 The life within the life that seems to be,
 And hear, through all thy storms that whirl and drive,
 The living sound of all men's souls alive?

VII

He held no dream worth waking : so he said,
 He who stands now on death's triumphal steep,
 Awakened out of life wherein we sleep
 And dream of what he knows and sees, being dead.
 But never death for him was dark or dread :
 "Look forth" he bade the soul, and fear not. Weep, All ye that trust not in his truth, and keep Vain memory's vision of a vanished head
 As all that lives of all that once was he Save that which lightens from his word : but we,
 Who, seeing the sunset-coloured waters roll,
 Yet know the sun subdued not of the sea,
 Nor weep nor doubt that still the spirit is whole,
 And life and death but shadows of the soul.

December 15.

SUNSET AND MOONRISE

NEW YEAR'S EVE, 1889

ALL the west, whereon the sunset sealed the dead year's glorious grave

Fast with seals of light and fire and cloud that light and fire illume,

Glowes at heart and kindles earth and heaven with joyous blush and bloom,

Warm and wide as life, and glad of death that only slays to save.

As a tide-reconquered sea-rock lies aflush with the influent wave

Lies the light aflush with darkness, lapped about by lustrous gloom,

Even as life with death, and fame with time, and memory with the tomb

Where a dead man hath for vassals Fame the serf and Time the slave.

Far from earth as heaven, the steadfast light withdrawn, superb, suspense,

Burns in dumb divine expansion of illimitable
flower :

Moonrise whets the shadow's edges keen as noon-tide : hence and thence Glows the presence from us passing, shines and passes not the power.

Souls arise whose word remembered is as spirit within the sense :

All the hours are theirs of all the seasons : death has but his hour.

BIRTHDAY ODE

AUGUST 6, 1891

I

LOVE and praise, and a length of days whose shadow cast upon time is light, Days whose sound was a spell shed round from wheeling wings as of doves in flight, Meet in one, that the mounting sun to-day may triumph, and cast out night.

Two years more than the full fourscore lay hallowing hands on a sacred head—Scarce one score of the perfect four uncrowned of fame as they smiled and fled :
 Still and soft and alive aloft their sunlight stays though the suns be dead.

Ere we were or were thought on, ere the love that gave us to life began, Fame grew strong with his crescent song, to greet the goal of the race they ran,
 Song with fame, and the lustrous name with years whose changes acclaimed the man.

Soon, ere time in the rounding rhyme of choral seasons had hailed us men,
We too heard and acclaimed the word whose breath was life upon England then—Life more bright than the breathless light of soundless noon in a songless glen.

Ah, the joy of the heartstruck boy whose ear was opened of love to hear !
Ah, the bliss of the burning kiss of song and spirit, the mounting cheer
Lit with fire of divine desire and love that knew not if love were fear !

Fear and love as of heaven above and earth enkindled of heaven were one ;
One white flame, that around his name grew keen and strong as the worldwide sun ; Awe made bright with implied delight, as weft with weft of the rainbow spun.

III

He that fears not the voice he hears and loves shall never have heart to sing :
All the grace of the sun-god's face that bids the soul as a fountain spring Bids the brow that receives it bow, and hail his likeness on earth as king.

We that knew when the sun's shaft flew beheld and worshipped, adored and heard :
Light rang round it of shining sound, whence all men's hearts were subdued and stirred :
Joy, love, sorrow, the day, the morrow, took life upon them in one man's word.

Not for him can the years wax dim, nor downward swerve on a darkening way :
Upward wind they, and leave behind such light as lightens the front of May :
Fair as youth and sublime as truth we find the fame that we hail to-day.

THRENODY

OCTOBER 6, 1892

I

LIFE, sublime and serene when time had power upon it and ruled its breath, Changed it, bade it be glad or sad, and hear what change in the world's ear saith, Shines more fair in the starrier air whose glory lightens the dusk of death.

Suns that sink on the wan sea's brink, and moons that kindle and flame and fade, Leave more clear for the darkness here the stars that set not and see not shade Rise and rise on the lowlier skies by rule of sunlight and moonlight swayed.

So, when night for his eyes grew bright, his proud head pillowed on Shakespeare's breast, Hand in hand with him, soon to stand where shine the glories that death loves best, Passed the light of his face from sight, and sank sublimely to radiant rest.

Far above us and all our love, beyond all reach of its voiceless praise, Shines for ever the name that never shall feel the shade of the changeful days Fall and chill the delight that still sees winter's light on it shine like May's.

Strong as death is the dark day's breath whose blast has withered the life we see Here where light is the child of night, and less than visions or dreams are we :
Strong as death ; but a word, a breath, a dream is stronger than death can be.

Strong as truth and superb in youth eternal, fair as the sundawn's flame
Seen when May on her first-born day bids earth exult in her radiant name, Lives, clothed round with its praise and crowned with love that dies not, his love-lit fame.

Fairer far than the morning star, and sweet for us as the songs that rang Loud through heaven from the choral Seven when all the stars of the morning sang, Shines the song that we loved so long—since first such love in us flamed and sprang.

England glows as a sunlit rose from mead to mountain, from sea to sea,
Bright with love and with pride above all taint of sorrow that needs must be,
Needs must live for an hour, and give its rainbow's glory to lawn and lea.

Not through tears shall the new-born years behold him, crowned with applause of men, Pass at last from a lustrous past to life that lightens beyond their ken,
Glad and dead, and from earthward led to sunward, guided of Imogen.

THE BALLAD OF MELICERTES

IN MEMORY OF THÉODORE DE BANVILLE

DEATH, a light outshining life, bids heaven resume
 Star by star the souls whose light made earth divine.
 Death, a night outshining day, sees burn and bloom Flower by flower, and sun by sun, the fames that shine

Deathless, higher than life beheld their sovereign sign.

Dead Simonides of Ceos, late restored,
 Given again of God, again by man deplored,
 Shone but yestereve, a glory frail as breath.
 Frail? But fame's breath quickens, kindles, keeps in ward,

Life so sweet as this that dies and casts off death.

Mother's love, and rapture of the sea, whose womb Breeds eternal life of joy that stings like brine, Pride of song, and joy to dare the singer's doom,
 Sorrow soft as sleep and laughter bright as wine,
 Flushed and filled with fragrant fire his lyric line.

As the sea-shell utters, like a stricken chord,
 Music uttering all the sea's within it stored,
 Poet well-beloved, whose praise our sorrow saith,
 So thy songs retain thy soul, and so record
 Life so sweet as this that dies and casts off death.

THE BALLAD OF MELICERTES 1059

Side by side we mourned at Gautier's golden tomb :

Here in spirit now I stand and mourn at thine.

Yet no breath of death strikes thence, no shadow of gloom,

Only light more bright than gold of the inmost mine,

Only steam of incense warm from love's own shrine.

Not the darkling stream, the sundering Stygian ford,

Not the hour that smites and severs as a sword,

Not the night subduing light that perisheth,

Smite, subdue, divide from us by doom abhorred,

Life so sweet as this that dies and casts off death.

Prince of song more sweet than honey, lyric lord,

Not thy France here only mourns a light adored,

One whose love-lit fame the world inheriteth.

Strangers too, now brethren, hail with heart's accord

Life so sweet as this that dies and casts off death.

AU TOMBEAU DE BANVILLE

LA plus douce des voix qui vibraient sous le ciel
Se tait : les rossignols ailés pleurent le frère
Qui s'envole au-dessus de l'âpre et sombre terre,
Ne lui laissant plus voir que l'être essentiel,

Esprit qui chante et rit, fleur d'une âme sans fiel.
L'ombre élyséenne, où la nuit n'est que lumière, Revoit, tout revêtu de splendeur douce et fière, Mélécerte, poète à la bouche de miel.

Dieux exilés, passants célestes de ce monde,
Dont on entend parfois dans notre nuit profonde Vibrer la voix, frémir les ailes, vous savez
S'il vous aima, s'il vous pleura, lui dont la vie Et le chant rappelaient les vôtres. Recevez L'âme de Mélécerte affranchie et ravie.

LIGHT : AN EPICEDÉ

TO PHILIP BOURKE MARSTON

LOVE will not weep because the seal is broken
 That sealed upon a life beloved and brief
 Darkness, and let but song break through for token
 How deep, too far for even thy song's relief,
 Slept in thy soul the secret springs of grief.

Thy song may soothe full many a soul hereafter,
 As tears, if tears will come, dissolve despair ;
 As here but late, with smile more bright than laughter,
 Thy sweet strange yearning eyes would seem to bear
 Witness that joy might cleave the clouds of care.

Two days ago, and love was one with pity
 When love gave thought wings toward the glimmering goal
 Where, as a shrine lit in some darkling city,
 Shone soft the shrouded image of thy soul :
 And now thou art healed of life ; thou art healed, and whole.

Yea, two days since, all we that loved thee pitied :

And now with wondering love, with shame of face,
We think how foolish now, how far unfitted,

Should be from us, toward thee who hast run thy race,

Pity—toward thee, who hast won the painless
place ;

The painless world of death, yet un beholden

Of eyes that dream what light now lightens thine And will not weep. Thought, yearning toward those olden

Dear hours that sorrow sees and sees not shine,
Bows tearless down before a flameless shrine :

A flameless altar here of life and sorrow Quenched and consumed together. These were one,

One thing for thee, as night was one with morrow

And utter darkness with the sovereign sun :

And now thou seest life, sorrow, and darkness done.

And yet love yearns again to win thee hither ;

Blind love, and loveless, and unworthy thee :

Here where I watch the hours of darkness wither,

Here where mine eyes were glad and sad to see

Thine that could see not mine, though turned on me.

But now, if aught beyond sweet sleep lie hidden,

And sleep be sealed not fast on dead men's sight

For ever, thine hath grace for ours forbidden,

And sees us compassed round with change and
night :

Yet light like thine is ours, if love be light.

THRENODY

WATCHING here alone by the fire whereat last year Sat with me the friend that a week since yet was near,

That a week has borne so far and hid so deep,
 Woe am I that I may not weep,
 May not yearn to behold him here.

Shame were mine, and little the love I bore him
 were,

Now to mourn that better he fares than love may fare

Which desires, and would not have indeed, its will,

Would not love him so worse than ill,
 Would not clothe him again with care.

Yet can love not choose but remember, hearts but ache,

Eyes but darken, only for one vain thought's poor
 sake,

For the thought that by this hearth's now lonely side

Two fast friends, on the day he died,
 Looked once more for his hand to take.

Let thy soul forgive them, and pardon heal the sin, Though their hearts be heavy to think what then had been,

The delight that never while they live may be—Love's communion of speech with thee.
Soul and speech with the soul therein.

O my friend, O brother, a glory veiled and marred !
Never love made moan for a life more evil-starred.

Was it envy, chance, or chance-compelling fate,
Whence thy spirit was bruised so late,
Bowed so heavily, bound so hard ?

Now released, it may be,—if only love might know—

Filled and fired with sight, it beholds us blind and low

With a pity keener yet, if that may be,
Even than ever was this that we Felt, when love of thee wrought us woe.

None may tell the depths and the heights of life and
death.

What we may we give thee : a word that sorrow saith,

And that none will heed save sorrow : scarce a song.

All we may, who have loved thee long,
Take : the best we can give is breath.

A DIRGE

A BELL tolls on in my heart
 As though in my ears a knell
 Had ceased for awhile to swell,
 But the sense of it would not part
 From the spirit that bears its part
 In the chime of the soundless bell.

Ah dear dead singer of sorrow,
 The burden is now not thine
 That grief bade sound for a sign
 Through the songs of the night whose morrow
 Has risen, and I may not borrow
 A beam from its radiant shrine.

The burden has dropped from thee
 That grief on thy life bound fast ;
 The winter is over and past
 Whose end thou wast fain to see.
 Shall sorrow not comfort me
 That is thine no longer—at last ?

Good day, good night, and good morrow,
Men living and mourning say.
For thee we could only pray
That night of the day might borrow Such comfort as dreams lend sorrow :
Death gives thee at last good day.

A REMINISCENCE

THE rose to the wind has yielded : all its leaves Lie strewn on the graveyard grass, and all their
 light
 And colour and fragrance leave our sense and sight
 Bereft as a man whom bitter time bereaves
 Of blossom at once and hope of garnered sheaves,
 Of April at once and August. Day to night Calls wailing, and life to death, and depth to height,
 And soul upon soul of man that hears and grieves.

Who knows, though he see the snow-cold blossom
 shed,
 If haply the heart that burned within the rose,
 The spirit in sense, the life of life be dead ?
 If haply the wind that slays with storming snows Be one with the wind that quickens ? Bow thine
 head,
 O Sorrow, and commune with thine heart : who knows ?

VIA DOLOROSA

THE days of a man are threescore years and ten.

The days of his life were half a man's, whom we Lament, and would yet not bid him back, to be Partaker of all the woes and ways of men.

Life sent him enough of sorrow : not again

Would anguish of love, beholding him set free,
Bring back the beloved to suffer life and see
No light but the fire of grief that scathed him then.

We know not at all : we hope, and do not fear.

We shall not again behold him, late so near,

Who now from afar above, with eyes alight
And spirit enkindled, haply toward us here
Looks down unforgetful yet of days like night
And love that has yet his sightless face in sight.

February 15, 1887.

TRANSFIGURATION

BUT half a man's days—and his days were nights.

What hearts were ours who loved him, should we pray

That night would yield him back to darkling day, Sweet death that soothes, to life that spoils and smites ?

For now, perchance, life lovelier than the light's

That shed no comfort on his weary way

Shows him what none may dream to see or say

Ere yet the soul may scale those topless heights

Where death lies dead, and triumph. Haply there

Already may his kindling eyesight find

Faces of friends—no face than his more fair—

And first among them found of all his kind

Milton, with crowns from Eden on his hair,

And eyes that meet a brother's now not blind.

DELIVERANCE

O DEATH, fair Death, sole comforter and sweet,
Nor Love nor Hope can give such gifts as thine.
Sleep hardly shows us round thy shadowy shrine
What roses hang, what music floats, what feet Pass and what wings of angels. We repeat Wild words or mild, disastrous or divine,
Blind prayer, blind imprecation, seeing no sign Nor hearing aught of thee not faint and fleet
As words of men or snowflakes on the wind.
But if we chide thee, saying "Thou hast sinned, thou hast sinned,
Dark Death, to take so sweet a light away
As shone but late, though shadowed, in our skies," We hear thine answer—"Night has given what day Denied him : darkness hath unsealed his eyes."

THANKSGIVING

COULD love give strength to thank thee ! Love can give

Strong sorrow heart to suffer : what we bear
We would not put away, albeit this were
A burden love might cast aside and live.
Love chooses rather pain than palliative,
Sharp thought than soft oblivion. May we dare
So trample down our passion and our prayer
That fain would cling round feet now fugitive
And stay them—so remember, so forget,
What joy we had who had his presence yet,
What griefs were his while joy in him was ours
And grief made weary music of his breath,
As even to hail his best and last of hours
With love grown strong enough to thank thee,
Death ?

LIBITINA VERTICORDIA

SISTER of sleep, healer of life, divine

As rest and strong as very love may be,
 To set the soul that love could set not free,
 To bid the skies that day could bid not shine,
 To give the gift that life withheld was thine.

With all my heart I loved one borne from me :
 And all my heart bows down and praises thee,
 Death, that hast now made grief not his but mine.

O Changer of men's hearts, we would not bid thee Turn back our hearts from sorrow : this alone
 We bid, we pray thee, from thy sovereign throne
 And sanctuary sublime where heaven has hid thee,
 Give : grace to know of those for whom we weep
 That if they wake their life is sweet as sleep.

THE ORDER OF RELEASE

THOU canst not give it. Grace enough is ours
To know that pain for him has fallen on rest.
The worst we know was his on earth : the best,
We fain would think,—a thought no fear deflowers—
Is his, released from bonds of rayless hours.

Ah, turn our hearts from longing ; bid our quest Cease, as content with failure. This thy guest Sleeps, vexed no more of time's imperious powers,
The spirit of hope, the spirit of change and loss,
The spirit of love bowed down beneath his cross,
Nor now needs comfort from the strength of song
Love, should he wake, bears now no cross for him :
Dead hope, whose living eyes like his were dim,
Has brought forth better comfort, strength more strong.

PSYCHAGOGOS

As Greece of old acclaimed thee God and man,
So, Death, our tongue acclaims thee : yet wast thou Hailed of old Rome as Romans hail thee now, Goddess and woman. Since the sands first ran
That told when first man's life and death began,
The shadows round thy blind ambiguous brow
Have mocked the votive plea, the pleading vow
That sought thee sorrowing, fain to bless or ban.

But stronger than a father's love is thine,
And gentler than a mother's. Lord and God,
Thy staff is surer than the wizard rod
That Hermes bare as priest before thy shrine And herald of thy mercies. We could give Nought, when we would have given : thou bidst him live

THE LAST WORD

So many a dream and hope that went and came,
 So many and sweet, that love thought like to be,
 Of hours as bright and soft as those for me
 That made our hearts for song's sweet love the same, Lie now struck dead, that hope seems one with
 shame.

O Death, thy name is Love : we know it, and see The witness : yet for very love's sake we Can hardly bear to mix with thine his name.

Philip, how hard it is to bid thee part Thou knowest, if aught thou knowest where now
 thou art

Of us that loved and love thee. None may tell
 What none but knows—how hard it is to say
 The word that seals up sorrow, darkens day,
 And bids fare forth the soul it bids farewell.

IN MEMORY OF AURELIO SAFFI

THE wider world of men that is not ours
 Receives a soul whose life on earth was light.
 Though darkness close the date of human hours,
 Love holds the spirit and sense of life in sight,
 That may not, even though death bid fly, take flight.
 Faith, love, and hope fulfilled with memory, see As clear and dear as life could bid it be The present soul that is and is not he.

He, who held up the shield and sword of Rome
 Against the ravening brood of recreant France,
 Beside the man of men whom heaven took home
 When earth beheld the spring's first eyebeams glance
 And life and winter seemed alike a trance
 Eighteen years since, in sight of heaven and spring
 That saw the soul above all souls take wing,
 He too now hears the heaven we hear not sing.

He too now dwells where death is dead, and stands Where souls like stars exult in life to be :
 Whence all who linked heroic hearts and hands Shine on our sight, and give it strength to see What hope makes fair for all whom faith makes
 free :

Free with such freedom as we find in sleep,
 The light sweet shadow of death, when dreams are deep
 And high as heaven whence light and lightning leap.

And scarce a month yet gone, his living hand Writ loving words that sealed me friend of his.
 Are heaven and earth as near as sea to strand?
 May life and death as bride and bridegroom kiss?
 His last month's written word abides, and is;
 Clear as the sun that lit through storm and strife
 And darkling days when hope took fear to wife
 The faith whose fire was light of all his life.

A life so fair, so pure of earthlier leaven,
 That none hath won through higher and harder
 ways
 The deathless life of death which earth calls heaven;
 Heaven, and the light of love on earth, and praise
 Of silent memory through subsiding days
 Wherein the light subsides not whence the past Feeds full with life the future. Time holds fast Their names whom faith forgets not, first and last.

Forget? The dark forgets not dawn, nor we
 The suns that sink to rise again, and shine Lords of live years and ages. Earth and sea Forget not heaven that makes them seem divine, Though night put out their fires and bid their shrine
 Be dark and pale as storm and twilight. Day,
 Not night, is everlasting: life's full sway
 Bids death bow down as dead, and pass away.

What part has death in souls that past all fear Win heavenward their supernal way, and smite
 With scorn sublime as heaven such dreams as here
 Plague and perplex with cloud and fire the light That leads men's waking souls from glimmering
 night

To the awless heights of day, whereon man's awe, Transfigured, dies in rapture, seeing the law
 Sealed of the sun that earth arising saw ?

Faith, justice, mercy, love, and heaven-born hate That sets them all on fire and bids them be More than soft words and dreams that wake too late, Shone living through the lordly life that we Beheld, revered, and loved on earth, while he Dwelt here, and bade our eyes take light thereof ;
 Light as from heaven that flamed or smiled above
 In light or fire whose very hate was love.

No hate of man, but hate of hate whose foam Sheds poison forth from tongues of snakes and priests,
 And stains the sickening air with steams whence Rome
 Now feeds not full the God that slays and feasts ;
 For now the fangs of all the ravenous beasts
 That ramped about him, fain of prayer and prey, Fulfil their lust no more : the tide of day
 Swells, and compels him down the deathward way.

Night sucks the Church its creature down, and hell Yawns, heaves, and yearns to clasp its loathliest
 child
 Close to the breasts that bore it. All the spell
 Whence darkness saw the dawn in heaven defiled
 Is dumb as death : the lips that lied and smiled

Wax white for fear as ashes. She that bore
The banner up of darkness now no more Sheds night and fear and shame from shore to shore.

When they that cast her kingdom down were born,
North cried on south and east made moan to west
For hopes that love had hardly heart to mourn,
For Italy that was not. Kings on quest,
By priests whose blessings burn as curses blest,
Made spoil of souls and bodies bowed and bound,
Hunted and harried, leashed as horse or hound,
And hopeless of the hope that died unfound.

And now that faith has brought forth fruit to time, How should not memory praise their names, and hold
Their record even as Dante's life sublime,
Who bade his dream, found fair and false of old,
Live? Not till earth and heaven be dead and cold May man forget whose work and will made one Italy, fair as heaven or freedom won,
And left their fame to shine beside her sun.

April 1890.

THE FESTIVAL OF BEATRICE

DANTE, sole standing on the heavenward height, Beheld and heard one saying, "Behold me well :
 I am, I am Beatrice." Heaven and hell
 Kept silence, and the illimitable light
 Of all the stars was darkness in his sight
 Whose eyes beheld her eyes again, and fell Shame-stricken. Since her soul took flight to dwell
 In heaven, six hundred years have taken flight.

And now that heavenliest part of earth whereon Shines yet their shadow as once their presence shone
 To her bears witness for his sake, as he
 For hers bare witness when her face was gone :
 No slave, no hospice now for grief—but free
 From shore to mountain and from Alp to sea.

THE MONUMENT OF GIORDANO BRUNO

I

NOT from without us, only from within,
 Comes or can ever come upon us light
 Whereby the soul keeps ever truth in sight.
 No truth, no strength, no comfort man may win,
 No grace for guidance, no release from sin,
 Save of his own soul's giving. Deep and bright
 As fire enkindled in the core of night Burns in the soul where once its fire has been The light that leads and quickens thought, inspired To doubt and trust and conquer. So he said Whom Sidney, flower of England, lordliest head
 Of all we love, loved : but the fates required
 A sacrifice to hate and hell, ere fame
 Should set with his in heaven Giordano's name.

II

Cover thine eyes and weep, O child of hell,
 Grey spouse of Satan, Church of name abhorred.
 Weep, withered harlot, with thy weeping lord,
 Now none will buy the heaven thou hast to sell
 At price of prostituted souls, and swell
 Thy loveless list of lovers. Fire and sword
 No more are thine : the steel, the wheel, the cord,
 The flames that rose round living limbs, and fell

1082 THE MONUMENT OF GIORDANO BRUNO

In lifeless ash and ember, now no more Approve thee godlike. Rome, redeemed at last
From all the red pollution of thy past,
Acclaims the grave bright face that smiled of yore
Even on the fire that caught it round and clomb
To cast its ashes on the face of Rome,

LIFE IN DEATH

HE should have followed who goes forth before us,
Last born of us in life, in death first-born :
The last to lift up eyes against the morn,
The first to see the sunset. Life, that bore us Perchance for death to comfort and restore us,
Of him hath left us here awhile forlorn,
For him is as a garment overworn,
And time and change, with suns and stars in chorus,
Silent. But if, beyond all change or time,
A law more just, more equal, more sublime
Than sways the surge of life's loud sterile sea
Sways that still world whose peace environs him,
Where death lies dead as night when stars wax dim, Above all thought or hope of ours is he.

EPICEDE

As a vesture shalt thou change them, said the prophet,

And the raiment that was flesh is turned to dust ;
Dust and flesh and dust again the likeness of it,

And the fine gold woven and worn of youth is rust.
Hours that wax and wane salute the shade and scoff it,

That it knows not aught it doth nor aught it must :
Day by day the speeding soul makes haste to doff it,
Night by night the pride of life resigns its trust.

Sleep, whose silent notes of song loud life's derange not,

Takes the trust in hand awhile as angels may :
Joy with wings that rest not, grief with wings that range not,

Guard the gates of sleep and waking, gold or grey.
Joys that joys estrange, and griefs that griefs estrange
not,

Day that yearns for night, and night that yearns for
day,

As a vesture shalt thou change them, and they change
not,

Seeing that change may never change or pass away.

Life of death makes question, "What art thou that changest ?

What am I, that fear should trust or faith should doubt ?

I that lighten, thou that darkenest and estrangest,

Is it night or day that girds us round about ?

Light and darkness on the ways wherein thou rangest

Seem as one, and beams as clouds they put to rout.

Strange is hope, but fear of all things born were strangest,

Seeing that none may strive with change to cast it out.

"Change alone stands fast, thou sayest, O death :
I know not :

What art thou, my brother death, that thou shouldst know ?

Men may reap no fruits of fields wherein they sow
not ;

Hope or fear is all the seed we have to sow.

Winter seals the sacred springs up that they flow
not :

Wind and sun and change unbind them, and they flow.

Am I thou or art thou I ? The years that show not Pass, and leave no sign when time shall be to show."

Hope makes suit to faith lest fear give ear to sorrow :

Doubt strews dust upon his head, and goes his way.

All the golden hope that life of death would borrow,

How, if death require again, may life repay ?

Earth endures no darkness whence no light yearns thorough ;

God in man as light in darkness lives, they say :
Yet, would midnight take assurance of the morrow,
Who shall pledge the faith or seal the bond of day ?

Darkness, mute or loud with music or with mourning,

Starry darkness, winged with wind or clothed with calm,

Dreams no dream of grief or fear or wrath or warning,

Bears no sign of race or goal or strife or palm.

Word of blessing, word of mocking or of scorning,

Knows it none, nor whence its breath sheds blight or balm.

Yet a little while, and hark, the psalm of morning :

Yet a little while, and silence takes the psalm.

All the comfort, all the worship, all the wonder,

All the light of love that darkness holds in fee,

All the song that silence keeps or keeps not under,

Night, the soul that knows gives thanks for all to thee.

Far beyond the gates that morning strikes in sunder

Hopes that grief makes holy, dreams that fear sets
free,

Far above the throne of thought, the lair of thunder,

Silent shines the word whose utterance fills the
sea.

MEMORIAL VERSES ON THE DEATH OF WILLIAM BELL SCOTT

A LIFE more bright than the sun's face, bowed Through stress of season and coil of cloud,
Sets : and the sorrow that casts out fear
Scarce deems him dead in his chill still shroud,

Dead on the breast of the dying year,
Poet and painter and friend, thrice dear
For love of the suns long set, for love
Of song that sets not with sunset here,

For love of the fervent heart, above
Their sense who saw not the swift light move
That filled with sense of the loud sun's lyre
The thoughts that passion was fain to prove

In fervent labour of high desire
And faith that leapt from 'its own quenched pyre Alive and strong as the sun, and caught
From darkness light, and from twilight fire.

Passion, deep as the depths unsought
Whence faith's own hope may redeem us nought, Filled full with ardour of pain sublime
His mourning song and his mounting thought.

Elate with sense of a sterner time,
His hand's flight clomb as a bird's might climb
 Calvary : dark in the darkling air
That shrank for fear of the crowning crime,

Three crosses rose on the hillside bare,
Shown scarce by grace of the lightning's glare
 That clove the veil of the temple through
And smote the priests on the threshold there.

The soul that saw it, the hand that drew,
Whence light as thought's or as faith's glance flew
 And stung to life the sepulchral past,
And bade the stars of it burn anew,

Held no less than the dead world fast
The light live shadows about them cast,
 The likeness living of dawn and night,
The days that pass and the dreams that last.

Thought, clothed round with sorrow as light,
Dark as a cloud that the moon turns bright,
 Moved, as a wind on the striving sea,
That yearns and quickens and flags in flight,

Through forms of colour and song that he Who fain would have set its wide wings free
 Cast round it, clothing or chaining hope
With lights that last not and shades that flee.

Scarce in song could his soul find scope,
Scarce the strength of his hand might ope
 Art's inmost gate of her sovereign shrine,
To cope with heaven as a man may cope.

But high as the hope of a man may shine
The faith, the fervour, the life divine
 That thrills our life and transfigures, rose
And shone resurgent, a sunbright sign,

Through shapes whereunder the strong soul glows
And fills them full as a sunlit rose
 With sense and fervour of life, whose light
The fool's eye knows not, the man's eye knows.

None that can read or divine aright
The scriptures writ of the soul may slight
 The strife of a strenuous soul to show
More than the craft of the hand may write.

None may slight it, and none may know
How high the flames that aspire and glow
 From heart and spirit and soul may climb
And triumph ; higher than the souls lie low

Whose hearing hears not the livelong rhyme,
Whose eyesight sees not the light sublime,
 That shines, that sounds, that ascends and lives
Unquenched of change, unobscured of time.

A long life's length, as a man's life gives Space for the spirit that soars and strives To strive and soar, has the soul shone through That heeds not whither the world's wind drives

Now that the days and the ways it knew
Are strange, are dead as the dawn's grey dew
 At high midnoon of the mounting day
That mocks the might of the dawn it slew.

Yet haply may not—and haply may—
No sense abide of the dead sun's ray Wherein the soul that outsoars us now
Rejoiced with ours in its radiant sway.

Hope may hover, and doubt may bow, Dreaming. Haply—they dream not how—
 Not life but death may indeed be dead
When silence darkens the dead man's brow.

Hope, whose name is remembrance, fed
With love that lightens from seasons fled,
 Dreams, and craves not indeed to know,
That death and life are as souls that wed.

But change that falls on the heart like snow
Can chill not memory nor hope, that show
 The soul, the spirit, the heart and head, Alive above us who strive below.

AN OLD SAYING

MANY waters cannot quench love,
 Neither can the floods drown it.
 Who shall snare or slay the white dove
 Faith, whose very dreams crown it,
 Gird it round with grace and peace, deep,
 Warm, and pure, and soft as sweet sleep ?
 Many waters cannot quench love,
 Neither can the floods drown it.

Set me as a seal upon thine heart,
 As a seal upon thine arm.
 How should we behold the days depart
 And the nights resign their charm ?
 Love is as the soul : though hate and fear
 Waste and overthrow, they strike not here.
 Set me as a seal upon thine heart,
 As a seal upon thine arm.

A MOSS-ROSE

IF the rose of all flowers be the rarest
That heaven may adore from above,
And the fervent moss-rose be the fairest
That sweetens the summer with love,

Can it be that a fairer than any Should blossom afar from the tree ?
Yet one, and a symbol of many,
Shone sudden for eyes that could see.

In the grime and the gloom of November
The bliss and the bloom of July Bade autumn rejoice and remember
The balm of the blossoms gone by.

Would you know what moss-rose now it may be
That puts all the rest to the blush,
The flower was the face of a baby,
The moss was a bonnet of plush.

TO A CAT

I

STATELY, kindly, lordly friend, Condescend
Here to sit by me, and turn
Glorious eyes that smile and burn,
Golden eyes, love's lustrous meed,
On the golden page I read.

All your wondrous wealth of hair,
 Dark and fair,
Silken-shaggy, soft and bright
As the clouds and beams of night,
Pays my reverent hand's caress
Back with friendlier gentleness.

Dogs may fawn on all and some
 As they come ;
You, a friend of loftier mind,
Answer friends alone in kind.
Just your foot upon my hand
Softly bids it understand.

Morning round this silent sweet Garden-seat
Sheds its wealth of gathering light, Thrills the gradual clouds with might,
Changes woodland, orchard, heath.
Lawn, and garden there beneath.

Fair and dim they gleamed below :
Now they glow
Deep as even your sunbright eyes,
Fair as even the wakening skies.
Can it not or can it be Now that you give thanks to see ?

May not you rejoice as I,
Seeing the sky
Change to heaven revealed, and bid
Earth reveal the heaven it hid
All night long from stars and moon,
Now the sun sets all in tune ?

What within you wakes with day
Who can say ?
All too little may we tell,
Friends who like each other well,
What might haply, if we might,
Bid us read our lives aright.

II

Wild on woodland ways your sires
Flashed like fires :

Fair as flame and fierce and fleet
As with wings on wingless feet
Shone and sprang your mother, free,
Bright and brave as wind or sea.

Free and proud and glad as they,
 Here to-day
Rests or roams their radiant child,
Vanquished not, but reconciled,
Free from curb of aught above
Save the lovely curb of love.

Love through dreams of souls divine Fain would shine
Round a dawn whose light and song
Then should right our mutual wrong—
Speak, and seal the love-lit law
Sweet Assisi's seer foresaw.

Dreams were theirs ; yet haply may Dawn a day
When such friends and fellows born,
Seeing our earth as fair at morn,
May for wiser love's sake see More of heaven's deep heart than we.

HAWTHORN DYKE

ALL the golden air is full of balm and bloom Where the hawthorns line the shelving dyke with flowers.
 Joyous children born of April's happiest hours, High and low they laugh and lighten, knowing their
 doom
 Bright as brief—to bless and cheer they know not whom,
 Heed not how, but washed and warmed with suns and showers
 Smile, and bid the sweet soft gradual banks and bowers
 Thrill with love of sunlit fire or starry gloom.
 All our moors and lawns all round rejoice ; but here
 All the rapturous resurrection of the year
 Finds the radiant utterance perfect, sees the word Spoken, hears the light that speaks it. Far and near,
 All the world is heaven : and man and flower and bird
 Here are one at heart with all things seen and heard.

THE BROTHERS

THERE were twa brethren fell on strife ;
 Sweet fruits are sair to gather :
 The tane has reft his brother of life ;
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

There were twa brethren fell to fray ;
 Sweet fruits are sair to gather :
 The tane is clad in a cloak of clay ;
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

O loud and loud was the live man's cry,
 (Sweet fruits are sair to gather)
 " Would God the dead and the slain were I ! "
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

" O sair was the wrang and sair the fray,"
 (Sweet fruits are sair to gather)
 " But liefer had love be slain than slay."
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

" O sweet is the life that sleeps at hame,"
 (Sweet fruits are sair to gather)
 " But I maun wake on a far sea's faem."
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

“ And women are fairest of a’ things fair,”
 (Sweet fruits are sair to gather)
“ But never shall I kiss woman mair.”
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

Between the birk and the aik and the thorn
 (Sweet fruits are sair to gather)
He’s laid his brother to lie forlorn :
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

Between the bent and the burn and the broom
 (Sweet fruits are sair to gather)
He’s laid him to sleep till dawn of doom :
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

He’s tane him owre the waters wide,
 (Sweet fruits are sair to gather)
Afar to fleet and afar to bide :
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

His hair was yellow, his cheek was red,
 (Sweet fruits are sair to gather)
When he set his face to the wind and fled :
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

His banes were stark and his een were bright
 (Sweet fruits are sair to gather)
When he set his face to the sea by night :
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

His cheek was wan and his hair was grey
 (Sweet fruits are sair to gather)
When he came back hame frae the wide world’s way :
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

His banes were weary, his een were dim,
 (Sweet fruits are sair to gather)
And nae man lived and had mind of him :
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

“ O whatten a wreck wad they seek on land ”
 (Sweet fruits are sair to gather)
“ That they houk the turf to the seaward hand ? ”
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

“ O whatten a prey wad they think to take ”
 (Sweet fruits are sair to gather)
“ That they delve the dykes for a dead man’s sake ? ”
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

A bane of the dead in his hand he’s tane ;
 Sweet fruits are sair to gather :
And the red blood brak frae the dead white bane.
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

He’s cast it forth of his auld faint hand ;
 Sweet fruits are sair to gather :
And the red blood ran on the wan wet sand.
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

“ O whatten a slayer is this,” they said,
 (Sweet fruits are sair to gather)
“ That the straik of his hand should raise his dead ? ”
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

“ O weel is me for the sign I take ”
 (Sweet fruits are sair to gather)
“ That now I may die for my auld sin’s sake.”
 And the wind wears owre the heather.

“For the dead was in wait now fifty year,”

(Sweet fruits are sair to gather)

“And now shall I die for his blood’s sake here.”

And the wind wears owre the heather.

JACOBITE SONG

Now who will speak, and lie not,
 And pledge not life, but give ?
 Slaves herd with herded cattle :
 The dawn grows bright for battle
 And if we die, we die not ;
 And if we live, we live.

The faith our fathers fought for,
 The kings our fathers knew,
 We fight but as they fought for :
 We seek the goal they sought for,
 The chance they hailed and knew,
 The praise they strove and wrought for,
 To leave their blood as dew
 On fields that flower anew.

Men live that serve the stranger ;
 Hounds live that huntsmen tame :
 These life-days of our living
 Are days of God's good giving Where death smiles soft on danger
 And life scowls dark on shame.

JACOBITE SONG

And what would you do other,
Sweet wife, if you were I ?
And how should you be other,
My sister, than your brother,
If you were man as I,
Born of our sire and mother,
With choice to cower and fly,
And chance to strike and die ?

No churl's our oldworld name is,
The lands we leave are fair :
But fairer far than these are,
But wide as all the seas are,
But high as heaven the fame is That if we die we share.

Our name the night may swallow,
Our lands the churl may take :
But night nor death may swallow,
Nor hell's nor heaven's dim hollow,
The star whose height we take,
The star whose light we follow
For faith's unfaltering sake
Till hope that sleeps awake.

Soft hope's light lure we serve not,
Nor follow, fain to find :
Dark time's last word may smite her Dead, ere man's falsehood blight her :
But though she die, we swerve not,
Who cast not eye behind.

Faith speaks when hope dissembles :
Faith lives when hope lies dead :

If death as life dissembles,
And all that night assembles
 Of stars at dawn lie dead,
Faint hope that smiles and trembles
 May tell not well for dread :
 But faith has heard it said.

Now who will fight, and fly not,
 And grudge not life to give?
And who will strike beside us,
If life's or death's light guide us ?
For if we live, we die not,
 And if we die, we live.

THE BALLAD OF DEAD MEN'S BAY

THE sea swings owre the slants of sand,
 All white with winds that drive ;
 The sea swirls up to the still dim strand,
 Where nae man comes alive.

At the grey soft edge of the fruitless surf
 A light flame sinks and springs ;
 At the grey soft rim of the flowerless turf
 A low flame leaps and clings.

What light is this on a sunless shore,
 What gleam on a starless sea ?
 Was it earth's or hell's waste womb that bore Such births as should not be ?

As lithe snakes turning, as bright stars burning,
 They bicker and beckon and call ;
 As wild waves churning, as wild winds yearning,
 They flicker and climb and fall.

A soft strange cry from the landward rings—
 " What ails the sea to shine ? "
 A keen sweet note from the spray's rim springs—
 " What fires are these of thine ? "

THE BALLAD OF DEAD MEN'S BAY 1105

A soul am I that was born on earth
For ae day's waesome span :
Death bound me fast on the bourn of birth
Ere I were christened man.

" A light by night, I fleet and fare
Till the day of wrath and woe ;
On the hems of earth and the skirts of air Winds hurl me to and fro."

" O well is thee, though the weird be strange That bids thee flit and flee ;
For hope is child of the womb of change,
And hope keeps watch with thee.

" When the years are gone, and the time is come,
God's grace may give thee grace ;
And thy soul may sing, though thy soul were dumb,
And shine before God's face.

" But I, that lighten and revel and roll
With the foam of the plunging sea,
No sign is mine of a breathing soul
That God should pity me.

" Nor death, nor heaven, nor hell, nor birth Hath part in me nor mine :
Strong lords are these of the living earth
And loveless lords of thine.

" But I that know nor lord nor life
More sure than storm or spray,
Whose breath is made of sport and strife,
Whereon shall I find stay ?"

1106 THE BALLAD OF DEAD MEN'S BAY

“ And wouldst thou change thy doom with me, Full fain with thee would I :
For the life that lightens and lifts the sea
Is more than earth or sky.

“ And what if the day of doubt and doom
Shall save nor smite not me ?
I would not rise from the slain world's tomb
If there be no more sea.

“ Take he my soul that gave my soul,
And give it thee to keep ;
And me, while seas and stars shall roll
Thy life that falls on sleep.”

That word went up through the mirk mid sky,
And even to God's own ear :
And the Lord was ware of the keen twin cry,
And wroth was he to hear.

He 's tane the soul of the unsained child
That fled to death from birth ;
He 's tane the light of the wan sea wild,
And bid it burn on earth.

He 's given the ghaist of the babe new-born
The gift of the water-sprite,
To ride on revel from morn to morn
And roll from night to night

He 's given the sprite of the wild wan sea
The gift of the new-born man,
A soul for ever to bide and be
When the years have filled their span.

THE BALLAD OF DEAD MEN'S BAY 1107

When a year was gone and a year was come,
O loud and loud cried they—
“For the lee-lang year thou hast held us dumb Take now thy gifts away!”

O loud and lang they cried on him,
And sair and sair they prayed :
“Is the face of thy grace as the night's face grim
For those thy wrath has made?”

A cry more bitter than tears of men
From the rim of the dim grey sea ;— “Give me my living soul again,
The soul thou gavest me,
The doom and the dole of kindly men,
To bide my weird and be !”

A cry more keen from the wild low land
Than the wail of waves that roll ;— “Take back the gift of a loveless hand,
Thy gift of doom and dole,
The weird of men that bide on land ;
Take from me, take my soul !”

The hands that smite are the hands that spare ;
They build and break the tomb ;
They turn to darkness and dust and air
The fruits of the waste earth's womb ;
But never the gift of a granted prayer,
The dole of a spoken doom.

Winds may change at a word unheard,
But none may change the tides :
The prayer once heard is as God's own word ;
The doom once dealt abides.

1108 THE BALLAD OF DEAD MEN'S BAY

And ever a cry goes up by day,
And ever a wail by night ;
And nae ship comes by the weary bay
But her shipmen hear them wail and pray,
And see with earthly sight
The twofold flames of the twin lights play
Where the sea-banks green and the sea-floods grey
Are proud of peril and fain of prey,
And the sand quakes ever ; and ill fare they
That look upon that light.

1893

THE sea of the years that endure not Whose tide shall endure till we die
 And know what the seasons assure not,
 If death be or life be a lie,
 Sways hither the spirit and thither,
 A waif in the swing of the sea
 Whose wrecks are of memories that wither
 As leaves of a tree.

We hear not and hail not with greeting
 The sound of the wings of the years,
 The storm of the sound of them beating,
 That none till it pass from him hears :
 But tempest nor calm can imperil
 The treasures that fade not or fly ;
 Change bids them not change and be sterile,
 Death bids them not die.

Hearts plighted in youth to the royal High service of hope and of song,
 Sealed fast for endurance as loyal,
 And proved of the years as they throng,

Conceive not, believe not, and fear not
That age may be other than youth ;
That faith and that friendship may hear not
And utter not truth.

Not yesterday's light nor to-morrow's
Gleams nearer or clearer than gleams,
Though joys be forgotten and sorrows
Forgotten as changes of dreams,
The dawn of the days unforgotten
That noon could eclipse not or slay,
Whose fruits were as children begotten
Of dawn upon day.

The years that were flowerful and fruitless,
The years that were fruitful and dark,
The hopes that were radiant and rootless,
The hopes that were winged for their mark,
Lie soft in the sepulchres fashioned
Of hours that arise and subside,
Absorbed and subdued and impassioned,
In pain or in pride.

But far in the night that entombs them
The starshine as sunshine is strong,
And clear through the cloud that resumes them
Remembrance, a light and a song,
Rings lustrous as music and hovers
As birds that impend on the sea,
And thoughts that their prison-house covers Arise and are free.

Forgetfulness deep as a prison
Holds days that are dead for us fast

Till the sepulchre sees rearisen
The spirit whose reign is the past,
Disentrammelled of darkness, and kindled
With life that is mightier than death,
When the life that obscured it has dwindled
And passed as a breath.

But time nor oblivion may darken Remembrance whose name will be joy
While memory forgets not to hearken,
While manhood forgets not the boy
Who heard and exulted in hearing
The songs of the sunrise of youth Ring radiant above him, unfearing
And joyous as truth.

Truth, winged and enkindled with rapture
And sense of the radiance of yore,
Fulfilled you with power to recapture
What never might singer before—
The life, the delight, and the sorrow
Of troublous and chivalrous years
That knew not of night or of morrow.
Of hopes or of fears.

But wider the wing and the vision
That quicken the spirit have spread Since memory beheld with derision Man's hope to be more than his dead.
From the mists and the snows and the thunders
Your spirit has brought for us forth
Light, music, and joy in the wonders
And charms of the north.

The wars and the woes and the glories
That quicken and lighten and rain
From the clouds of its chronicled stories,
The passion, the pride, and the pain,
Whose echoes were mute and the token
Was lost of the spells that they spake,
Rise bright at your bidding, unbroken
Of ages that break.

For you, and for none of us other,
Time is not : the dead that must live
Hold commune with you as a brother
By grace of the life that you give.
The heart that was in them is in you,
Their soul in your spirit endures :
The strength of their song is the sinew
Of this that is yours.

Hence is it that life, everlasting
As light and as music, abides
In the sound of the surge of it, casting Sound back to the surge of the tides,
Till sons of the sons of the Norsemen
Watch, hurtling to windward and lee,
Round England, unbacked of her horsemen,
The steeds of the sea.

A CHANNEL PASSAGE

1855

FORTH from Calais, at dawn of night, when sunset summer on autumn shone, Fared the steamer alert and loud through seas whence only the sun was gone .
 Soft and sweet as the sky they smiled, and bade man welcome : a dim sweet hour Gleamed and whispered in wind and sea, and heaven was fair as a field in flower Stars fulfilled the desire of the darkling world as with music : the starbright air Made the face of the sea, if aught may make the face of the sea, more fair.

Whence came change ? Was the sweet night weary of rest ? What anguish awoke in the dark ?
 Sudden, sublime, the strong storm spake : we heard the thunders as hounds that bark.
 Lovelier if aught may be lovelier than stars, we saw the lightnings exalt the sky, Living and lustrous and rapturous as love that is born but to quicken and lighten and die.

Heaven's own heart at its highest of delight found utterance in music and semblance in fire :
Thunder on thunder exulted, rejoicing to live and to satisfy the night's desire.

And the night was alive and anhungered of life as a tiger from toils cast free :
And a rapture of rage made joyous the spirit and strength of the soul of the sea.
All the weight of the wind bore down on it, freighted with death for-fraught :
And the keen waves kindled and quickened as things transfigured or things distraught.
And madness fell on them laughing and leaping ; and madness came on the wind :
And the might and the light and the darkness of storm were as storm in the heart of Ind.
Such glory, such terror, such passion, as lighten and harrow the far fierce East, Rang, shone, spake, shuddered around us : the night was an altar with death for priest.
The channel that sunders England from shores where never was man born free Was clothed with the likeness and thrilled with the strength and the wrath of a tropic sea.
As a wild steed ramps in rebellion, and rears till it swerves from a backward fall,
The strong ship struggled and reared, and her deck was upright as a sheer cliff's wall.
Stern and prow plunged under, alternate : a glimpse,
a recoil, a breath,
And she sprang as the life in a god made man would spring at the throat of death.
Three glad hours, and it seemed not an hour of supreme and supernal joy,

Filled full with delight that revives in remembrance a sea-bird's heart in a boy.
For the central crest of the night was cloud that thundered and flamed, sublime
As the splendour and song of the soul everlasting that quickens the pulse of time.
The glory beholden of man in a vision, the music of light overheard,
The rapture and radiance of battle, the life that abides in the fire of a word, In the midmost heaven enkindled, was manifest far on the face of the sea,
And the rage in the roar of the voice of the waters was heard but when heaven breathed free.
Far eastward, clear of the covering of cloud, the sky laughed out into light
From the rims of the storm to the sea's dark edge with flames that were flowerlike and white.
The leaping and luminous blossoms of live sheet lightning that laugh as they fade From the cloud's black base to the black wave's brim rejoiced in the light they made.
Far westward, throned in a silent sky, where life was in lustrous tune,
Shone, sweeter and surer than morning or evening, the steadfast smile of the moon.
The limitless heaven that enshrined them was lovelier than dreams may behold, and deep As life or as death, revealed and transfigured, may shine on the soul through sleep.
All glories of toil and of triumph and passion and pride that it yearns to know Bore witness there to the soul of its likeness and kinship, above and below.

The joys of the lightnings, the songs of the thunders, the strong sea's labour and rage, Were tokens and signs of the war that is life and is joy for the soul to wage.
No thought strikes deeper or higher than the heights and the depths that the night made bare, Illimitable, infinite, awful and joyful, alive in the summit of air--
Air stilled and thrilled by the tempest that thundered between its reign and the sea's, Rebellious, rapturous, and transient as faith or as terror that bows men's knees.
No love sees loftier and fairer the form of its godlike vision in dreams
Than the world shone then, when the sky and the sea were as love for a breath's length seems—One utterly, mingled and mastering and mastered and laughing with love that subsides As the glad mad night sank panting and satiate with storm, and released the tides.
In the dense mid channel the steam-souled ship hung hovering, assailed and withheld
As a soul born royal, if life or if death be against it, is thwarted and quelled.
As the glories of myriads of glowworms in lustrous grass on a boundless lawn Were the glories of flames phosphoric that made of the water a light like dawn.
A thousand Phosphors, a thousand Hespers, awoke in the churning sea,
And the swift soft hiss of them living and dying was clear as a tune could be ;
As a tune that is played by the fingers of death on the keys of life or of sleep,

Audible alway alive in the storm, too fleet for a dream to keep :

Too fleet, too sweet for a dream to recover and thought to remember awake :

Light subtler and swifter than lightning, that whispers and laughs in the live storm's wake,

In the wild bright wake of the storm, in the dense loud heart of the labouring hour,

A harvest of stars by the storm's hand reaped, each fair as a star-shaped flower.

And sudden and soft as the passing of sleep is the passing of tempest seemed

When the light and the sound of it sank, and the glory was gone as a dream half dreamed.

The glory, the terror, the passion that made of the midnight a miracle, died,

Not slain at a stroke, nor in gradual reluctance abated of power and of pride ;

With strong swift subsidence, awful as power that is wearied of power upon earth,

As a God that were wearied of power upon heaven, and were fain of a new God's birth,

The might of the night subsided : the tyranny kindled in darkness fell :

And the sea and the sky put off them the rapture and radiance of heaven and of hell.

The waters, heaving and hungering at heart, made way, and were wellnigh fain,

For the ship that had fought them, and wrestled, and revelled in labour, to cease from her pain.

And an end was made of it : only remembrance endures of the glad loud strife ;

And the sense that a rapture so royal may come not again in the passage of life.

THE LAKE OF GAUBE

THE sun is lord and god, sublime, serene,
 And sovereign on the mountains : earth and air
 Lie prone in passion, blind with bliss unseen
 By force of sight and might of rapture, fair
 As dreams that die and know not what they were.
 The lawns, the gorges, and the peaks, are one Glad glory, thrilled with sense of unison
 In strong compulsive silence of the sun.

Flowers dense and keen as midnight stars aflame
 And living things of light like flames in flower
 That glance and flash as though no hand might tame Lightnings whose life outshone their stormlit hour And played and laughed on earth, with all their power
 Gone, and with all their joy of life made long
 And harmless as the lightning life of song, Shine sweet like stars when darkness feels them
 strong.

The deep mild purple flaked with moonbright gold
 That makes the scales seem flowers of hardened
 light,

The flamelike tongue, the feet that noon leaves cold,
The kindly trust in man, when once the sight Grew less than strange, and faith bade fear take flight,
Outlive the little harmless life that shone
And gladdened eyes that loved it, and was gone
Ere love might fear that fear had looked thereon.

Fear held the bright thing hateful, even as fear,
Whose name is one with hate and horror, saith That heaven, the dark deep heaven of water near,
Is deadly deep as hell and dark as death.
The rapturous plunge that quickens blood and
breath
With pause more sweet than passion, ere they strive
To raise again the limbs that yet would dive Deeper, should there have slain the soul alive.

As the bright salamander in fire of the noonshine exults and is glad of his day,
The spirit that quickens my body rejoices to pass from the sunlight away,
To pass from the glow of the mountainous flowerage, the high multitudinous bloom,
Far down through the fathomless night of the water, the gladness of silence and gloom.
Death-dark and delicious as death in the dream of a lover and dreamer may be,
It clasps and encompasses body and soul with delight to be living and free :
Free utterly now, though the freedom endure but the space of a perilous breath,
And living, though girdled about with the darkness and coldness and strangeness of death :

Each limb and each pulse of the body rejoicing, each nerve of the spirit at rest, All sense of the soul's life rapture, a passionate peace in its blindness blest.
So plunges the downward swimmer, embraced of the water unfathomed of man,
The darkness unplummeted, icier than seas in midwinter, for blessing or ban ;
And swiftly and sweetly, when strength and breath fall short, and the dive is done, Shoots up as a shaft from the dark depth shot, sped straight into sight of the sun ;
And sheer through the snow-soft water, more dark than the roof of the pines above, Strikes forth, and is glad as a bird whose flight is impelled and sustained of love.
As a sea-mew's love of the sea-wind breasted and ridden for rapture's sake
Is the love of his body and soul for the darkling delight of the soundless lake :
As the silent speed of a dream too living to live for a thought's space more
Is the flight of his limbs through the still strong chill of the darkness from shore to shore.
Might life be as this is and death be as life that casts off time as a robe,
The likeness of infinite heaven were a symbol revealed of the lake of Gaube.

Whose thought has fathomed and measured
The darkness of life and of death,
The secret within them treasured,
The spirit that is not breath ?

Whose vision has yet beholden
The splendour of death and of life ?
Though sunset as dawn be golden,
Is the word of them peace, not strife ?
Deep silence answers : the glory
We dream of may be but a dream,
And the sun of the soul wax hoary
As ashes that show not a gleam.
But well shall it be with us ever
Who drive through the darkness here,
If the soul that we live by never,
For aught that a lie saith, fear.

THE PROMISE OF THE HAWTHORN

SPRING sleeps and stirs and trembles with desire Pure as a babe's that nestles toward the breast.
The world, as yet an all unstricken lyre,
With all its chords alive and all at rest, Feels not the sun's hand yet, but feels his breath
And yearns for love made perfect. Man and bird, Thrilled through with hope of life that casts out death,
Wait with a rapturous patience till his word
Speak heaven, and flower by flower and tree by tree Give back the silent strenuous utterance. Earth, Alive awhile and joyful as the sea,
Laughs not aloud in joy too deep for mirth, Presageful of perfection of delight,
Till all the unborn green buds be born in white.

HAWTHORN TIDE

I

DAWN is alive in the world, and the darkness of heaven and of earth Subsides in the light of a smile more sweet than the loud noon's mirth,
 Spring lives as a babe lives, glad and divine as the sun, and unsure
 If aught so divine and so glad may be worshipped and loved and endure.
 A soft green glory suffuses the love-lit earth with delight,
 And the face of the noon is fair as the face of the star-clothed night.
 Earth knows not and doubts not at heart of the glories again to be :
 Sleep doubts not and dreams not how sweet shall the waking beyond her be.
 A whole white world of revival awaits May's whisper awhile,
 Abides and exults in the bud as a soft hushed laugh in a smile.
 As a maid's mouth laughing with love and subdued for the love's sake, May Shines and withholds for a little the word she revives to say.

When the clouds and the winds and the sunbeams are warring and strengthening with joy that they live,

Spring, from reluctance enkindled to rapture, from slumber to strife,

Stirs, and repents, and is winter, and weeps, and awakes as the frosts forgive,

And the dark chill death of the woodland is troubled, and dies into life.

And the honey of heaven, of the hives whence night feeds full on the springtide's breath,

Fills fuller the lips of the lustrous air with delight in the dawn :

Each blossom enkindling with love that is life and subsides with a smile into death

Arises and lightens and sets as a star from her sphere withdrawn.

Not sleep, in the rapture of radiant dreams, when sundawn smiles on the night,

Shows earth so sweet with a splendour and fragrance of life that is love :

Each blade of the glad live grass, each bud that receives or rejects the light,

Salutes and responds to the marvel of Maytime around and above.

Joy gives thanks for the sight and the savour of heaven, and is humbled

With awe that exults in thanksgiving : the towers of the flowers of the trees

Shine sweeter than snows that the hand of the season has melted and crumbled,

And fair as the foam that is lesser of life than the loveliest of these.

But the sense of a life more lustrous with joy and enkindled of glory
Than man's was ever or may be, and briefer than joys most brief,
Bids man's heart bend and adore, be the man's head golden or hoary,
As it leapt but a breath's time since and saluted the flower and the leaf.
The rapture that springs into love at the sight of the world's exultation
Takes not a sense of rebuke from the sense of triumphant awe :
But the spirit that quickens the body fulfils it with mute adoration,
And the knees would fain bow down as the eyes that rejoiced and saw.

Fair and sublime as the face of the dawn is the splendour of May,
But the sky's and the sea's joy fades not as earth's pride passes away.
Yet hardly the sun's first lightning or laughter of love on the sea
So humbles the heart into worship that knows not or doubts if it be
As the first full glory beholden again of the life newborn
That hails and applauds with inaudible music the season of morn.
A day's length since, and it was not : a night's length more, and the sun
Salutes and enkindles a world of delight as a strange world won.

A new life answers and thrills to the kiss of the young strong year,
And the glory we see is as music we hear not, and dream that we hear.
From blossom to blossom the live tune kindles, from tree to tree,
And we know not indeed if we hear not the song of the life we see.

For the first blithe day that beholds it and worships and cherishes cannot but sing With a louder and lustier delight in the sun and the sunlit earth
Than the joy of the days that beheld but the soft green dawn of the slow faint spring Glad and afraid to be glad, and subdued in a shame-fast mirth.
When the first bright knoll of the woodland world laughs out into fragrant light,
The year's heart changes and quickens with sense of delight in desire,
And the kindling desire is one with thanksgiving for utter fruition of sight,
For sight and for sense of a world that the sun finds meet for his lyre.
Music made of the morning that smites from the chords of the mute world song Trembles and quickens and lightens, unfelt, unbeholden, unheard,
From blossom on blossom that climbs and exults in the strength of the sun grown strong,
And answers the word of the wind of the spring with the sun's own word.

Hard on the skirt of the deep soft copses that spring refashions,
Triumphs and towers to the height of the crown of a wildwood tree
One royal hawthorn, sublime and serene as the joy that impassions
Awe that exults in thanksgiving for sight of the grace we see,
The grace that is given of a god that abides for a season, mysterious
And merciful, fervent and fugitive, seen and unknown and adored :
His presence is felt in the light and the fragrance,
elate and imperious,
His laugh and his breath in the blossom are love's, the beloved soul's lord.
For surely the soul if it loves is beloved of the god as a lover
Whose love is not all unaccepted, a worship not utterly vain :
So full, so deep is the joy that revives for the soul to recover
Yearly, beholden of hope and of memory in sunshine and rain.

Wonder and love stand silent, stricken at heart and stilled.
But yet is the cup of delight and of worship un-pledged and unfilled.
A handsbreadth hence leaps up, laughs out as an angel crowned,
A strong full fountain of flowers overflowing above and around.

The boughs and the blossoms in triumph salute with adoring mirth

The womb that bare them, the glad green mother, the sunbright earth.

Downward sweeping, as song subsides into silence,
none

May hear what sound is the word's they speak to the brooding sun.

None that hearken may hear : man may but pass and adore,

And humble his heart in thanksgiving for joy that is now no more.

And sudden, afront and ahead of him, joy is alive and aflame

On the shrine whose incense is given of the godhead, again the same

Pale and pure as a maiden secluded in secret and cherished with fear,

One sweet glad hawthorn smiles as it shrinks under shelter, screened

By two strong brethren whose bounteous blossom outsoars it, year after year,

While earth still cleaves to the live spring's breast as a babe unweaned.

Never was amaranth fairer in fields where heroes of old found rest,

Never was asphodel sweeter : but here they endure not long,

Though ever the sight that salutes them again and adores them awhile is blest,

And the heart is a hymn, and the sense is a soul, and the soul is a song.

Alone on a dyke's trenched edge, and afar from the blossoming wildwood's verge, Laughs and lightens a sister, triumphal in love-lit
pride ;
Clothed round with the sun, and inviolate : her blossoms exult as the springtide surge,
When the wind and the dawn enkindle the snows of the shoreward tide.

Hardly the worship of old that rejoiced as it knelt in the vision
Shown of the God new-born whose breath is the spirit of spring
Hailed ever with love more strong and defiant of death's derision
A joy more perfect than here we mourn for as May / takes wing.
Time gives it and takes it again and restores it : the glory, the wonder,
The triumph of lustrous blossom that makes of the steep sweet bank
One visible marvel of music inaudible, over and under,
Attuned as in heaven, pass hence and return for the sun to thank.
The stars and the sun give thanks for the glory bestowed and beholden,
For the gladness they give and rejoice in, the night and the dawn and the day :
But nought they behold when the world is aflower and the season is golden Makes answer as meet and as sweet as the flower that itself is May.

THE PASSING OF THE HAWTHORN

THE coming of the hawthorn brings on earth Heaven : all the spring speaks out in one sweet word,
 And heaven grows gladder, knowing that earth has heard.

Ere half the flowers are jubilant in birth,
 The splendour of the laughter of their mirth Dazzles delight with wonder : man and bird
 Rejoice and worship, stilled at heart and stirred
 With rapture girt about with awe for girth.

The passing of the hawthorn takes away
 Heaven : all the spring falls dumb, and all the soul Sinks down in man for sorrow. Night and day Forego the joy that made them one and whole.
 The change that falls on every starry spray
 Bids, flower by flower, the knell of springtime toll.

TO A BABY KINSWOMAN

LOVE, whose light thrills heaven and earth,
 Smiles and weeps upon thy birth,
 Child, whose mother's love-lit eyes
 Watch thee but from Paradise.
 Sweetest sight that earth can give,
 Sweetest light of eyes that live,
 Ours must needs, for hope withdrawn,
 Hail with tears thy soft spring dawn.
 Light of hope whose star hath set,
 Light of love whose sun lives yet,
 Holier, happier, heavenlier love
 Breathes about thee, burns above, Surely, sweet, than ours can be,
 Shed from eyes we may not see,
 Though thine own may see them shine
 Night and day, perchance, on thine.
 Sun and moon that lighten earth
 Seem not fit to bless thy birth :
 Scarce the very stars we know
 Here seem bright enough to show Whence in unimagined skies
 Glows the vigil of such eyes.
 Theirs whose heart is as a sea
 Swoln with sorrowing love of thee
 Fain would share with thine the sight
 Seen alone of babes aright,

Watched of eyes more sweet than flowers
Sleeping or awake : but ours
Can but deem or dream or guess
Thee not wholly motherless.
Might they see or might they know
What nor faith nor hope may show,
We whose hearts yearn toward thee now
Then were blest and wise as thou.
Had we half thy knowledge,—had Love such wisdom,—grief were glad,
Surely, lit by grace of thee ;
Life were sweet as death may be.
Now the law that lies on men
Bids us mourn our dead : but then Heaven and life and earth and death,
Quickened as by God's own breath,
All were turned from sorrow and strife :
Earth and death were heaven and life.
All too far are then and now
Sundered : none may be as thou.
Yet this grace is ours—a sign
Of that goodlier grace of thine,
Sweet, and thine alone—to see
Heaven, and heaven's own love, in thee.
Bless them, then, whose eyes caress
Thee, as only thou canst bless.
Comfort, faith, assurance, love,
Shine around us, brood above,
Fear grows hope, and hope grows wise,
Thrilled and lit by children's eyes.
Yet in ours the tears unshed,
Child, for hope that death leaves dead,
Needs must burn and tremble ; thou Knowest not, seest not, why nor how,

More than we know whence or why
Comes on babes that laugh and lie
Half asleep, in sweet-lipped scorn,
Light of smiles outlightening morn,
Whence enkindled as is earth
By the dawn's less radiant birth
All the body soft and sweet
Smiles on us from face to feet
When the rose-red hands would fain
Reach the rose-red feet in vain.
Eyes and hands that worship thee
Watch and tend, adore and see All these heavenly sights, and give Thanks to see and love and live.
Yet, of all that hold thee dear,
Sweet, the dearest smiles not here.
Thine alone is now the grace,
Haply, still to see her face ;
Thine, thine only now the sight
Whence we dream thine own takes light.
Yet, though faith and hope live blind,
Yet they live in heart and mind
Strong and keen as truth may be :
Yet, though blind as grief were we Inly for a weeping-while,
Sorrow's self before thy smile
Smiles and softens, knowing that yet,
Far from us though heaven be set,
Love, bowed down for thee to bless,
Dares not call thee motherless.

THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

I

LIGHT and night, whose clouds and glories change and mingle and divide, Veil the truth whereof they witness, show the truth of things they hide.
Through the darkness and the splendour of the centuries, loud or dumb, Shines and wanes and shines the spirit, lit with love of life to come.
Man, the soul made flesh, that knows not death from life, and fain would know, Sees the face of time change colour as its tides recoil and flow.
All his hope and fear and faith and doubt, if aught at all they be,
Live the life of clouds and sunbeams, born of heaven or earth or sea.
All are buoyed and blown and brightened by their hour's evasive breath :
All subside and quail and darken when their hour is done to death.
Yet, ere faith, a wandering water, froze and curdled into creeds,
Earth, elate as heaven, adored the light that quickens dreams to deeds.

1142 THE ALTAR OF 'RIGHTEOUSNESS

Invisible : eye hath not seen it, and ear hath not heard as the spirit hath heard

From the shrine that is lit not of sunlight or starlight the sound of a limitless word.

And visible : none that hath eyes to behold what the spirit must perish or see

Can choose but behold it and worship : a shrine that if light were as darkness would be.

Of cloud and of change is the form of the fashion that man may behold of it wrought :

Of iron and truth is the mystic mid altar, where worship is none but of thought.

No prayer may go up to it, climbing as incense of gladness or sorrow may climb :

No rapture of music may ruffle the silence that guards it, and hears not of time.

As the winds of the wild blind ages alternate in passion of light and of cloud,

So changes the shape of the veil that enshrouds it with darkness and light for a shroud.

And the winds and the clouds and the suns fall silent, and fade out of hearing or sight,

And the shrine stands fast and is changed not, whose likeness was changed as a cloud in the night.

All the storms of time, and wrath of many winds, may carve no trace

On the viewless altar, though the veil bear many a name and face :

Many a live God's likeness woven, many a scripture dark with awe,

Bids the veil seem verier iron than the word of life's own law.

THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS 1143

Till the might of change hath rent it with a rushing wind in twain,

Stone or steel it seems, whereon the wrath of chance is wreaked in vain :

Stone or steel, and all behind it or beyond its lifted sign

Cloud and vapour, no subsistence of a change-unstricken shrine.

God by god flits past in thunder, till his glories turn to shades :

God to god bears wondering witness how his gospel flames and fades.

More was each of these, while yet they were, than man their servant seemed :

Dead are all of these, and man survives who made them while he dreamed.

Yet haply or surely, if vision were surer than theirs who rejoiced that they saw,

Man might not but see, through the darkness of godhead, the light that is surety and law.

On the stone that the close-drawn cloud which veils it awhile makes cloudlike stands

The word of the truth everlasting, unspoken of tongues and unwritten of hands.

By the sunbeams and storms of the centuries engraven, and approved of the soul as it reads,

It endures as a token dividing the light from the darkness of dreams and of deeds.

The faces of gods on the face of it carven, or gleaming behind and above,

Star-glorified Uranus, thunderous Jehovah, for terror or worship or love,

II44 THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

Change, wither, and brighten as flowers that the wind of eternity sheds upon time, All radiant and transient and awful and mortal, and leave it unmarred and sublime.
As the tides that return and recede are the fears and the hopes of the centuries that roll, Requenchd and rekindled : but strong as the sun is the sense of it shrined in the soul.

II

In the days when time was not, in the time when days were none,
Ere sorrow had life to lot, ere earth gave thanks for
the sun,
Ere man in his darkness waking adored what the soul in him could,
And the manifold God of his making was manifest evil and good,
One law from the dim beginning abode and abides in the end,
In sight of him sorrowing and sinning with none but his faith for friend.
Dark were the shadows around him, and darker the glories above,
Ere light from beyond them found him, and bade him for love's sake love.
About him was darkness, and under and over him darkness : the night
That conceived him and bore him had thunder for utterance and lightning for light.
The dust of death was the dust of the ways that the tribes of him trod :

THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS 1145

And he knew not if just or unjust were the might of the mystery of God.

Strange horror and hope, strange faith and unfaith, were his boon and his bane :

And the God of his trust was the wraith of the soul or the ghost of it slain.

A curse was on death as on birth, and a Presence that shone as a sword

Shed menace from heaven upon earth that beheld him, and hailed him her Lord.

Sublime and triumphant as fire or as lightning, he kindled the skies,

And withered with dread the desire that would look on the light of his eyes.

Earth shuddered with worship, and knew not if hell were not hot in her breath ;

If birth were not sin, and the dew of the morning the sweat of her death.

The watchwords of evil and good were unspoken of men and unheard :

They were shadows that willed as he would, that were made and unmade by his word.

His word was darkness and light, and a wisdom that makes men mad

Sent blindness upon them for sight, that they saw but and heard as he bade.

Cast forth and corrupt from the birth by the crime of creation, they stood

Convicted of evil on earth by the grace of a God found good.

The grace that enkindled and quickened the darkness of hell with flame

Bade man; though the soul in him sickened, obey, and give praise to his name.

1146 THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

The still small voice of the spirit whose life is as plague's hot breath Bade man shed blood, and inherit the life of the kingdom of death.

“ Bring now for blood-offering thy son to mine altar, and bind him and slay,
That the sin of my bidding be done ” : and the soul in the slave said, “ Yea.”
Yea, not nay, was the word : and the sacrifice offered withal
Was neither of beast nor of bird, but the soul of a man, God's thrall.
And the word of his servant spoken was fire, and the light of a sword,
When the bondage of Israel was broken, and Sinai shrank from the Lord.
With splendour of slaughter and thunder of song as the sound of the sea
Were the foes of him stricken in sunder and silenced as storms that flee.
Terror and trust and the pride of the chosen, approved of his choice,
Saw God in the whirlwind ride, and rejoiced as the winds rejoice.
Subdued and exalted and kindled and quenched by the sense of his might,
Faith flamed and exulted and dwindled, and saw not, and clung to the sight.
The wastes of the wilderness brightened and trembled with rapture and dread
When the word of him thundered and lightened and spake through the quick and the dead.

THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS 1147

The chant of the prophetess, louder and loftier than tempest and wave,
Rang triumph more ruthless and prouder than death,
and profound as the grave.
And sweet as the moon's word spoken in smiles that the blown clouds mar
The psalmist's witness in token arose as the speech
of a star.
Starlight supreme, and the tender desire of the moon, were as one
To rebuke with compassion the splendour and strength of the godlike sun.
God softened and changed : and the word of his chosen, a fire at the first, Bade man, as a beast or a bird, now slake at the springs his thirst.
The souls that were sealed unto death as the bones of the dead lie sealed Rose thrilled and redeemed by the breath of the dawn on the flame-lit field.
The glories of darkness, cloven with music of thunder, shrank
As the web of the word was unwoven that spake, and the soul's tide sank.
And the starshine of midnight that covered Arabia with light as a robe Waxed fiery with utterance that hovered and flamed through the whirlwind on Job.
And prophet to prophet and vision to vision made answer sublime,
Till the valley of doom and decision was merged in the tides of time.

1148 THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

III

Then, soft as the dews of night,
As the star of the sundawn bright,
As the heart of the sea's hymn deep,
And sweet as the balm of sleep,
Arose on the world a light
Too pure for the skies to keep

With music sweeter and stranger than heaven had heard
When the dark east thrilled with light from a saviour's
word
And a God grew man to endure as a man and abide The doom of the will of the Lord of the loud world's tide,
Whom thunders utter, and tempest and darkness
hide,
With larger light than flamed from the peak whereon Prometheus, bound as the sun to the world's wheel,
shone,
A presence passed and abode but on earth a span,
And love's own light as a river before him ran,
And the name of God for awhile upon earth was man.

O star that wast not and wast for the world a sun,
O light that was quenched of priests, and its work undone,
O Word that wast not as man's or as God's; if God Be Lord but of hosts whose tread was as death's that trod
On souls that felt but his wrath as an unseen rod,

THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS II49

What word, what praise, what passion of hopeless prayer,
May now rise up to thee, loud as in years that were,
From years that gaze on the works of thy servants
wrought
While strength was in them to satiate the lust of thought
That craved in thy name for blood as the quest it sought?

From the dark high places of Rome
Far over the westward foam
God's heaven and the sun saw swell
The fires of the high priest's hell,
And shrank as they curled and clomb
And revelled and ravaged and fell.

Yet was not the work of thy word all withered with wasting flame
By the sons of the priests that had slain thee, whose evil was wrought in thy name.
From the blood-sodden soil that was blasted with fires of the Church and her creed Sprang rarely but surely, by grace of thy spirit, a flower for a weed.
Thy spirit, unfelt of thy priests who blasphemed thee, enthralled and enticed To deathward a child that was even as the child we behold in Christ.
The Moors, they told her, beyond bright Spain and the strait brief sea,
Dwelt blind in the light that for them was as darkness, and knew not thee.

1150 THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

But the blood of the martyrs whose mission was witness for God, they said, Might raise to redemption the souls that were here, in the sun's sight, dead.
And the child rose up in the night, when the stars were as friends that smiled,
And sought her brother, and wakened the younger and tenderer child.
From the heaven of a child's glad sleep to the heaven of the sight of her eyes
He woke, and brightened and hearkened, and kindled as stars that rise.
And forth they fared together to die for the stranger's
sake,
For the souls of the slayers that should slay them, and turn from their sins, and wake.
And the light of the love that lit them awhile on a brief blind quest Shines yet on the tear-lit smile that salutes them, belated and blest.

And the girl, full-grown to the stature of godhead in womanhood, spake
The word that sweetens and lightens her creed for her great love's sake.
From the godlike heart of Theresa the prayer above all prayers heard,
The cry as of God made woman, a sweet blind wonderful word,
Sprang sudden as flame, and kindled the darkness of faith with love,
And the hollow of hell from beneath shone, quickened of heaven from above.

THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS 1151

Yea, hell at her word grew heaven, as she prayed that if God thought well She there might stand in the gateway, that none might pass into hell.
Not Hermes, guardian and guide, God, herald, and comforter, shed
Such lustre of hope from the life of his light on the night of the dead.
Not Pallas, wiser and mightier in mercy than Rome's
God shone,
Wore ever such raiment of love as the soul of a saint put on.
So blooms as a flower of the darkness a star of the midnight born,
Of the midnight's womb and the blackness of darkness, and flames like morn.
Nor yet may the dawn extinguish or hide it, when churches and creeds
Are withered and blasted with sunlight as poisonous and blossomless weeds.
So springs and strives through the soil that the legions of darkness have trod,
From the root that is man, from the soul in the body, the flower that is God.

Ages and creeds that drift
Through change and cloud uplift
The soul that soars and seeks her sovereign shrine,
Her faith's veiled altar, there
To find, when praise and prayer
Fall baffled, if the darkness be divine.

1152 THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

Lights change and shift through star and sun :
Night, clothed with might of immemorial years, is one.

Day, born and slain of night,
Hath hardly life in sight
As she that bears and slays him and survives,
And gives us back for one
Cloud-thwarted fiery sun
The myriad mysteries of the lambent lives
Whose starry soundless music saith That light and life wax perfect even through night and death.

In vain had darkness heard
Light speak the lustrous word
That cast out faith in all save truth and love :
In vain death's quickening rod
Bade man rise up as God,
Touched as with life unknown in heaven above :
Fear turned his light of love to fire
That wasted earth, yet might not slay the soul's desire.

Though death seem life, and night
Bid fear call darkness light,
Time, faith, and hope keep trust, through sorrow and shame,
Till Christ, by Paul cast out,
Return, and all the rout
Of raging slaves whose prayer defiles his name
Rush headlong to the deep, and die,
And leave no sign to say that faith once heard them lie.

VI

Since man, with a child's pride proud, and abashed as a child and afraid, Made God in his likeness, and bowed him to worship the Maker he made,
 No faith more dire hath enticed man's trust than the saint's whose creed Made Caiaphas one with Christ, that worms on the cross might feed.
 Priests gazed upon God in the eyes of a babe newborn, and therein
 Beheld not heaven, and the wise glad secret of love, but sin.
 Accursed of heaven, and baptized with the baptism of hatred and hell,
 They spat on the name they despised and adored as a sign and a spell.
 "Lord Christ, thou art God, and a liar: they were children of wrath, not of grace, Unbaptized, unredeemed from the fire they were born for, who smiled in thy face."
 Of such is the kingdom—he said it—of heaven: and the heavenly word
 Shall live when religion is dead, and when falsehood is dumb shall be heard.
 And the message of James and of John was as Christ's and as love's own call:
 But wrath passed sentence thereon when Annas replied in Paul.
 The dark old God who had slain him grew one with the Christ he slew,
 And poison was rank in the grain that with growth of his gospel grew.

1154 THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

And the blackness of darkness brightened : and red in the heart of the flame Shone down, as a blessing that lightened, the curse of a new God's name.
Through centuries of burning and trembling belief as a signal it shone,
Till man, soul-sick of dissembling, bade fear and her frauds begone.
God Cerberus yelps from his throats triune : but his day, which was night,
Is quenched, with its stars and the notes of its nightbirds, in silence and light.
The flames of its fires and the psalms of their psalmists are darkened and dumb :
Strong winter has withered the palms of his angels, and stricken them numb.
God, father of lies, God, son of perdition, God, spirit of ill,
Thy will that for ages was done is undone as a dead God's will.
Not Mahomet's sword could slay thee, nor Borgia's or Calvin's praise :
But the scales of the spirit that weigh thee are weighted with truth, and it slays.
The song of the day of thy fury, when nature and death shall quail,
Rings now as the thunders of Jewry, the ghost of a dead world's tale.
That day and its doom foreseen and foreshadowed on earth, when thou,
Lord God, wast lord of the keen dark season, are sport for us now.
Thy claws were clipped and thy fangs plucked out by the hands that slew

THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS 1155

Men, lovers of man, whose pangs bore witness if truth were true.

Man crucified rose again from the sepulchre builded
to be

No grave for the souls of the men who denied thee, but, Lord, for thee.

When Bruno's spirit aspired from the flames that thy servants fed,

The spirit of faith was fired to consume thee and leave thee dead.

When the light of the sunlike eyes whence laughter lightened and flamed

Bade France and the world be wise, faith saw thee naked and shamed.

When wisdom deeper and sweeter than Rabelais veiled and revealed

Found utterance diviner and meeter for truth whence anguish is healed,

Whence fear and hate and belief in thee, fed by thy grace from above,

Fall stricken, and utmost grief takes light from the lustre of love,

When Shakespeare shone into birth, and the world he beheld grew bright,

Thy kingdom was ended on earth, and the darkness it shed was light.

In him all truth and the glory thereof and the power and the pride,

The song of the soul and her story, bore witness that fear had lied.

All hope, all wonder, all trust, all doubt that knows not of fear,

The love of the body, the lust of the spirit to see and to hear,

1156 THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

All womanhood, fairer than love could conceive or desire or adore,
All manhood, radiant above all heights that it held of yore,
Lived by the life of his breath, with the speech of his soul's will spake,
And the light lit darkness to death whence never the dead shall wake.
For the light that lived in the sound of the song of his speech was one With the light of the wisdom that found earth's tune in the song of the sun ;
His word with the word of the lord most high of us all on earth,
Whose soul was a lyre and a sword, whose death was a deathless birth.
Him too we praise as we praise our own who as he stand strong ;
Him, Æschylus, ancient of days, whose word is the perfect song.
When Caucasus showed to the sun and the sea what a God could endure, When wisdom and light were one, and the hands of the matricide pure,
A song too subtle for psalmist or prophet of Jewry to
know,
Elate and profound as the calmest or stormiest of waters that flow,
A word whose echoes were wonder and music of fears overcome,
Bade Sinai bow, and the thunder of godhead on Horeb be dumb.
The childless children of night, strong daughters of doom and dread,

THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS 1157

The thoughts and the fears that smite the soul, and its life lies dead,
Stood still and were quelled by the sound of his word and the light of his thought,
And the God that in man lay bound was unbound from the bonds he had wrought.
Dark fear of a lord more dark than the dreams of his worshippers knew Fell dead, and the corpse lay stark in the sunlight of truth shown true.

Time, and truth his child, though terror set earth and heaven at odds,
See the light of manhood rise on the twilight of the Gods.
Light is here for souls to see, though the stars of faith be dead :
All the sea that yearned and trembled receives the sun instead.
All the shadows on the spirit when fears and dreams were strong,
All perdition, all redemption, blind rain-stars watched so long,
Love whose root was fear, thanksgiving that cowered beneath the rod,
Feel the light that heals and withers : night weeps upon her God.
All the names wherein the incarnate Lord lived his day and died
Fade from suns to stars, from stars into darkness undescried.

1158 THE ALTAR OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

Christ the man lives yet, remembered of man as dreams that leave

Light on eyes that wake and know not if memory bid them grieve.

Fire sublime as lightning shines, and exults in thunder
yet,

Where the battle wields the name and the sword of Mahomet.

Far above all wars and gospels, all ebb and flow of
time,

Lives the soul that speaks in silence, and makes mute earth sublime.

Still for her, though years and ages be blinded and bedinned,

Mazed with lightnings, crazed with thunders, life rides and guides the wind.

Death may live or death may die, and the truth be light or night :

Not for gain of heaven may man put away the rule of right.

A NEW YEAR'S EVE

CHRISTINA ROSSETTI DIED DECEMBER 29, 1894

THE stars are strong in the deeps of the lustrous
 night,
 Cold and splendid as death if his dawn be bright ;
 Cold as the cast-off garb that is cold as clay,
 Splendid and strong as a spirit intense as light.

A soul more sweet than the morning of new-born May Has passed with the year that has passed from the world away.

A song more sweet than the morning's first-born
 song
 Again will hymn not among us a new year's day.

Not here, not here shall the carol of joy grown strong Ring rapture now, and uplift us, a spell-struck throng,

From dream to vision of life that the soul may see
 By death's grace only, if death do its trust no wrong.

Scarce yet the days and the starry nights are three Since here among us a spirit abode as we,

Girt round with life that is fettered in bonds of
 time,
 And clasped with darkness about as is earth with sea.

And now, more high than the vision of souls may climb,
The soul whose song was as music of stars that chime,
Clothed round with life as of dawn and the mounting sun,
Sings, and we know not here of the song sublime.

No word is ours of it now that the songs are done
Whence here we drank of delight as in freedom won,
In deep deliverance given from the bonds we bore.
There is none to sing as she sang upon earth, not one.

We heard awhile : and for us who shall hear no more
The sound as of waves of light on a starry shore Awhile bade brighten and yearn as a father's face
The face of death, divine as in days of yore.

The grey gloom quickened and quivered : the sunless
place
Thrilled, and the silence deeper than time or space Seemed now not all everlasting. Hope grew
strong,
And love took comfort, given of the sweet song's
grace.

Love that finds not on earth, where it finds but
wrong,
Love that bears not the bondage of years in throng Shone to show for her, higher than the years that mar,
The life she looked and longed for as love must long.

Who knows? We know not. Afar, if the dead be far,
Alive, if the dead be alive as the soul's works are,
The soul whose breath was among us a heavenward
song
Sings, loves, and shines as it shines for us here a star.

IN A ROSARY

THROUGH the low grey archway children's feet that pass

Quicken, glad to find the sweetest haunt of all.
Brightest wildflowers gleaming deep in lustiest grass, Glorious weeds that glisten through the green sea's glass,

Match not now this marvel, born to fade and fall.

Roses like a rainbow wrought of roses rise
Right and left and forward, shining toward the sun.
Nay, the rainbow lit of sunshine droops and dies
Ere we dream it hallows earth and seas and skies ;
Ere delight may dream it lives, its life is done.

Round the border hemmed with high deep hedges
round

Go the children, peering over or between
Where the dense bright oval wall of box inwound, Reared about the roses fast within it bound,
Gives them grace to glance at glories else unseen.

Flower outlightening flower and tree outflowering tree
Feed and fill the sense and spirit full with joy.
Nought awhile they know of outer earth and sea :
Here enough of joy it is to breathe and be :
Here the sense of life is one for girl and boy.

Heaven above them, bright as children's eyes or
dreams,
Earth about them, sweet as glad soft sleep can show Earth and sky and sea, a world that scarcely seems Even in children's eyes less fair than life that gleams Through the sleep that none but sinless eyes may know.

Near beneath, and near above, the terraced ways
Wind or stretch and bask or blink against the sun.
Hidden here from sight on soft or stormy days Lies and laughs with love toward heaven, at silent gaze,
All the radiant rosary—all its flowers made one.

All the multitude of roses towering round
Dawn and noon and night behold as one full flower, Fain of heaven and loved of heaven, curbed and crowned,
Raised and reared to make this plot of earthly ground Heavenly, could but heaven endure on earth an hour.

Swept away, made nothing now for ever, dead,
Still the rosary lives and shines on memory, free
Now from fear of death or change as childhood, fled
Years on years before its last live leaves were shed :
None may mar it now, as none may stain the sea.

THE HIGH OAKS

BARKING HALL, JULY 19TH, 1896

FOURSORE years and seven Light and dew from heaven
 Have fallen with dawn on these glad woods each day
 Since here was born, even here,
 A birth more bright and dear
 Than ever a younger year
 Hath seen or shall till all these pass away, Even all the imperious pride of these,
 The woodland ways majestic now with towers of trees.

Love itself hath nought
 Touched of tenderest thought
 With holiest hallowing of memorial grace
 For memory, blind with bliss,
 To love, to clasp, to kiss,
 So sweetly strange as this,
 The sense that here the sun first hailed her face,
 A babe at Her glad mother's breast,
 And here again beholds it more beloved and blest.

Love's own heart, a living
Spring of strong thanksgiving,
Can bid no strength of welling song find way
When all the soul would seek
One word for joy to speak,
And even its strength makes weak
The too strong yearning of the soul to say What may not be conceived or said
While darkness makes division of the quick and dead.

Haply, where the sun
Wanes, and death is none,
The word known here of silence only, held Too dear for speech to wrong,
May leap in living song
Forth, and the speech be strong
As here the silence whence it yearned and welled
From hearts whose utterance love sealed fast Till death perchance might give it grace to live at last.

Here we have our earth
Yet, with all the mirth
Of all the summers since the world began,
All strengths of rest and strife
And love-lit love of life
Where death has birth to wife,
And where the sun speaks, and is heard of man :
Yea, half the sun's bright speech is heard,
And like the sea the soul of man gives back his word.

Earth's enkindled heart
Bears benignant part
In the ardent heaven's auroral pride of prime :

If ever home on earth
Were found of heaven's grace worth
So God-beloved a birth
As here makes bright the fostering face of time, Here, heaven bears witness, might such grace
Fall fragrant as the dewfall on that brightening face.

Here, for mine and me,
All that eyes may see
Hath more than all the wide world else of good,
All nature else of fair :
Here as none elsewhere
Heaven is the circling air, Heaven is the homestead, heaven the wold, the wood :
The fragrance with the shadow spread From broadening wings of cedars breathes of dawn's bright bed.

Once a dawn rose here
More divine and dear,
Rose on a birth-bed brighter far than dawn's, Whence all the summer grew Sweet as when earth was new
And pure as Eden's dew :
And yet its light lives on these lustrous lawns,
Clings round these wildwood ways, and cleaves
To the aisles of shadow and sun that wind unweaves and weaves.

Thoughts that smile and weep,
Dreams that hallow sleep,
Brood in the branching shadows of the trees,

Tall trees at agelong rest
Wherein the centuries nest,
Whence, blest as these are blest,
We part, and part not from delight in these ;
Whose comfort, sleeping as awake,
We bear about within us as when first it spake.

Comfort as of song
Grown with time more strong,
Made perfect and prophetic as the sea,
Whose message, when it lies
Far off our hungering eyes,
Within us prophesies
Of life not ours, yet ours as theirs may be Whose souls far off us shine and sing
As ere they sprang back sunward, swift as fire might spring.

All this oldworld pleasance
Hails a hallowing presence,
And thrills with sense of more than summer near,
And lifts toward heaven more high
The song-surpassing cry
Of rapture that July
Lives, for her love who makes it loveliest here ;
For joy that she who here first drew
The breath of life she gave me breathes it here anew.

Never birthday born
Highest in height of morn
Whereout the star looks forth that leads the sun

Shone higher in love's account,
Still seeing the mid noon mount
From the eager dayspring's fount
Each year more lustrous, each like all in one ;
Whose light around us and above
We could not see so lovely save by grace of love.

BARKING HALL: A YEAR AFTER

STILL the sovereign trees
 Make the sundawn's breeze
 More bright, more sweet, more heavenly than it rose,
 As wind and sun fulfil Their living rapture : still Noon, dawn, and evening thrill
 With radiant change the immeasurable repose
 Wherewith the woodland wilds lie blest And feel how storms and centuries rock them still to rest.

Still the love-lit place
 Given of God such grace
 That here was born on earth a birth divine Gives thanks with all its flowers
 Through all their lustrous hours,
 From all its birds and bowers
 Gives thanks that here they felt her sunset shine
 Where once her sunrise laughed, and bade
 The life of all the living things it lit be glad.

Soft as light and strong Rises yet their song
 And thrills with pride the cedar-crested lawn

1170 BARKING HALL : A YEAR AFTER

And every brooding dove.
But she, beloved above
All utterance known of love,
Abides no more the change of night and dawn,
Beholds no more with earth-born eye
These woods that watched her waking here where all things die.

Not the light that shone
When she looked thereon
Shines on them or shall shine for ever here.
We know not, save when sleep Slays death, who fain would keep His mystery dense and deep,
Where shines the smile we held and hold so dear.
Dreams only, thrilled and filled with love, Bring back its light ere dawn leave nought alive
above.

Nought alive awake
Sees the strong dawn break
On all the dreams that dying night bade live.
Yet scarce the intolerant sense
Of day's harsh evidence
How came their word and whence Strikes dumb the song of thanks it bids them give,
The joy that answers as it heard
And lightens as it saw the light that spake the word.

Night and sleep and dawn
Pass with dreams withdrawn :
But higher above them far than noon may climb

BARKING HALL; A YEAR AFTER 1171

Love lives and turns to light
The deadly noon of night.
His fiery spirit of sight
Endures no curb of change or darkling time.
Even earth and transient things of earth
Even here to him bear witness not of death but birth.

MUSIC: AN ODE

I

Was it light that spake from the darkness, or music that shone from the word, When the night was enkindled with sound of the sun or the first-born bird ?
 Souls enthralled and entrammelled in bondage of seasons that fall and rise, Bound fast round with the fetters of flesh, and blinded with light that dies, Lived not surely till music spake, and the spirit of life was heard.

II

Music, sister of sunrise, and herald of life to be, Smiled as dawn on the spirit of man, and the thrall was free.
 Slave of nature and serf of time, the bondman of life
 and death,
 Dumb with passionless patience that breathed but forlorn and reluctant breath, Heard, beheld, and his soul made answer, and communed aloud with the sea.

III

Morning spake, and he heard : and the passionate silent noon
Kept for him not silence : and soft from the mounting moon
Fell the sound of her splendour, heard as dawn's in the breathless night,
Not of men but of birds whose note bade man's soul quicken and leap to light :
And the song of it spake, and the light and the darkness of earth were as chords in tune.

THE CENTENARY OF THE BATTLE OF THE NILE

AUGUST 1898

'Horatio Nelson — Honor est a Nilo'

A HUNDRED years have lightened and have waned Since ancient Nile by grace of Nelson gained A glory higher in story now than time
Saw when his kings were gods that raged and reigned.

The day that left even England more sublime
And higher on heights that none but she may climb Abides above all shock of change-born chance
Where hope and memory hear the stars keep chime.

The strong and sunbright lie whose name was France Arose against the sun of truth, whose glance Laughed large from the eyes of England, fierce as fire
Whence eyes wax blind that gaze on truth askance.

A name above all names of heroes, higher Than song may sound or heart of man aspire,
Rings as the very voice that speaks the sea
To-day from all the sea's enkindling lyre.

The sound that bids the soul of silence be Fire, and a rapturous music, speaks, and we Hear what the sea's heart utters, wide and far :
" This was his day, and this day's light was he."

O sea, our sea that hadst him for thy star,
A hundred years that fall upon thee are Even as a hundred flakes of rain or snow :
No storm of battle signs thee with a scar.

But never more may ship that sails thee show,
But never may the sun that loves thee know,
But never may thine England give thee more,
A man whose life and death shall praise thee so.

The Nile, the sea, the battle, and the shore,
Heard as we hear one word arise and soar,
Beheld one name above them tower and glow—
Nelson : a light that time bows down before.

TRAFALGAR DAY

SEA, that art ours as we are thine, whose name
Is one with England's even as light with flame, Dost thou as we, thy chosen of all men, know
This day of days when death gave life to fame ?

Dost thou not kindle above and thrill below
With rapturous record, with memorial glow,
Remembering this thy festal day of fight,
And all the joy it gave, and all the woe ?

Never since day broke flowerlike forth of night Broke such a dawn of battle. Death in sight
Made of the man whose life was like the sun
A man more godlike than the lord of light.

There is none like him, and there shall be none.
When England bears again as great a son,
He can but follow fame where Nelson led.
There is not and there cannot be but one.

As earth has but one England, crown and head
Of all her glories till the sun be dead,
Supreme in peace and war, supreme in song,
Supreme in freedom, since her rede was read,

Since first the soul that gave her speech grew strong
 To help the right and heal the wild world's wrong,
 So she hath but one royal Nelson, born
 To reign on time above the years that throng.

The music of his name puts fear to scorn,
 And thrills our twilight through with sense of morn :
 As England was, how should not England be ?
 No tempest yet has left her banner torn.

No year has yet put out the day when he Who lived and died to keep our kingship free
 Wherever seas by warring winds are worn
 Died, and was one with England and the sea.

CROMWELL'S STATUE¹

WHAT needs our Cromwell stone or bronze to say
 His was the light that lit on England's way
 The sundawn of her time-compelling power,
 The noontide of her most imperial day?

His hand won back the sea for England's dower ;
 His footfall bade the Moor change heart and cower ;
 His word on Milton's tongue spake law to France
 When Piedmont felt the she-wolf Rome devour.

From Cromwell's eyes the light of England's glance Flashed, and bowed down the kings by grace of chance,
 The priest-anointed princes ; one alone
 By grace of England held their hosts in trance.

The enthroned Republic from her kinglier throne Spake, and her speech was Cromwell's. Earth has known
 No lordlier presence. How should Cromwell stand With kinglets and with queenlings hewn in stone ?

¹ Refused by the party of reaction and disunion in the House of Commons on the 17th of June, 1895.

Incarnate England in his warrior hand
Smote, and as fire devours the blackening brand Made ashes of their strengths who wrought her
 wrong,
And turned the strongholds of her foes to sand.

His praise is in the sea's and Milton's song ;
What praise could reach him from the weakling throng
 That rules by leave of tongues whose praise is shame—
Him, who made England out of weakness strong ?

There needs no clarion's blast of broad-blown fame
To bid the world bear witness whence he came Who bade fierce Europe fawn at England's heel
And purged the plague of lineal rule with flame.

There needs no witness graven on stone or steel
For one whose work bids fame bow down and kneel ;
 Our man of men, whose time-commanding name Speaks England, and proclaims her Commonweal.

A WORD FOR THE NAVY

I

QUEEN born of the sea, that hast borne her
 The mightiest of seamen on earth,
 Bright England, whose glories adorn her
 And bid her rejoice in thy birth
 As others made mothers
 Rejoice in births sublime,
 She names thee, she claims thee,
 The lordliest child of time.

II

All hers is the praise of thy story,
 All thine is the love of her choice
 The light of her waves is thy glory,
 The sound of thy soul is her voice
 They fear it who hear it
 And love not truth nor thee :
 They sicken, heart-stricken,
 Who see and would not see.

The lords of thy fate, and thy keepers
 Whose charge is the strength of thy ships,
 If now they be dreamers and sleepers,
 Or sluggards with lies at their lips,

Thy haters and traitors,
False friends or foes descried,
Might scatter and shatter
Too soon thy princely pride.

Dark Muscovy, reptile in rancour,
Base Germany, blatant in guile,
Lay wait for thee riding at anchor
On waters that whisper and smile.
They deem thee or dream thee
Less living now than dead,
Deep sunken and drunken
With sleep whence fear has fled.

And what though thy song as thine action
Wax faint, and thy place be not known,
While faction is grappling with faction,
Twin curs with thy corpse for a bone?
They care not, who spare not
The noise of pens or throats ;
Who bluster and muster
Blind ranks and bellowing votes.

VI

Let populace jangle with peerage
And ministers shuffle their mobs ;
Mad pilots who reck not of steerage Though tempest ahead of them throbs.
That throbbing and sobbing
Of wind and gradual wave
They hear not and fear not
Who guide thee toward thy grave.

No clamour of cries or of parties
Is worth but a whisper from thee, While only the trust of thy heart is
At one with the soul of the sea.
In justice her trust is Whose time her tides streams keep ;
They sink not, they shrink not,
Time casts them not on sleep.

VIII

Sleep thou : for thy past was so royal,
Love hardly would bid thee take heed
Were Russia not faithful and loyal Nor Germany guiltless of greed.
No nation, in station
Of story less than thou,
Re-risen from prison,
Can stand against thee now.

IX

Sleep on : is the time not a season
For strong men to slumber and sleep,
And wise men to palter with treason ?
And that they sow tares, shall they reap ?
The wages of ages
Wherein men smiled and slept,
Fame fails them, shame veils them,
Their record is not kept.

Nay, whence is it then that we know it,
What wages were theirs, and what fame?
Deep voices of prophet and poet
Bear record against them of shame.
Death, starker and darker
Than seals the graveyard grate, Entombs them and dooms them
To darkness deep as fate.

XI

But thou, though the world should misdoubt thee,
Be strong as the seas at thy side;
Bind on but thine armour about thee,
That girds thee with power and with pride.
Where Drake stood, where Blake stood,
Where fame sees Nelson stand,
Stand thou too, and now too
Take thou thy fate in hand.

XII

At the gate of the sea, in the gateway,
They stood as the guards of thy gate;
Take now but thy strengths to thee straightway,
Though late, we will deem it not late.
Thy story, thy glory,
The very soul of thee,
It rose not, it grows not.
It comes not save by sea.

NORTHUMBERLAND

BETWEEN our eastward and 'our westward sea
 The narrowing strand
 Clasps close the noblest shore fame holds in fee
 Even here where English birth seals all men free—Northumberland.

The sea-mists meet across it when the snow
 Clothes moor and fell,
 And bid their true-born hearts who love it glow
 For joy that none less nobly born may know
 What love knows well.

The splendour and the strength of storm and fight Sustain the song
 That filled our fathers' hearts with joy to smite,
 To live, to love, to lay down life that right
 Might tread down wrong.

They warred, they sang, they triumphed, and they passed,
 And left us glad
 Here to be born, their sons, whose hearts hold fast
 The proud old love no change can overcast,
 No chance leave sad.

None save our northmen ever, none but we,
Met, pledged, or fought
Such foes and friends as Scotland and the sea
With heart so high and equal, strong in glee
And stern in thought.

Thought, fed from time's memorial springs with pride,
Made strong as fire
Their hearts who hurled the foe down Flodden side,
And hers who rode the waves none else durst ride—
None save her sire.

O land beloved, where nought of legend's dream
Outshines the truth,
Where Joyous Gard, closed round with clouds that gleam
For them that know thee not, can scarce but seem Too sweet for sooth,

Thy sons forget not, nor shall fame forget,
The deed there done
Before the walls whose fabled fame is yet
A light too sweet and strong to rise and set
With moon and sun.

Song bright as flash of swords or oars that shine
Through fight or foam
Stirs yet the blood thou hast given thy sons like wine
To hail in each bright ballad hailed as thine
One heart, one home.

Our Collingwood, though Nelson be not ours,
By him shall stand
Immortal, till those waifs of oldworld hours,
Forgotten, leave uncrowned with bays and flowers Northumberland.

STRATFORD-ON-AVON

JUNE 27, 1901

BE glad in heaven above all souls insphered,
Most royal and most loyal born of men,
Shakespeare, of all on earth beloved or feared
Or worshipped, highest in sight of human ken.
The homestead hallowed by thy sovereign birth, Whose name, being one with thine, stands higher than Rome,

Forgets not how of all on English earth
Their trust is holiest, there who have their home.
Stratford is thine and England's. None that hate
The commonweal whose empire sets men free
Find comfort there, where once by grace of fate
A soul was born as boundless as the sea.

If life, if love, if memory now be thine,
Rejoice that still thy Stratford bears thy sign.

BURNS : AN ODE

A FIRE of fierce and laughing light
 That clove the shuddering heart of night Leapt earthward, and the thunder's might That pants and yearns
 Made fitful music round its flight :
 And earth saw Burns.

The joyous lightning found its voice
 And bade the heart of wrath rejoice
 And scorn uplift a song to voice
 The imperial hate
 That smote the God of base men's choice
 At God's own gate.

Before the shrine of dawn, wherethrough
 The lark rang rapture as she flew,
 It flashed and fired the darkling dew :
 And all that heard
 With love or loathing hailed anew
 A new day's word.

The servants of the lord of hell,
As though their lord had blessed them, fell Foaming at mouth for fear, so well
 They knew the lie
Wherewith they sought to scan and spell
 The unsounded sky.

And Calvin, night's prophetic bird,
Out of his home in hell was heard Shrieking ; and all the fens were stirred Whence plague is bred ;
Can God endure the scoffer's word ?
 But God was dead.

The God they made them in despite
Of man and woman, love and light,
Strong sundawn and the starry night,
 The lie supreme,
Shot through with song, stood forth to sight
 A devil's dream.

And he that bent the lyric bow
And laid the lord of darkness low
And bade the fire of laughter glow
 Across his grave,
And bade the tides above it flow,
 Wave hurtling wave,

Shall he not win from latter days
More than his own could yield of praise ?
Ay, could the sovereign singer's bays
 Forsake his brow,
The warrior's, won on stormier ways,
 Still clasp it now.

He loved, and sang of love : he laughed,
And bade the cup whereout he quaffed Shine as a planet, fore and aft,
 And left and right,
And keen as shoots the sun's first shaft
 Against the night.

But love and wine were moon and sun
For many a fame long since undone,
And sorrow and joy have lost and won
 By stormy turns
As many a singer's soul, if none
 More bright than Burns.

And sweeter far in grief or mirth
Have songs as glad and sad of birth
Found voice to speak of wealth or dearth
 In joy of life :
But never song took fire from earth
 More strong for strife.

The daisy by his ploughshare cleft,
The lips of women loved and left,
The griefs and joys that weave the weft
 Of human time,
With craftsman's cunning, keen and deft,
 He carved in rhyme.

But Chaucer's daisy shines a star
Above his ploughshare's reach to mar,
And mightier vision gave Dunbar
 More strenuous wing
To hear around all sins that are Hell dance and sing.

And when such pride and power of trust
In song's high gift to arouse from dust
Death, and transfigure love or lust
 Through smiles or tears
In golden speech that takes no rust
 From cankering years,

As never spake but once in one
Strong star-crossed child of earth and sun, Villon, made music such as none
 May praise or blame,
A crown of starrier flower was won Than Burns may claim.

But never, since bright earth was born
In rapture of the enkindling morn,
Might godlike wrath and sunlike scorn
 That was and is
And shall be while false weeds are worn Find word like his.

Above the rude and radiant earth
That heaves and glows from firth to firth
In vale and mountain, bright in dearth
 And warm in wealth,
Which gave his fiery glory birth
 By chance and stealth,

Above the storms of praise and blame
That blur with mist his lustrous name,
His thunderous laughter went and came,
 And lives and flies ;
The roar that follows on the flame
 When lightning dies.

Earth, and the snow-dimmed heights of air,
And water winding soft and fair
Through still sweet places, bright and bare,
 By bent and byre,
Taught him what hearts within them were :
 But his was fire

THE COMMONWEAL

A SONG FOR UNIONISTS

MEN, whose fathers braved the world in arms against our isles in union,

Men, whose brothers met rebellion face to face, Show the hearts ye have, if worthy long descent and high communion,

Show the spirits, if unbroken, of your race.

What are these that howl and hiss across the strait of westward water?

What is he who floods our ears with speech in flood?

See the long tongue lick the dripping hand that smokes and reeks of slaughter!

See the man of words embrace the man of blood!

Hear the plea whereby the tonguester mocks and charms the gazing gaper—

“ We are they whose works are works of love and peace ;

Till disunion bring forth union, what is union, sirs, but paper?

Break and rend it, then shall trust and strength increase.”

Who would fear to trust a double-faced but single hearted dreamer,

Pure of purpose, clean of hand, and clear of guile?
“Life is well-nigh spent,” he sighs; “you call me shuffler, trickster, schemer?”

I am old—when young men yell at me, I smile.”

Many a year that priceless light of life has trembled, we remember,

On the platform of extinction—unextinct;
Many a month has been for him the long year’s last—life’s calm December:

Can it be that he who said so, saying so, winked?

No; the lust of life, the thirst for work and days with work to do in,

Drove and drives him down the road of splendid
shame;

All is well, if o’er the monument recording England’s ruin

Time shall read, inscribed in triumph, Gladstone’s
name.

Thieves and murderers, hands yet red with blood and tongues yet black with lies,

Clap and clamour—“Parnell spurs his Gladstone well!”

Truth, unscared and undeluded by their praise or blame, replies—

“Is the goal of fraud and bloodshed heaven or hell?”

Old men eloquent, who truckle to the traitors of the
time,

Love not office—power is no desire of theirs:

What if yesterday their hearts recoiled from blood and fraud and crime?

Conscience erred—an error which to-day repairs.

Conscience only now convinces them of strange though transient error :

Only now they see how fair is treason's face ;
See how true the falsehood, just the theft, and blameless is the terror,

Which replaces just and blameless men in place.

Place and time decide the right and wrong of thought and word and action ;

Crime is black as hell, till virtue gain its vote ;
Then—but ah, to think or say so smacks of fraud or smells of faction !—

Mercy holds the door while Murder hacks the throat.

Murder? Treason? Theft? Poor brothers who succumb to such temptations,

Shall we lay on you or take on us the blame?

Reason answers, and religion echoes round to wondering nations,

“ Not with Ireland, but with England rests the shame.”

Reason speaks through mild religion's organ, loud and long and lusty---

Profit speaks through lips of patriots pure and true—

“ English friends, whose trust we ask for, has not England found us trusty?

Not for us we seek advancement, but for you.

“ Far and near the world bears witness of our wisdom, courage, honour ;

Egypt knows if there our fame burns bright or dim.
Let but England trust as Gordon trusted, soon shall come upon her

Such deliverance as our daring brought on him.

“ Far and wide the world rings record of our faith, our constant dealing,

Love of country, truth to friends, contempt for foes.
Sign once more the bond of trust in us that here awaits but sealing,

We will give yet more than all our record shows.

“ Perfect ruin, shame eternal, everlasting degradation, Freedom bought and sold, truth bound and treason
free.”

Yet an hour is here for answer ; now, if here be yet a nation,

Answer, England, man by man from sea to sea !

June 30. 1886.

THE QUESTION

1887

SHALL England consummate the crime
 That binds the murderer's hand, and leaves
 No surety for the trust of thieves?
 Time pleads against it—truth and time—
 And pity frowns and grieves.

The hoary henchman of the gang Lifts hands that never dew nor rain
 May cleanse from Gordon's blood again,
 Appealing : pity's tenderest pang
 Thrills his pure heart with pain.

Grand helmsman of the clamorous crew,
 The good grey recreant quakes and weeps
 To think that crime no longer creeps Safe toward its end : that murderers too
 May die when mercy sleeps.

While all the lives were innocent
 That slaughter drank, and laughed with rage, Bland virtue sighed, " A former age .
 Taught murder : souls long discontent
 Can aught save blood assuage ?

“ You blame not Russian hands that smite
By fierce and secret ways the power
That leaves not life one chainless hour ;
Have these than they less natural right
To claim life's natural dower ?

“ The dower that freedom brings the slave
She weds, is vengeance : why should we,
Whom equal laws acclaim as free,
Think shame, if men too blindly brave
Steal, murder, skulk, and flee ?

“ At kings they strike in Russia : there
Men take their life in hand who slay
Kings : these, that have not heart to lay Hand save on girls whose ravaged hair
Is made the patriot's prey,

“ These, whom the sight of old men slain
Makes bold to bid their children die,
Starved, if they hold not peace, nor lie,
Claim loftier praise : could others deign
To stand in shame so high ?

“ Could others deign to dare such deeds
As holiest Ireland hallows ? Nay,
But justice then makes plain our way :
Be laws burnt up like burning weeds
That vex the face of day.

“ Shall bloodmongers be held of us Blood-guilty ? Hands reached out for gold Whereon blood rusts not yet, we hold Bloodless and blameless : ever thus Have good men held of old.

“ Fair Freedom, fledged and impd with lies,
Takes flight by night where murder lurks,
And broods on murderous ways and works,
Yet seems not hideous in our eyes
As Austrians or as Turks.

“ Be it ours to undo a woful past,
To bid the bells of concord chime,
To break the bonds of suffering crime,
Slack now, that some would make more fast :
Such teaching comes of time.”

So pleads the gentlest heart that lives,
Whose pity, pitiless for all Whom darkling terror holds in thrall, Toward none save miscreants yearns, and gives Alms of warm tears—and gall.

Hear, England, and obey : for he Who claims thy trust again to-day
Is he who left thy sons a prey
To shame whence only death sets free :
Hear, England, and obey.

Thy spoils he gave to deck the Dutch ;
Thy noblest pride, most pure, most brave,
To death forlorn and sure he gave ;
Nor now requires he overmuch
Who bids thee dig thy grave.

Dig deep the grave of shame, wherein Thy fame, thy commonweal, must lie ;
Put thought of aught save terror by ;
To strike and slay the slayer is sin ;
And Murder must not die.

THE QUESTION

Bind fast the true man ; loose the thief ;
Shamed were the land, the laws accursed,
Were guilt, not innocence, amerced ;
And dark the wrong and sore the grief,
Were tyrants too coerced.

The fiercest cowards that ever skulked,
The cowardliest hounds that ever lapped
Blood, if their horde be tracked and trapped,
And justice claim their lives for mulct,
Gnash teeth that flashed and snapped.

Bow down for fear, then, England : bow,
Lest worse befall thee yet ; and swear
That nought save pity, conscience, care
For truth and mercy, moves thee now
To call foul falsehood fair.

So shalt thou live in shame, and hear
The lips of all men laugh thee dead ;
The wide world's mockery round thy head
Shriek like a storm-wind : and a bier
Shall be thine honour's bed.

APOSTASY

Et Judas m'a dit : Traître !—VICTOR HUGO

TRUTHS change with time, and terms with truth.
To-day

A statesman worships union, and to-night Disunion. Shame to have sinned against the
light

Confounds not but impels his tongue to unsay
What yestereve he swore. Should fear make way
For treason ? honour change her livery ? fright Clasp hands with interest ? wrong pledge faith with right ?

Religion, mercy, conscience, answer—Yea.

To veer is not to veer : when votes are weighed,
The numerous tongue approves him renegade
Who cannot change his banner : he that can Sits crowned with wreaths of praise too pure to fade.
Truth smiles applause on treason's poisonous plan :
And Cleon is an honourable man.

II

Pure faith, fond hope, sweet love, with God for guide, Move now the men whose blameless error cast
In prison (ah, but love condones the past !)
Their subject knaves that were—their lords that ride

Now laughing on their necks, and now bestride
 Their vassal backs in triumph. Faith stands fast Though fear haul down the flag that crowned her mast
 And hope and love proclaim that truth has lied.

Turn, turn, and turn—so bids the still small voice,
 The changeless voice of honour. He that stands
 Where all his life he stood, with bribeless hands,
 With tongue unhired to mourn, reprove, rejoice,
 Curse, bless, forswear, and swear again, and lie, Stands proven apostate in the apostate's eye

Fraud shrinks from faith : at sight of swans, the raven Chides blackness, and the snake recoils aghast
 In fear of poison when a bird flies past.
 Thersites brands Achilles as a craven ;
 The shoal fed full with shipwreck blames the haven For murderous lust of lives devoured, and vast Desire of doom whose feast is mercy's fast :
 And Bacon sees the traitor's mark engraven Full on the front of Essex. Grief and shame Obscure the chaste and sunlike spirit of Oates
 At thought of Russell's treason ; and the name
 Of Milton sickens with superb disgust
 The heaving heart of Waller. Wisdom dotes, If wisdom turns not tail and licks not dust.

The sole sweet land found fit to wed the sea,
 With reptile rebels at her heel of old,
 Set hard her heel upon them, and controlled
 The cowering poisonous peril. How should she Cower, and resign her trust of empire? Free

As winds and waters live the loyal-souled
And true-born sons that love her : nay, the bold Base knaves who curse her name have leave to be The loud-tongued liars they are. For she, beyond All woful years that bid men's hearts despond,
Sees yet the likeness of her ancient fame
Burn from the heavenward heights of history, hears Not Leicester's name but Sidney's—faith's, not fear's—
Not Gladstone's now but only Gordon's name.

RUSSIA : AN ODE

1890

I

OUT of hell a word comes hissing, dark as doom, Fierce as fire, and foul as plague-polluted gloom ;
 Out of hell wherein the sinless damned endure
 More than ever sin conceived of pains impure ;
 More than ever ground men's living souls to dust ;
 Worse than madness ever dreamed of murderous lust.
 Since the world's wail first went up from lands and seas

Ears have heard not, tongues have told not things like these.

Dante, led by love's and hate's accordant spell
 Down the deepest and the loathliest ways of hell,
 Where beyond the brook of blood the rain was fire, Where the scalps were masked with dung more deep than mire,

Saw not, where the filth was foulest, and the night Darkest, depths whose fiends could match the Muscovite.

Set beside this truth, his deadliest vision seems Pale and pure and painless as a virgin's dreams.

Maidens dead beneath the claspings lash, and wives Rent with deadlier pangs than death—for shame survives,
Naked, mad, starved, scourged, spurned, frozen, fallen, deflowered,
Souls and bodies as by fangs of beasts devoured, Sounds that hell would hear not, sights no thought could shape,
Limbs that feel as flame the ravenous grasp of rape,
Filth of raging crime and shame that crime enjoys,
Age made one with youth in torture, girls with boys,
These, and worse if aught be worse than these things
 are,
Prove thee regent, Russia—praise thy mercy, Czar.

II

Sons of man, men born of women, may we dare
Say they sin who dare be slain and dare not spare?
They who take their lives in hand and smile on death,
Holding life as less than sleep's most fitful breath,
So their life perchance or death may serve and speed
Faith and hope, that die if dream become not deed?
Nought is death and nought is life and nought is fate
Save for souls that love has clothed with fire of hate.
These behold them, weigh them, prove them, find them nought,
Save by light of hope and fire of burning thought.
What though sun be less than storm where these aspire,
Dawn than lightning, song than thunder, light than
 fire?
Help is none in heaven : hope sees no gentler star :
Earth is hell, and hell bows down before the Czar.

All its monstrous, murderous, lecherous births acclaim
Him whose empire lives to match its fiery fame.
Nay, perchance at sight or sense of deeds here done,
Here where men may lift up eyes to greet the sun,
Hell recoils heart-stricken : horror worse than hell Darkens earth and sickens heaven ; life knows the spell,
Shudders, quails, and sinks--or, filled with fierier
breath,
Rises red in arms devised of darkling death.
Pity mad with passion, anguish mad with shame,
Call aloud on justice by her darker name ;
Love grows hate for love's sake · life takes death for guide.
Night hath none but one red star Tyrannicide.

III

“ God or man, be swift ; hope sickens with delay :
Smite, and send him howling down his father's way !
Fall, O fire of heaven, and smite as fire from hell Halls wherein men's torturers, crowned and cowering, dwell !
These that crouch and shrink and shudder, girt with power—
These that reign, and dare not trust one trembling hour—
These omnipotent, whom terror curbs and drives—
These whose life reflects in fear their victims' lives—
These whose breath sheds poison worse than plague's thick breath—
These whose reign is ruin, these whose word is death,

These whose will turns heaven to hell, and day to night,

These, if God's hand smite not, how shall man's not smite ? "

So from hearts by horror withered as by fire

Surge the strains of unappeasable desire ;

Sounds that bid the darkness lighten, lit for death ;

Bid the lips whose breath was doom yield up their breath :

Down the way of Czars, awhile in vain deferred,

Bid the Second Alexander light the Third.

How for shame shall men rebuke them ? how may we Blame, whose fathers died, and slew, to leave us free ?

We, though all the world cry out upon them, know,

Were our strife as theirs, we could not strike but so ;

Could not cower, and could not kiss the hands that smite ;

Could not meet them armed in sunlit battle's light.

Dark as fear and red as hate though morning rise,

Life it is that conquers ; death it is that dies.

FOR GREECE AND CRETE

STORM and shame and fraud and darkness fill the nations full with night :
 Hope and fear whose eyes yearn eastward have but fire and sword in sight :
 One alone, whose name is one with glory, sees and seeks the light.

Hellas, mother of the spirit, sole supreme in war and peace,
 Land of light, whose word remembered bids all fear and sorrow cease,
 Lives again, while freedom lightens eastward yet for sons of Greece.

Greece, where only men whose manhood was as god head ever trod,
 Bears the blind world witness yet of light wherewith her feet are shod :
 Freedom, armed of Greece was always very man and very God.

Now the winds of old that filled her sails with triumph, when the fleet
 Bound for death from Asia fled before them stricken, wake to greet
 Ships full-winged again for freedom toward the sacred shores of Crete.

There was God born man, the song that spake of old time said : and there Man, made even as God by trust that shows him nought too dire to dare, Now may light again the beacon lit when those we worship were.

Sharp the concert wrought of discord shrills the tune of shame and death, Turk by Christian fenced and fostered, Mecca backed by Nazareth :
 All the powerless powers, tongue-valiant, breathe but greed's or terror's breath.

Though the tide that feels the west wind lift it wave by widening wave
 Wax not yet to height and fullness of the storm that smites to save,
 None shall bid the flood back seaward till no bar be left to brave.

DELPHIC HYMN TO APOLLO

(B.C. 280)

DONE INTO ENGLISH

I

THEE, the son of God most high,
Famed for harping song, will I Proclaim, and the deathless oracular word
From the snow-topped rock that we gaze on heard, Counsels of thy glorious giving Manifest for all men living,
How thou madest the tripod of prophecy thine
Which the wrath of the dragon kept guard on, a shrine
Voiceless till thy shafts could smite
All his live coiled glittering might.

II

Ye that hold of right alone
All deep woods on Helicon,
Fair daughters of thunder-girt God, with your bright White arms uplift as to lighten the light,
Come to chant your brother's praise,
Gold-haired Phœbus, loud in lays,
Even his, who afar up the twin-topped seat
Of the rock Parnassian whereon we meet

Risen with glorious Delphic maids Seeks the soft spring-sweetened shades
Castalian, fain of the Delphian peak Prophetic, sublime as the feet that seek.
Glorious Athens, highest of state,
Come, with praise and prayer elate,
O thou that art queen of the plain unscarred
That the warrior Tritonid hath alway in guard,
Where on many a sacred shrine
Young bulls' thigh-bones burn and shine
As the god that is fire overtakes them, and fast
The smoke of Arabia to heavenward is cast, Scattering wide its balm : and shrill
Now with nimble notes that thrill
The flute strikes up for the song, and the harp of gold Strikes up to the song sweet answer : and all behold,
All, aswarm as bees, give ear,
Who by birth hold Athens dear.

A NEW CENTURY

AN age too great for thought of ours to scan,
A wave upon the sleepless sea of time
That sinks and sleeps for ever, ere the chime
Pass that salutes with blessing, not with ban,
The dark year dead, the bright year born for man,
Dies : all its days that watched man cower and climb,
Frail as the foam, and as the sun sublime,
Sleep sound as they that slept ere these began.

Our mother earth, whose ages none may tell,
Puts on no change : time bids not her wax pale
Or kindle, quenched or quickened, when the knell
Sounds, and we cry across the veering gale
Farewell—and midnight answers us, Farewell ;
Hail—and the heaven of morning answers, Hail.

AN EVENING AT VICHY

SEPTEMBER 1896

WRITTEN ON THE NEWS OF THE DEATH OF LORD LEIGHTON

A LIGHT has passed that never shall pass away,
 A sun has set whose rays are unquelled of night.
 The loyal grace, the courtesy bright as day,
 The strong sweet radiant-spirit of life and light That shone and smiled and lightened on all men's sight,
 The kindly life whose tune was the tune of May,
 For us now dark, for love and for fame is bright.

Nay, not for us that live as the fen-fires live,
 As stars that shoot and shudder with life and die,
 Can death make dark that lustre of life, or give
 The grievous gift of trust in oblivion's lie.
 Days dear and far death touches, and draws them nigh,
 And bids the grief that broods on their graves forgive
 The day that seems to mock them as clouds that fly.

If life be life more faithful than shines on sleep
 When dreams take wing and lighten and fade like
 flame,
 Then haply death may be not a death so deep

That all things past are past for it wholly—fame,
Love, loving-kindness, seasons that went and came,
And left their light on life as a seal to keep Winged memory fast and heedful of time's dead claim.

Death gives back life and light to the sunless years
Whose suns long sunken set not for ever. Time, Blind, fierce, and deaf as tempest, relents, and hears And sees how bright the days and how sweet their chime
Rang, shone, and passed in music that matched the clime
Wherein we met rejoicing—a joy that cheers
Sorrow, to see the night as the dawn sublime.

The days that were outlighten the days that are,
And eyes now darkened shine as the stars we see
And hear not sing, impassionate star to star,
As once we heard the music that haply he Hears, high in heaven if ever a voice may be The same in heaven, the same as on earth, afar
From pain and earth as heaven from the heaving
sea.

A woman's voice, divine as a bird's by dawn
Kindled and stirred to sunward, arose and held Our souls that heard, from earth as from sleep withdrawn,
And filled with light as stars, and as stars compelled
To move by might of music, elate while quelled, Subdued by rapture, lit as a mountain lawn
By morning whence all heaven in the sunrise welled.

And her the shadow of death as a robe clasped round
Then • and as morning's music she passed away.
And he then with us, warrior and wanderer, crowned With fame that shone from eastern on western
day,
More strong, more kind, than praise or than grief might say,
Has passed now forth of shadow by sunlight bound,
Of night shot through with light that is frail as May.

May dies, and light grows darkness, and life grows
death :

Hope fades and shrinks and falls as a changing leaf :
Remembrance, touched and kindled by love's live
breath,

Shines, and subdues the shadow of time called grief,
The shade whose length of life is as life's date brief,
With joy that broods on the sunlight past, and saith That thought and love hold sorrow and change in fief.

Sweet, glad, bright spirit, kind as the sun seems kind
When earth and sea rejoice in his gentler spell, Thy face that was we see not ; bereft and blind,
We see but yet, rejoicing to see, and dwell Awhile in days that heard not the death-day's knell,
A light so bright that scarcely may sorrow find One old sweet word that hails thee and mourns—
Farewell.

TO GEORGE FREDERICK WATTS

ON THE EIGHTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF HIS BIRTH,
FEBRUARY 23 1897

HIGH thought and hallowed love, by faith made one,
Begot and bare the sweet strong-hearted child,
Art, nursed of Nature ; earth and sea and sun
Saw Nature then more godlike as she smiled.
Life smiled on death, and death on life : the Soul
Between them shone, and soared above their strife,
And left on Time's unclosed and starry scroll
A sign that quickened death to deathless life.
Peace rose like Hope, a patient queen, and bade Hell's firstborn, Faith, abjure her creed and die ;
And Love, by life and death made sad and glad, Gave Conscience ease, and watched Good Will pass by.
All these make music now of one man's name,
Whose life and age are one with love and fame.

ON THE DEATH OF MRS. LYNN LINTON

KIND, wise, and true as truth's own heart,
 A soul that here
 Chose and held fast the better part
 And cast out fear,

Has left us ere we dreamed of death
 For life so strong,
 Clear as the sundawn's light and breath,
 And sweet as song.

We see no more what here awhile
 Shed light on men :
 Has Landor seen that brave bright smile
 Alive again ?

If death and life and love be one
 And hope no lie
 And night no stronger than the sun,
 These cannot die.

The father-spirit whence her soul Took strength, and gave Back love, is perfect yet and whole,
 As hope might crave.

1218 ON THE DEATH OF MRS. LYNN LINTON

His word is living light and fire :
 And hers shall live
By grace of all good gifts the sire Gave power to give.

The sire and daughter, twain and one
 In quest and goal,
Stand face to face beyond the sun,
 And soul to soul.

Not we, who loved them well, may dream
 What joy sublime
Is theirs, if dawn through darkness gleam,
 And life through time.

Time seems but here the mask of death,
 That falls and shows
A void where hope may draw not breath :
 Night only knows.

Love knows not : all that love may keep Glad memory gives :
The spirit of the days that sleep
 Still wakes and lives.

But not the spirit's self, though song
 Would lend it speech,
May touch the goal that hope might long
 In vain to reach.

How dear that high true heart, how sweet
 Those keen kind eyes,
Love knows, who knows how fiery fleet
 Is life that flies.

ON THE DEATH OF MRS. LYNN LINTON 1219

If life there be that flies not, fair
The life must be
That thrills her sovereign spirit there
And sets it free.

BELOVED above all nations, land adored, Sovereign in spirit and charm, by song and sword,
 Sovereign whose life is love, whose name is light,
 Italia, queen that hast the sun for lord,

Bride that hast heaven for bridegroom, how should
 night

Veil or withhold from faith's and memory's sight
 A man beloved and crowned of thee and fame, Hide for an hour his name's memorial might ?

Thy sons may never speak or hear the name
 Saffi, and feel not love's regenerate flame Thrill all the quickening heart with faith and pride
 In one whose life makes death and life the same.

They die indeed whose souls before them died :
 Not he, for whom death flung life's portal wide,
 Who stands where Dante's soul in vision came,
 In Dante's presence, by Mazzini's side

CARNOT

DEATH, winged with fire of hate from deathless hell
 Wherein the souls of anarchs hiss and die,
 With stroke as dire has cloven a heart as high
 As twice beyond the wide sea's westward swell
 The living lust of death had power to quell Through ministry of murderous hands whereby Dark fate bade Lincoln's head and Garfield's lie Low even as his who bids his France farewell.

France, now no heart that would not weep with thee Loved ever faith or freedom. From thy hand
 The staff of state is broken : hope, unmanned
 With anguish, doubts if freedom's self be free.
 The snake-souled anarch's fang strikes all the land
 Cold, and all hearts unsundered by the sea.

June 25, 1894.

AFTER THE VERDICT

FRANCE, cloven in twain by fire of hell and hate, Shamed with the shame of men her meanest born,
 Soldier and judge whose names, inscribed for scorn,
 Stand vilest on the record writ of fate,
 Lies yet not wholly vile who stood so great,
 Sees yet not all her praise of old outworn.
 Not yet is all her scroll of glory torn,
 Or left for utter shame to desecrate.
 High souls and constant hearts of faithful men Sustain her perfect praise with tongue and pen Indomitable as honour. Storms may toss
 And soil her standard ere her bark win home :
 But shame falls full upon the Christless cross
 Whose brandmark signs the holy hounds of Rome.

September 1899.

THE TRANSVAAL

PATIENCE, long sick to death, is dead. Too long Have sloth and doubt and treason bidden us be What Cromwell's England was not, when the sea
 To him bore witness given of Blake how strong
 She stood, a commonweal that brooked no wrong
 From foes less vile than men like wolves set free
 Whose war is waged where none may fight or flee—
 With women and with weanlings. Speech and song Lack utterance now for loathing. Scarce we hear Foul tongues that blacken God's dishonoured name With prayers turned curses and with praise found
 shame
 Defy the truth whose witness now draws near
 To scourge these dogs, agape with jaws afoam, Down out of life. Strike, England, and strike home.

October 9, 1899.

REVERSE

THE wave that breaks against a forward stroke Beats not the swimmer back, but thrills him through With joyous trust to win his way anew
 Through stronger seas than first upon him broke
 And triumphed. England's iron-tempered oak Shrank not when Europe's might against her grew Full, and her sun drank up her foes like dew,
 And lion-like from sleep her strength awoke.

As bold in fight as bold in breach of trust
 We find our foes, and wonder not to find, Nor grudge them praise whom honour may not bind :
 But loathing more intense than speaks disgust Heaves England's heart, when scorn is bound to greet
 Hunters and hounds whose tongues would lick their feet.

THE TURNING OF THE TIDE

STORM, strong with all the bitter heart of hate, Smote England, now nineteen dark years ago,
 As when the tide's full wrath in seaward flow Smites and bears back the swimmer. Fraud and fate
 Were leagued against her : fear was fain to prate
 Of honour in dishonour, pride brought low,
 And humbleness whence holiness must grow,
 And greatness born of shame to be so great.

The winter day that withered hope and pride Shines now triumphal on the turning tide
 That sets once more our trust in freedom free,
 That leaves a ruthless and a truthless foe
 And all base hopes that hailed his cause laid low,
 And England's name a light on land and sea.

February 27, 1900.

ON THE DEATH OF COLONEL BENSON

NORTHUMBERLAND, so proud and sad to-day,
 Weep and rejoice, our mother, whom no son
 More glorious than this dead and deathless one Brought ever fame whereon no time shall prey.
 Nor heed we more than he what liars dare say
 Of mercy's holiest duties left undone Toward whelps and dams of murderous foes, whom none
 Save we had spared or feared to starve and slay.

Alone as Milton and as Wordsworth found
 And hailed their England, when from all around Howled all the recreant hate of envious knaves, Sublime she stands : while, stifled in the sound,
 Each lie that falls from German boors and slaves Falls but as filth dropt in the wandering waves.

November 4, 1901.

ASTRÆA VICTRIX

ENGLAND, elect of time,
 By freedom sealed sublime,
 And constant as the sun that saw thy dawn Outshine upon the sea
 His own in heaven, to be
 A light that night nor day should see withdrawn,
 If song may speak not now thy praise,
 Fame writes it higher than song may soar or faith may gaze.

Dark months on months beheld
 Hope thwarted, crossed, and quelled,
 And heard the heartless hounds of hatred bay Aloud against thee, glad
 As now their souls are sad
 Who see their hope in hatred pass away
 And wither into shame and fear
 And shudder down to darkness, loth to see or hear.

Nought now they hear or see
 That speaks or shows not thee
 Triumphant ; not as empires reared of yore,
 The imperial commonweal
 That bears thy sovereign seal

And signs thine orient as thy natural shore
Free, as no sons but thine may stand,
Steers lifeward ever, guided of thy pilot hand.

Fear, masked and veiled by fraud,
Found shameful time to applaud Shame, and bow down thy banner towards the dust.

And cail on godly shame
To desecrate thy name
And bid false penitence abjure thy trust :
Till England's heart took thought at last,
And felt her future kindle from her fiery past.

Then sprang the sunbright fire
High as the sun, and higher Than strange men's eyes might watch it undismayed :
But winds athwart it blew
Storm, and the twilight grew Darkness awhile, an unenduring shade :
And all base birds and beasts of night
Saw no more England now to fear, no loathsome light.

All knaves and slaves at heart
Who, knowing thee what thou art,
Abhor thee, seeing what none save here may see,
Strong freedom, taintless truth,
Supreme in ageless youth,
Howled all their hate and hope aloud at thee
While yet the wavering wind of strife Bore hard against her sail whose freight is hope and life.

And now the quickening tide
 That brings back power and pride
 To faith and love whose ensign is thy name
 Bears down the recreant lie
 That doomed thy name to die,
 Sons, friends, and foes behold thy star the same
 As when it stood in heaven a sun
 And Europe saw no glory left her sky save one.

And now, as then she saw,
 She sees with shamefast awe
 How all unlike all slaves and tyrants born Where bondmen champ the bit
 And anarchs foam and flit,
 And day mocks day, and year puts year to scorn,
 Our mother bore us, English men,
 Ashamed of shame and strong in mercy, now as then.

We loosed not on these knaves
 Their scourge-tormented slaves :
 We held the hand that fain had risen to smite
 The torturer fast, and made
 Justice awhile afraid,
 And righteousness forego her ruthless right :
 We warred not even with these as they ;
 We bade not them they preyed on make of them their prey.

All murderous fraud that lurks
 In hearts where hell's craft works Fought, crawled, and slew in darkness · they that died
 Dreamed not of foes too base
 For scorn to grant them grace :

Men wounded, women, children at their side,
Had found what faith in fiends may live :
And yet we gave not back what righteous doom would give.

No false white flag that fawns
On faith till murder dawns
Blood-red from hell-black treason's heart of hate Left ever shame's foul brand
Seared on an English hand :
And yet our pride vouchsafes them grace too great For other pride to dream of : scorn
Strikes retribution silent as the stars at morn.

And now the living breath
Whose life puts death to death, Freedom, whose name is England, stirs and thrills
The burning darkness through Whence fraud and slavery grew,
We scarce may mourn our dead whose fame fulfils
The record where her foes have read That earth shall see none like her born ere earth be dead.

THE FIRST OF JUNE

PEACE and war are one in proof of England's deathless praise.

One divine day saw her foemen scattered on the sea

Far and fast as storm could speed : the same strong day of days

Sees the imperial commonweal set friends and foemen free.

Save where freedom reigns, whose name is England, fraud and fear

Grind and blind the face of men who look on her and lie :

Now may truth and pride in truth, whose seat of old was here,

See them shamed and stricken blind and dumb as worms that die.

Even before our hallowed hawthorn-blossom pass and cease,

Even as England shines and smiles at last upon the sun,

Comes the word that means for England more than passing peace,

Peace with honour, peace with pride in righteous work well done.

Crowned with flowers the first of all the world and all the year,

Peace, whose name is one with honour born of war, is here.

ROUNDEL

FROM THE FRENCH OF VILLON

DEATH, I would plead against thy wrong,
Who hast reft me of my love, my wife,
And art not satiate yet with strife,
But needs wilt hold me lingering long.
No strength since then has kept me strong :
But what could hurt thee in her life,
Death ?

Twain we were, and our hearts one song,
One heart : if that be dead, thy knife
Hath cut me off alive from life,
Dead as the carver's figured throng,
Death !

A ROUNDEL OF RABELAIS

THELEME is afar on the waters, adrift and afar, Afar and afloat on the waters that flicker and gleam,
 And we feel but her fragrance and see but the shadows that mar
 Theleme.

In the sun-coloured mists of the sunrise and sunset that steam
 As incense from urns of the twilight, her portals ajar Let pass as a shadow the light of the sound of a dream.

But the laughter that rings from her cloisters that know not a bar
 So kindles delight in desire that the souls in us deem He erred not, the seer who discerned on the seas as a star Theleme.

LUCIFER

Écrasez l'infâme.—VOLTAIRE*Les prêtres ont raison de l'appeler Lucifer.*—VICTOR HUGO

VOLTAIRE, our England's lover, man divine Beyond all Gods that ever fear adored
 By right and might, by sceptre and by sword,
 By godlike love of sunlike truth, made thine
 Through godlike hate of falsehood's marshlight shine
 And all the fume of creeds and deeds abhorred Whose light was darkness, till the dawn-star soared,
 Truth, reason, mercy, justice, keep thy shrine
 Sacred in memory's temple, seeing that none
 Of all souls born to strive before the sun
 Loved ever good or hated evil more.
 The snake that felt thy heel upon her head, Night's first-born, writhes as though she were not
 dead,
 But strikes not, stings not, slays not as before.

THE CENTENARY OF ALEXANDRE DUMAS

SOUND of trumpets blowing down the merriest winds of morn,

Flash of hurtless lightnings, laugh of thunders loud and glad,

Here should hail the summer day whereon a light was born

Whence the sun grew brighter, seeing the world less dark and sad.

Man of men by right divine of boyhood everlasting, France incarnate, France immortal in her deathless boy,

Brighter birthday never shone than thine on earth, forecasting

More of strenuous mirth in manhood, more of manful joy.

Child of warriors, friend of warriors, Garibaldi's friend,

Even thy name is as the splendour of a sunbright
sword :

While the boy's heart beats in man, thy fame shall find not end :

Time and dark oblivion bow before thee as their lord.

CENTENARY OF ALEXANDRE DUMAS 1237

Youth acclaims thee gladdest of the gods that gild his days :

Age gives thanks for thee, and death lacks heart to quench thy praise.

AT A DOG'S GRAVE

I

GOOD NIGHT, we say, when comes the time to win
 The daily death divine that shuts up sight,
 Sleep, that assures for all who dwell therein
 Good night.

The shadow shed round those we love shines bright
 As love's own face, when death, sleep's gentler twin,
 From them divides us even as night from light.

Shall friends born lower in life, though pure of sin,
 Though clothed with love and faith to usward plight,
 Perish and pass unbidden of us, their kin,
 Good night ?

II

To die a dog's death once was held for shame.
 Not all men so beloved and mourned shall lie
 As many of these, whose time untimely came
 To die.

His years were full : his years were joyous : why Must love be sorrow, when his gracious name
 Recalls his lovely life of limb and eye ?

If aught of blameless life on earth may claim Life higher than death, though death's dark wave rise high,
Such life as this among us never came
 To die.

White violets, there by hands more sweet than they Planted, shall sweeten April's flowerful air
About a grave that shows to night and day
 White violets there.

A child's light hands, whose touch makes flowers more fair,
Keep fair as these for many a March and May
The light of days that are because they were.

It shall not like a blossom pass away ;
It broods and brightens with the days that bear Fresh fruits of love, but leave, as love might pray,
 White violets there.

THREE WEEKS OLD

THREE weeks since there was no such rose in being ;
Now may eyes made dim with deep delight
See how fair it is, laugh with love, and seeing Praise the chance that bids us bless the sight.

Three weeks old, and a very rose of roses,
Bright and sweet as love is sweet and bright.
Heaven and earth, till a man's life wanes and closes,
Show not life or love a lovelier sight.

Three weeks past have renewed the rosebright creature
Day by day with life, and night by night.
Love, though fain of its every faultless feature,
Finds not words to match the silent sight.

A CLASP OF HANDS

SOFT, small, and sweet as sunniest flowers
 That bask in heavenly heat
 When bud by bud breaks, breathes, and cowers,
 Soft, small, and sweet.

A babe's hands open as to greet
 The tender touch of ours
 And mock with motion faint and fleet

The minutes of the new strange hours
 That earth, not heaven, must mete ;
 Buds fragrant still from heaven's own bowers,
 Soft, small, and sweet.

A velvet vice with springs of steel
 That fasten in a trice
 And clench the fingers fast that feel
 A velvet vice—

What man would risk the danger twice,
 Nor quake from head to heel ?
 Whom would not one such test suffice ?

Well may we tremble as we kneel
In sight of Paradise,
If both a babe's closed fists conceal
A velvet vice.

Two flower-soft fists of conquering clutch,
Two creased and dimpled wrists,
That match, if mottled overmuch,
Two flower-soft fists—

What heart of man dare hold the lists Against such odds and such Sweet vantage as no strength resists?

Our strength is all a broken crutch,
Our eyes are dim with mists,
Our hearts are prisoners as we touch
Two flower-soft fists.

PROLOGUE TO DOCTOR FAUSTUS

LIGHT, as when dawn takes wing and smites the sea, Smote England when his day bade Marlowe be.
 No fire so keen had thrilled the clouds of time Since Dante's breath made Italy sublime.
 Earth, bright with flowers whose dew shone soft as tears,

Through Chaucer cast her charm on eyes and ears :
 The lustrous laughter of the love-lit earth
 Rang, leapt, and lightened in his might of mirth.
 Deep moonlight, hallowing all the breathless air,
 Made earth and heaven for Spenser faint and fair.
 But song might bid not heaven and earth be one Till Marlowe's voice gave warning of the sun.
 Thought quailed and fluttered as a wounded bird
 Till passion fledged the wing of Marlowe's word.
 Faith born of fear bade hope and doubt be dumb
 Till Marlowe's pride bade light or darkness come.
 Then first our speech was thunder : then our song Shot lightning through the clouds that wrought us wrong.

Blind fear, whose faith feeds hell with fire, became A moth self-shrivelled in its own blind flame.
 We heard, in tune with even our seas that roll,
 The speech of storm, the thunders of the soul.

1244 PROLOGUE TO DOCTOR FAUSTUS

Men's passions, clothed with all the woes they
wrought,
Shone through the fire of man's transfiguring thought.
The thirst of knowledge, quenchless at her springs,
Ambition, fire that clasps the thrones of kings,
Love, light that makes of life one lustrous hour,
And song, the soul's chief crown and throne of power,
The hungering heart of greed and ravenous hate,
Made music high as heaven and deep as fate.
Strange pity, scarce half scornful of her tear,
In Berkeley's vaults bowed down on Edward's bier.
But higher in forceful flight of song than all
The soul of man, its own imperious thrall,
Rose, when his royal spirit of fierce desire
Made life and death for man one flame of fire.
Incarnate man, fast bound as earth and sea,
Spake, when his pride would fain set Faustus free.
Eternal beauty, strong as day and night,
Shone, when his word bade Helen back to sight.
Fear, when he bowed the soul before her spell,
Thundered and lightened through the vaults of hell.
The music known of all men's tongues that sing, When Marlowe sang, bade love make heaven of
spring ;
The music none but English tongues may make,
Our own sole song, spake first when Marlowe spake ;
And on his grave, though there no stone may stand,
The flower it shows was laid by Shakespeare's hand.

PROLOGUE TO ARDEN OF FEVERSHAM

LOVE dark as death and fierce as fire on wing Sustains in sin the soul that feels it cling Like flame whose tongues are serpents : hope and fear Die when a love more dire than hate draws near,
 And stings to death the heart it cleaves in twain,
 And leaves in ashes all but fear and pain.
 Our lustrous England rose to life and light
 From Rome's and hell's immitigable night,
 And music laughed and quickened from her breath,
 When first her sons acclaimed Elizabeth.
 Her soul became a lyre that all men heard
 Who felt their souls give back her lyric word.
 Yet now not all at once her perfect power
 Spake : man's deep heart abode awhile its hour, Abode its hour of utterance ; not to wake
 Till Marlowe's thought in thunderous music spake.
 But yet not yet was passion's tragic breath
 Thrilled through with sense of instant life and death, Life actual even as theirs who watched the strife,
 Death dark and keen and terrible as life.
 Here first was truth in song made perfect : here
 Woke first the war of love and hate and fear.
 A man too vile for thought's or shame's control
 Holds empire on a woman's loftier soul,

1246 PROLOGUE TO ARDEN OF FEVERSHAM

And withers it to wickedness : in vain
Shame quickens thought with penitential pain :
In vain dark chance's fitful providence
Withholds the crime, and chills the spirit of sense :
It wakes again in fire that burns away
Repentance, weak as night devoured of day.
Remorse, and ravenous thirst of sin and crime,
Rend and consume the soul in strife sublime,
And passion cries on pity till it hear
And tremble as with love that casts out fear.
Dark as the deed and doom he gave to fame
For ever lies the sovereign singer's name.
Sovereign and regent on the soul he lives While thought gives thanks for aught remembrance gives,
And mystery sees the imperial shadow stand
By Marlowe's side alone at Shakespeare's hand.

PROLOGUE TO OLD FORTUNATUS

THE golden bells of fairyland, that ring
 Perpetual chime for childhood's flower-sweet spring, Sang soft memorial music in his ear
 Whose answering music shines about us here.
 Soft laughter as of light that stirs the sea
 With darkling sense of dawn ere dawn may be,
 Kind sorrow, pity touched with gentler scorn,
 Keen wit whose shafts were sunshafts of the morn,
 Love winged with fancy, fancy thrilled with love,
 An eagle's aim and ardour in a dove,
 A man's delight and passion in a child,
 Inform it as when first they wept and smiled.
 Life, soiled and rent and ringed about with pain
 Whose touch lent action less of spur than chain, Left half the happiness his birth designed,
 And half the power, unquenched in heart and mind.
 Comrade and comforter, sublime in shame,
 A poor man bound in prison whence he came Poor, and took up the burden of his life
 Smiling, and strong to strive with sorrow and strife,
 He spake in England's ear the poor man's word,
 Manful and mournful, deathless and unheard.
 His kind great heart was fire, and love's own fire,
 Compassion, strong as flesh may feel desire,

1248 PROLOGUE TO OLD FORTUNATUS

To enkindle pity and mercy toward a soul
Sunk down in shame too deep for shame's control.
His kind keen eye was light to lighten hope
Where no man else might see life's darkness ope
And pity's touch bring forth from evil good,
Sweet as forgiveness, strong as fatherhood.
Names higher than his outshine it and outsoar,
But none save one should memory cherish more :
Praise and thanksgiving crown the names above,
But him we give the gift he gave us, love.

PROLOGUE TO THE DUCHESS OF MALFY

WHEN Shakespeare soared from life to death, above
 All praise, all adoration, save of love,
 As here on earth above all men he stood
 That were or are or shall be—great, and good,
 Past thank or thought of England or of man—
 Light from the sunset quickened as it ran.
 His word, who sang as never man may sing
 And spake as never voice of man may ring,
 Not fruitless fell, as seed on sterile ways,
 But brought forth increase even to Shakespeare's praise.

Our skies were thrilled and filled, from sea to sea,
 With stars outshining all their suns to be.
 No later light of tragic song they knew
 Like his whose lightning clove the sunset through.
 Half Shakespeare's glory, when his hand sublime
 Bade all the change of tragic life and time
 Live, and outlive all date of quick and dead,
 Fell, rested, and shall rest on Webster's head.
 Round him the shadows cast on earth by light Rose, changed, and shone, transfiguring death and
 night.

Where evil only crawled and hissed and slew
 On ways where nought save shame and bloodshed grew,

1250 PROLOGUE TO THE DUCHESS OF MALFY

He bade the loyal light of honour live,
And love, when stricken through the heart, forgive.
Deep down the midnight of the soul of sin
He lit the star of mercy throned therein.
High up the darkness of sublime despair
He set the sun of love to triumph there.
Things foul or frail his touch made strong and pure,
And bade things transient like to stars endure.
Terror, on wings whose flight made night in heaven,
Pity, with hands whence life took love for leaven, Breathed round him music whence his mortal breath
Drew life that bade forgetfulness and death
Die : life that bids his light of fiery fame Endure with England's, yea, with Shakespeare's name.

PROLOGUE TO THE REVENGER'S TRAGEDY

FIRE, and behind the breathless flight of fire Thunder that quickens fear and quells desire,
 Make bright and loud the terror of the night
 Wherein the soul sees only wrath for light.
 Wrath winged by love and sheathed by grief in steel Sets on the front of crime death's withering seal.
 The heaving horror of the storms of sin
 Brings forth in fear the lightning hid therein,
 And flashes back to darkness : truth, found pure
 And perfect, asks not heaven if shame endure.
 What life and death were his whose raging song Bore heaven such witness of the wild world's wrong,
 What hand was this that grasped such thunder, none Knows: night and storm seclude him from the sun.
 By daytime none discerns the fire of Mars :
 Deep darkness bares to sight the sterner stars,
 The lights whose dawn seems doomsday. None may tell

Whence rose a world so lit from heaven and hell.
 Life-wasting love, hate born of raging lust,
 Fierce retribution, fed with death's own dust
 And sorrow's pampering poison, cross and meet,
 And wind the world in passion's winding-sheet.
 So, when dark faith in faith's dark ages heard Falsehood, and drank the poison of the Word,

1252 PROLOGUE TO REVENGER'S TRAGEDY

Two shades misshapen came to monstrous birth,
A father fiend in heaven, a thrall on earth :
Man, meanest born of beasts that press the sod,
And die : the vilest of his creatures, God.
A judge unjust, a slave that praised his name, „
Made life and death one fire of sin and shame.
And thence reverberate even on Shakespeare's age
A light like darkness crossed his sunbright stage.
Music, sublime as storm or sorrow, sang
Before it : tempest like a harpstring rang.
The fiery shadow of a name unknown
Rose, and in song's high heaven abides alone.

PROLOGUE TO THE BROKEN HEART

THE mightiest choir of song that memory hears Gave England voice for fifty lustrous years.
 Sunrise and thunder fired and shook the skies
 That saw the sun-god Marlowe's opening eyes.
 The morn's own music, answered of the sea,
 Spake, when his living lips bade Shakespeare be,
 And England, made by Shakespeare's quickening
 breath

Divine and deathless even till life be death,
 Brought forth to time such godlike sons of men That shamefaced love grows pride, and now seems then.

Shame that their day so shone, so sang, so died,
 Remembering, finds remembrance one with pride.
 That day was clouding toward a stormlit close
 When Ford's red sphere upon the twilight rose.
 Sublime with stars and sunset fire, the sky
 Glowed as though day, nigh dead, should never die.
 Sorrow supreme and strange as chance or doom Shone, spake, and shuddered through the lustrous gloom.

Tears lit with love made all the darkening air
 Bright as though death's dim sunrise thrilled it there And life re-risen took comfort. Stern and still As hours and years that change and anguish fill,

1254 PROLOGUE TO THE BROKEN HEART

The strong secluded spirit, ere it woke,
Dwelt dumb till power possessed it, and it spoke.
Strange, calm, and sure as sense of beast or bird, Came forth from night the thought that breathed the
word ;

That chilled and thrilled with passion-stricken breath
Halls where Calantha trod the dance of death.
A strength of soul too passionately pure
To change for aught that horror bids endure,
To quail and wail and weep faint life away
Ere sovereign sorrow smite, relent, and slay, Sustained her silent, till her bridal bloom Changed, smiled, and waned in rapture toward the tomb.

Terror twin-born with pity kissed and thrilled
The lips that Shakespeare's word or Webster's filled :
Here both, cast out, fell silent : pity shrank,
Rebuked, and terror, spirit-stricken, sank :
The soul assailed arose afar above
All reach of all but only death and love.

PROLOGUE TO A VERY WOMAN

SWIFT music made of passion's changeful power,
 Sweet as the change that leaves the world in flower
 When spring laughs winter down to deathward, rang
 From grave and gracious lips that smiled and sang
 When Massinger, too wise for kings to hear
 And learn of him truth, wisdom, faith, or fear,
 Gave all his gentler heart to love's light lore,
 That grief might brood and scorn breed wrath no more.

Soft, bright, fierce, tender, fitful, truthful, sweet, A shrine where faith and change might smile and
 meet,

A soul whose music could but shift its tune
 As when the lustrous year turns May to June
 And spring subsides in summer, so makes good
 Its perfect claim to very womanhood.
 The heart that hate of wrong made fire, the hand Whose touch was fire as keen as shame's own brand
 When fraud and treason, swift to smile and sting, Crowned and discrowned a tyrant, knave or king,
 False each and ravenous as the fitful sea,
 Grew gently glad as love that fear sets free.
 Like eddying ripples that the wind restrains,
 The bright words whisper music ere it wanes.

1256 PROLOGUE TO A VERY WOMAN

Ere fades the sovereign sound of song that rang
As though the sun to match the sea's tune sang,
When noon from dawn took life and light, and time Shone, seeing how Shakespeare made the world sublime,
Ere sinks the wind whose breath was heaven's and day's,
The sunset's witness gives the sundawn praise.

PROLOGUE TO THE SPANISH GIPSY .

THE wind that brings us from the springtide south Strange music as from love's or life's own mouth Blew hither, when the blast of battle ceased
 That swept back southward Spanish prince and priest,
 A sound more sweet than April's flower-sweet rain,
 And bade bright England smile on pardoned Spain.
 The land that cast out Philip and his God Grew gladly subject where Cervantes trod.
 Even he whose name above all names on earth
 Crowns England queen by grace of Shakespeare's birth Might scarce have scorned to smile in God's wise down
 And gild with praise from heaven an earthlier crown.
 And he whose hand bade live down lengthening years
 Quixote, a name lit up with smiles and tears,
 Gave the glad watchword of the gipsies' life,
 Where fear took hope and grief took joy to wife.
 Times change, and fame is fitful as the sea :
 But sunset bids not darkness always be,
 And still some light from Shakespeare and the sun
 Burns back the cloud that masks not Middleton.
 With strong swift strokes of love and wrath he drew Shakespearean London's loud and lusty crew :
 No plainer might the likeness rise and stand
 When Hogarth took his living world in hand.

1258 PROLOGUE TO THE SPANISH GIPSY

No surer then his fire-fledged shafts could hit, Winged with as forceful and as faithful wit :
No truer a tragic depth and heat of heart
Glowed through the painter's than the poet's art.
He lit and hung in heaven the wan fierce moon Whose glance kept time with witchcraft's air-struck
tune :

He watched the doors where loveless love let in
The pageant hailed and crowned by death and sin
He bared the souls where love, twin-born with hate,
Made wide the way for passion-fostered fate.
All English-hearted, all his heart arose
To scourge with scorn his England's cowering foes :
And Rome and Spain, who bade their scorner be Their prisoner, left his heart as England's free.
Now give we all we may of all his due
To one long since thus tried and found thus true.

PROLOGUE TO THE TWO NOBLE KINSMEN

SWEET as the dewfall, splendid as the south,
 Love touched with speech Boccaccio's golden mouth,
 Joy thrilled and filled its utterance full with song,
 And sorrow smiled on doom that wrought no wrong.
 A starrier lustre of lordlier music rose Beyond the sundering bar of seas and snows
 When Chaucer's thought took life and light from his
 And England's crown was one with Italy's.
 Loftiest and last, by grace of Shakespeare's word, Arose above their quiring spheres a third,
 Arose; and flashed, and faltered : song's deep sky Saw Shakespeare pass in light, in music die.
 No light like his, no music, man might give
 To bid the darkened sphere, left songless, live.
 Soft though the sound of Fletcher's rose and rang
 And lit the lunar darkness as it sang,
 Below the singing stars the cloud-crossed moon
 Gave back the sunken sun's a trembling tune.
 As when at highest high tide the sovereign sea Pauses, and patience doubts if passion be,
 Till gradual ripples ebb, recede, recoil,
 Shine, smile, and whisper, laughing as they toil,
 Stark silence fell, at turn of fate's high tide,
 Upon his broken song when Shakespeare died,

1260 PROLOGUE TO TWO NOBLE KINSMEN

Till Fletcher's light sweet speech took heart to say What evening, should it speak for morning, may.
And fourfold now the gradual glory shines
That shows once more in heaven two twinborn signs,
Two brethren stars whose light no cloud may fret,
No soul whereon their story dawns forget.

THE AFTERGLOW OF SHAKESPEARE

LET there be light, said Time : and England heard :
 And manhood grew to godhead at the word.
 No light had shone, since earth arose from sleep,
 So far ; no fire of thought had cloven so deep.
 A day beyond all days bade life acclaim
 Shakespeare : and man put on his crowning name.
 All secrets once through darkling ages kept Shone, sang, and smiled to think how long they slept.
 Man rose past fear of lies whereon he trod :
 And Dante's ghost saw hell devour his God.
 Bright Marlowe, brave as winds that brave the sea
 When sundawn bids their bliss in battle be,
 Lit England first along the ways whereon
 Song brighter far than sunlight soared and shone.
 He died ere half his life had earned his right
 To lighten time with song's triumphant light.
 Hope shrank, and felt the stroke at heart : but one
 She knew not rose, a man to match the sun.
 And England's hope and time's and man's became Joy, deep as music's heart and keen as flame.
 Not long, for heaven on earth may live not long,
 Light sang, and darkness died before the song.
 He passed, the man above all men, whose breath
 Transfigured life with speech that lightens death.
 He passed : but yet for many a lustrous year
 His light of song bade England shine and hear.

1262 THE AFTERGLOW OF SHAKESPEARE

As plague and fire and faith in falsehood 'spread,
So from the man of men, divine and dead,
Contagious godhead, seen, unknown, and heard,
Fulfilled and quickened England ; thought and word,
When men would fain set life to music, grew More sweet than years which knew not Shakespeare knew.

The simplest soul that set itself to song
Sang, and may fear not time's or change's wrong.
The lightest eye that glanced on life could see Through grief and joy the God that man might be.
All passion whence the living soul takes fire
Till death fulfil despair and quench desire,
All love that lightens through the cloud of chance,
All hate that lurks in hope and smites askance,
All holiness of sorrow, all divine
Pity, whose tears are stars that save and shine,
All sunbright strength of laughter like the sea's
When spring and autumn loose their lustrous breeze,
All sweet, all strange, all sad, all glorious things,
Lived on his lips, and hailed him king of kings.
All thought, all strife, all anguish, all delight,
Spake all he bade, and speak till day be night.
No soul that heard, no spirit that beheld,
Knew not the God that lured them and compelled.
On Beaumont's brow the sun arisen afar
Shed fire which lit through heaven the younger star
That sank before the sunset : one dark spring
Slew first the kinglike subject, then the king.
The glory left above their graves made strong
The heart of Fletcher, till the flower-sweet song That Shakespeare culled from Chaucer's field, and died,
Found ending on his lips that smiled and sighed.

THE AFTERGLOW OF SHAKESPEARE 1263

From Dekker's eyes the light of tear-touched mirth Shone as from Shakespeare's, mingling heaven and earth.

Wild witchcraft's lure and England's love made one
With Shakespeare's heart the heart of Middleton.
Harsh, homely, true, and tragic, Rowley told His heart's debt down in rough and radiant gold.
The skies that Tournour's lightning clove and rent Flamed through the clouds where Shakespeare's thunder went.

Wise Massinger bade kings be wise in vain
Ere war bade song, storm-stricken, cower and wane.
Kind Heywood, simple-souled and single-eyed, Found voice for England's home-born praise and pride.

Strange grief, strange love, strange terror, bared the sword

That smote the soul by grace and will of Ford.
The stern grim strength of Chapman's thought found speech

Loud as when storm at ebb-tide rends the beach :
And all the honey brewed from flowers in May Made sweet the lips and bright the dreams of Day.
But even as Shakespeare caught from Marlowe's word Fire, so from his the thunder-bearing third, Webster, took light and might whence none but he Hath since made song that sounded so the sea
Whose waves are lives of men—whose tidestream rolls
From year to darkening year the freight of souls.
Alone above it, sweet, supreme, sublime,
Shakespeare attunes the jarring chords of time
Alone of all whose doom is death and birth,
Shakespeare is lord of souls alive on earth.

CLEOPATRA

• Her beauty might outface the jealous hours,
Turn shame to love and pain to a tender sleep,
And the strong nerve of hate to sloth and tears ;
Make spring rebellious in the sides of frost,
'Thrust out lank winter with hot August growths, Compel sweet blood into the husks of death,
And from strange beasts enforce harsh courtesy."

T. HAYMAN, Fall of Antony, 1655

CLEOPATRA

I

HER mouth is fragrant as a vine,
 A vine with birds in all its boughs ;
 Serpent and scarab for a sign
 Between the beauty of her brows
 And the amorous deep lids divine.

Her great curled hair makes luminous
 Her cheeks, her lifted throat and chin
 Shall she not have the hearts of us
 To shatter, and the loves therein
 To shred between her fingers thus ?

Small ruined broken strays of light,
 Pearl after pearl she shreds them through Her long sweet sleepy fingers, white
 As any pearl's heart veined with blue,
 And soft as dew on a soft night.

IV

As if the very eyes of love
Shone through her shutting lids, and stole
The slow looks of a snake or dove ;
As if her lips absorbed the whole
Of love, her soul the soul thereof.

Lost, all the lordly pearls that were Wrung from the sea's heart, from the green Coasts of the Indian gulf-river ;
Lost, all the loves of the world—so keen
Towards this queen for love of her.

You see against her throat the small
Sharp glittering shadows of them shake ;
And through her hair the imperial Curled likeness of the river snake,
Whose bite shall make an end of all.

Through the scales sheathing him like wings,
Through hieroglyphs of gold and gem,
The strong sense of her beauty stings,
Like a keen pulse of love in them,
A running flame through all his rings.

VIII

Under those low large lids of hers
 She hath the histories of all time ;
The fruit of foliage-stricken years ;
 The old seasons with their heavy chime
That leaves its rhyme in the world's ears.

IX

She sees the hand of death made bare,
 The ravelled riddle of the skies,
The faces faded that were fair,
 The mouths made speechless that were wise.
The hollow eyes and dusty hair ;

The shape and shadow of mystic things,
 Things that fate fashions or forbids ;
The staff of time-forgotten Kings
 Whose name falls off the Pyramids,
Their coffin-lids and grave-clothings ;

XI

Dank dregs, the scum of pool or clod,
 God-spawn of lizard-footed clans,
And those dog-headed hulks that trod
 Swart necks of the old Egyptians,
Raw draughts of man's beginning God ;

XII

The poised hawk, quivering ere he smote,
 With plume-like gems on breast and back ;
The asps and water-worms afloat
 Between the rush-flowers moist and slack ;
The cat's warm black bright rising throat.

The purple days of drouth expand
 Like a scroll opened out again ;
The molten heaven drier than sand,
 The hot red heaven without rain,
Sheds iron pain on the empty land.

XIV

All Egypt aches in the sun's sight ;
 The lips of men are harsh for drouth,
The fierce air leaves their cheeks burnt white,
 Charred by the bitter blowing south,
Whose dusty mouth is sharp to bite.

XV

All this she dreams of, and her eyes
 Are wrought after the sense hereof.
There is no heart in her for sighs ;
 The face of her is more than love—
A name above the Ptolemies.

Her great grave beauty covers her
As that sleek spoil beneath her feet
Clothed once the anointed soothsayer ;
The hallowing is gone forth from it
Now, made unmeet for priests to wear.

XVII

She treads on gods and god-like things,
On fate and fear and life and death,
On hate that cleaves and love that clings,
All that is brought forth of man's breath
And perisheth with what it brings.

She holds her future close, her lips Hold fast the face of things to be ;
Action, and sound of war that dips
Down the blown valleys of the sea,
Far sails that flee, and storms of ships ;

The laughing red sweet mouth of wine
At ending of life's festival ;
That spice of cerecloths, and the fine
White bitter dust funereal
Sprinkled on all things for a sign ;

XX

His face, who was and was not he,
In whom, alive, her life abode ;
The end, when she gained heart to see Those ways of death wherein she trod, Goddess by god, with Antony.

DEDICATION

THE sea that is life everlasting
 And death everlasting as life
 Abides not a pilot's forecasting, Foretells not of peace or of strife.
 The might of the night that was hidden Arises and darkens the day,
 A glory rebuked and forbidden,
 Time's crown, and his prey.

No sweeter, no kindlier, no fairer,
 No lovelier a soul from its birth Wore ever a brighter and rarer
 Life's raiment for life upon earth
 Than his who enkindled and cherished
 Art's vestal and luminous flame,
 That dies not when kingdoms have perished
 In storm or in shame.

No braver, no trustier, no purer,
 No stronger and clearer a soul
 Bore witness more splendid and surer
 For manhood found perfect and whole
 Since man was a warrior and dreamer
 Than his who in hatred of wrong
 Would fain have arisen a redeemer
 By sword or by song.

Twin brethren in spirit, immortal
As art and as love, which were one
For you from the birthday whose portal
First gave you to sight of the sun,
To-day nor to-night nor to-morrow
May bring you again from above,
Drawn down by the spell of the sorrow
Whose anguish is love.

No light rearing hereafter
Shall lighten us here as of old
When seasons were lustrous as laughter
Of waves that are snowshine and gold.
The dawn that imbues and enkindles
Life's fluctuant and fugitive sea
Dies down as the starshine that dwindles
And cares not to be.

Men, mightier than death which divides us,
Friends, dearer than sorrow can say,
The light that is darkness and hides us
Awhile from each other away
Abides but awhile and endures not,
We know, though the day be as night,
For souls that forgetfulness lures not Till sleep be in sight.

The sleep that enfolds you, the slumber
Supreme and eternal on earth,
Whence ages of numberless number
Shall bring us not back into birth,
We know not indeed if it be not What no man hath known if it be,
Life, quickened with light that we see not
If spirits may see.

The love that would see and would know it
Is even as the love of a child.
But the fire of the fame of the poet
Who gazed on the past, and it smiled,
But the light of the fame of the painter
Whose hand was as morning's in May,
Death bids not be darker or fainter,
Time casts not away.

We, left of them loveless and lonely,
Who lived in the light of their love,
Whose darkness desires it, we only,
Who see them afar and above,
So far, if we die not, above us,
So lately no dearer than near,
May know not of death if they love us,
Of night if they hear.

We, stricken and darkling and living,
Who loved them and love them, abide
A day, and the gift of its giving,
An hour, and the turn of its tide,
When twilight and midnight and morrow
Shall pass from the sight of the sun,
And death be forgotten, and sorrow
Discrowned and undone.

For us as for these will the breathless Brief minute arise and pass by :
And if death be not utterly deathless,
If love do not utterly die,
From the life that is quenched as an ember
The soul that aspires as a flame
Can choose not but wholly remember
Love, lovelier than fame.

Though sure be the seal of their glory
And fairer no fame upon earth,
Though never a leaf shall grow hoary
Of the crowns that were given them at birth,
While time as a vassal doth duty
To names that he towers not above,
More perfect in price and in beauty
For ever is love.

The night is upon us, and anguish
Of longing that yearns for the dead.
But mourners that faint not or languish,
That veil not and bow not the head,
Take comfort to heart if a token
Be given them of comfort to be :
While darkness on earth is unbroken,
Light lives on the sea.
